SECOND 4-H TRAINING TO BE HELD JANUARY 10 FOR GIRLS' LEADERS

Efficient sewing depends largely upon the use of adequate equipment of good quality. Miss Gladys Adams, 4-H clothing specialist from the Iowa State College, will meet with 4-H club leaders and committee members at the farm bureau office, Friday, January 10 The meeting will begin at 10 o'clock.

Many of the fundamental principles of the clothing construction will be reviewed and practice given in making various stitches that are commonly used in dressmaking. Knowing how to make a garment well will help in selection of well-made garments. The information will be passed on to all 4-H girls in the county in regular club meetings.

Klemme Youth Working On Government Project At Burlington

Last week Friday Milton Paul made application for carpenter work on a government project at Burlington and Saturday he received a call to report at Burlington on Sunday morning. Milton left immediately for Burlington. The project he will work on will be on construction of houses for army officers.

A Jam.

Carroll Boles, Melcher, had the misfortune to be jammed between two automobiles, injuring him seriously.

The Last of The G. A. R.

Farewell

A hundred dashing soldier boys,
Of Lincoln's Army true,
Came home again in sixty-five,
Their peace-time jobs to do.

They came to Hancock County when
Our prairie lands were new.
As pioneers they broke the sod,
Built homes for me and you.

But now their working days are o're,
These men who wore the blue;
The last to go to the Great Beyond
Was Klemme's comrad "Lew."

Lew Lewis reached age ninety-five,
And then he passed away,
His Spirit joined the camp above,
We honor now his clay.

The Stars and Stripes he loved so well,
Are draped upon his bier,
The Legion Boys, with rifles poised,
Salute their comrad dear.

Farewell, beloved soldier boy,
Farewell, our good friend "Lew,"
We bow our heads as the 'bugler boy,'
Blows 'final taps' for you.

Penn Eckels Re-elected Chairman Of Board

CHAS. F. MERTEN RE-APPOINTED AS HANCOCK CO. ENGINEER

Mrs. Fern Peck Katter Only New Officer on Court House Staff

At their first meeting for the new year, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors met at the Court House in Garner and named Penn Eckels, of Britt, as chairman of the Board. Other members of the Board are Frank J. Schoun and George E. Klipping.

Charles F. Merten was re-appointed Engineer for Hancock County Mr Merten has held this office for a number of years.

Mrs Fern Peck Katter is the only new official in the court house and was elected to the office of Recorder at the recent general election. Miss Betty Lou Barnes, of Garner, was selected by Mrs. Katter for her deputy. Miss Barnes served under Miss Callison, former recorder.

Other duties which took up the attention of the Board at their meeting Thursday included examining claims, allowing bills, closing books and counting cash in the several offices. They also made their annual inspection tour of the county home and buildings.

Spinning Tops.

Roberta Joyce Tubbs, Corydon, has learned that even spinning a toy top has its difficulties. While trying to get a top which had jumped from a table to the floor, she broke her arm.

Needles.

Mrs. L. L. Ingham, Waverly, has often wondered "where she put that needle." She recently found 100 of the "lost" needles in a pincushion which had been used for the last 25 years. And not one of them was rusted.

Basketball Conference Title At Stake?

POSTPONED!

The weather man played a joke on us and sent zero temperatures and a stormy northwest wind last Saturday night, and thus the burning of the Christmas Trees was postponed for a week.

We have a big pile of evergreen trees and the Girl and Boy Scouts are all set for their part in the program, even the torches for the torchlight parade are all ready to light.

So be with us, please, Saturday night, January 11th, gather around our big bonfire at 7:30 p. m.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE BASKETBALL GAME HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Outcome Of Hayfield-Klemme Game May Determine The Conference Championship

The Hayfield Black Raiders will invade the Shamrock stronghold here Friday night in an important conference basketball game.

Hayfield and Klemme are both perched at the top of the Seven Eagles conference standings with three wins and no defeats each, with Crystal Lake trailing with a two win and one defeat, which was administered by the Shamrocks before the holidays.

Hayfield, Crystal Lake and Klemme all have strong teams this year and any of the three may win the conference championship. Goodell, Woden and Kanawha have all lost three games each and no wins before the holidays. Hayfield has defeated Goodell, Kanawha and Woden but have not yet tangled with Crystal Lake or Klemme.

Hayfield has a strong team this year with plenty of tall boys who are handy swishing the net and should prove to have plenty of competition to offer the Shamrocks.

Conference Standings

Team	W	L	Pct.
KLEMME	3	0	1.0
Hayfield	3	0	1.0
Crystal Lake	2	1	.667
Goodell	0	3	.000
Kanawha	0	3	.000
Woden	0	3	.0

Shamrocks Travel Next Week

The Shamrocks will go to Meservey next Tuesday night, Jan. 14 for a double-header. Meservey has a good team this year and are winning their share of honors over in Cerro Gordo county.

On Friday night of next week, Jan. 17, the Shamrocks go to Goodell to meet their old rivals. Klemme and Goodell always put up a real game and anything can happen in a game between the two schools.

Roads Opened.

So that the Worth county roads could be opened in a short time, Supervisor L. J. Thompson and son, John, drove 615 miles in order to get repairs for the big plow. Residents of part of the county would have been snowbound for several days had not Thompson gone after the repairs.

LLEWELLYN LEWIS
Hancock County's Last Civil War Veteran

Historical Sketch

By Arthur Wellemeyer

Lewellyn Lewis was born August 8th, 1845, at Syracuse, New York, the second of a family of four children born to his parents, George W. Lewis and Rachel Mellisse (nee) Castle.

His parents were natives of New York state and were of Welch-Scotch extraction. His father owned and operated a saw mill in the woods of western New York.

At the age of one year, his parents moved to Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, where they went into the General Merchandise business.

He had just completed his common school education at Beaver Dam, Wis. when President Lincoln sent out the call for Civil War volunteers. Lew Lewis enlisted on October 12th, 1861, at the age of 16 years.

The first winter was spent in training at Camp Randall, near Madison, Wis. And the next spring his regiment became a part of "Sherman's Dashing Yankee Boys" who marched from Atlanta to the Sea. In 1862 he fought in the Battle of Shiloh, Georgia, which he said was a tough engagement and the hardest battle of his career as a soldier. He also took part at Vicksburg and was with the boys when they marched through Atlanta.

In 1865, while in North Carolina, he and his squad of soldier boys were foraging for food, when a party of Confederate soldiers surrounded them unawares and took them as prisoners. They were sent to Richmond, Virginia, and placed in Libby Prison. He said the prisoners were not fed too well, twice a day they received one piece of cornbread and once a day a small piece of meat. But, the war was soon over, and he was only in prison for a few months.

His address while in the army was: Company C, Volunteer Infantry, 16th Wisconsin Regiment, 1st Brigade, 3rd Division, 17th Army Corps.

He received his honorable discharge August 25th, 1865.

After the war he returned to Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, and worked in logging camps, in saw mills and even as a sailor on a river boat.

When the first settlers began to arrive in Cerro Gordo County, Iowa, Lew Lewis was with them.

In the spring of 1879, Lew Lewis and Elmira McGrady were married at the home of the Bride's parents near Clear Lake. They commenced housekeeping on a 400-acre farm southeast of Clear Lake. Two children were born to them, Gertrude, (Mrs. Henry Yahnke) and Charles Lewis. After five years the home was saddened by the death of the wife and mother.

Mr. Lewis discontinued his farming operations and a few years later, December 29th, 1886 was married again, this time to Blanche McGrady, and to this union six sons were born.

They commenced housekeeping at Porter's Siding which was a side track on the B. C. R. and N Ry, a mile north of where the town of Klemme now is located. They built a little home on the wide and treeless prairie where Mr. Lewis had rented many acres of grassland. This was cut for hay, baled and shipped to eastern markets by the carload.

In 1890, four years later, the spring after the town of Klemme was platted, our Hay Merchant moved to the new town, he built a large hay barn, of 10 car capacity, on the lots where the Aug Lau residence now stands.

It is interesting to note that the railroad company built a short length of track up into his barn so that he could load several bales of hay onto a hand car and push it to the side track for easy loading into the car.

Mr. Lewis stated that the oat crop in 1889, was the best ever raised here, many fields averaged 100 bushels per acre and sold for 12c per bushel.

Mr. Lewis and his family were among the very first settlers in the town of Klemme.

During the half century that Mr. Lewis lived in Klemme, he served this community in various positions, as a member of the town council, as town clerk, and as secretary of the school board.

It is remembered that when he resigned as secretary of the school board, on account of his advanced years, the board members presented him with a gold-headed cane.

In December 1936, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis had been married fifty years and celebrated this Golden Anniversary at their home in Klemme. The following year, Mrs. Blanche Lewis passed on to the Great Beyond.

And since then Mr. Lewis has continued to reside in his home with the help of a housekeeper and the help of his three sons and their families who live nearby.

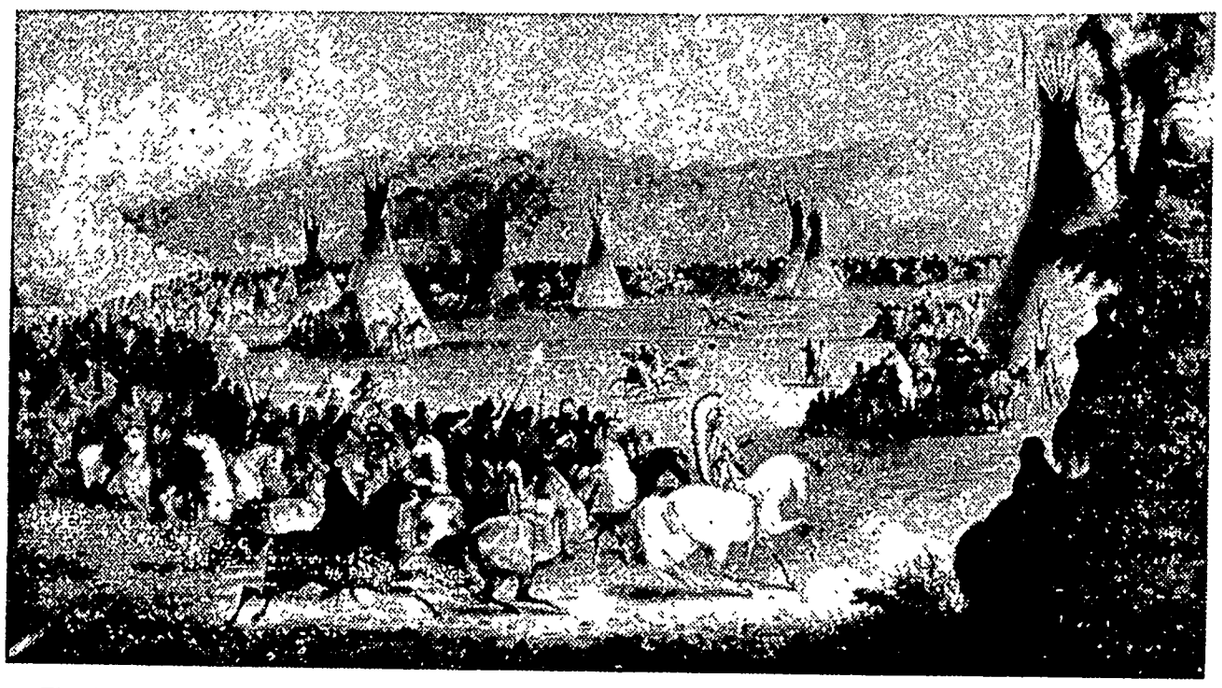
Three of his sons were volunteers in the World War, Holley with the Infantry in France, Verner with the Navy in the North Sea, and Ernest with the Navy in Home Waters.

Two sons, George and Ira, died in early childhood.

Mr. Lewis was leisurely and moderate in his habits. He always had time to visit with his friends, and always had time to go fishing. He was a friendly man in the community, and it seems Nature likes this type of person very well, and as a reward she allowed him to live nearly a century.

He leaves to mourn his passing: six children, Gertrude, Mrs. Henry Yahnke, of Garden City, Minn.; Charles and Holley Lewis, of Long Beach, California; Henry, Verner and Ernest E., all of Klemme, Iowa. Also 12 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren. One brother, A. C. Lewis, of Chicago, Ill., and a host of more distant

A Recently-Published Diary Sheds New Light on Romantic Story of Fur Trade In the Rocky Mountains a Century Ago



The Grand Parade of the Assembled Indians at the Fur Traders' Rendezvous in the Rocky Mountains in 1837. From the painting by Alfred J. Miller of Baltimore, who accompanied Sir William Drummond Stuart (or Stewart) of Murthly Castle, Scotland, to the Far West in 1837. This picture hung in Murthly Castle until about 1926 when it, and other paintings by Miller, were sold and sent to New York. It was purchased there by E. W. Marland, then governor of Oklahoma, and presented to the Oklahoma Historical society in 1936.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE romantic era of the Rocky mountain fur trade of a century ago came to life again the other day and once more such frontier notables as Old Jim Bridger, Kit Carson, Nathaniel J. Wyeth, Jim Beckworth, Captain Bonneville, Lucien Fontenelle and the Robidoux brothers strode across the stage of history. They appeared in a new book—"Life in the Rocky Mountains—A Diary of Wanderings on the Sources of the Rivers Missouri, Columbia, and Colorado, from February, 1830, to November, 1835, by W. A. Ferris, then in the Employ of the American Fur Company," edited by Paul C. Phillips and published by Fred A. Rosenstock—the Old West Publishing company of Denver, Colo.

"Life in the Rocky Mountains" is referred to in the foregoing as a "new book." Perhaps "rediscovered narrative" would be a more accurate description. For after Ferris' "wanderings on the sources of the rivers etc." were over, the diary which he had carefully kept was rewritten as a continuous narrative and published serially in an early American magazine, the Western Literary Messenger of Buffalo, N. Y., in 1843-44.

In this form it was known to a few scholars of the fur trade era but there were many gaps in the narrative because the Messenger ceased publication early in its career and many numbers had apparently been lost Then Mr. Rosenstock, who had been collecting copies of this magazine, traced down the missing numbers and made them available to Mr Phillips, who had already started work on a biography of Ferris.

Later research unearthed other important material—family papers, articles written by Ferris in his later years for the Dallas (Texas) Herald and, most important of all, a map of the Northwest Fur Country, drawn by Ferris about 1836 All of this material has gone into the making of this "new book" which is rated by historians as constituting one of the great "finds" in recent research in the history of the West.

Ferris was born in Glens Falls, N Y, December 26, 1810, and grew up in Buffalo, to which his family had moved when he was very young He was trained to be a surveyor but at the age of 18 he ran away from home because his mother disapproved of his smoking a pipe and scolded him severely for doing it on the street one day. Feeling the urge to "go West," he finally arrived in St Louis in June, 1829, and entered the employ of Pierre Chouteau Jr, head of the Western department of John Jacob Astor's American Fur company.

At that time three great companies were competing for the control of the fur business in the West Into this struggle the young New Yorker was plunged when he left St. Louis with an A. F C company in February, 1830, and went up the Platte river, through South Pass into the Green river country.

That fall they trapped the western tributaries of the Green and later moved over to the neighborhood of Great Salt Lake In 1831 Ferris was with a trapping party on the upper Snake river and there had difficulty with a band of rival Hudson's Bay trappers. That summer he crossed the Continental Divide into the valley of the Jefferson then continued north into the valley of Clark's Fork of the Columbia

The next spring Ferris returned to the Snake river country, was made a clerk and sent among the Flathead Indians with orders to bring them to the annual trappers' rendezvous at Pierre's Hole. He returned with the Flatheads in time to take part in the famous Battle of Pierre's Hole in July, 1832. That fall he was in another famous frontier fight in which his leader, William H Vandenburgh, lost his life.

Ferris tells a dramatic story of this incident—how the party of seven trappers came upon traces of an Indian hunting party and how they cautiously approached a little grove of trees "watching each wavering twig and rustling bough, to catch a glimpse of some skulking savage" Then:

Suddenly the lightning and thunder of at least twenty fusils burst upon our astonished senses from the gully, and awoke us to a startling consciousness of imminent danger, magnified beyond conception, by the almost magical appearance of more than one hundred warriors erect in uncompromising enmity—both before and on either side of us, at the terrifying distance (since measured) of thirty steps Imagination can not paint the horrid sublimity of the scene A thousand brilliances reflected from their guns as they were quickly thrown into various positions, either to load or fire succeeded the first volley, which was followed by a rapid succession of shots, and the leaden messengers of death, whistled in our ears as they passed in unwelcome proximity.

At that instant I saw three of our comrades flying, like arrows, from the place of murder The horse of our partisan (Vandenburgh) was shot dead under him but with unexampled firmness, he stepped calmly from the lifeless animal, presented his gun at the advancing foe and exclaimed "Boys, don't run"; at the same moment the wounded horse of a Frenchman threw his rider, and broke away towards camp. The yells of these infernal fiends filled the air, and death appeared inevitable, when I was aroused to energy by observing about twenty Indians advancing, to close the already narrow passage, between the two lines of warriors.

Dashing my spurs rowel deep into the flank of my noble steed, at a single bound he cleared the ditch, but before he reached the ground, I was struck in the left shoulder by a ball, which nearly threw me off, by a desperate effort, however I regained my upright position, and fled A friend, Mr R C. Nelson, crossed the gully with me, but a moment after he was called to return Without considering the utter impossibility of rendering assistance to our devoted partisan he wheeled, but at the same instant his horse was severely wounded by two balls through the neck, which compelled him to fly, yet he kept his eye for some moments on our friend, who seeing himself surrounded, without the possibility of escape, leveled his gun and shot down the foremost of his foes The Indians immediately fired a volley upon him—he fell—they uttered a loud and shrill yell of exultation, and the noble spirit of a good and a brave man had passed away, forever

Thus fell Wm Henry Vandenburgh, a gentleman born in Indiana, educated at West Point in the Military Academy, and, at the time he perished, under thirty years of age. Bold, daring and fearless, yet cautious, deliberate and prudent, uniting the apparent opposite qualities, of courage and coolness, a soldier and a scholar, he died universally beloved and regretted by all who knew him.

Ferris had many other narrow escapes from death during the remainder of his service with the American Fur company. Concerning his career in the Rockies, Phillips writes:

"The five and a half years which Warren Ferris passed in the mountains had done much to broaden his experience and develop his powers. He had served under such great masters of the fur trade as Andrew Drips, Lucien Fontenelle, Joseph Robidoux, and William Henry Vandenburgh; and his acquaintance with them in the small trading and trapping parties must have been intimate. He also met Jim Bridger, Thomas Fitzpatrick, Robert Campbell, Henry Fraeb, William and Milton Sublette, and other leaders of the opposition and learned of their ways and abilities. He knew Bonneville, Nathaniel P. Wyeth, Captain John Ghant and other independent traders. Another man whom he met, and evidently greatly admired but does not mention in his narrative, was Sir William Drummond Stuart, the famous English explorer and hunter.

THE DEATH OF VANDENBURGH

From the painting by Irvin Shope, now in the Montana State University Library. A reproduction of this picture forms the frontispiece in "Life in the Rocky Mountains."

Seated with such men by the campfire, or traveling the trail with them, must have given the young man a larger view of the world as well as a better knowledge of the problems of how to deal with Indians . . . The care with which he made his observations, and the honest and vividness with which he portrayed them, make his narrative one of absorbing interest. It is the only source of information regarding many important events in the savage struggle for control of the fur trade."

But aside from Ferris' importance as a first-hand chronicler of this important era in American history, he has other claims to fame. He left the mountains in the winter of 1835 and returned to his home in Buffalo to straighten out a family tangle One of his brothers had gone to Texas and the next year Warren Ferris joined him there. He became a surveyor in the service of the new Republic of Texas and it was he who made the surveys for the town which became the great city of Dallas.

Next he settled down as a farmer but took no part in the Civil war both because he was over age for service and because of his crippled shoulder received in the fight with the Indians in which Vandenburgh was killed. His later years were devoted to literary work and he died on February 8, 1873.

CHRIST'S VALUATION OF PERSONALITY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?—Matthew 6:25.

People, people, and more people! Have you ever said, "I'm just so tired of people. I wish I could get away from everybody"? Most of us have felt that way some time and have possibly needed and deserved a rest. We must not permit that feeling to so color our thinking, however, that we lose our interest in men and women, boys and girls.

Jesus had His times of prayer and quiet communion with the Father, but for the most part we find Him out among people. He loved them and consequently dealt faithfully with them, showing tenderness to those who needed it, and often being severely plain and direct in dealing with those who were hypocrites. He valued human personality highly, hence He gave Himself in sacrificial devotion to winning, guiding, controlling and, above all, saving men.

The lesson presents some interesting contrasts.

I. How and How Not to Use the Sabbath (vv. 1-6).

Jesus was at a formal gathering with invited guests (v. 7) in one of the chief houses of the community, on the Sabbath Day. That such a gathering was held on that day was a sign of the degeneracy of the age. "The same thing is being done on Sunday by Christian people today. They go to church (if convenient) in the morning and devote the afternoon and evening to recreation and social" occasions. We agree with Dr. Morgan that "the whole thing is a sign of spiritual decadence." That's how not to spend the day of rest and worship.

Another wrong thing was that they used the occasion to try to entrap Jesus. He was at the feast, not to "have a good time," but to minister to their spiritual needs. They brought the sick man in to tempt Jesus to heal on the Sabbath Day. He used their trickery to condemn them and to silence them (vv. 4, 6).

Declaring God's truth and His love for man by worship and by work for Him—that is the right way to use the Lord's Day. Let's get back to its proper observance.

II. What and What Not to Do for Advancement (vv. 7-11).

Getting ahead, even at the expense of others, seems to have been quite the thing in our Lord's time, as it is today. Looking at that smug, self-satisfied crowd of "grabbers," Jesus made good use of His presence at the feast to expose their folly and selfishness. Again we agree with Dr. Morgan that one should not "try for the chief seat. Why not? Because the place of honor is for the honorable man; and a man who struggles to sit in the place of honor proves thereby that he is not an honorable man." Think it over!

The way up in spiritual things is always down. Humility, which is so despised by the world, is precious in the sight of God, and will be rewarded by Him. The principle stated in verse 11 is and always will be true. The young man or woman who really wants to get ahead will do well to let it control both thought and deed. It is a far better rule for the New Year than any resolution you may have made—and probably forgotten by now.

III. Who and Who Not to Invite for Dinner (vv. 12-14).

Is the Lord interested in such a matter as that? Indeed He is! Everything about life concerns Him, and, as a matter of fact, this is a very important point. Here an attitude toward life is revealed which is vital and fundamental.

Hospitality is a virtue highly regarded by the Bible (see such passages as Rom. 12:13; I Tim. 3:2; Titus 1:8; I Pet. 4:9). To debase it by asking only those whom we expect will ask us in return, is really to destroy it. It is not hospitality at all to limit our invitations to those who invite us. Obviously we are not to cut them off simply because they do ask us. That is not the point. We are not to let that be the controlling factor.

Ask those who cannot pay you back, if you really want to get a blessing out of it. There is so much need in the world that we who follow Christ have little time to spend merely entertaining those who have no need. God will recompense Dr. J. W. Bradbury in The Gist of the Lesson well says, "There is a good reason not to seek recompense here; there are more enduring and valuable recompenses hereafter (Matt. 6.1-6, 16-18) When we get no recompense here for the good we do, we ought rather to rejoice than be sad It assures better recompense hereafter"

He goes on to say, "The professing church has often followed the world's method rather than Christ's (James 2·1-6)." Sad—but true What shall we do about it?

Everybody Likes This Smart Apron

THIS design was so extremely popular, when it first appeared, that it is repeated now, for those who might have missed it the first time. Of course you can easily see why everybody likes it Pattern No. 8824 slips on over the head and ties in a jiffy—no buttons, no troublesome cross-stitching. It's nice and slim at the waistline, is guaranteed to stay put on your shoulders, and covers your front thoroughly, above and below. Send for it right away, because your home work will seem much lighter and pleasanter when you have half a dozen such aprons.

Choose cheery percale prints, gay gingham checks, or colorful polka dot calico, and trim the edges with ric-rac braid. It's so easy—you can finish it in a few hours.

"All the Traffic Would Bear"

● There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Each merchant charged what he thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer. It led the way to the established prices you pay when you buy anything today.

ROOSEVELT'S REELECTION TOPS THE A. P.'S LIST OF 10 BIGGEST NEWS STORIES

Selections Made By The Associated Press During 1940

President Roosevelt's election for a third term tops the list of the ten biggest news stories of 1940 in the selections of the Associated Press, announced last week.

"There were two simple reasons for this choice," said Charles Honce A. P news editor, who made the selections. "To the United States it meant a third-term President for the first time in history, to the world, continuance of the Roosevelt policies regarding the European War, which may settle the destinies of most of the world's peoples"

Mr. Honce's list, and his comment on the stories, follows

1. Roosevelt Wins Again. Probably no American political issue has been more widely debated than that of a third presidential term President Roosevelt shattered the tradition in his victory over Wendell L Willkie, who thoroughly broke tradition himself in his battle-of-fire campaign for the Republican presidential nomination and his effort to win election

2. U. S. Adopts Conscription. The secretary of war put his hand in a jar, took out a capsule and the first number had been drawn in America's precedent - shattering peacetime conscription, for which 17,000,000 men had registered This story shaped up big schedule because it was part of a great national effort for rearmament for 'all out' defense of the Western hemisphere Coincidentally, 21 American nations agreed to stand together for that defense.

3. France Surrenders. A tragic story of stunning impact, high in interest Described by many experts as the finest in the world, the French army melted before the German blitzkrieg in a few weeks. And into the discard, at least temporarily, went the historical French phrase, 'Liberty, Equality, Fraternity"

4. Battle of Britian. Here is one of the epic stories of the year Adolf Hitler smashed to the channel ports, and then across that short stretch of water he sent his bombers at England. Fire, death, destruction rained from the skies Devastation has been enormous, but Britons have fought back, bitterly and stubbornly "There Will Always Be A England," they sing. as they stumble through the rubble of their homes, factories, churches and hallowed buildings.

5. Greece Repulses Italy. High on the list of the events that held the attention of the world was the Greek repulse of Italian armies, which sought to dominate the small nation. Italy entered the war in the last few days of the battle of France. Nothing much happened until near the yaer's end, when Italian met Greek. Then the Fascists suffered disastrously and the world watched closely.

6. Destroyers for Bases. Few issues aroused more discussion than the United States' trade of 50 destroyers for defense bases on British Western hemisphere territory. President Roosevelt made the deal and announced it after it was all over. "He should have consulted congress," argued many, and the discussion carried right on through to the end of the year.

7. Rumanian Travail. "Unhappy" Rumania was the way the Balkan nation was described by many of the writers. Its troubles of the year made top news. Russia grabbed off Bessarabia; Hungary took back a portion of Transylvania; Bulgaria got a piece at the pie counter An earthquake devastated; King Carol abdicated in a hurry, then the passions of Iron Guardists broke out in mass executions and the Germans moved in.

8. Flight From Dunkerque. A saga of extraordinary human interest was this flight of the British from continental Europe with the bloody sands of Dunkerque the final stepping-off place. Some 330,000 British were carried to safety under the blasting guns of the Germans

9. Russia Adds Territory. Russia conquered Finland, took some choice portions of her territory, absorbed the republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. and then took back Bessarabia from Rumania. An absorbing news story, these moves of the Russian giant.

10. Fifth Column in Norway. Outstanding by any rating, was the exposure of how fifth column activities helped Germany conquer It was first disclosed in the conquest of Norway.

Along with these selections, the AP called last year's "10" biggest". They were·

1. Germany invades Poland to set off new European war.
2. England and France declare war on Germany.
3 Russia invades Finland.
4 United States congress repeals arms embargo.
5 Pius XI, the Pope of Peace, dies
6 Hitler misses death by 10 minutes in Munich explosion.
7 British liner Athenia sunk, with loss of 112 lives.
8 King George VI and Queen Elizabeth visit the Unietd States and Canada.
9. U. S. submarine Squalus sinks, diving bell permits rescue of 33.
10 Transatlantic air service was launched.

Back To School.

SPECULATION . . .

If any value can be put upon the observation of the old seer who first said that "only a horse and a damn fool refuses to change his mind," then it must be assumed that all speculation concerning probable action of the incoming legislature next month is just that ---speculation. National conditions have changed rapidly with international conditions and to refuse to believe that these will not affect every state and community in the nation is to react as a horse--- or the other creature that refuses to adjust itself to changing conditions. A case in point is the collective legislative and administration viewpoint with reference to a proposed new office building Six months ago it seemed almost certain. Today there is a noticeable shift of sentiment from causes entirely unrelated to its usefulness or desirability It is evident now that legislators will approach such proposals with critical caution and a definite uneasiness.

I-S-A-S

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE . .

Great interest attaches to the governor's message to the legislature scheduled for delivery on January 15. To date there is no indication of its contents. However frequent consultations of the several state officers with department heads would suggest extension of consolidation and economy plans. No doubt the experience of the past two years will suggest certain adjustments. Economy and increased efficiency is still the aim of the entire administration and it is predicted that recommendations from within the administration will be directed entirely toward that end. Creation of a so-called efficiency committee of legislators is among the many innovations designed to speed up the session and there is already talk of a session of "less" than the traditional one hundred days Governor Wilson and Comptroller Porter have been holding a series of conferences with department heads and for the first time a suggested budget will be ready when the session opens rather than weeks later.

I-S-A-S

HOUSE ORGANIZATION . .

Within a very few days one of the warmest contests in recent years over the house speakership will have been concluded. Several Republican candidates are in the field Two or three of these have made energitic campaigns while others have been less active. There is little at this time upon which to base a forecast and until the official caucus, called for January 11, meets and votes, it is probably anybody's race It is safe to assume the speaker will be a Republican because of that party's overwhelming majority in the house. Democrats, however, have selected a candidate Whether this means that new tax proposals, spoken or implied by New Deal candidates during the campaign, will come forward from the minority group is another speculative argument. The Democratic speakers during the campaign opposed use of present road funds for farm-to-market roads regardless of what was available and hinted at an additional tax on gasoline as once proposed during the Kraschel regime.

Wakened.

The H. M. Harris family of Algona were wakened one night when a Model T Ford crashed into their house. The driver backed the car into the street and drove away. No damage was done to the house, and apparenlty very little to the car or driver.

Vandals.

About 30 mail boxes were torn down one night recently near Odebolt. The same night several windows in different school houses were broken. Clifford and Wayne Rabe also reported 250 bushels of corn taken from their farm at the same time.

GARNER MAN HEADS GROUP FOR IMPROVEMENT OF CLEAR LAKE

Four Major Goals Planned by Organization For Clear Lake

Dr. George A. Bemis, of Garner, has been named president of a recently organized Association for the Preservation of Clear Lake Clarence E. Barnes. also of Garner, was named on the board of directors composed of North Iowa sportsmen.

The Association will work towards a goal of four major improvements. the purchase of the land at the head of the lake near Ventura for public duck shooting and trapping and for the improvement of that part of the lake for wildlife, the contruction of five nursery ponds near Clear Lake, the control of the amount of moss in the lake and for some cleaning projects, and the acquisition of additional lake shore property for another state park.

The group also plans to promote all vacation activities· fishing hunting, swimming and boating.

EARLY WEST THUNDERS INTO LIFE IN "ARIZONA," SCREEN EPIC

One of the most mammoth spectacles that ever thundered across a motion picture screen, Wesley Ruggles' "Arizona" opens Friday for five days at the Avery Theater in Garner with Jean Arthur starred. The sensational new drama of a far frontier, of a period so drenched with sunlight and with blood that its re-creation made it the most awaited picture in history. "Arizona" now looms vast across the mighty land which is America, because it is the story of America.

Telling of lawless frontiers, of fearless pioneers, of love and empire, in the danger-stalked vastness of desert and plain, "Arizona" has been hailed from coast to coast as the mightiest outdoor action drama of all time. It cost more than two million dollars to produce.

In bringing this mighty adventure story to the screen, Wesley Ruggles spared no expense, and the results are called even greater than his own Academy award-winning "Cimarron," as the greatest outdoor drama of all time.

"Put The Cat Out."

"Don't forget to put the cat out," might well be the last thing said each night in the Nels Johnson home at Dike. Just before Christmas, the cat, while the family slept, decided not to "wait until Christmas" to open the package of catnip all wrapped for it under the tree. This must have been fun, for the next morning the Johnsons found a number of other packages opened and the wrappings torn.

Peacefully Sleeping.

Joanne Podhaski, two year old girl of Monticello, went to visit the neighboring Harry Rodman home last week. The Rodman's were not at home but Joanne went on in and went to sleep. For two hours, her mother, the Monticello fire department, and neighbors searched for her before finding her peacefully sleeping, not knowing anything about the excitement she caused.

PROTECTING FARMERS FROM MANY ACCIDENTS

Machine Manuafacturers Are Continually Adding New Safeguards

The time is being shortened when all farm machinery will be offered to the farmer as completely safeguarded as possible, says J. B. Davidson, head of the Agricultural Engineering Department at Iowa State College.

Last year 4,200 persons were killed in farm work accidents and the highest percentage of this number was due to mechanical causes.

"Mechanical causes are those due to unguarded machinery and processes," Dr. Davidson said. "They are caused also by worn and defective ropes, tools and other equipment by faulty structures, holes in platforms and flooring and similar hazards."

Accidents Fewer

In Kansas where farm safety is being studied it has been shown over a 9-year period that 29 percent of fatal farm work accidents were due to farm machinery such as corn pickers and tractors.

This year in Iowa farm accidents are down somewhat and Dr. Davidson attributes this slight decrease to the cumulative effect of energy directed toward the elimination of mechanical hazards by various organizations.

"Nearly all manufacturers now provide guards on the power takeoff," Davidson said. "It's up to farmers themselves to see that these protectors are kept on the machinery."

Carelessness Remains

The specialist pointed out that there is now a movement underway to standardize tractor guards so as to make them applicable to all tractors. The Farm Equipment Institute, representing the manufacturers of farm equipment, is continually working out devices for the prevention of machinery accidents and studying ways and of means of eliminating machinery hazards. Some of the results of this work are found in the safety labels now on much of the farm machinery sold.

"Carelessness is still the cause of most farm work accidents," Davidon says.

FAULTY CHIMNEYS CAUSE MANY FIRES

Most Farm Home Fires Occurred During The Winter Months Giese Says

A lot of farm homes will go up in smoke this month and in January, February and March, if the rural fire losses follow their usual pattern, warns Henry Giese, research agricultural engineer at Iowa State College.

"Most of these fires are due to defective flues and heating systems in farm homes and thus many could be prevented by taking proper precautions," Giese said this week.

Plug Holes, Cracks

"A good many farm attics in Iowa aren't accessible," Giese stated, "and holes and cracks can exist in chimneys and flues without detection."

The specialist recommended the plugging up of all holes and the cracks in chimneys and flues and periodic checking of rural heating systems during the winter.

"Sparks on combustible roofs are one of the chief causes of farm dwelling fire losses," declared Giese. "Clean chimeys and effective spark arresters fastened on chimneys will prevent roof fires."

Fires In 425 Homes

Giese said that careless handling of kerosene and gasoline is responsible for many farm losses and urged caution in using these inflamable liquids to start or hurry fires.

The loss from farm fires in Iowa annually comprises about one-third of the state's total fire loss, which was $4,745,000 last year. In 1939, 425 farm dwelling fires caused a total loss of $2,106 a dwelling.

From December 1939, to July, 1940, 61 persons lost their lives in farm fires in Iowa, Giese said.

Large Egg.

COUNTY PLANNING COMMITTEE MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS ON TAXATION

The Hancock County Planning Committee recommends an equalization of taxes in Hancock County in regard to the assessed value of property. The committee recommends that the property be assessed at actual value and suggests that 55 to 65 per cent of value be used as an average and that the farms should have their assessed value raised according to their ability to pay, but not to penalize the better farms for enire improvements on land and buildings and particularly on buildings. And then too the assessment on poor farms should be lowered. The per cent of crop acres should be used along with the average sales value in determining the assessed value per acre. Town property should be raised to have the same percentage of assessed value as farm property The committee suggested that the survey made by the county planning committee be used as a guide by the assessors in equalization of taxes and they also recommend that the assessors meet with their respective township equalization boards prior to the time assessments are made so that together they could make a study and a determination of the equalization of taxes.

Members of the planning committee are: C. A. Bird, Bingham; Joe Mikkelson, Crystal; Chester Geddes, Madison; Clark Clement, Ellington; Carl Woiwood, Jr., Concord; Lloyd Zwald, Garfield; W J. Rasmussen, Britt, chairman; Henry Swanson, Orthel; Victor Loebig, Boone; Walter Kahl, Erin; Ben Reimer, Liberty; Harold Quintus, Ell; Carl Wille, Avery; Harry Ruka, Twin Lake; M. B. Thompson, Amsterdam; Wm. A. Engh, Magor; Byron Cory, farm security supervisor; Penn Eckels, George Klipping and Frank Schoun, supervisors; Fred Dunn, production credit representative and J. M. Townsend, conservation chairman.

FARMERS INSTITUTE TO BE IN GARNER FEBR. 4th & 5th

At a meeting of the Farmers Institute officers and directors last Friday evening, the dates of the annual event were set for February 4 and 5 in Garner. Exhibits to be at the Garner Opera House and the afternoon programs at the High School Gymnasium.

Again as last year, the Garner Chamber of Commerce will co-operate with the institute in sponsoring the corn palace contest for school children. Charles Frisbee, of Garner, will be in charge of this part of the program and the rules and prizes governing the contest wil be announced soon.

Officers and directors who will be in charge of the two-day institute this year are: Lloyd Zwald, Garner, president; Clark Lackore, Garner, vice president; Albert Busse, Stilson, secretary; Victor Loebig, Wesley, treasurer; Henry Swanson, Wesley, E. D. Hammon, Garner, George Knoll, Garner, Gratus Cooper, Kanawha, Herman Bode, Corwith, Art Upmeyer, Garner, Georeg Urich, Garner, A. E. Rasmussen, Garner, C. D. Daniels, aGrner, J M. Townsend, Britt and Rudy Urich, Garner, are all directors.

BEES WERE HARD HIT BY BLIZZARD IN NOVEMBER

Although at first it was believed the November blizzard inflicted little less on Iowa's honey industry, reports indicate heavy damage in hives that were not prepared for winter.

F. B. Paddocks, state apiarist, says that hives which did not have strong populations, sufficient stores and proper packing, were in many cases completely destroyed. Some still contain bees, but not enough to go thru the winter.

Beekeepers who followed the recommended practice of getting their hives ready in October reported no damage, Paddock said.

He pointed out that weak or poorly supplied hives can never be expected to go through a normal Iowa winter. It's too late now to combine weak or queenless hives with strong ones, Paddock says. But it might be a good idea to check on food supplies. A normal hive needs 60 pounds of honey to go through the winter.

Large Star.

istory-Making vents of 1940 Pass in Review

ıe Nations Fall Before Conquering Forces as U. S. Arms.

By ROGER SHAW

f the many significant nts in the ill-starred year, the sudden and general- nexpected collapse of liber- France was perhaps the standing disaster. Other sig- cant happenings were the election of Mr. Roosevelt a third term as President the United States, and the mph of Churchill over amberlain in British imperial cles. Another phase, not to overlooked by any manner means, was the surpris- success of the 1940 U- t campaign against the Brit- isles, and the comparative k of success in the matter German air raids, the de- ıction of Coventry notwith- nding. Still another upset the silly double collapse of ian armies in Albania- ece and in Libya-Egypt, h savage repercussions at ne in the Italic peninsula, ere there appeared to be ıething rotten in—Rome.

SSO-FINNISH WAR

he year 1940 opened with the tinuation of one lesser war, in ition to the two major Anglo- man and Sino-Japanese con- s. This was the Russo-Finnish , which lasted a little more than e full months. It began at the of November, 1939, and ran on ugh a little more than the first months of 1940 before Finland gave up.

Finns were virtually dis- ed, the Russians took over the nerheim line, and the second of Finland, Viborg or Viipuri, well as certain highly strategic ts in the Finnish gulf. The Finn- war president, Kallio, resigned. owing the Finnish war, the other e little Baltic states, Lithuania, via, and Estonia, "voted" them- es into the Soviet Union.

arly in April the Germans pulled No. 1 surprise of the No. 2 ld war. Like a streak of light- , they occupied Copenhagen, the ital of little Denmark, and Oslo, capital of Norway.

he Norwegian war was a brisk ir.

he port of Narvik, way up north, nged hands between the British Germans, and was the scene of erest fighting. It was chiefly im- tant because it was an embarka- point for the Swedish iron, en te for Germany. The British ntually evacuated Narvik, in the t of the subsequent British de- ts in Flanders. Norway was ced under the local dictatorship Major Quisling, a German sym- hizer.

LL OF FRANCE

eople were surprised by Norway, ly in April. They were even re surprised by Flanders, in y, 1940 Suddenly the hammer of r came down on the western Eu- ean anvil Manfred von Brauch- h, the German field command- and William Keitel, who ran the lin war office, sent the field- ys over the Dutch, Belgian, and xembourg lines like a sudden rlwind. Luxembourg, like Den- rk, did not res.st. The famed gian forts collapsed (as they had 1914) quite promptly, and the tch held out for less than a week.

Holland, German parachute ops, dropped from the ubiquitous kers transports, showed a re- rkable military example. British and French troops poured into Flanders, to help the Dutch Belgians. The Germans took all four of them. King Leopold the Belgians suddenly made an nistice, and thereby saved his ny, and retained his tottering one. The British made an epic reat via the Flemish channel port Dunkirk, an operation in which royal navy and royal air force vered themselves with glory. They t most of their motorized and echanized equipment, but a good rt of the B. E. F. got back to Eng- d, somehow.

The Germans went ahead and cap- red Paris. Premier Reynaud, who d taken the place of Premier Da- dier, made defiant speeches, then n away. France surrendered, and semi-military government of Mar- al Petain, General Weygand, and lmiral Darlan, took control. These men founded the Vichy government. The Germans divided France into two portions, two-thirds occupied by German troops, and a third "independent" and directly under Marshal Petain, who was much under the influence of a politician who always wore white neckties—swarthy Pierre Laval. Alsace-Lorraine was annexed directly to Germany, who had lost it in 1918. Bits of the French navy clashed with the British navy twice: once at Oran in Algeria, and a second time at Dakar, in West Africa.

Meanwhile, a minor French general named De Gaulle—a tank expert—escaped to England, and organized a group known as Free Frenchmen, to carry on the war by pestering the Germans and the allegedly "pro-German" Vichy government. De Gaulle had the special ear of Churchill. De Gaulle planned the unsuccessful Dakar operation, and his agents were active in various other French colonies.

French Premier Henri Petain in a surprise move ousted Pierre Laval from his cabinet and appointed in his place Pierre-Etienne Flandin. Anxious to know what the conquered enemy was doing, Germany immediately sent Ambassador Abetz to investigate.

BATTLE OF BRITAIN

Following the British defeats at Narvik, Norway; Dunkirk, Flanders; and Dakar, West Africa, the British isles took an increased hammering from the German air force, nicknamed the Goering flying circus, or G. F. C. The following ports took special aerial delugings: Liverpool, Bristol, London, Southampton, Plymouth, for the Germans wished to disrupt the war-supply traffic with America, which entered these harbors.

The Germans also attacked the two English "Detroits" of Birmingham and Coventry. The courage of the British proletariat, particularly in the miserable east end of London, was astonishing. Something like 15 per cent of London was hit, and British industrial production dropped (according to British figures) by 40 per cent.

More dangerous than the Goering flying circus were the German submarines, still known as U-boats. In the closing months of 1940, these under-sea monsters hunted in packs against the British merchant convoys from America. The British ship losses began to sky-rocket, and Churchill said openly that he feared the subs more than the planes. German surface raiders and seaplanes aided the U-boats, and sinkings began to approach the top-figure of hectic April, 1917. In the midst of this crisis in December, Lord Lothian died—the British ambassador to the United States.

U. S. DEFENSE

Following the French collapse of June, a veritable fever swept over the United States. It was called, by some, a needful awakening. It was called, by others, a contagious hysteria. It affected high and low, and reached to every corner of the country. "God Bless America" resounded everywhere, and the local interventionists were especially loud in their linking of the British. William Allen White, of Kansas, a veteran liberal journalist, headed an extremely influential committee "to defend America by aiding the allies." It succeeded, behind the scenes, in helping to engineer the exchange of 50 "over-age" American destroyers, for a row of American naval and aerial bases on British New world possessions. The bases were to be held by the U. S. on 99-year leases, and they included: Newfoundland, Bermuda, Bahamas, Jamaica, Antigua, St. Lucia, Trinidad, and British Guiana in South America. Our army and navy at once set about the fortification of the newly acquired bases.

This was not all: it was decided that the U. S. possess two navies—Atlantic and Pacific—instead of one. We had 15 battleships, for example, and 37 cruisers; but we were to have no less than 32 battleships and 85 cruisers, before we got done. Also, the first peacetime conscription in American history was passed in congress. The new conscripts were already being called up, at the close of 1940. Close to 17,000,000 lads, between the ages of 21 and 36, were registered.

At Washington, a national defense board was called into being, including military experts, labor leaders, and capitalists. The nation's war industries were speeded up to top pitch, and congress voted billions for armaments. The President declared that the British would get a rough 50 per cent of our production.

Franklin Roosevelt defeated Wendell Willkie in the 1940 election. The total score was roughly 26,000,000 votes, to 22,000,000. The electoral vote, however, was overwhelmingly for the third term, although an estimated three-quarters of the nation's press campaigned for the Indiana utilities lawyer. Willkie stood for the draft, and for "aid to Britain," but he received most of the isolation vote, and carried the outstandingly isolation-minded states in the Midwest.

POOR ITALY

Italy entered the war just in time to look in on the collapse of France, a la jackal. The Italian troops captured one French "city" of 6,000, and another of 3,000 inhabitants.

After the battle of France, Italy skirmished with England's Mediterranean fleet, while a few Italian fliers appeared over London, and the royal air force bombed Turin and Milan, Italian industrial centers for Fiat and Isotta-Fraschini. In September, under General Graziani, the Italian Libyan army invaded the British protectorate of Egypt, and bogged down 80 miles up the coast, in a feeble effort to take the distant Suez canal.

Late in October, under Marshal Badoglio's staff work, the Italians abruptly invaded little Greece, from the Italian foothold of Albania. The inoffensive Greeks turned around, and counter-attacked with the greatest success. The British navy, air force, and Australian units came to their aid. The Italians were chased out of Greece, and the Greeks occupied close to a quarter of Italy's restless Albanian colony. Badoglio resigned, as chaos reigned at home.

On top of this, the Italian Libyan army took a bad beating in Egypt, and went into retreat, with the British in pursuit. The royal navy and the Australians co-operated, and 30,000 Italians were captured by mid-December.

RUMANIA PARTITIONED

Rumania was another major victim of the year 1940. It was subdivided between Russia (Bessarabia and the Bukovina); Hungary (northern Transylvania); and Bulgaria (the southern Dubrudja). What was left, underwent an Iron Guard revolution, which ousted King Carol and his friend, red-headed Magda Lupescu. Carol's son, Michael, became monarch. The German army moved in, to police the Balkans, establish air bases, and control the Rumanian oil wells.

The new Rumanian puppet government, under dictator John Antonescu, joined the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis, so-called. So did Hungary, and the little Slovak puppet state which is the rump of what used to be Czechoslovakia. Meanwhile, Russia was still on the make, and held the balance of power in Europe—something that England had held for centuries. Within a year, Stalin had acquired a third of Poland, parts of Finland, the three little Baltic states, and a piece of Rumania, all of which Russia had lost after the first World war.

ience May Soon End Fog Menace at Airports

Controlled artificial dissipation of g, the greatest enemy of air- anes, is foreshadowed by recent ientific discoveries in the United ates, according to Dr. Sverre Pet- rssen, Norwegian meteorologist.

It is entirely possible, Dr. Petters- n said, that at a not-too-distant te, pilots coming into an airport ere ceiling zero conditions pre- il because of fog may see the fog dissolve to reveal the runways.

He explained that one method developed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was shown to be entirely practical in a large-scale experiment. It consists of spraying the air with a liquid solution of sulphur chloride.

It was found that by spraying 85 gallons of the solution a minute, a slice could be cut out of the fog 30 feet high, 150 feet wide and 1,500 feet long in the direction of the prevailing wind, Dr. Petterssen said.

'CROQUET CLIQUE' AND FRANCO LOAN

WASHINGTON.—The inside story of how the career boys nearly put over the $100,000,000 credit to Fascist Spain indicates the strength of "the croquet clique" inside the state department. This is the group which plays croquet almost every evening with Cordell Hull, and is equivalent to the "Cliveden set" in England.

As a matter of fact, it was a part of the old Cliveden clique—Lord Halifax and Sir Samuel Hoare—who started the idea of helping General Franco. Sir Samuel Hoare is now British ambassador to Spain, and it was he who sold the idea to American Ambassador Weddell, long famous for his ability to follow rather than lead.

Lord Halifax and Hoare apparently thought it would be smart politics to get the United States to lend a hundred million dollars to Spain, in which case Britain might win a few months of Spanish neutrality and certainly could not lose—since only American money would be invested.

So Ambassador Weddell had several talks with General Franco and later sold the idea to some of his friends in the state department, notably Assistant Secretary Breckinridge Long and James Dunn. Jimmy Dunn, adviser on political relations, today has become one of the most important figures in the state department. For he is Cordell Hull's chief croquet partner. In fact, it is on Jimmy Dunn's lawn that many of the croquet matches take place.

So Jimmy Dunn sold the idea of the Spanish credit to his croquet partner, and for a time it looked as if Mr. Hull would put it across. It was at this point that Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles stepped into the picture. He communicated direct to the President who at that time was away on his Caribbean cruise.

Roosevelt agreed with Welles that to throw a hundred million dollars into the lap of Fascist Spain would be extremely unwise. However, a compromise finally was worked out, largely for the purpose of saving Mr. Hull's feelings, since he had already gone rather far out on a limb in favor of the Spanish credits.

Therefore the Red Cross will send a certain amount of food and medical supplies to Spain. How much this will be remains to be seen, but the croquet clique will see that it is enough to keep Franco in power despite the rising tide of discontent among the Spanish people.

HIGHWAY HITCHES

One major item of the new defense budget to be submitted to congress in January is a system of super-highways linking key industrial centers. The plan calls for the greatest road building program in the history of the country.

Elimination of transportation bottlenecks, such as prevailed during the World war, is one goal; also the problem of conflicting state highway laws which are a serious impediment to defense.

For instance, the war department entered into a contract with a truck line last summer to transport small arms and ammunition from Chicago to Sparta, Wis., where maneuvers were being held. It was a rush order, but was held up because the trucks didn't conform to Wisconsin limitations. In another case building materials for an urgently needed powder plant in Indiana were delayed because of highway statutes.

In an effort to unravel the maze of state traffic rules, the interdepartmental committee on interstate trade barriers has surveyed 301 statutes. Thirty-nine state legislatures meet in January, and defense authorities plan a vigorous drive to persuade them to remove these defense obstacles. The highway report has already been sent to the legislative heads of Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Virginia.

Federal officials want the states to solve the problem themselves, but if they don't, congressional action will be sought under the constitutional prohibition against interstate commerce barriers. Such a move doubtless will stir up the hot opposition of railroads, who favor the existing system as an aid in fighting truck competition.

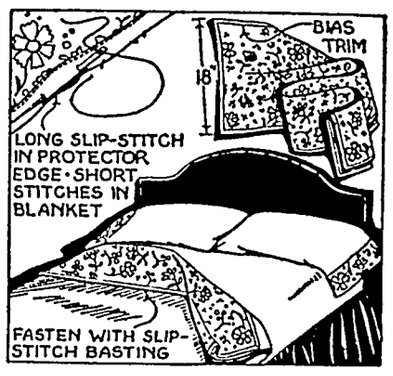
HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears



IT WAS a bride of ten years who reminded me of blanket protectors. I say bride because her home still has the immaculate freshness of a bride's house. Her wool blankets have never been washed or cleaned, yet their soft light colorings show no sign of soil. She brought out some long pieces of cotton material; "I baste these over the tops of the blankets," she said "and change them every few weeks."

I thought of some dainty bed linens that I had seen all trimmed in flower sprigged cotton print. Why not make flowered blanket protectors to harmonize with blanket colorings? Here is one that would go with either rose or blue. It is easy to hide basting stitches that fasten it temporarily to the blanket by slipping them along in the pink or blue binding as shown. One length of material as long as the width of the blanket will make a pair of these protectors. A half yard extra of the flowered material will face a matching pair of pillow cases.

You will also find some other ideas for trimming pillow cases in SEWING Book 2. That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

CIVIC CLUB MEETING WILL BE HELD THURS., JAN. 16, AT THE HALL

First Meeting Of The Year Will Be One Of Important Meetings

W C. Keraus, president of the Klemme Civic Club, has announced that the first meeting of the organization for 1941 wil be held Thursday, January 16th at the Klemme Legion-Community Hall, with a banquet scheduled for 6.30 o'clock

All members, former members and every business man in Klemme is urged to be present at this meeting as there is a lot of important business to be taken up. The Club needs the co-operation of every man in town. The Club is working for the best interests of the community and every business man should do his part in order to insure the success of any project undertaken.

The Club went into a slump the past year, but that should be a lesson for the coming year so that mistakes of the past will not be repeated The membership committee expects to contact every business man before the banquet, however, if some should be missed they are invited to attend the meeting and help keep the ball rolling.

Remember the date. Thursday, January 16th

LIBERTY TWP. STUDY GROUP MEETS

That it is better taste to choose a bedspread in a plain rather than a floral pattern was a point brought out in the discussion on bedspreads as part of the lesson, "Solving Home Furnishing Problems in Rural Homes."

Eight ladies in Dst. No 6 met with Mrs. Victor Huenemann Friday in all-day meeting Other related topics were studied, such as rugs, the guest room and built-in furnishings. A planned luncheon was served at noon. Mrs. Ben F Greiman is leader of this group.

This will be the year of vast building programs throughout the United States. The trend of prices point upward. Farm products are beginning to pick up and with the great amount of people going to work, no doubt will reflect back on the farm products by causing an advance in many of them. Hogs, cattle, eggs, poultry etc will be good products to have on hand.

There is only one way to meet these situations and that is to co-operate, be prepared, don't wait until the prices get high then jump in and figure you are going to come out big. Keep your quotas up, don't over do the hog and cattle business but a little increase won't hurt anyone with what seems to be in the future for us. Every one would sooner sell less produce then to have things run away with themselves.

As to your needs for 1941. This is quite important also, most of us can remember back when just such a situation existed, lets hope that we don't have to go through that again. We feel quite sure that should things break for the worst, that the experience gathered from the last war will have taught us as well as the government a lesson

We feel that most every person during the fore part of 1941 and maybe for the greater part of the year will hesitate about doing this or that improvement. There is no doubt in my mind as well as you are that some items are going to go up, most of them so far, have not advanced very much Below is a list of some of the items that we know will be a buy for you, but don't wait to long With this is a coupon good for a try in a $2,000.00 contest as well as a good booklet which will help you arrive at what you may want to spend on repairs, and it takes into consideration every building on your farm. Sign the Coupon and send it in and get this helpful booklet.

Now then here is a list of some of the staple items you can use

RED CEDAR SHINGLES

Best grade 5X Shingles can be bought at the old price and if you can place your order so they can be loaded from the car to t[illegible] we can make you a saving gles are extremely low in but they will have to be soon. Figure out your NEED

FENCE MATERIAL

Woven Wire, Barb Wire Steel Posts. These did adv[illegible] little last spring and if one ing to need wire or post would be the time to check your requirements and g[illegible] tection.

CEMENT

Cement seems to be a [illegible] item for the past few years we feel that there will be [illegible] in this commodity.

TILE, BRICK & BLOC

These prices are low in[illegible] parison with other building[illegible] terials and we believe that[illegible] Brick and Tile companies[illegible] not raise the price but will[illegible] out working for business [illegible] than ever. We say, "BUIL[illegible] BRICK OR BLOCK." By [illegible] a Silo now you can save [illegible] lot.

PAINT

Paint is cheap in price, its not cheap paint. We do know much about the prices, but there will be advance on our stock on hand Its the Devoe & Reynolds Two-Coat System Paint.

APPRECIATION

While this word may never get its proper destination, it will ch the local community at least. wish to personally thank the ite Highway Commission and Highway Patrol operating m ncock county for their work in nnection with the Llewellyn wis funeral last Wednesday. All ll remember that the highway s terribly slippery from sleet t very curve, every turn, every l had been coated with a gener- s coat of sand just before the neral procession was to pass ng. I've never seen bad roads de better before. Also the es- t patrolmen, permitting us to through stop signs, one leading d the other following to help car that might have needed p. Hats off to this fine piece of vice on the part of this depart- nt working in Hancock county.

KLEMME TIMES IS COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER

Because the 1940 census showed that the population of Hancock county exceeded 15,000, the Board of Supervisors were required to name another official county paper, and so named The Klemme Times and the Kanawha Reporter to jointly serve as Official papers. The publishers of The Times and The Reporter made an agreement to divide the third printing payments, so that both papers would be official county papers.

The Garner Leader and the Britt News-Tribune are the other official papers in this county.

The Times will publish all of the official county board proceedings, claims and other matters which are acted upon by the board. The first publication is begun this week.

45 FARM BUREAU MEMBERS TO ATTEND ANNUAL FEDERATION MEETING

At least 45 Farm Bureau officers, directors and leaders from every township in Hancock county are looking forward to attending what promises to be one of the best state farm bureau meetings ever held.

Several will be leaving Tuesday morning January 21 to attend special conferences and many more will be leaving the morning of the 22 to be on hand for the formal opening of the meeting Wednesday noon. Thursday, Jan 23 is packed with outstanding speakers such as Honorable Truman Arnold, assistant attorey general of the United States, Ed O'Neal, President of the American Farm Bureau; Karl Oldsen, National Defense Council; C V. Gregory Wallace Farmer and Iowa Homestead; and Mrs. Chas. Sewell, Administrative Director of Association Women of American Farm Bureau Federation.

Those planning to attend from around Klemme are as follows me, Mr. and Mrs L. W. Wesenberg, Goodell; Aaron Stromer, Garner; Mr and Mrs. C J. Wille, Klemme; Lloyd Zwald, Garner, Harry Ostendorf, Goodell; Otto Wolwood, Garner; V. A. Cook, Klemme; Mrs. L. F. Weaver, Garner; Mrs. Fred Greiman, Garner; Mrs M. C. James, Goodell; Ruth Willits, Garner; T. C. Petersen, Garner and Eunice Wesenberg, Garner.

SUPERVISORS BOARD IN HANCOCK COUNTY NOT TO PAY BOUNTY ON STARLINGS

Because practically no counties in this section of the state pay bounties on European starlings, and because it is believed some of the birds killed in other counties are being brought to this county for bounty payments, the Hancock county board of supervisors announced that bounties will no longer be paid on the birds

The discontinance of the bounties will take place Febn 1.

Bounties that will prevail in 1941 in Hancock county include $1 for foxes; 10 cents for crows 25 cents for groundhogs; and 10 cents for gophers.

CIVIC CLUB MEETS THURSDAY NIGHT AT COMMUNITY HALL

The Klemme Civic club will hold their first meeting of 1941 at the Klemme Community Hall on Thursday evening of this week, with a banquet followed by entertainment and a business meeting.

All members, and former members or those interested are urged to attend. The dinner will be served by the Auxiliary ladies.

People Hurt Themselves the Hard Way During Most Unusual Accidents of 1940

By PAUL JONES

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO.—Each year a surprising number of people discover new and novel ways of getting hurt. And the results are positively startling.

A man in Chicago, for example, is bitten by his own false teeth. A steel executive in Colorado rides out of his office on the cowcatcher of a locomotive.

Some of these odd accidents are amusing Others are tragic. Put them all together and you find that Fate, the master showman, again has produced a literal hit parade of the year—the Oddities of 1940.

So, without further ado, on with the show!

Chief Clerk John Donnelly of the Cleveland Municipal court is quite a reader and frequently has his nose in a book. But one March day this year he had his nose in book ends—and it wasn't comfortable

Mr Donnelly was moving several books, in book ends, from one table to another The books began to slip and he tried to push them back between the book ends with his chin. But the books fell anyway, and the book ends came plopping together with Mr Donnelly's nose between them. It was well red.

Louis Durdy of Pana, Ill., can understand now why the man in the Bible had so much trouble finding a good Samaritan. Smelling smoke one November afternoon, Mr. Durdy dashed into a nearby hotel room and rescued a sleeping guest from a flaming mattress. Firemen came, seized the burning bedding and tossed it out the window. It landed on an automobile parked outside the hotel

Yes, it was Mr. Durdy's auto. The auto was burned up, and so was Mr. Durdy—plenty!

Joseph Callahan of Chicago always had taken good care of his false teeth and, so far as he knew, they had no reason to dislike him. But one day as he dozed, he slipped off his chair His teeth fell out and landed tooth-side up on the floor. Mr Callahan's forehead struck them and they gave him a vicious bite.

Mr. Jay J. Martin, of Pueblo, Colo , is ready to believe that almost anything can happen in the steel business. Mr Martin, a steel company executive, was seated at his desk one day, intending to stay there a while, when the next thing he knew, what was he doing but riding out of his office on the cowcatcher of a full-fledged locomotive!

At the end of his journey, which took him through a partition or so, Mr Martin, understandably travel stained, learned that what had happened was that the locomotive had jumped the track just outside his office and had come on in through the wall Mr Martin didn't take the same train back

Drinks Brake Fluid.

Bill Hilterbrand, of Springfield, Mo , knows now just how a hydraulic brake feels He was drinking a bottle of soda pop in a filling station and discussing politics with a friend Engrossed, he picked up a bottle and took a big swig It wasn't the right bottle, and it wasn't even pop. It was brake fluid! The results weren't serious, however, for, as you might expect, Mr. Hilterbrand was able to stop quickly.

Ever so often, it seems, some poor soul has to have his pants jerked off in public by an automobile. This year's victim of Fate's perennial gag was Mr. Giovannia Evangeliati, of Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. E. was waiting, believe it or not, for a street car in the crowded downtown district when the door handle of a passing automobile caught the Evangeliati trousers and neatly swooshed them off. The apologetic driver rushed Mr E. home for replacements

Calf Lassoes Man.

When a calf lassoes a man—that's noose! The man, Edward Acree, was walking along a road near Brazil, Ind., when the man-puncher calf broke loose from its tethering stake and dashed across the highway, its chain swinging Mr. Acree complains that the next thing he knew the calf had lassoed him with the chain.

Bob Forde, strolling along in Marysville, Calif., wondered why the two men approaching him were walking so far apart It wasn't neighborly. Mr. Forde decided to go between them. By the time he discovered they were carrying a big sheet of window glass, it was too late. Mr. Forde describes the experience as paneful.

Walter Bell, a rural mail carrier of Harlan, Iowa, has heard of people fighting buzz saws, and he believes he can appreciate what they are up against. On a warm day this summer Mr. Bell plugged a six-volt fan into an 110-volt socket. The fan, the sissy, couldn't take it and leaped whirring toward Mr. Bell like an airplane. He raised his arm to stop it. Result: 35 stitches.

Inflates Arm.

Elmer Mahnke is one of the people who fear quick inflation. This perhaps is understandable in view of an experience Mr. Mahnke had this year.

Mr. Mahnke is a filling station man at Racine, Wis , and part of his job, of course, is to blow up footballs and basketballs for small boys in the neighborhood. On the occasion to which we refer the air needle not only pierced a basketball, but Mr. Mahnke's arm. The first thing he knew his arm was bigger than Popeye's.

Never have more things happened to the Kaczynski family, of the Pittsburgh Kaczynskis, than on a cold day last winter.

First, six-year-old Frank Kaczynski grabbed a charged wire and couldn't let go. Then his brother Walter, eight, grabbed Frank, and he couldn't let go. Then sister Anna, 17, heard about it and dashed for the scene, just in time to see her sister, Frances, 14, get struck by a car. As Anna ran to help Frances, a big dog ran up and bit Anna.

The commotion attracted brother John Kaczynski, 24. John chased the dog away and a few minutes later the Kaczynskis began pouring into the hospital.

Frank and Walter were treated for burns, Frances for cuts and bruises and Anna for dog bite. The police sergeant who wrote it all up for the records was treated for writer's cramp and fervently hopes that if it all ever happens again, it will happen to Smiths.

In Chicago a dignified old gentleman was standing on a safety island, waiting for a street car and having no intention whatsoever of taking a taxicab. But he did. For as a passing taxi swerved sharply to miss another car, the back door flew open. It scooped up the nice old gentleman and deposited him gently on the floor of the cab, all set for a ride.

As Ralph Lyman of Clarinda, Iowa, hurried to answer the phone he slipped and fell, but crawled painfully on to hear a voice say, "This is Doctor Burnett. Can you come right over and look at my furnace? It's broken."

"You'd better come right over and look at my leg first," replied Lyman. "It's broken, too."

And it was!

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Mann of Indianapolis weren't expecting anyone to drop in on them that day last winter. But 22 students of Indiana university did—in a buss! Mr. Mann was that surprised he thought it was an earthquake shaking the house. But Mrs. Mann wasn't so sure, and when she investigated she found a big bus poking its nose through the basement wall. The bus was taking the students back to school from a vacation and the driver had swerved to miss an auto.

Herbert Greenwald of Berwyn, Ill., is a meticulous golfer and always tries to have his eye on the ball. But one day in October Mr. Greenwald switched the formula and had the ball on his eye.

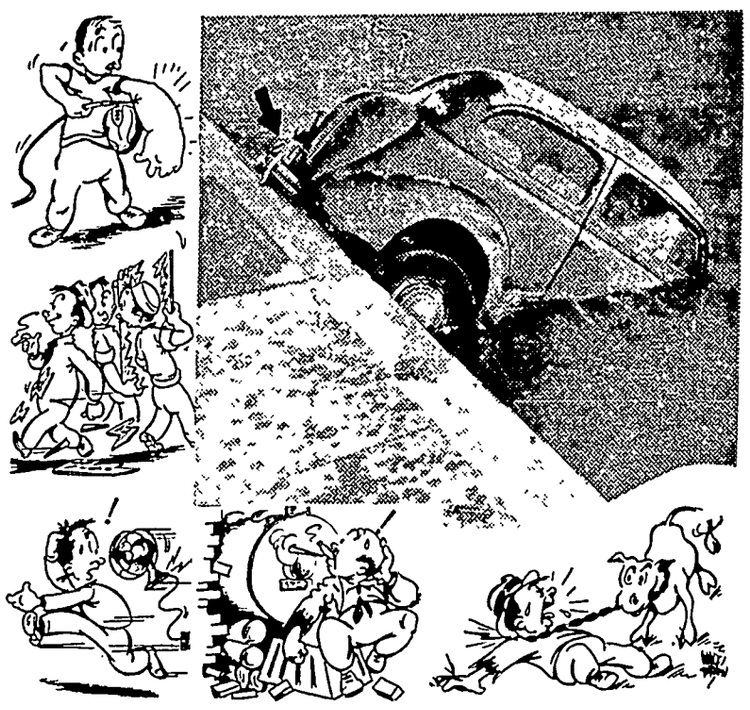
Swinging lustily in the rough, Mr. Greenwald struck the ball squarely. It hit a nearby stone concealed in the grass, ricochetted straight upward and broke Mr. Greenwald's glasses into bits. The unhappy golfer not only was cut about the face, but he lost a stroke—and it was match play!

Mrs. Olen Deatherage of Springfield, Ill., knew that some women drivers can make an automobile do some mighty funny things. But she never dreamed she could run over herself, until she did it. Her car spun around after a collision, throwing her out the right hand door. Her body hit the gear lever and shoved the gear from low to reverse. As she fell from the car it backed up over her.

Yes, in these days anything can happen—and does!

Many a pedestrian has been struck by a hit and run driver. But to Mrs. Anna Martinelli of Johnston, R. I., goes the distinction of being the victim of a hit and run dog which itself was the victim of a hit and run driver The driver hit the dog and fled The dog hit Mrs. Martinelli and fled Mrs Martinelli did not flee She had been knocked unconscious by the dog. Her injuries were not serious.

These are but a smattering of the many freak accidents of 1940 recorded in the files of the National Safety Council in Chicago



Only a bumper guard prevented this automobile from plunging into Lake Michigan after it skidded out of control on an icy pavement. The driver escaped with a ducking. Some of the many other freak accidents of 1940 described in the story below are illustrated above.

Warfare Becomes an Art

The technique of camouflage is being developed to a fine art by the U. S. army. You would have to get close to the machine-gun nest above before you could identify it for the death trap that it is, and then your identification would come too late. These soldiers are shown practicing at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Americans Spent More, Earned More Last Year

MINNEAPOLIS.—Americans are going places and doing things with their rearmament prosperity; during 1940 they bought a billion gallons more gasoline, 600,000 more automobiles, 25 per cent more entertainment, 13,000,000 gallons more liquor, and 6,000,000,000 more cigarettes than by this time last year, according to a buying summary made by Northwestern National Life Insurance company. Private sale of guns and firearms also increased.

Soft drink manufacturers report new sales records; candy sales are up, the report goes on. Out of more pay envelopes and fatter pay envelopes the public bought 25 per cent more theater tickets and admissions to other amusements It purchased 25 per cent more radios and radio equipment; the boom in sales of this last named item can probably be partially credited to interest in war news and in the political campaign just finished. the report comments

The Front Pages: Editorials expressed horror over the Hun atrocities in Poland, where the aim is to exterminate the people. Some of the same pages called Robert E. Sherwood "war-monger" when he pitied Poland in "There Shall Be No Night" . . . The U. S. correspondents got lippy to the British censors. Raymond Daniell called them more damaging to the English cause than bombs. Drew Middleton departed from the AP's "impersonal" policy long enough to register his sassy say-so . . . The blast got results . . Eugene Lyons explains why so many youngsters are covering the war fronts: Wages. The famous ones are cashing in via radio, lectures, etc. "That is how it happens," says Lyons in "Eye Witness" (news story anthology), "that there are more distinguished foreign correspondents at a luncheon of the Overseas Press club than in the world beyond, even when world-shaking events are taking place" . . . The Post's Jack Miley rates picking All - American footballers second to cutting out paper dolls. "Putting players the experts have never seen on teams that don't exist," he calls it . . . It looks like Virginio Gayda, who yells Mussolini's editorial "boos," hasn't got many Greek readers.

Typewriter Ribbons: Anon's: Fame is the refreshment that comes when wiping off the perspiration of a career's hard work . . H. Hershfield's: The streets would be safer for pedestrians and motorists if all the cars that aren't paid for were removed . . . The Thomaston (Ga.) Times': It is rare that the gift is worth the obligation it involves . . . Wilson Mizner's: I respect faith—but doubt is what gets you an education . . . Jack Tarver's: A dollar-down-and-your-eyetooth-a-week automobile . . . L. A. Seaman's: The palms waved their limber fronds foolishly like an awkward chorus at the prima donna's cue to enter.

The Insult Terrible: Erika and Klaus Mann, daughter and son of Thomas Mann (exiled by Hitler), are introducing Hitler's nephew around town. He has written a book about Adolf and is going to lecture in Canada. He is English born and despises his kinsman, whose name he uses.

'Tennyrate, nephew Hitler was first introduced at Dagmar Godowsky's, where Ilsa Bois found it difficult to speak to anybody connected with Hitler. Ilsa is a refugee actress from Germany, and her brother Curt is now in "Bitter Sweet," the film.

She was telling friends about meeting Hitler's relative. "I wanted," she said, "to make the young man do something—just for me. Something with the idea of humbling him!"

"What did you make him do?"

"I asked him to pass me the herring!"

Words And Music: Lion Feuchtwanger has a sensayuma, although Louis Nizer's book, "Thinking on Your Feet," a best-seller, offers the same nifty. Feuchtwanger, they would have you believe, went to see Disney's "Fantasia," which has powerful orchestral tones. The music occasionally overpowered him. He told intimates about it. "Evidently," he said, "Stokowski believes that 'life begins at forte.' "

When his pals groaned at the broad pun, Feuchtwanger sighed disconsolately, "Oh, well. I guess nobody loves a fact man."

Form of Criticism: Prof. Nathan, of the N. Y. Drama Critics' Circle, met a playwright at the Algonquin hotel, a chap whose manuscript Nathan had promised to look over instead of overlook. The Regal One shook his head after reading three pages.

"You don't like it," sighed the writer sadly, "what do you think it needs?"

"First of all," Nathan replied, "I'd suggest perfume."

Woof-woof! Bob Benchley of the feelms was visiting a Hollywood dog and cat hospital in search of a pooch. A pal of his trying frantically to locate Benchley (to deliver a message) learned where he was and rushed there. Approaching the girl at the desk, he asked: "Is Bob Benchley of Metro here?"

"Is he an airedale," was the retort, "or spitz?"

In Other Words: The headlines stated: "Italian Resistance Stiffening!" And Al H. observed: "That probably is Italian for rigor mortis."

Oop! At the Maison Louis a well-known radio singer button-holed an NBC executive and cooed: "Did you hear me do 'Blueberry Hill' last night?"

"Yes," was the answer. "You sounded as though it were too steep for you."

Guy Lombardo's line on an American Christmas: "When you hang up your stocking, also be thankful for the country in which you hang up your hat."

MONKEYING WITH THE BIG SHOW

From Sarasota comes the word that the circus of 1941 will have more ruffles than ever. It has been going. Hollywood for the past few seasons, but next year the biggest show on earth will look like something out of the "Arabian Nights" via Metro-Goldwyn.

Norman Bel Geddes has been retained by the Ringlings to streamline, decorate and dress the big show from the peanut bag to the elephants; and circus addicts who like their circus plain and a bit oderiferous are worried. It may be hard to tell the 1941 show from a night club interior.

The circus of tradition had faded costumes, a hard-boiled Queen of Sheba and a Maharajah of Indore who had two cauliflower ears and a broken nose.

Cinderella and her ladies generally had the appearance of being refugees from a midway.

The Fairy Prince had fallen arches, a three-days' growth of beard and a middle tooth missing. And the Caliph of Bagdad seemed freshly bounced from a corner saloon.

But the old-time circus fan was satisfied. He didn't expect too much.

There was something rough, catch-as-catch-can and impromptu about the big show that was appealing. If you wanted art and beauty you went to a musical show or a museum. And a circus had to smell like a circus, too.

But the big top woke up one spring morning and found that it had been to the beauty parlor, caliphs, princes, maharajahs, princesses, elephants, ponies and all.

When the bands blared for the opening pageant that season there wasn't a plug-ugly in the parade.

That would have been all right with the old-time circus addict if they had stopped there. But the circus management went in head over heels for glamour.

They rouged the elephant's toenails, powdered the gorilla's nose and made even the hostlers wash behind the ears. They hired beautiful showgirls, introduced the De Mille, the surrealist, and the De Sylva influence in one movement, and even went in for air conditioning the circus tent.

If you want your circus straight, with all the smells that had become traditional, you had to stay down near the camels and sea lions.

And it looks like a non-top trend. Norman Bel Geddes is now reported working on the tents. That looks like carrying the glamour stuff too far. A circus tent has always looked like a circus tent. What it will look like in 1941 is anybody's guess.

CAMEL THE SLOWER-BURNING CIGARETTE

To Six Americans Belong the Credit For Making Santa Claus, the Children's Symbol of Christmas, a Living Reality

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE social historians will tell you that the Dutch gave to the world that familiar symbolical Christmas figure, Santa Claus, and that his name is merely a slurring of the Dutch pronunciation of "San Nicholas" or "Sinterklass" which is, of course, "St. Nicholas." They will tell you, too, that Nicholas was an actual person, the bishop of Myra, in Lycia, Asia Minor, in the first part of the fourth century of the Christian era.

In his honor December 6 of each year was set aside as a special feast day. But in the late Middle ages, when the Catholics and the Protestants both tried to do away with festivities which had grown up around St Nicholas' day, the children refused to give him up. Gradually the festival in his honor was assimilated into the festivities honoring the Christ Child.

He Comes to America.

When the Dutch settlers came to New Netherlands more than 300 years ago, of course they brought with them their custom of honoring "Sinterklass." In fact, it is said that the ship which carried the first Dutch children to Manhattan island bore a likeness of him as its figurehead. But he wasn't the jolly little fellow that we know. For the Dutch children knew the good Bishop-Saint Nicholas as a solemn, majestic figure in trailing robes, wearing a jewelled miter and gloves and mounted on a fiery white charger.

Even after the British took over the Dutch colony and New Netherlands became New York, the little Dutch children continued to look for the coming of "Sinterklass" on the eve of December 5 and hang up their stockings. But the English colonists didn't believe in "Sinterklass" and gradually, as the Dutch became assimilated and some of their customs began to change, there came a change in the character and appearance of the good St. Nicholas, too.

A Turning Point.

The American Revolution not only marked a turning point in world history but in the history of St. Nicholas as well. He was no longer the Dutch saint as the Dutch colonists had imagined him. He was a Dutch saint as their English neighbors imagined him and he began taking on Dutch characteristics.

Instead of being a severe, forbidding figure he became a jolly fat little Dutchman. In place of his long robes he began wearing knee breeches and the shoe buckles of Dutch colonial fashion. No longer did he ride the fiery white charger. Now he went about on his errands in a little wagon, drawn by a fat little pony. And, finally—thanks to six Americans—he became the Santa Claus that we know today.

These six Americans were three writers and three artists and all of them contributed their share toward the creation of a Santa Claus so familiar to American children. The first of these six was Washington Irving. Whether Irving simply followed a tradition that was already widely accepted in the state where he was born or actually created a new American Santa Claus is unknown. At any rate, when he published his whimsical "Knickerbocker's History of New York" in 1809 he gave us the first full-length word portrait of Santa Claus, the American.

It is to Irving that we owe our idea of the Dutch colonists as jovial, fat little men, wearing voluminous breeches and smoking long pipes and he made the patron saint of their children the hero of them all. According to Irving, Saint Nicholas wore a broad-brimmed hat and a huge pair of Flemish trunk hose" and he rode "jollily over the rooftops" in a wagon, dropping splendid presents down the chimneys of the houses where dwelt the children who were his favorites.

It was also Irving who gave him another characteristic which has survived through the years. For, as the Knickerbocker history tells us, "when Saint Nicholas had smoked his pipe, he twisted it in his hat band, and laying his finger beside his nose, gave a very significant look, then mounting his wagon, he returned over the treetops and disappeared."

The next writer to paint a word portrait of Santa Claus was Irving's friend and one-time collaborator, James Kirke Paulding. Paulding, himself of Dutch descent, in his "Book of St. Nicholas," published in 1827, declared that Santa Claus was "as gallant a little Dutchman as ever smoked his way through the world, pipe foremost . . . he is a right fat, roystering little fellow . . . who scorns to follow the pestilent fashions of modern times, but ever appears in the ancient dress of the old patriarchs of Holland."

Moore's Immortal Poem.

It remained, however, for Dr. Clement Clark Moore, in his immortal poem, "A Visit From St. Nicholas," to fix forever in our consciousness the appearance of the children's Christmas saint. Moore was graduated from Columbia university in 1798, and became a professor of Hebrew and Greek in the General Theological seminary in 1821.

He was a prolific writer, one of his literary productions bearing the imposing title of "Observations Upon Certain Passages in Mr. Jefferson's Notes on the State of Virginia Which Appear to Have a Tendency to Subvert Religion and Establish a False Philosophy." However, his most important work, the one at least upon which he believed his fame as a scholar would be secure, was "A Compendius Lexicon of the Hebrew Language." He little realized that future generations of Americans would remember him better as the author of what he was accustomed to call "a silly poem."

Yet such was the case, for a short time before Christmas in 1822, Dr. Moore wrote for his children a Christmas poem and they were delighted with the rollicking tale. A daughter of Rev. Dr. David Butler, rector of St. Paul's church at Troy, N. Y., who was a niece of Dr. Moore, was a Christmas guest in the Moore home and made a copy of the poem in her album.

The next year she sent a copy of it to the Troy Sentinel and it appeared in that paper, prefaced by a note from the editor saying he did not know who had sent it. By the next year it had appeared in many other newspapers and magazines and within a few years it had found its way into the schoolbooks. By this time inquiries were beginning to be made as to its authorship and eventually Dr. Moore, none too well pleased that his "silly poem" was so well-known whereas his scholarly "Compendius Lexicon" attracted little attention, admitted its authorship and gave the autographed original manuscript of the poem to the New York Historical society.

How much Moore drew upon Irving and Paulding for his description is not known But there is a curious parallelism in some of his words and some of theirs, although Moore himself, 40 years later said that "a portly, rubicund Dutchman living in the neighborhood of his father's county seat, Chelsea" near New York city suggested to him the idea of making St. Nicholas the hero of his Christmas piece for his children.

The Reindeer Appear.

It is certain that we are indebted to Moore for making Santa Claus' mode of transportation a sleigh drawn by "eight tiny reindeer." In its original form the poem differs slightly from the present version, particularly in the names of the reindeer. "Viscen" of the original has become "Vixen" and "Donder" has been changed to "Dunder." The title which Dr. Moore gave to his verses was "A Visit From St. Nicholas," but the modern version, taken from the first line, is "The Night Before Christmas."

As for the contributions of the three artists to our image of Santa Claus, the name of the first one—unfortunately for his fame—is unknown. In 1839 a book called "The Poets of America," edited by John Keese, was published. It contained Moore's poem and the illustration for it was a picture of Santa Claus (reproduced above). Who the painter or engraver was has never been determined but it is believed that this was the first time that a picture of Santa Claus was ever printed.

The world had to wait another 20 years, however, for another portrait of Santa Claus. In 1862, an edition of "A Visit From St. Nicholas," illustrated throughout by F. O. C. Darley, was published in New York. Darley gave us several views of the old fellow at work. One in particular was appropriate, for it showed Santa Claus placing his finger slyly to one side of his nose, just as Dr. Moore had described.

Darley probably was the foremost American illustrator at the time; but, after all, his version seemed to fail to satisfy completely, and another year passed before the real Santa Claus climbed into a chimney, just as readers of the ancient classic had pictured him in their minds Darley had given us the sly twinkle in the eye of the good-natured elf, and he had made the reindeer at least as tiny as the poet had described them, but something was lacking.

In 1863 a volume of favorite poems was published in which Dr. Moore's poem was included. It was illustrated by Thomas Nast, whom the American public remembers chiefly as a cartoonist for Harper's Weekly, the crusader who almost single-handed smashed the notorious "Tweed Ring" in New York with his vitriolic cartoons and the artist who added to our gallery of familiar symbols the Republican elephant, the Democratic donkey and the Tammany tiger. In this compilation, Nast turned his attention to depicting the features of Santa Claus, and for the first time converted an illusive figure into visual reality. Nast may, therefore, be said to have created a Santa Claus which remains the model for all who succeeded him

The social historians tell us that the Dutch gave to the world that familiar symbolical figure, Santa Claus, and that is true. But it was the genius of six Americans—Washington Irving, James Kirke Paulding, Dr. Clement Clark Moore, Felix O. C. Darley, Thomas Nast and that unknown artist for John Keese's "Poets of America"—which made him a living reality for all time to come.

THE March of Time has come to the rescue of all of us who have an interest in someone affected by the new selective service law. In "Army and the Men—U. S. A." we are taken inside training camps and shown how the young men in the nation's rapidly expanding citizen army live, what they learn, what they do for amusement, and how they are being welded into a defensive fighting force.

The film shows what has been done to provide comfortable living quarters for the young soldiers; it shows as well how the nation's industry is concentrating on orders for the gigantic defense program. It's a picture specially meant for all draft eligibles, their families and their friends

When Howard Hughes finishes waving his magic wand over Jack Beutel we may have a new star on our movie screens. Beutel gets his chance as one of the leads in the new Hughes film, "The Outlaw." He hails from Dallas, where he had little-theater experience, and wasn't getting far in his ambition to succeed in Hollywood when he got the Hughes assignment.

Eleanor Powell has finally completely recovered from that operation that kept her on the sidelines all this time, and will start work soon in "Lady Be Good," which was a successful musical comedy years and years ago. It will co-star Ann Sothern (giving her a chance to get away from playing "Maisie" for awhile) and Tony Martin. Arthur Freed and Busby Berkeley, producer and director of "Strike Up the Band," will produce and direct, and the George Gershwin music will be used.

What old favorite do you suppose has been scheduled for a new appearance now? None other than "The Phantom of the Opera," with Broderick Crawford playing the "Phantom." But the real surprise is the girl who'll play opposite him—it's none other than Deanna Durbin.

She's always done comedy, and sung a few songs, superbly. But when she finishes "Nice Girl" she'll get away from all that temporarily, and appear in Universal's famous thriller.

Something new in casting has bobbed up at Paramount. Book reviewers on newspapers and magazines are to be polled for their nominations for players to appear in the screen version of the Hemingway novel, "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Since book reviewers who know one motion actor from another are scarcer than hen's teeth it seems unlikely that their opinions will be of very great value.

Jill Esmond, a talented English actress whom you hear on the air as Emily Bronte, author and narrator in "Wuthering Heights," spent her last night before leaving England in a Liverpool air-raid shelter, reciting fairy tales for hours on end to keep a group of children entertained. If you haven't been listening to "Wuthering Heights" you're missing something; it sets a new high mark in radio serial drama.

Loretta Young unintentionally stole the show from Santa Claus the other evening. On her way to a radio rehearsal, she parked her car in a lot near the theater just as a Santa Claus parade was passing. Hundreds of mothers were holding their children high enough to see Santa Claus; somebody shouted: "There's Loretta Young!" and instantly backs were turned on Santa Claus while everybody gazed at Loretta.

Bob Burns is vacationing right now, on a trip to New York which he and Mrs. Burns planned two years ago, but had to postpone because of an injury which she suffered. YOU'LL need an extra pretty afternoon frock, with many parties coming on, and teas. A frock that will make your figure look particularly slim and supple, your face fresh and appealing! That's just the kind of frock you can make for yourself with design No. 8826, in velveteen, chiffon-thin wool, spun rayon or flat crepe.

See how beautifully the princess cut makes it melt into your waistline, in a most belittling fashion! That clever skirt detailing in front is a perfect way to achieve the smart "concealed fullness." The draped bodice is not only an important fashion point, but also very becoming to slim figures, because it tends to round out the bosom. Make it of lace, or contrast or, as shown in the small sketch, of the frock fabric.

Pattern No 8826 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires, with short sleeves, 4⅜ yards of 39-inch material without nap, long sleeves, 4⅞ yards, ½ yard lace Step-by-step sew chart comes with your pattern. Send order to:

TRADE MARK

HIGH PRICES
Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised

LARGER PIG CROP NEEDED IN 1941

Farmers planning 14 Percent Smaller Pig Crop In 1941

Two history making events took place in the American swine world recently, according to agricultural economists at Iowa State College First of these was the 10 percent reduction in pig production indicated by the fall pig survey The other was the statement by Secretary of Agriculture, Claude Wickard urging farmers to increase their hog production in 1941

The fall pig survey substantiated earlier statements by the economists that farmers were producing 10 percent fewer pigs in 1940 than they had in 1939. The survey showed a 1.5 percent reduction in the fall pig crop which, combined with a reduction of 8 percent in the spring crop, meant a net reduction of 10 percent for the year

Higher Prices Coming

Also indicated in the survey was the fact that farmers are planning to have 14 percent fewer sows farrow next spring than they did in the spring of 1940 Farmers in both eastern and western parts of the Corn Belt indicated they would reduce the number of sows farrowing by 12 percent

Wickards statement came as a direct result of the pig survey, the economists state The sharp downswing in production caused by the unfavorable hog-corn price ratio during the past year, has come at a time when business conditions are improving rapidly

"The combination is sure-fire to produce a rise in prices of 1941," the economists assert. Already the rise appears to have begun as evidenced in the jump in prices last week.

Iowa Reduced 10 Percent

One similarity noted both in the reduction of the pig crop and sows to farrow in the spring is that the decrease was relatively greater outside the Corn Belt than within it.

Iowa's reduction in pig production for the year was the same as for the nation - 10 percent - while the decrease for the entire Corn Belt was 7 percent.

Another significant factor evidenced by the survey, the economists point out, was that the reduction in the pig crop was greater in the western part of the Corn Belt than in the eastern portion

G. A Brooks, Postville, varied the usual practice of saving dimes by placing a jug against the wall and tossing the dimes at it, saving the ones which went in. On January 1, he had enough to pay for his car and truck licenses and to pay for a trip to Pittsburgh.

Corn prices should continue well above last year's levels though lack of storage space and the fact that farm prices are nearer the loan rate than in other years are expected to reduce sealing this year.

Strong demands and a smaller number of hens are expected to maintain egg prices well above last year's level in the early months of 1941.

Robin Hood Mythical Symbol or Real Man

The gallant Robin Hood, unsurpassed in archery, skilled in swordplay, romantic and gay and full of the milk of human kindness, is as well-known and living a figure to us of today as he was to Sir Walter Scott, Washington Irving and untold thousands of the years gone by. In fact, he may be more of a moving and breathing being today than ever before, for Douglas Fairbanks and Errol Flynn contributed to make him a dynamic and lovable figure on the screen.

But did the stalwart champion of the common people ever really live? The fact is there is no actually conclusive historical proof that the beloved robber ever lived outside ballads and story books. J. Stacye is of the conviction that Robin Hood was a real man, but he adds, "A clever analytical critic might, perhaps, very easily cut up any theory that has been given on the subject."

The first known mention of Robin Hood is in William Langland's poem, "Vision of Piers the Plowman," published about 1377. He is next mentioned in Wyntown's "Scottish Chronicle." After that the legends and anecdotes of the stout-hearted woodsman and his merry men grew thick and fast. In Sir Walter Scott's romance, Ivanhoe, Robin Hood plays a prominent part, and appears under the names of Diccon-Bend-the-Bow, Locksley the Archer, and finally under his traditional name of Robin Hood.

Some historians and fiction writers incline to feel that "merrie Robin" was a man of flesh and blood, though they realize the want of historical data to support them.

Original American Flag Made in 1775 by Hulbert

This business about Betsy Ross and the first American flag is being stirred up all over again.

Betsy, says the Suffolk County Historical society of Long Island, missed putting together the first American flag by a full year. The organization has a flag to prove it.

Thousands of visitors to the New York World's fair, it was disclosed, have gone away startled after seeing an inscription beneath a tattered banner in the Long Island Regional exhibit of the New York State building there.

It reads:

"The John Hulbert Flag—Original Stars and Stripes—1775."

The banner, says the plate, was carried by John Hulbert's company of the Third regiment of New York, from Fort Ticonderoga to Philadelphia in the fall of 1775. Repair crews are said to have found the flag in the walls of a house owned by Hulbert in 1775.

Its six-pointed stars are arranged in the form of the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, set on a blue field which ends at the sixth stripe.

The New York group makes the implication that it was from the Hulbert flag that George Washington got the idea for the banner he had Betsy Ross make.

Hulbert's flag, says the Suffolk County Historical society, was seen by members of the Continental congress in Philadelphia in the latter months of 1775.

Selling Cats Legal

Milwaukee police recently ran up against a stone wall after they had taken into custody some boys who were carrying a bagful of live cats.

The kids told the officers they had picked up the felines all over the city and were taking them to a man who made fur slippers. They were to get 50 cents apiece for the live creatures.

But when they were brought to headquarters, it was discovered that there was no Wisconsin law or city law which put a ban on the gathering or marketing of stray cats. But the police, nevertheless felt that it was a rather inhuman business and so something had to be done So they charged the youngsters with disorderly conduct and turned the felines over to the Wisconsin Humane society.

But the city won't be confronted with such a dilemma hereafter. The head of the humane society is busy drawing up a bill to be presented to the next legislature banning such a business.

Juvenile Laws Criticized

Despite a steady trend toward more liberal procedures in dealing with juvenile delinquents, legal execution of children is still possible in many states, according to Gilbert Consulich of New York, legal research assistant of the National Probation association. Consulich declares that the death penalty has never proved a deterrent to delinquency or crime Socialized and preventive methods, he says, were far more effective than harsh and brutal punishments. Terming laws permitting the execution of juveniles to be relics of the day of the thumbscrew, the rack and the faggot, Consulich said: "In 18 states, certain felonies, including capital crimes, are excluded from the jurisdiction of the juvenile courts. In 19 states, the law gives the adult courts concurrent jurisdiction over children, usually in the older age groups. In 31 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia, juvenile courts may waive their jurisdiction in favor of criminal prosecution."

In 1930, the average American farmer, after providing for himself and three other persons in his family, and a hired laborer, furnished food and fiber for 12 Americans living eleswhere than on farms, and 2 more persons in foreign countries.

More than 3,000 farms containing approximately 463,000 A are now included in erosion control demonstrations conducted by farmers in cooperation with Iowa State College and the Federal Conservation Service.

MUSIC NEWS

We are now working on a German piece in mixed chorus. It is "Geistliches Wiegenlied" by Albert Kranz and is one of the last publications to reach America from Germany. We arq trying to sing it in German and hope it will be understood by the German people of this community.

Following is a list of temporary band members. If they keep up their progress they will become permanent clarinetists in the band Ewald Grosshuech, Wm. Montgomery. LaVohn Schlawin, Aaron Wille, Maxine Mau and Ardella Nelson.

Santa Claus must have read our article in the Times a couple of weeks ago asking for new band instruments, for several new instruments have been added to this group The are all first grade instruments and greatly improve the tone quality of the band Peggy Coobs has a new snare drum. Patricia Kudje has a new E flat alt saxophone and Junior Buntenbach's tenor saxokhone and Melvin Coobs' baritone are recently new instruments.

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

Friday, Jan. 10, the juniors held a class meeting. The problem brought before the class was the need of extra funds for the banquet. The class decided, as a suggestion from Mr Galbreth, to sell candy at the tournament and earn the money needed. We hope we can put on and show the seniors of this year as nice and as pretty banquet as they gave last year.

HOG CHOLERA VACCINATION SCHOOL FEBR. 6 & 7

Anyone wishing to take instructions and examinations for the use of Anti-hog cholera serum and virus may make their application at the Farm Bureau office in Garner.

Those that have already made application either at the Farm Bureau office or with druggist who have turned the application over to us will not need to make further application. Everyone who has made or will make application must make a $1.50 deposit at the Farm Bureau office. This is required by law so that cost of instruction is assured. If this sum is more than needed a refund will be made to those attending the school.

Those making applications and deposit will be notified at a later date as to the time and place of the school. Each school will be limited to 30 members.

In Iowa, tractor power is used in producing about two-thirds of the small grain acreage and about 60 percent of the corn acreage.

OFFER PLANTINGS OF TREES FOR GAME AREAS

Plans for distribution of 2,000 wildlife packets, each containing 200 trees, shrubs and vines, to people who have suitable areas for wildlife planting have been completed by the Iowa Agricultural Extension Service and the State forester and Ellis Hicks, extension Forest Nursery at Ames.

Truman G. Engelking, extension wildlife specialist, report that under the planting program "any 4-H club member, farmer, fish and game association, conservation club Smith-Hughes students or any individual who has a suitable planting area may obtain packets."

Trees, Vines

The packets will be sold at $1 each by the State Forest Nursery, with the understanding that they will be used only for wildlife planting purposes Deliveries will be made at the proper planting time next spring No limitations will be placed upon the number any individual may get.

Each packet will contain 40 evergreens, 40 tall-growing hardwoods, 60 low-growing trees and 60 shrubs and vines. Evergreens are especially important, Engelking says, because they provide heavy, year-round cover.

"Areas which are likely to be ideal for wildlife plantings include fence corners, fence rows, gullies, timberland borders, waste strips," Engelking points out. "Full instructions on how the plants can be arranged, spaced and adapted to different planting areas will be included with each shipment."

Where To Plant

"The best location for wildlife plantings is away from buildings and roads," he says. "Planting and leaving blocks of sorghum, cane corn, soybeans or similar crops next to the trees will provide feeding areas and help attract wildlife."

Order blanks for the wildlife packets may be obtained from county agents and Smith-Hughes teachers

Last year, the Extension Service and State Forestry Nursery distributed 180 wildlife packets to 4-H club members. The program was so successful that plans were made to distribute 2,000 this year

SHORT USE OF TRACTOR IN WINTER HARD ON IT

Winter is a critical time for tractors if they are operated, says Donald K. Struthers, extension agricultuaral engineer at the Iowa State College.

"Intermittent running of tractors during the winter months for short jobs puts a lot of wear and tear on the machines," Struthers says, "unless some precautions are taken"

Among the ways to cut down on wear and tear, Struthers suggests using light oil in the crank case which will flow at low temperatures Otherwise no lubrication occurs until the engine warms up

"If the tractor is going to be used very much in cold weather, the transmission oil should be thinned," Struthers said. "A No 10 motor oil is satisfactory."

Struthers also suggests opening the drain plug occasionally to see that no water condenses in the crankcase.

Such water may get into the oil pump and freeze, breaking the pump. Also the water forms sludge which clogs oil lines.

All farmers who use their tractors on short jobs during the winter, even if the engine uses a distillate, would profit by using gasoline

CORN SEALING WILL BE LESS IN IOWA IN 1941

Less corn will be sealed this year than in either 1938 or 1939 according to Iowa State College agricultural economists. They point out that available space for storing corn is scarce.

Although less sealing will tend to keep corn prices down, forces working in the other direction are the general improvement in business activity in strengthening the livestock prices.

Economists point out that corn prices in Iowa have been holding close to 50 cents a bushel during December, with some areas slightly below that and some above. The market price is closer to the loan price than in other years. A lot of the corn contains too much moisture to seal. About half of recent arivals of corn at Chicago have graded No. 4 or No. 5 because of excess moisture.

TYRONE POWER STARS IN THE ROLE "MARK OF ZORRO"

Through the night rides a masked adventurer, the jagged mark of his sword striking terror to every heart but one! In the most famous and colorful of all screen roles, Tyrone Power brings to thrilling life the exploits of the celebrated bandit in his latest staring picture for 20th Century-Fox. "The Mark of Zorro," which opens Sunday at the Avery Theatre in Garner for three days.

Boasting the most spectacular action ad sword play the screen has seen in many a moon, Power's role is crammed with hard-riding, furious fighting, ardent romance and highlighted by an unforgetable realistic duel with Basil Rathbone And according to all reports, Power scores the greatest triumph of his career. Featured with Rathboone at the head of the brilliant supporting cast is lovely Linda Darnell as the fairest senorita in old California, who gives her love to "Zorro"

At great expense 20th Century-Fox reconstructed the colorful Los Angeles of 1820 for "Mark of Zorro."

CUT BORER INFESTED TREES DURING WINTER

January "slack" work season is a good time to take the ax into the woodlot and cut down all dead or dying trees which might be infested with borers, says Harold Gunderson, Iowa State College extension entomoligist.

Burning the infested timber as firewood before May 15, will destroy borers which might otherwise would emerge in the spring and attack healthy timber, he explains

"Borers attack trees which have been weakened by drouth or which have suffered bark damage from heat, livestock or farm machinery," the entomologists says. "The common tree borers of Iowa work on the cambium layer just under the bark and may completely girdle the trees. Girdling is usually fatal.

Any tree which shows dead branches on one side or which exhibits general weakness should be suspected of harboring the borers. The way to check is to remove a strip of bark on the south side of the tree. If borers are responsible for the damage, their tunnels, or even the flattened borers themselves, will be exposed.

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at the cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it the simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you will not only get regular but stay regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

BRITISH INVASION

The British are coming to Washington at a rate that almost amounts to a second invasion. Even in 1814, when the Redcoats burned the Capitol, their force was scarcely more impressive.

Actually there are 430 representatives of the British government in Washington today—130 members of the embassy staff, 300 members of the British purchasing commission and British air commission. The figure includes everyone—officers, clerks, messengers and chauffeurs.

The British embassy and chancery now is the largest diplomatic establishment in Washington, but it is not large enough An annex has been added to care for an overflow of coding clerks and officials of the office of economic warfare.

Meanwhile the two British commissions occupy space in four other buildings. They started out in modest quarters in the Hibbs building, expanded to the entire top floor of the Willard hotel, added further space in the Adams building, and most recently have taken over Andrew Mellon's old apartment building at 1785 Massachusetts avenue to accommodate the air commission.

These are the British in Washington alone. In addition, the New York office of the purchasing commission numbers 1,000 persons, plus 500 inspectors who travel about the country testing the wide assortment of articles, from ships to airplanes, which are being purchased in the United States.

U. S. RUBBER SUPPLIES

Should congress ever decide to investigate the National Defense commission it would unearth some appalling delays in the securing of the nation's raw materials—particularly rubber.

Real fact is that a fundamental difference exists between the defense commission and Jesse Jones regarding future rubber supplies. The commission believes that the production of synthetic rubber should begin immediately, and wants to give a subsidy of $180,000,000 to American rubber companies. The subsidy would be necessary to offset the price of natural rubber, which sells for 18 cents to 20 cents a pound, whereas synthetic rubber would cost about 25 cents.

Six Synthetic Rubbers.

To this end, the defense commission has been negotiating with various rubber companies, and the following are ready to co-operate if a subsidy is granted:

DuPont, which produces Neoprene. This company is by far the most experienced in the field, and its product has the highest production.

Standard Oil, which produces Butyl and has the license for U. S. production of the famous German synthetic rubber, Buna.

Goodyear, which produces Chemigum.

Goodrich, which produces Ameripol.

United States Rubber, which is working on a product, so far unchristened.

However, Jesse Jones doesn't believe that synthetic rubber needs to be produced on a large scale. He favors a small subsidy to one company as an experiment.

The defense commission counters with a forecast of what might happen should all our rubber be cut off in the Dutch East Indies. It emphasizes that machinery cannot be set up overnight to produce emergency rubber Stettinius is really aroused, may appeal to the White House if he doesn't soon move Jesse.

HOOVER VISITS CAPITAL

Although Herbert Hoover constantly shuttles back and forth about the country, he sedulously avoids Washington. The ex-President has a phobia against Washington under the New Deal.

Hoover's last public visit was last winter, when he appeared unannounced before a congressional committee in behalf of a loan for the then embattled Finns. But he spent the entire day here sub rosa last Sunday.

Hoover stayed at the swanky home of William R Castle, undersecretary of state in his regime and one of the most active appeasement advocates in the country.

Hoover spent most of his time conferring with Castle and some old newspaper friends about his plan to force the British to open their blockade so that food can be shipped into Nazi-occupied Europe.

Household News By Eleanor Howe

IT COMES UPON THE MIDNIGHT CLEAR . . . MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A CUP OF CHEER!

(See Recipes Below)

'Tis the night before Christmas and all through the house everybody's stirring except the wee people who are wandering in dreamland with Santa Claus. The little stockings have been filled to bursting, the last package has been tied up in tissue and ribbon, the Christmas angel has taken the tree under the shadow of its wings . . . and everybody's hungry!

So . when it comes upon the midnight clear—that glorious song of old — the family wish each other Merry Christmas and gather round the buffet table for a snack and a cup of cheer.

The bill of fare, on such an occasion, is as simple as the way it's served; a platter of cold meats, served with hot chili sauce; soft rolls or French bread or perhaps melba toast; and cookies for the sweet tooth are the perfect accompaniment to hot tea which quickens the Christmas spirit.

Or perhaps you'd like to serve bowls of creamy, old-fashioned oyster stew, with toasted hard rolls, a green salad if you like, and for dessert doughnuts with hot, spicy apple sauce.

Oyster Stew
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 quart oysters
⅓ cup butter
2 quarts rich milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Place oysters, strained oyster liquor, and butter in a saucepan and cook gently until edges of oysters begin to curl. Heat milk in a separate saucepan at the same time. (Caution: Milk should be thoroughly heated, but should not boil.) Add oysters to milk and season to taste. Serve immediately.

Stir-up Chocolate Cake.
(Makes 1 8-inch square cake)

1 egg (unbeaten)
⅓ cup cocoa
½ cup shortening
1½ cups flour
½ cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup hot water
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Put ingredients in mixing bowl in order given. Stir or beat until the batter is smooth. Pour into greased cake pan 8 by 8 by 2 inches square. Bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 50 minutes.

Boiled Icing.

2½ cups sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 egg whites (well beaten)
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Place sugar, corn syrup, salt and water together in a saucepan and cook to the firm ball stage (250 degrees). Pour the hot syrup slowly into the well-beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add vanilla extract and continue beating until the frosting will hold its shape when tossed over the back of a spoon. Should the icing become too stiff to manipulate easily, a very small amount of hot water may be added, or the icing may be remelted in the top of a double boiler. Spread on cake in swirls.

Buttermilk Rolls.
(Makes 3 dozen)

1 cake yeast
2 cups buttermilk (scalded and cooled)
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon soda
4 cups flour
2 tablespoons shortening (melted)

Soften yeast in buttermilk which has been scalded and cooled to lukewarm. Add sugar, salt, and soda to the rest of the buttermilk Add softened yeast and half of the flour. Beat until the batter is smooth and full of bubbles. Beat in fat and remaining flour, mixing until dough forms a ball Turn onto a well-floured board (using ½ cup flour) and knead until the dough is smooth and elastic. Roll out to ½-inch thickness. Cut into rounds and place ½-inch apart on greased baking sheet. Brush with melted butter, and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk (about 1 hour). Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 15 to 20 minutes.

Feeding Father.

For the married folk you like to remember with an inexpensive Christmas gift, or for clever party favors, how about a copy of Eleanor Howe's cookbook "Feeding Father"? You'll find in it the recipes for the foods that men like best, tested recipes, too, for foods like Old Fashioned Navy Bean Soup, Baked Onions, Stuffed Pork Chops and Chocolate Cream Pie!

To get your copy of this clever book, send 10 cents in coin to "Feeding Father," care of Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Deviled Eggs.

6 hard cooked eggs
5 tablespoons mayonnaise-type salad dressing
2 teaspoons onion (minced)
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Tabasco sauce
1 tablespoon pickle (minced)

Cut hard cooked eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and force through sieve. Add remaining ingredients and mix well, using additional salad dressing if desired. Refill whites with yolk mixture. Chill. Sprinkle with paprika or minced chives.

Spicy Apple Sauce.
(Serves 6)

8 medium-sized tart apples
Water
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Wash, quarter, and core apples. Place in saucepan with just enough water to cover. Add sugar and spices, cover, and cook over low heat for about 10 minutes. Rub through coarse strainer. Serve hot.

Sour Cream Doughnuts.
(Makes 3 dozen)

2 eggs
½ cup sugar
1 cup thick sour cream
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon soda
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Beat eggs until thick and light; add sugar and sour cream. Beat well. Sift remaining 5 dry ingredients together. Add to first mixture to make a soft dough. More flour may be needed if dough is very sticky and is to be rolled and cut immediately. If not used at once, chill overnight or several hours. Roll out dough, small portions at a time, ¼ inch thick, using as little flour on board as possible. Cut with floured cutter.

Preheat enough frying fat to 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Fry a few doughnuts at a time, turning them only once When browned on both sides, remove from fat and drain on soft, absorbent paper. When cold, sprinkle with powdered sugar, if desired

JESUS REQUIRES FAITHFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 12 35-48
GOLDEN TEXT—Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required.—Luke 12:48

The Lord is coming!

One of the chief reasons for the worldliness in our churches today, the indifference toward soul winning, and the neglect of personal holiness, is that preachers and people alike have neglected the truth of the second coming of Christ. He is coming again—are you ready? Am I? These are serious and urgent questions.

I. The Lord Is Coming—Be Waiting (vv. 35, 36).

Lights burning and loins girt ready to serve Him, such should be our daily attitude toward His coming. Believers are to be "looking for" Him (Titus 2:13). They "love his appearing" (II Tim. 4:8). Their hope is not in this world, but they are "looking forward earnestly desiring" (II Pet. 3:11, 12, R. V.) the outworking of God's plan and purpose.

II. The Lord Is Coming—Be Ready (vv. 37-40).

He may come at midnight, or in the morning; we do not know the day or hour (v. 40, cf. Matt. 24:36), but it will be when the world does not expect it (vv. 39, 40). "Be ye ready" is the command to every Christian, ever watchful for the coming of our Lord.

The full meaning of verse 37 we will not know until we come to that glorious day, but it clearly indicates a great blessing and reward for those who are ready when He comes.

III. The Lord Is Coming—Be Busy (vv. 41-44).

Peter's question is not directly answered, but by inference he is told that he may be one of those to whom this blessing will come by being about the Master's business.

Critics of the teaching of the hope of the Lord's return sometimes say that looking for Him "cuts the nerve of missionary endeavor"; that is, makes men impractical and visionary, not willing to work for God. To prove how untrue that is one need only investigate who it is that furnishes most of the men and means to evangelize the world. He will find that it is the evangelical believers in the Lord's return.

Looking for Christ means occupying until He comes (Luke 19:13), doing the Lord's work here and now (v. 42), while awaiting His coming.

"Jesus compares teachers to house stewards (Matt. 24:45, 46; Acts 20:28; I Cor. 4:1; I Pet. 4:10). A steward's business is to give to each one in the household his portion of meat in due season (John 21:15-17; I Pet. 5:2; Jer. 3:15). The faithful and wise steward is the one who actually does this. There are many foolish and unfaithful stewards who feed themselves, not the household (cf. Ezek. 34:2, 3); or they feed only a portion of the household; or they give something else than food (philosophy or sociology, instead of the pure Word of God; cf. I Pet. 2:2; 4:10, 11); or they do not give the food 'in due season.' The steward who is faithful and wise is also blessed. Having proved his fitness to rule, he is rewarded with larger rule. At the bottom of the unfaithful steward's neglect of duty lies his view that Christ's coming is far off" (Bradbury).

IV. The Lord Is Coming—Be Holy (vv. 45-48).

The belief that the Lord will delay His coming leads to all manner of unbelief, betrayal of trust, and of sin. In the case of the servant in verse 45, there was first oppression of those under him, and then gluttony and drunkenness. The picture is revolting, but it was really prophetic of what has taken place even within the ranks of professing Christians in the church itself.

Neglect of the truth of God's Word, scoffing at the promise of Christ's coming (read carefully II Pet. 3:3-9) leads to that perversion of Christianity which is evident in much of the life of the church today, and which causes thinking people to turn away in disgust. Let us stress the fact that this may be "religion," but it is not real Christianity.

There is a solemn word here for preachers, teachers and Christian workers. A time of judgment is coming, and we are to answer to the Lord for the faithful use of our privileges and opportunities It is a matter to which we need to give careful attention If God has given us great opportunities, our measure of responsibility will be great Every chance you and I have to present the gospel, influence the life of our acquaintances for God, turn the interest of our community or neighborhood toward righteousness, these are God's gifts of opportunity to us We shall answer one day to Him for the manner in which we use them

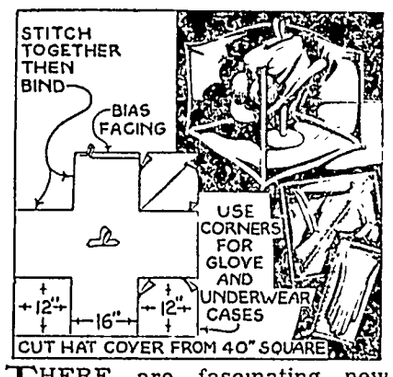
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



THERE are fascinating new transparent materials on the market now. Luncheon sets and aprons and rain coats and closet accessories all take on new glamour when made of them.

Less than 50 cents' worth of this window-pane clear material made the hat cover, underwear case and two glove cases like the one shown here. All the directions for cutting and making the hat cover are given here in the sketch. The material from two corners made the square underwear case. The material from each of the other two corners was folded to make a glove or handkerchief case. Bright blue bias tape was used for seam binding and the bottom facing and loop handle of the hat cover; and colored zippers to match the bindings were used for the case closings

Debtor Set the Collector An Example in Conduct

Doublex is noted for his nerve, his shortness of temper, and his scarcity of cash. While seated at a lonely breakfast in his club one morning a debt collector stormed in, and presented his bill.

"Sir," said Doublex, glaring at him, "is this all you know of the usages of decent society? To present a bill to a man breakfasting? Do you know that you are an intruder? If you wish to talk business, go outside and send in your card."

The collector went out and sent in his card. Doublex picked it up and read it.

"Tell the gentleman," he said sweetly, "that I am not in."

For Busy Shoppers

Winning popular approval with busy Christmas shoppers are the two handsome gift packages of Camel cigarettes featured by local dealers. The regular Camel carton—10 packs of "20's"—comes in a colorful, holiday dress. Equally striking is the gay Camel package of 4 "flat fifties."

Both packages contain 200 cigarettes—are easy gifts to get, perfect to receive.—Adv.

GIRL SCOUTS

Because of the kindness of the American Legion and Auxiliary, the Girl Scouts have the privilege of meeting each Monday evening from seven to nine in the Legion-Auxiliary room in the Hall.

Monday evening, the girls who are earning the Cook Badge, Marjorie, Lorraine and Gertrude, made ice cream as a surprise for the other scouts. The Troop Committee donated the ingredients for the ice cream and also brought white and chocolate cup cakes with them. We were happy to have all the committee there and surely appreciated all they did for us We were glad to have LaVonne Schlawin and Ellen Kilgore as visitors, too

Whenever the Girl Scout troop meets as a whole, one committee member visits each week. Mrs Buntenbach, chairman, visits on every fifth Monday in the month, and substitutes for absent members also Mrs. Quentin Stille visits the first Monday, Mrs. Art Kudje, the second Monday, Mrs John Chambers, the third Monday and Mrs. Ernest Lewis the fourth Monday in the month At the present time, Mrs Stille and Mrs. Lewis are helping with Badge activities.

KLEMME SHAMROCKS TAKE DOUBLE HEADER AT MESERVEY

The Klemme Shamrocks basket ball teams won both games at Meservey Tuesday night in a non-conference tilt.

The reserve took a 23 to 15 victory, with Bock, Kaduce and Klotzbach each gathering six points for high score.

The varsity tilt saw the Shamrocks get off to a ragged start and when the first five were unable to click, the reserves were used for nearly half of the game. The Shamrocks lead the first quarter 10 to 4, but dropped back as Meservey took a 15 to 14 lead at the half. The third quarter ended with Meservey still in front 23 to 22. but the Shamrocks found their shotting eyes in the last quarter and put loose a blitzkreig of shooting and ran the score up to 40 Meservey tallied only 25 to end the game.

CORN IS TO GET THE NEW "COLD TEST"

It Shows How Hybrid Strains Will React If Spring Is Unfavorable

A new "cold test" which indicates how hybrid corn samples will react when the spring planting season is cold and wet is being used this winter when requested on samples sent in for analysis reports R. H. Porter, head of the Iowa State College Seed Laboratory.

Oridinarily hybrid corn is being tested for germination under what is called normal conditions -- that is, grown in sand at a temperature of 85 degrees F.

Here's How

The method of the "cold test" consists of placing the corn samples in different representative field soils and holding the temperature at 45-50 degrees F. for 7 days. Then the temperature is raised to 85 degrees for 2 days, and the number of normal seedlings found at the end of the 9-day period.

"An occasional lot is found that germinates almost as high as under normal conditions," Porter says. "But most samples give the expected lower germination."

Testing Inbreds

The seed laboratory has been running similar "cold tests" on college mbreds for the past 2 years to give agronomists a better insight on the behavior of the corn.. This year the test is being used on samples sent in by hybrid seed corn producers because these seedmen have noted difference in the stand of the same hybrid when conditions of spring planting varied over the state.

"Hybrids often show up well in laboratory germination tests and fall down under field conditions because of the type of soil or the fact that the hybrids are highly susceptible to soil organisms at low temperatures.

It's Severe

The ability of hybrid seed to germinate well under the conditions of the cold test is not at present being used as a basis for certification. Porter says the test is probably more severe than is likely to occur in the field. He points out, however, that seed which fails to germinate well in this test can be sold by seedsmen to farmers with the understanding that it will be planted laten

"This test may be a step toward laboratory tests that will help producers of hybrid seed to build hybrids that will be resistant to unfavorable spring conditions," Porter said.

1940 Corn Germinating Well

Iowa's 1940 hybrid corn is germinating high in laboratory tests, reports Dr. R. H. Porter, head of the Iowa State College Seed Laboratory.

Only occasional samples fail to germinate below 90 percent, Porter says. He reports finding slightly more disease present on the samples sent in for analysis than was observed last year, but the amount is not large.

Co-Operative Oil Company Pays $4,500 In Patronage Dividends

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED ANNUAL MEETING OF CO-OP OIL ASS'N.

Despite the slippery condtions of the roads which prevented many from attempting to drive any distance, there was a large crowd present at the annual meeting of the Hancock County Co-Operative Oil Association held at the Avery Theatre at Garner, on Monday afternoon.

The company, which is home-owwned and home operated, enjoyed a very successful year $4,500 was distributed to stockholders in the form of dividend checks. The company handled a volume of gasoline, kerosene and distillate that amounted to 114 car loads, as well as 4 car loads of motor oils and over 8 tons of greases

The annual statement shows that the company has total resources of over $36,000.

After the annual report was read and other business taken up, three directors were elected to serve a term of three years on the board. The three men are all old directors Henry Brede for the south district, Herman Priebe for the central district around Klemme, and Milo Brown for the north district around Garner

The board of directors will meet at a later date to elect their officers for the coming year.

THE PREDICTED HOG RISE HAS BEGUN

Farmers Having Full-Sized Crop Are Now "Sitting On Top of The World"

Iowa hog producers are "sitting on top of the world" this year, especially those who refused to get discouraged by last year's low prices and now have full-sized crops of pigs on the way or in the feedlot.

L. K. Soth, Iowa State College agricultural economist says that hog prices during the first half of 1941 will be much higher than a year ago because of the "twin forces" of increasing demand and decreased supply.

"The $2 per hundredweight rise between the middle of December and the middle of January," Soth declared, "already demonstrates the rise is well underway."

Marketing Heavy

Marketing during the next 9 months of the marketing year --- which runs from October to October --- will be much smaller than usual. Soth says.

The main reason is that the total 1940 pig crop was 10 percent under 1939.

Another reason is that marketings during October, November and December were the largest in record -- 37 percent of the total marketing year's supply. Usually only 26 percent of hogs are sold during these 3 months. In other words, only 63 percent of the pig crop is left for marketing between now and October.

The reasons for the smaller 1940 pig crop, the early marketing of 1940 pigs, and the indicated 14 per cent reduction of this year's spring pig crop are the same -- low hog prices compared with the price of corn.

Demand Better

The hog-corn ration for 1939-40 was only 10.6 compared with 16.6 for a year earlier.

While hog supplies have been decreasing, consumer demand has been moving upward under the impetus of the national defense program. Workers have jobs, money and appetites, which adds up to higher meat prices generally.

Two factors which might tend to hold back the rise in hog prices somewhat are the large storage holdings of pork and lard. Packers moved a lot of pork and lard into storage in the fall months and may not be so eager to make storage purchases now.

KLEMME GIRL'S STORY IN NATIONAL MUSIC MAGAZINE

A story "Music in a Really Small School," by Miss Gladys Zabilka, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Zabilka, appeared as a feature in the January issue of Educational Music Magazine, a magazine of national circulation.

Miss Zabilka, who teaches music in the Luther, Iowa. Consolidated schools, tells of her varied experience in promoting music in a small school.

In commenting on the author of the article, the publisher writes, "She learned God gave the King in India, clarinet and saxophone in America . . . she is keeping in mind her goal of becoming an educational missionary in India. We think she will do her job well."

Shamrocks Win Another

In a non-conference doubleheader here Tuesday night, the Klemme Junior High squad played Thornton juniors to a 9 to 9 tie.

The Shamrocks added another scalp by running away with the Thornton team, 38 to 16, in a game which the second and third teams saw most of the service.

The Shamrocks travel to Woden this Friday night.

FIRST MEETING FOR 1941 HELD THURSDAY EVE AT THE COMMUNITY HALL

Over Fifty Members Have Joined Civic Club For 1941

The first meeting of the Klemme Civic Club for 1941 was held in the dining room of the Community Hall last Thursday evening. A dinner was served by the Auxiliary ladies at 6:30 o'clock after which business was taken up. Thirty- four members were present for the dinner and meeting.

W. C. Keraus, retiring president, gave a resume of the work accomplished during his administration the past three years, and pointed out the necessity for the Civic Club to continue its forward stride for the betterment of the community.

Reece Is New President

R. R Reece, manager of the local telephone company, was elected president for the coming year. Paul Grange was named vice president, Asa Arnold secretary and C. G. Waterman, treasurer. President Reece requested that all old committees act in their present offices for the time being.

President Reece presented a few problems to be worked out in the future.

Monthly Meetings Stressed

Mr. Reece presented for consideration the proposition of having regular monthly meetings which after discussion was voted favorably by the club. The first Thursday in each month was set as the meeting date, and the first monthly meeting will be held on February 6th in the Community Hall. A "dutch" lunch will be served.

Over fifty business men have signed up for 1941, and several more who were not able to attend the first meeting have signified their intention of joining the club

The Civic Club has as it's goal . . . a better community in which to live.

"TIN PAN ALLEY" TO PLAY 5 DAYS IN GARNER THEATER

"Tin Pan Alley" Stirring Musical of Our Exciting Times

Those great songs that inspired you yesterday; catchy tunes that set your feet tapping; your hands beating out rhythms; Melodies that will weave a world of fancy for you tomorrow, Ragtime, Jazz, Jive. Where does it all stem from? How are those melodic strains conceived? By whom are they composed? 20th Century-Fox takes you down the street that gives the world its greatest songs in "Tin Pan Alley," which stars Alice Faye and Betty Grable and comes Friday to the Avery Theatre in Garner for five bigs days. Keyed to the mood of America, this musical of our exciting times depicts in human, dramatic terms the color, romance, heartbreak and glamour which are part of the place where songs are born.

With Jack Oakie and John Payne heading a brillant featured cast, "Tin Pan Alley" is cut from the same unusual musical and dramatic pattern as was "Alexander's Ragtime Band," produced by the same studio. It is built around a compelling love story between a rising young music publisher and a singer of songs.

Woven into the story are some of the most stirring and haunting of old and new song hits. Some of America's greatest popular song writers of yesterday and today contribute their best and biggest successes to "Tin Pan Alley."

Child Labor in War Material Production Puts New Angle on Vital U. S. Problem

By WILSON ADLAR
(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

Exigencies of war again bring the problem of child labor to the fore. Foreign nations, their "unessential" industries bled white of manpower, are looking to the children as a large, untapped source of labor.

While these nations are seeking to obtain more work from their children, a campaign is in progress in the United States to restrict child labor. This campaign reaches its climax each year in the national Child Labor day which will be observed this year on January 25.

Opponents of child labor in this country are urging the ratification of the Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution which would empower congress to regulate the labor of persons under 18 years of age. It has already been ratified by 28 states, only eight short of the two-thirds majority required.

When the First Child Labor day was observed in this country in 1906 the civilized world was approaching the end of a period of comparative security. The result of this lull in the cycle of blood and warfare was the growth of a more humane and positive world attitude towards certain age-old problems. Among these problems child labor was beginning to assume international proportions.

It was the beginning of a world harmony on this and other allied subjects which seemed for a time about to stabilize the precarious peace of the world.

Child labor standards have not remained unaffected by the present world crisis. A brief newspaper paragraph from Toronto, Canada, which appeared late in 1940, states that "It will not be uncommon to see boys and girls of 12 and 13 years running tractors and other mechanized farm units in this province."

These youngsters shown above receive pittance wages for many hours of work. The young girl works on a machine in a textile mill, and the boy is shown collecting garments for a tailor.

Italy Mobilizes Youth.

Last spring shortly before Italy became a belligerent the Italian cabinet approved a bill providing for civil mobilization in war time which would include children of both sexes of 13 years up. About the same time Rumania was reported to be drafting, from the National Youth Movement, 4,000,000 school children between the ages of 7 and 18 in an "agricultural army."

Since 1938 the wages and hours act has played a large part in regulating the employment of children under 16 and in regulating hours and wages for older workers in interstate commerce industries. But this act is only a beginning.

Entirely excluded from national regulation are all children employed in industries which are intrastate. Large numbers of boys and girls under 16 are in personal service trades, at work in laundries, hotels, beauty parlors and filling stations. Many serve as clerks or messengers. Their hours are long and their wages low. This fact is even more serious than at first it appears, since the fields in which children are today in greatest demand are those which do not come under federal law.

Accidents occur more frequently among minors than they do among adults. Youth's immature nerves are more easily susceptible to routine, mental fatigue and the strain resulting from frequent speed-ups.

The following report from an analysis, issued this year by the Pennsylvania department of labor and industry, speaks for itself. "A minor girl employed by a food products manufacturing concern, while engaged in assorting tomatoes, had her thumb crushed, necessitating amputation at the first joint. This accident occurred just four hours after she was accepted for work without an employment certificate.

"The cause of this accident can readily be traced to the fact that this girl was given no opportunity to learn gradually the intricacies of the operation of such machinery. Had she received the proper instructions concerning it, the accident might not have happened."

Migratory Problem.

In the field of child labor our most serious problem today is that of migratory labor. Last year in New Jersey legislation was passed which seeks to better the conditions of children employed in industrial agriculture. For 35 years families have been brought into New Jersey from other states, notably Pennsylvania, to work in cranberry bogs and on truck farms. Miserable conditions, excessive work and low pay have been the rule. The new law raises the age at which children may leave school to work. It also makes illegal the work of non-resident children when the schools of the district in which they are living are in session or when the schools of the states in which they maintain local residence would require their attendance.

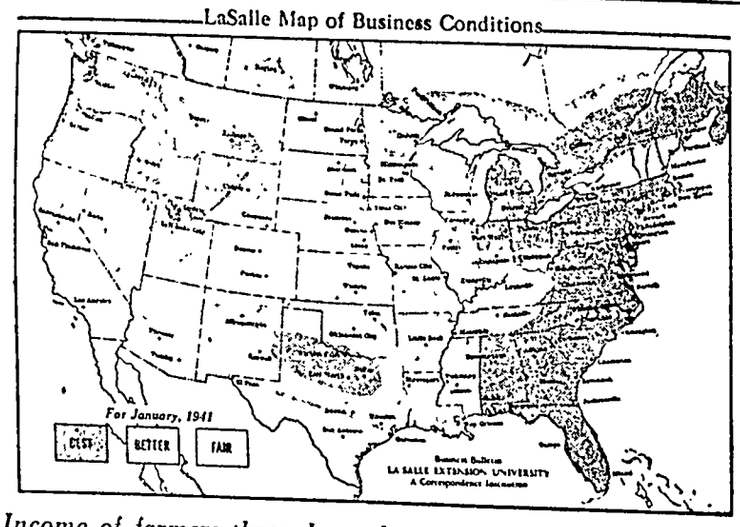
The effect of industrial migration upon the children of migrant families, was described as detrimental by Paul S. Taylor before the LaFollette civil liberties committee.

"Incessant migration retards the education of children. A few American parents are beginning to complain that their children cannot write as good English as they. There is a growing consciousness that for many of their kind the future portends not progress from generation to generations, but retrogression."

Members of the national child labor committee deplore the fact that 16 years is the minimum age at which children may leave school for work in only 12 states.

In defense of their position, they point out that "those who are now our children will in future years become our citizens. How will they meet the dicult problem ahead of us as a nation? How can they solve the democratic and educational challenge of the future?"

Expect Farm Income to Increase



Income of farmers throughout the country is expected to rise over five per cent this year. The shrinking foreign export market is still more than replaced by an increasing domestic demand. The gain in income, however, will be slightly offset by higher prices of production.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
(President, LaSalle Extension University)

The farmers of the country will probably receive $500,000,000 larger income this year than they did in 1940. During the next few months they will be marketing the remainder of their last year's crop, which was larger than average. For most of these crops they will receive prices which are above the level of a year ago.

Farmers benefit when employment and pay rolls in the cities are high. Demand for their products is increased whenever the income of industrial workers rises, as it has been doing for several months. Defense expenditures are already double the amount of six months ago, and are scheduled to go much higher soon. While it lasts, this spending provides employment to a larger number of workers and thus increases their ability to buy.

The gain in income from higher prices and greater demand may be partly offset by higher costs of production during the coming year. In spite of this, however, the outlook for agriculture during 1941 is favorable. Farmers and business men in rural communities are very likely to have the best year in more than a decade.

Prospects for industry are also favorable, and the output of factories is expected to be around 10 per cent higher than the all-time peak production last year. Those industries directly affected by war orders and defense expenditures, such as steel, machinery, aircraft, and shipbuilding, will continue to make the greatest gains. Other lines of industry are moving forward under the stimulus of greater consumer purchasing power. The outlook is that a balanced upward trend will continue for both agriculture and industry.

Auto Area Tool Shops Near Capacity Output

DETROIT—The potential capacity of tool shops in the automotive area for small tools urgently needed for national defense production is "pretty well exhausted," according to Chester Cahn, secretary of the Automotive Tool and Die Manufacturers' association. Mr. Cahn said 70 per cent of the tool and die shops in the automotive area were working on national defense orders.

Transients Require Medical Assistance

Transients, variously estimated at 200,000 to 1,000,000, are "on the road" and for the most part are unable to procure the necessities of life without assistance. The general welfare of the whole country is closely linked to the health problem presented by this class of needy persons, according to a bulletin recently published by the U. S. Public Health Service.

These "on the road" people are discriminated against in programs of material aid and public medical care through the application of residence and related requirements, Passed Assistant Surgeon Charles F. Blankenship and Fred Safier, Associate Social Science Analyst, authors of the study, state in this new bulletin.

The Public Health Service points out that "migration is an outstanding characteristic of the United States." Economic improvement is the main incentive for migration.

Since it is true that almost two-thirds of the agencies giving medical care to transients restrict care to either emergency or selected cases, the difficulties facing the transient who required public medical care are matters of serious concern.

Illness Rate High.

"Transients, either interstate or intrastate, have considerably more disabling illness than persons who have resided in communities long enough and under such conditions as to have the status of residents. Intrastate transients have even higher disabling illness rates than have the interstate group.

"However, as illness strikes more frequently, the result seems to be that further migration is delayed and often the migrant settles down in some community and eventually becomes a resident. This tendency may be responsible for the high rate of illness and disease found in cities among the local homeless, many of whom may well be former interstate transients disabled for migration by chronic or recurring diseases."

Data on medical care received by transients reflect the results of the limitations imposed on the group. No class or type of nonresidents, except special beneficiaries of the federal health services, receives as much medical care as even the poor in resident groups. Although most students of the subject agree that care received by many residents is not adequate for the maintenance of health, the report shows that transients receive even less care than do residents. As a result illness is more common among transients.

BIBLICAL DESTROYERS

There were two reasons for that grin on the face of North Dakota's Gov. John Moses when he left the White House the other day.

One was an assurance that the President would personally investigate why North Dakota has not received any of the new defense plants. Moses argued that his state was so far inland that it was ideal for defense industries. Roosevelt promised to look into the matter immediately.

The other reason was an anecdote the President told Moses "about a famous namesake of yours." It happened when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration.

He was asked to select from a list of American naval heroes, the name of a new destroyer. He picked "Israel," in honor of a U. S. captain who distinguished himself in the war against the Barbary Coast pirates in 1815.

Some time later, Roosevelt was asked to approve the personnel of this destroyer. And while looking over the list of personnel, another aide entered with another personnel list for a destroyer named "Moses."

"This coincidence struck me as very funny," Roosevelt related, "and I leaned back and laughed. The young naval officer looked perturbed and inquired, 'Aren't those the right crews for those ships—Moses and Israel?' And then I laughed some more, because heading the lists of officers were the names of Murphy and O'Reilly."

Note—Moses, a Democrat from a rock-ribbed G. O. P. state, is the tallest governor in the country—6 feet 4 inches.

ALBANIAN MOUNTAINEERS HELP GREEKS

(Editor's Note—The Washington Merry-Go-Round's famous Brass Ring this week is awarded to the unsung allies of the Greek army, the peasants and mountaineers of Albania.)

Much tribute has been paid to the gallant Greek army and royal air force for winning one of this war's most crucial battles, in that wildest and most remote corner of Europe—Albania.

But little has been written about the Albanian peasants and mountaineers who have provided the Greeks with the most amazing intelligence service of this war, so accurate that the Greeks have known down to the last detail just how many Italians were located behind each hill, where their guns were placed, and the exact nature of their fortifications.

An army without eyes is helpless. And the Albanians, who have never forgotten the manner in which Mussolini drove their queen and her day-old son out of the country two years ago, have contributed materially to the surprising succession of Greek victories.

STATE DEPARTMENT WIDOWS

There was not much Christmas joy this year in the homes of 124 "blitzkrieg widows" of the American diplomatic service. Their husband diplomats are still on the job, but the wives are prevented by official regulations from joining them.

From Warsaw, from Berlin, from Copenhagen, from Oslo, from Brussels, from the Hague, following the spread of the war, these "blitzkrieg widows" came trekking home—on government order—with children by the hand.

A few capitals, such as Moscow and Helsinki, have now permitted wives to rejoin their husbands, but meanwhile, a new warning has gone out affecting citizens in the Far East, and the ranks of the widows are swelling still further.

This separation is much more than a sentimental problem. It creates a strain on the budget of each family, for they are obliged to maintain two establishments, and the salaries of the foreign service are not gauged to meet living costs in this country.

The state department has had so much grief from the "widows" that a move is being considered to lift the ban and allow them to return to their husbands' posts.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The state department is getting a heavy volume of mail from all parts of the country urging strong U. S. assistance to Greece.

Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, is the only ambassador appointed by Roosevelt in 1933 who still remains at the same post.

Experts of the house migrant investigating committee estimate that at least 4,000,000 job-hunters are constantly on the move in the country.

Some American women have switched to cotton stockings as a protest against Japan, yet in the first nine months of this year, the United States imported $66,000,000 worth of silk from Japan.

Only Live Oak Trees Over Century Old Are Eligible for This Unique Society; Its 'President' Is Elected 'By Girth'!

ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE recent celebration of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the Live Oak Society of Louisiana, unique organization fathered by the late Dr. Edwin L. Stephens, has called attention again to some of the famous trees that serve as living monuments to important events in the history of the United States.

Dr. Stephens, who was for many years president of Southwestern Louisiana institute, originated the Live Oak Society while gathering data on the historical trees of his state during 1935. It shortly became famous throughout the world.

Only live oaks with an established age of at least a century are admitted to the society. The president is elected "by girth." Locke Breaux oak on the Mississippi river in St. Charles parish, Louisiana, has held the office by reason of its size ever since the society was first organized. This oak is said to be the largest in America, having a girth of 25 feet at a height of four feet above the ground and standing 75 feet high with a spread of 166 feet.

It was beneath this mossy-bedded giant that LaSalle and his band of French explorers are said to have knelt to offer thanks for their safe arrival on their voyage down the Mississippi river in a land "where the fruit trees bear fruit winter."

High on the list of charter members of the society is the Evangeline oak in old St. Martinville, where descendants of the original Acadian exiles from Nova Scotia still carry on the traditions and customs of their French forefathers. Under this tree the heroine of Longfellow's "Evangeline" met again the lover she had sought through weary months and perilous journeying only to find that he had another sweetheart!

Famous, too, are the dueling oaks in New Orleans. In another of these trees looked down on many gallants who sought to avenge real or fancied insults with blades that flashed in the rays of the early sun. Often the branches of these oaks sheltered a duellist who lay on the field of honor as his opponent left, victorious.

Pay 'Dues' With Acorns.

Dues of member trees are acorns payable in November of every year. The acorns are planted in the society's own nursery and the young trees, treasured by garden and horticultural societies because of their distinguished parentage, are used for planting highways, college campuses and parks.

Other offspring of these aristocrats of the live oak family have traveled to many far-away lands. Some of them now stand on estates in South America. Others have crossed the Pacific to take root in the soil of Australia. Still others cast shadows over the bright tropical bloom in Hawaiian gardens and so provide a link between tree lovers of this Pacific area and the United States.

Live oaks are admitted to the society upon presentation of their "family tree" by someone who serves as an "attorney." Each new member is inducted with fitting ceremonies arranged by the garden clubs of Louisiana and in which state officials take part.

However, these Louisiana live oaks are not the only arboreal aristocrats of this country having genealogy rooted in centuries when America was an uncharted wilderness and beneath whose branches have been enacted human dramas that changed the course of the nation's history.

Probably most famous of all historic American trees is the Washington elm in Cambridge, Mass. It was beneath this tree that Washington took command of the Continental army on July 3, 1775. The tree is thought to be a survivor of the primeval forest that at once covered the region and in its youth was almost 100 feet high with a branch spread of 90 feet. When in 1872 one of the largest of the tree's branches fell as a result of a storm the wood was used for a pulpit in a nearby chapel.

Maryland's Liberty Tree.

Even more ancient is the history of the Liberty tree at Annapolis, Md. This tree, an immense poplar, stands on the campus of St. John's college and is entitled to fame both on account of its great age and size and because of the historic events that took place beneath it. Tradition relates that in 1652 a treaty was made under the Liberty tree between white settlers and the Susquehannock Indians, thereby assuring the settlers of safety which left them free to develop the land and build homes and communities. When the colonists were discussing problems which led to revolt against England, patriotic meetings were held in the shade of the Liberty tree, out of which arose its name. Later still, General Lafayette was entertained beneath its shade when he visited Annapolis in 1824.

Dr. Edwin L. Stephens standing beside the Locke Breaux oak in St. Charles parish, La., "president" of the Live Oak Society of Louisiana.

The Royal Oak or Tree of the Lighted Lanterns, near Easton, Md., also stands as a living memorial to this country's fight for independence and the right to her own trade. During the War of 1812, a British ship came to anchor at night opposite the town of St. Michaels in Talbot county and began to shell the town. The townspeople, who were unprotected, hung lighted lanterns in the tops of the high tree and so deceived the enemy into mistaking them for lights of the town, with the result their shots passed harmlessly overhead.

A stalwart oak at Chesterfield, S. C., which was already a lordly tree in 1852, played a role in the Civil war. The first flag bearing the words "Immediate Separate State Action" was fastened to its branches and fluttered there until General Sherman took the town and ordered the flag down. Even before gaining fame in the Civil war the tree had been marked as one of Chesterfield's historic points of interest as it had served as a place for Indian parleys and their pipes of peace, together with stores of arrowheads, were found buried beneath it.

New York cherishes as its oldest tree, the Inwood tulip tree, on the northern end of Manhattan island. Said to be more than 225 years old, the tree was in its youth when Henry Hudson made his memorable voyage of discovery on the river that bears his name.

Corydon, Ind., claims one of the country's famous trees, the Constitutional elm, beneath which, on June 10, 1816, members of the Constitutional convention met to deliberate on the articles of law to be adopted for the government of the new state of Indiana. This tree is protected by law against depredations.

Roosevelt Oaks.

Even in our own modern era trees have their place in current history. When the final plans were drawn for the library of President Franklin D. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, in which his papers will be kept for posterity, the President decided to preserve the landscaping of the grounds so that future generations might see the place just as it exists today.

Thus, the landscaping plans necessitated preserving, in appearance at least, the six great oaks which surround the front of the library. These trees have stood for several hundred years and it was because of their beauty the library was erected on the present site. Accordingly, President Roosevelt decided to have young oaks planted next to each of the old oaks, so that when the old ones finally died and were removed, the young ones would grow in their corresponding places. The oaks chosen were a group of 19-year-old trees that had been planted by the President's daughter, Anna Roosevelt Boettiger.

Of even more historic interest is the use of the trees which grew about the groups of Lincoln's childhood home to flank the white marble walls of the memorial to the Great Emancipator's memory. It was under these same trees that the boy Lincoln spent his childhood summers learning to read and write. Two of the huge shade trees which have been included in the landscaping were those under which two of the historic Lincoln-Douglas debates were held.

A tree which needed neither age nor historical background to bring it fame is the unique "Apple Annie tree" which marks the grave of Mary McGrath, for years a familiar and colorful figure in the theatrical district of Broadway. Mary McGrath walked New York's "Great White Way" for years, selling apples to passersby who included many of the great theatrical names of her era as well as the less great. She inspired a story and subsequent photoplay and when she died a few years ago the Broadway theatrical world mourned her passing. A group who had known "Apple Annie" through the years planned a unique memorial—a tree composed of the seven varieties of apples which had constituted her wares. The tree, which bears Astrachan, Gravenstein, Fall Pippin, Baldwin, Greening, Russett and King apples, now is planted on her grave.

In addition to serving as monuments, historical trees have themselves inspired monuments. A bronze monument marks the site of the old Liberty elm in Boston. The tree was planted by a schoolmaster long before the Revolution and, dedicated by him to the independence of the colonies, was a favorite meeting place for patriots. When at last it fell the bells of all Boston churches were tolled. A monument was erected to the memory of a tree which in its turn had served as a living memorial to the fight our forefathers waged to make this a free and independent nation.

Modern methods of tree surgery have helped to preserve many historic trees which, without man's help, would have died of the ravages of time, storms and insects. The new tree surgery with rubber, originated by the noted horticulturist, George Van Yahres, and subsequently developed by engineers of the B. F. Goodrich company, was used to preserve the life of the old Washington walnut tree in New Jersey. Tradition has it that the first President frequently hitched his horse to an iron ring embedded in the tree when he commanded the American Revolutionary forces. For more than 150 years the tree withstood onslaughts of weather. A few years ago decay set in and it seemed that the tree would go the way of other historically famous trees which have disappeared from the earth.

The Van Yahres method of tree surgery was employed, a new type of interlocking rubber blocks being used to fill up cavities in the tree caused by decay. Whereas concrete fillings formerly used in tree surgery give the tree a rigidity which makes it impossible for the tree to bend with the wind in a severe storm, these rubber blocks have such pliability the danger of the tree cracking when buffeted by a wind was eliminated. In addition, bark grows more easily over rubber as the tree scar heals. After the insertion of the filling, antiseptic wax was injected by steam pressure to kill any lurking decay germs. Today, the Washington walnut tree gives promise of remaining as an historic landmark for another century or so.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

United Features WNU Service

Washington, D. C.
WITCH HUNT?

Has the witch hunt actually begun? I haven't heard it, but several letters and telegrams inform me that a conspicuous radio news commentator is warning the public to "watch carefully" members of the keep-out-of-war committees because they are "appeasers" and "are trying to make us afraid."

Gen. Bob Wood, who was honored by congress for his work in helping to build the Panama canal, and brought back from an important post in France in the AEF to spark the American war production efforts as quartermaster general, is being put on the pan. Col. Charles Lindbergh, who brought home the greatest honors American aviation ever knew, and who first jolted American and British complacency by revealing the tremendous hidden powers of German air armament, is now under the wand of the professional witch finders. Even his lovely, fearless quietly philosophical wife has taken a dirty dig or two from such professional breast-beating Boadicea's as Dorothy Thompson.

What goes on here? Most of the people who want to dress up Uncle Sam as something more canny than his old role as the world's prize fat boy with the bag of candy in a world of Dead End urchins, were awake long before these tardy tom-tom beaters, witch doctors and Sioux Sun Dancers were even aware that there was a vast, sinister and growing danger in the world.

Some of them had been hammering at the inexcusable indolence of England, the equivocal horse trading of France and, above all, the spineless inactivity of America, long before the "cloud no bigger than a man's hand" became a thunderhead and began to belch lightning. All of them are, and have long been, for all-out defense of this country. All are against hysterical dissipation of it. Who speaks for America—they or their half-crazed critics?

If they were so much more nearly right before, maybe they are more nearly right now, when they question whether we should rush headlong into a gun fight with our gun not even loaded and, as a first act, give away our guns.

Our greatest lack right now is Will Rogers, who said: "America never lost a war or won a conference." We can wonder what he would say about "Let's take the silly fool dollar mark from aid to Britain."

From how many billions have we taken the "silly fool dollar mark" for foreigners it would be hard to say. We took them off from the bill we footed for the last World war to a present total, with interest of about 14 billions.

BIG FOUR

The four-man control of industrial mobilization, consisting of the secretaries of war and navy, Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hillman, may do some good, but it is not, as some have said, the equivalent of the War Industries board plan that worked in 1918 to provide the fastest re-armament ever recorded by a great nation. It violates an essential and basic principle of that plan. It takes nothing from experience. It is an experiment.

There are four great and insistent demands in time of war. They are those of the army, the navy, the allies, if any, and greater than these and just as important, the needs of civilian population. Heads of the army and navy are under heavy responsibilities for two of those needs. With the best intention in the world it is only human nature for them to grab and fight each for their own—to seek in extreme cases even monopoly control of all the best sources and supplies of material, manufacturing, storage and transportation facilities, power and labor.

That isn't a guess. That happened early in World War I, and continued to happen until it was stopped by the War Industries board. We are rushing into a program of production just as great. To have that happen without any regulation is a very bad thing. It creates unnecessary shortages to the great prejudice not only of all the people but the armament program itself. It unnecessarily tangles and disrupts the whole industrial machine. It multiplies cost, reduces speed and makes doubly difficult the eventual shift back to a peace economy.

For that reason and many others, the director of mobilization should not have to work under the control of the army and navy as he must do if he is one of a committee of four in which a division of opinion would result either in a deadlock or a domination by the purchasing departments.

Our experience in the World war and the experience in every other country indicates that the director of mobilization should be independent of any statutory purchasing agencies. It is his part of the job to co-ordinate all purchasing programs with each other to prevent confusion, delay, waste and loss; but that is only part of his job and not even the most important part. The other part is to co-operate, organize, speed, aid and supervise the whole industrial structure for maximum efficiency and production.

THE GARDEN HOSE AND THE FIRE

(As suggested by Mr. Roosevelt's comparison of his proposed aid to England in which he said that if your neighbor's house were on fire you would gladly lend him your hose and not charge for it.)

Scene: Any community.

Characters: Jones and Smith.

Jones (knocking on Smith's door)—Help! My house is on fire!

Smith—Well, well, I feel I ought to give you all aid short of . . .

Jones (alarmed)—Now don't tell me you will give me all aid short of a hose!

Smith—No, I guess everybody's tired of that gag.

Jones (as the fire spreads)—Please do something! Look at those flames!

Smith—Now, take it easy. You know my position in an emergency such as this. I figure that this is my fire as well as yours. My theory has always been . . .

Jones—Never mind all that now. Have you got a hose?

Smith—My good man, I may not have the hose that is required for a job like this, but I have studied my hose situation very carefully. I know what my hose requirements are, and in a situation such as this . . .

Jones (urgently)—I'll need about 50 feet.

Smith—If you will bear with me a moment, I should like to outline my policy on . . .

Jones—Have you got 50 feet of hose?

Smith—I am in a position to state that by the end of next July I expect to have 100 feet of . . .

Jones (as the flames reach the second story)—This fire won't last that long!

Smith—One can never be sure about a thing like that. It might end very soon. On the other hand, it might spread until my own premises are consumed. In that case . . .

Jones (desperately)—All I want to know is have you got 50 feet of hose?

Smith—I have 50 feet of hose . . .

Jones—And don't tell me it is on order!

Smith (as the flames break through the Jones roof)—My goodness! That's quite a fire you have there, isn't it? It's almost a total emergency.

Jones—That's what I've been trying to make clear. Where's that hose?

Smith—You mean completed hose, actually on the premises?

Jones—Of course.

Smith—Well, that's different. All I have at the moment is a 35-foot length. But by April . . .

Jones—May I have the 35 feet at once?

Smith—Certainly. This is no time to be legalistic.

Jones (Grabbing the hose)—Thanks very much.

Smith—By the end of six months I can let you have 100 feet of hose per week and . . .

Jones—This will be all I'll need.

Smith—Don't worry about any charge for that 35 feet. I'm lending it to you. It's a sort of mortgage plan.

Jones (as the roof falls in)—Never mind the details. All I want now is one assurance.

Smith—What's that?

Jones—That you're not giving me every aid SHORT OF WATER!

AMERICAN TWILIGHT

The towers of the city
Are glorious in the sun,
Then ripple into lines of light,
Just as the day is done.

Homeward across the river
The silver planes go by,
Oh, peaceful towers! Never Show dark against the sky.

THEY'RE OF!

Most of the first week of the legislative session now in progress was given over to organization, the governor's biennial message and the traditional pageantry of the inauguaration of the incoming governor; in this particular case the beginning of Governor George A. Wilson's second term. However, some sort of record was established last week when a couple of dozen bills were filed for early consideration. It is generally conceded that modernization of procedure as developed during the 1939 session has stepped up the customary processes of legislation and if continued throughout will speedy action and more orderly progress. From this time on the serious business of making, revising and clarifying laws will occupy the full time of 158 senators and representatives.

WATCHING THE HORIZON

It is perhaps inevitable that such a concentration of politically minded men and women - to include both elected officers and party chieftains of all classes and grades - would generate discussions of legislative influences which would not be visible until some future date - say about 1942 There is no doubt but that sessions of the state legislature are often the test track and training ground for gubernatorial, senatorial and congressional hopefuls and the 1942 election will be pretty much a local affair uncomplicated by a presidential campaign Republicans holding a topheavy majority at this time, understand the dangers of the situation When Democrats and Republicans are fairly evenly divided party lines usually hold pretty well But sometimes, when there is no political opponent to be feared members of the same party work off their energy and ebullience by fighting among themselves

I-S-A-S

MAKING A RECORD . . . . .

What the Democratic minority in the house and senate will do is rather obvious. The Republican party in Iowa as represented by administrative officers as well as legislative representatives, is quite willing to admit responsibility for the past two years of progress. Because of their heavy majority Republicans must also accept responsibility of the immediate future. In such circumstance what few New Dealers as are in the legislature will be free to do little else but harass, embarrass and criticize with the hope of creating issues for 1942. Republicans will be accused of attempting to "make a record" in order to advance their own political fortunes. They are saying at this early stage that Governor Wilson is "going to try to make a record in order to run for the United States senate in 1942." That is entirely possible. Intelligent humans appreciate promotion either in private or public life An ambition to be governor on the part of Lieutenant Governor B. B Hickenlooper can be viewed as nothing more sinister than a perfectly normal urge. Many men and women in public life get an inner satisfaction that is neither vanity or selfishness from doing their job well.

REDISTRICTING . . .

There is plenty of evidence at this time that the legislature will view and consider many important proposals. Redistricting, both of state senatorial boundaries and recasting of congressional districts. remains the one dominant project of major interest. Either the necessity or reducing the present nine congressional districts to eight or the fact that pressure for senatorial redistricting is coming largely for one section of the state - north west Iowa - has brought about a new situation Whereas a few weeks before the session it seemed certain that recasting of the state senatorial districts would be the prime issue before the session, the matter now is only numbered among many possibilities. Many legislators take the view that while it may be desirable to change state senatorial districts it is not exactly a life and death matter On the other hand congressional redistricting is almost unavoidable

I-S-A-S

JANUARY, FEBRUARY, MARCH . . .

Iowa's forty-ninth general assembly opens under circumstances disturbingly similar to those surrounding the thirty-seventh some twenty-four years ago. The thirty-seventh convened on Jauary 8, 1917 and as it labored step by step toward the end of the tradition one hundred-day period, the flames of a violent European war licked across the Atlantic ocean The thirty-seventh was still in session when the United States officially entered the war on April 6, 1917. Most members of forty-ninth general assembly remember something of that last war because it touched each of them to some extent. So today, consciously or not each senses the approach of another April and maneuvers warily in matters related to budgets and appropriations Let April again become the red month of militaristic adventure as it has so often before in American history, and the forty-ninth general assembly, like the thirty-seventh, may be called upon for its greatest effort near its close

I-S-A-S

LOOKING AHEAD . .

While the present administration began almost immediately upon taking office to work toward definite financial stability, it did so upon the simple premise that such method was wise and prudent whatever the existing economic situation. It cannot be denied, however, that international conditions had their influence and as a program for costly national defense became evident late in 1939, the Wilson administration devised and maintained a strict policy of caution As a result demands during the present legislation such as reached the thirty-seventh late in its sesion twenty-four years ago, would not strike with such shock. A series of military bills was voted after April 6, 1917. The principal measure was a million dollar appropriation for "equipping and raising" a military organization Only $364,665 was spent. Several other military measures were passed. Two years of rather effective horse sense have Iowa's financial house pretty much in order and legislators can wait the approach of spring and its world wide threats with much less anxiety than might otherwise have been the case.

Stronger consumer demand is expected to keep lamb prices above those of last year, although there has been a large influx of feeder lambs from Texas into the Corn Belt.

The freshman class reporter was apparently the only high school news-hawk to survive the ordeal of semester tests News from other classes failed to materialize over the week end.

Changes in the high school program of studies for the second semester include the following

American government replaces economics

Bookkeeping replaces commercial law

Agriculture replaces advanced marital training

FRESHMAN NEWS

The week started out fairly well but Thursday and Friday! And Mr Bowles thinks he gives easy tests

The freshmen are still wondering what the surprise is going to be that Mr. Onerheim promised them.

The latest rumors! One of the freshmen girls is beginning to think she's "Invisible Scarlett O'Neil" She says that one day in science class, she touched her left wrist and felt she was really invisible (She wasn't)

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Book reports in the eighth grade were due this week. Everyone had his finished on time

We took the 1941 Iowa Every-Pupil Tests Thursday and Friday mornings The sixth grade came up to our room to take the test.

Edward Barz received the highest score in history semester test He only missed one question.

Ruth Bell, Ronald Brinkman, Robert Tiggerman, Edward Buntenbach, Jr., Patricia Kudje, Herbert Schwartz, Herbert Mueller and Wesley Suckow were neither absent nor tardy this six weeks

GRADES 5 & 6

We have been busy reviewing for unit tests and semester tests. We took the State Study Skill Tests on Thursday and Friday.

Thursday was Edward's birthday He celebrated by writing tests.

Donna Mae got a star rating on the last Self-Testing Drill taken by the fifth grade

GRADES 3 & 4

We were busy Thursday and Friday taking semester tests.

Thursday morning we were entertained by a play given by the second grade It was about "The Rabbit Who Wanted Wings." We enjoyed it very much.

As a part of our unit about Wheat, the third grade dramatized the story, "The Little Red Hen and The Wheat Seed."

Fourth grade took Number drill 3. Our score was fair.

Iris had 100 percent in her semester spelling test.

Third grade finished their Elson Gray basic readers. We are now reading about Alice and Jerry in the book "Through The Green Gate."

KINDERGARTEN
GRADES 1 & 2

We dramatized the story "The Rabbit Who Wanted Wings" to the third and fourth grade room.

We have begun the study of "Evergreen Trees" in science.

LuVerne had a birthday Monday He was six years old. He brought treats to school.

We made clay objects. When they are hard we shall paint them.

Kitchen Shower

A miscellaneous kitchen shower was given in honor of Miss Evelyn Lenz at the Elmer Anderson home last Saturday afternoon. She received many beautiful and useful gifts. Miss Lenz taught the home school just north of Klemme until recently Miss Lenz has announced her engagement and approaching marriage to Clifford Anderson, son of Mrs. Verdie Anderson, of Twin Lake township.

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Mr. and Mrs Ewaldt Josten and sons spent Monday evening at the Car Pearson home

Maxine Bachman spent a few nights at the Clifford Montgomery home while the roads were icy so she can attend high school.

Elmer Trampel was visiting at the Peter Trampel home Wednesday afternoon.

Mr and Mrs. Henry Lewis and son, Duard, were dinner and supper guests at the Verner Lewis home, Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. John Trampel and sons were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Peter Trampel home.

Merlin Helps was absent from District No. 2 for several days as he had a siege of the chicken pox.

A few cases of cattle scab have been reported in Iowa.

Natural Cover Is Best For Helping Game Birds Winter

Emergency feeders and shelters are of value in helping game birds through rigorous weather, but such artificial protection doesn't compare to the advantages of natural cover, says Ellis Hicks, wildlife specialist at Iowa State College.

"Artificial shelters just don't compare with patches of natural cover, such as thickly drilled corn, cane, sloughs permitted to grow to tall vegetation, waste corners and areas which retain their natural growth of weeds, grasses and shrubs," Hicks says.

A suitable environment of natural cover requires planning and work during the spring, but this type of habitat is much more substantial and has more of the permanent feature, according to Hicks

$2,000.00 Farm Building Contest

FARMERS who plan to build or remodel their farm homes or buildings during the next year have an opportunity to win one of the 68 big cash prizes by entering the "Farm Building and Remodeling" contest recently announced by "Successful Farming." The contest ends December 31, 1941.

By calling at the Northern Lumber Company's office, you can secure a coupon for an 80-page "Farm Building Guide" which is full of "how to" ideas on new construction and modernizing farm homes and farm buildings.

After getting the booklet, if you do any improving or new building, you automatically become a contestant. There are no rules to follow, you build just the way you want, and if you do a good job you may be a winner, each entry or person signing the coupon will be judged, not on the size of the project, but on how well it fits into the individual farm needs, and as to comforts, convenience, attractiveness of the farm and farm home, inside and out. If your improvement is small or large your chances are worth while, NOTHING TO LOSE AND SOMETHING TO GAIN.

Complete information and Coupons may be had by writing to Building Contest Editor, Successful Farming, Des Moines, Iowa, or at the Northern Lumber Company, Klemme, Iowa.

A CHANGE IN THE MEAT COURSE
(See Recipes Below)

"Meat makes the meal," especially when there are husky, hard-working men to feed. But for those behind the scenes in the kitchen, thinking up a different and a flavorsome meat dish for each day out of the week is no small task.

There are two ways to approach the problem. First, investigate some of the less-common cuts. You'll find them thrifty to buy because the demand for them is less. Most of them usually abound in good flavor and only need to be properly cooked to serve as delicious rivals to more expensive meats.

If you are buying pork, ask the butcher to prepare you a hand-some rolled sirloin roast. It's a thrifty cut not so well known as the pork loin roast but it has decided advantages. Two sections of the pork sirloin are boned and tied together into a solid roll of meat. The round, compact slices offer no obstructions to the knife, and are the answer to a carver's prayer. The picnic shoulder of pork is another cut of exceptional flavor. Have it boned, stuff it with spinach and roast it.

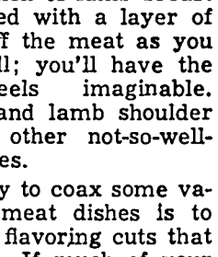
If it's too soon for another leg of lamb, buy a section of lamb breast and have it rolled with a layer of sausage. Slice off the meat as you would a jelly-roll; you'll have the neatest pinwheels imaginable. Lamb shoulder and lamb shoulder chops are two other not-so-well-known possibilities.

The second way to coax some variety into your meat dishes is to try new ways of flavoring cuts that you serve often. If much of your meat supply comes from a frozen foods locker, this is your best bet. Have pork chops cut double thick and stuff them with a tart mixture of sauerkraut and apple. Your family will beam approval when you serve that combination! Or make your next ham loaf like an upside-down cake so that when you turn it out, there are rows of bright-as-a-dollar apricots across the top. Try canned gooseberries as a relish with ham or beef, or canned Damson plums with veal.

Pork Chops Stuffed With Sauerkraut And Apple.
(Serves 6)

6 loin pork chops (cut 1-inch thick)
1 cup sauerkraut (drained)
1 cup tart, red cooking apple (diced) (unpared)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
½ cup sauerkraut juice.

Have a pocket made from the outside of each chop. Combine sauerkraut with finely diced unpeeled apple and stuff the chops with the mixture. Season them with salt and pepper and brown on both sides in hot fat in a heavy skillet. Add sauerkraut juice, cover, and finish the cooking in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Bake for 1½ hours, and remove the cover during the last 15 minutes of baking to brown the chops.



Round Steak, Western Style.
(Serves 6)

2 pounds round steak
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 medium onions (sliced)
½ lemon (sliced)
1 No. 1 can condensed tomato soup (1½ cups)
1 cup water

Have round steak cut ¾ inch thick. Spread with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Arrange slices of thinly cut onion and lemon over steak. Dilute tomato soup with water and pour over steak. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 2 hours uncovered.

Boneless Sirloin Pork Roast With Stuffed Apples.

Have the meat retailer remove the tenderloin and bones from two sirloin sections, reverse the ends, and tie the two boneless pieces together in a compact rolled roast. Season with salt and pepper and place with the fat side up in an open roasting pan. Make an incision to the center of the roast and insert a meat thermometer so that the center of the bulb reaches the center of the fleshiest part of the meat. Place the roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees) and roast until the thermometer registers 185 degrees Fahrenheit. Allow about 30 minutes per pound for roasting. Serve with rice-stuffed apples.

Rice-Stuffed Apples.

6 medium-sized baking apples
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup rice (cooked)
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup water

Wash apples and cut a slice from the top of each. Remove the cores and seeds and sprinkle the cavities with brown sugar. Mix cooked rice with melted butter and stuff each apple. Arrange them in a baking pan with the water in the bottom and bake for 1½ hours, or until tender in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Lamb Pinwheels.
(Serves 5)

Boned breast of lamb (about 3½ pounds)
¾ pound bulk pork sausage
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 small onion (sliced)
1 cup tomatoes (canned)
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

Have the lamb breast boned, spread with bulk pork sausage, rolled, and tied or skewered into shape at the market. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth and dry. Then brown on all sides in hot fat. Pour off the fat in the pan, leaving 2 tablespoons only. Season the roll with salt and pepper. Add sliced onion, tomatoes and Worcestershire sauce. Cover tightly and cook very slowly until done, about 1½ hours. Slice into pinwheels, using a very sharp knife.

Cushion Style Pork Shoulder With Spinach Stuffing.
(Serves 10)

Boned picnic shoulder (about 5 pounds)
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups drained spinach (cooked or canned)
2 tablespoons onion (minced)
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 cups fine, soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Have the picnic shoulder boned and sewed on two sides at the market. This leaves one side open for inserting the stuffing. Season the surface of the pork shoulder with salt and pepper. Combine the spinach, onion, butter, lemon juice and bread crumbs. Season with salt and pepper and use to fill the cavity of the roast. Sew or skewer the edges together. Place the shoulder, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan and roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until done. Allow about 40 minutes per pound for the roasting.

THE JANUARY BIRTHDAY

The food makes the party, especially for a round-eyed youngster of six or eight. If you have a January birthday coming up you will find both menu and recipe help in Eleanor Howe's Cook Book "Easy Entertaining." Party food for all ages, from the three-year-olds to the teen-age group is but one of the sections in her book.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

IF YOU lived within a ten-mile radius of Priscilla Lane's home you'd be more than likely to encounter her at one of the neighborhood movie houses in that vicinity, and to see her afterward buttonholing the manager.

The "Four Mothers" star takes her movie-making very seriously, so she quizzes the men who make money by showing movies. "What do you think of that picture?" "Does it seem to be drawing?" "Do the fans here like that star?" That's the kind of thing Priscilla wants to know. When she's working she covers two or three pictures a week; other times she takes in four or five.

Metro previewed "Flight Command" aboard an airplane in flight one evening recently; afterward Bedell Monroe, president of Pennsylvania Central Airlines, predicted that pictures will be shown regularly on all commercial air lines within the next few years, as they are on ocean liners. Robert Taylor stars in "Flight Command," a naval aviation story.

We're to have "The Trial of Mary Dugan" again, with Robert Young in the leading male role. Remember it when Norma Shearer made it nine years ago? Laraine Day will play "Mary Dugan." (You probably saw her in "Foreign Correspondent.")

Edward J. Peters, chief engineer of Paramount's air conditioning department, has perfected a new type of ice. He calls it "snow ice," and because it lasts almost one-third longer than ordinary ice and requires a third less time to produce, it may affect the commercial ice industry.

It was developed because Director Charles Vidor was shooting a scene in "New York Town" (Fred MacMurray, Mary Martin and Robert Preston co-starring); bright set lights striking ordinary transparent ice in water made the ice invisible to the camera. Vidor wanted the ice to show, to emphasize an important story point. Hence the new ice.

Hollywood's biggest variety show—Al Pearce and His Gang—takes nine microphones to get their Friday broadcasts on the CBS network.

Carl Hoff's orchestra alone takes three; Pearce has one, and the rest of the cast another. Billy Gould gets a sixth one for his sound effects, and Wendell Niles has a booth, equipped with a microphone, of course, for his closing commercial. There's an audience applause microphone, so that we who listen may know how much those who are present are enjoying it, and when Bill Jordan and George Kent present their two-piano numbers the ninth mike is added to the engineer's problems.

Apparently quiz shows are as popular as ever with radio audiences—two new ones will take to the air shortly, over the CBS Pacific Network. They're "Don't Be Personal" and "Talk Your Way Out of This One"—studio audiences will participate, and the winners will receive cash prizes.

—*—

Girls who have ambitions to act on the screen or on the air might take a tip from Lurene Tuttle; she never misses a Helen Hayes broadcast, because she learns so much from Miss Hayes, and she studies Bette Davis' work in pictures—she says that when she worked with Miss Davis, the star gave her many valuable suggestions on the technique of acting. Now Lurene's learning still more from working with John Barrymore on the Vallee programs.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE SLIGHTED INVITATION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are now ready.—Luke 14.17.

Actions speak louder than words. What a man says is important, but it is his life which determines whether we accept his words as true. In spiritual things men have too often professed to follow Christ but failed to do His will. It is the business of the church to press home the necessity of an acceptance of Christ as Saviour which also makes Him the Lord of our life.

I. Pious Words (v. 15).

We do not know whether the man who said, "Blessed is he that eateth bread in the kingdom of God," was expressing the sincere longing of his heart or merely making a bit of pious conversation. Jesus had just been dealing with some rather disconcerting matters (vv. 1-14). On such occasions there is usually someone on hand to spoil the effectiveness of the admonition by uttering some religious platitude which will direct conversation into more comfortable channels.

Even though the man was sincere, he had evidently not made any preparations to be present at that great feast. This appears from the story Jesus related in response to his words.

II. Poor Excuses (vv. 16-20).

It is not enough that we know that God has prepared a place of blessedness, nor does it suffice to speak approvingly of God's invitation to come; we must accept. God graciously bids all men to come; but all too many, while willing to admit the desirability of coming and admiring it as the ideal thing to do, begin to make excuses.

Observe that the men gave excuses, not reasons. There is a great difference. Note also that the excuses were poor ones. One had a new possession—a field—which he "must go out and see." The second had a business matter to care for—trying out oxen he had bought. The third had a personal affection he wanted to foster—a new wife whom he could not leave.

The fact is that none of them wanted to come, and these were but excuses. What man buys a field without seeing it, or oxen without trying them? And we agree with Dr. Morgan that the one who had married a wife "was the most foolish of all. Why didn't he take her with him? Just excuses." Reader, what excuse is keeping you from accepting God's invitation?

III. Urgent Invitations (vv. 21-24).

Those who reject God's invitation hurt only themselves, for He will find guests to fill the banquet hall at the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Let us not fail to observe that it is the duty of the Lord's servants (and that means every born-again Christian) to be diligently about the business of urging men to respond to God's call. Let us beware that we do not miss that point by uttering some pious platitudes about soul-winning, and then failing to do anything to reach others.

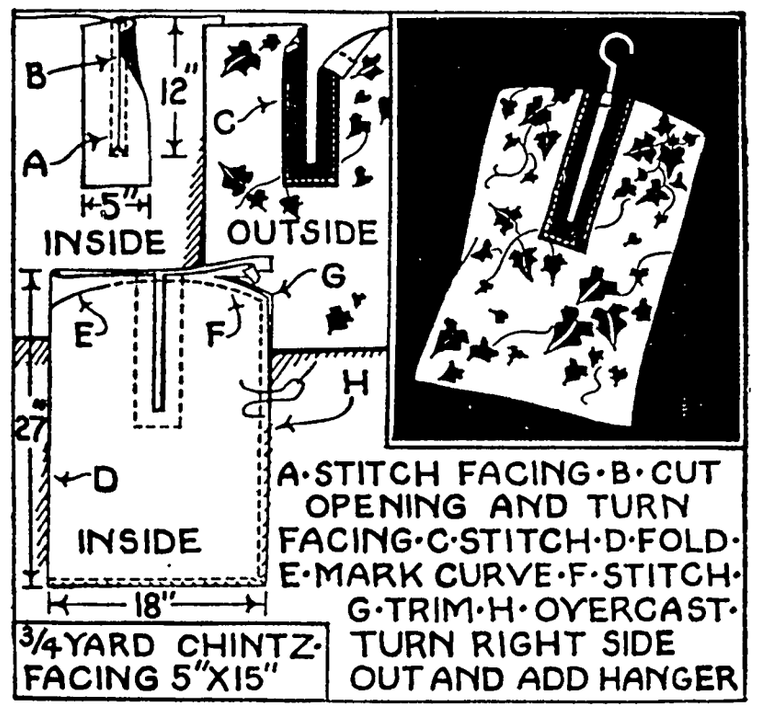
It is the first business of every Christian who reads these lines to be engaged in personal soul-winning. If you want to do it and do not know how to start, I shall be glad to send you free, a copy of "Lessons in Soul-Winning," by Dr. Will H. Houghton. The important matter is that we get busy giving out these urgent invitations.

It is the first business of the unconverted to accept that invitation. Dare you refuse? In one of his last meetings in Kansas City, Dwight L. Moody graphically portrayed the invitation referred to in our lesson. In closing his message he pointed to the wall of the auditorium and seemed to be writing out a reply to the invitation. He first wrote a note declining, the final words being, "I pray thee have me excused." He said, "Would you sign that, young man? Would you, mother? Would you come up to the reporter's table, take a pen and put your name down to such an excuse? I doubt if there is one here who would sign it. It is a loving God inviting you to a feast and God is not to be mocked. Go play with the forked lightning, go trifle with pestilence and disease, but trifle not with God."

Must Have His Spirit

A young Italian boy knocked one day at the door of an artist's studio in Rome, and when it was opened exclaimed: "Please, madam, will you give me the master's brush?" The painter was dead, and the boy, inflamed with a longing to be an artist, wished for the great master's brush. The lady placed the brush in the boy's hands, saying: "This is his brush; try it, my boy." With a flush of earnestness on his face he tried, but found he could paint no better than with his own. The lady then said to him: "You cannot paint like the great master unless you have his spirit." So it is with us in the Church today; if Christians have not the Master's spirit they cannot successfully carry on the Master's work.—F. M. Townley.

HOW TO SEW
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



ARE you planning things that will sell well at a Fair or Bazaar? Or is this the season that you catch up on odds and ends of sewing for the house? In either case you will like to stitch up a bag like this one. Everyone seems to have a special use for one of these bags on a hanger. I have one that I use for laundry when I go traveling. Men and boys like them for closet laundry bags too, as they are plenty big enough for shirts. A little girl I know has a small version of one of these in which she keeps doll clothes scraps. I have also seen them used for everything from dress patterns to dust rags.

This green and white ivy patterned chintz with green facing makes a good looking bag. Pictorial chintz will amuse a youngster—something with animals or toys or a landscape in the design. I saw a material the other day with a pattern showing all kinds of rope knots. A boy would like that. Each step in making the bag is shown in the sketch.

Save the peels of oranges and tangerines, dry them in the oven and store in glass jars. They give puddings and custards a delicious flavor.

Hard sauce, highly flavored with cinnamon, grated orange and lemon peels and a little fruit juice, gives just the proper finish to hot fruit puddings.

When a sweater is washed the buttonholes will not stretch if they are sewed together before the sweater is put into the water.

Filling the icebox with scraps of left-over food is a waste of room and usually of food. Never allow them to accumulate.

When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh, try extraction by steam. Heat a wide-mouthed bottle and fill it two-thirds full of very hot water and place under the injured spot. The suction in a few minutes removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

When making peppermints drop them onto a piece of waxed paper instead of onto a pan. They are more easily removed from waxed paper.

A little sweet cream spread over the top crust of a pie before it is put into the oven will make the crust brown and flaky.

Miss Had Another Chance After the Final Good-By

The fellow threatened to commit suicide every time a certain girl turned him down. She refused him again the other night, and the next morning a messenger boy called with this note:

"Darling—By the time you read this, my body will be floating down the river. Life without you is not worth while. Shed no tears over me, but remember I have always loved you. Good-by for ever."

The girl went white and nearly fainted. Then she noticed that the messenger boy was still there.

"What are you waiting for?" she asked.

"The man who gave me that note said I was to wait for an answer," said the boy.

Contentment

RITES CONDUCTED FOR MRS. JOSTEN, OF GARNER

Longtime Resident of Garner Dies; Burial Made at Klemme

Services for Mrs. Hans Josten, 75, a resident of Garner for the last 36 years, were held Thursday afternoon at the Garner Methodist church, and the body was taken to Klemme for burial.

The Rev. H. Milo Hall gave the sermon. Pallbearers were Robert Kirschbaum, Will Meckstroth, Will Kraus, Harry Pringnitz, J. N Sprole and F. W. Steiff. Music was supplied by a quartette composed of Carl Schneider, Ralph Ludeke, Richard Tompkins and Milo Hall, accompanied by Mrs M. J. Mertz.

Memoir of Mrs. Minnie L. Josten

"Thou shalt come to thy grave in ripeness of years, as a shock of corn cometh to his season." These words of Holy Spirit by One of long ago - find full applications today as we bear away a tired body to its earthly resting place after the soul took its flight to the Eternal Home.

She had lived a life rich in years and full of usefullness. Her life knew of joys and achievement, but also had its full measure of sorrow and burdens.

As the days and years multiplied, these burdens became increasingly heavy so that the weary body often faltered under the heavy load. However, there came along with this an enrichment of soul and life that fully compensated for it all

Obituary

Miss Minnie Louise Schuldt Josten was born at Colesburg, Ia., July 8, 1866. There she spent her childhood years under the guiding influence of a Christian home, under the sheltering influence of the Christian church and the directing influence of the public schools of her day.

All this gave her wholesome preparation for life

When the deceased had reached young womanhood, she came to this community. Here she met her companion for life, Mr. Hans Josten. They were married December 22, 1892. They lived on a farm near Klemme

Their wedlock was blessed with two children, daughter, Grace, now Mrs. A. W. Gauger of Buffalo Center and son, Walter, a structual engineer, LaPorte, Ind.

Her husband died in 1904. Soon after Mrs. Josten moved to Garner with her children and resided here since.

She joined the Methodist church in her youth and proved a loyal member through life. She loved her church and the kingdom of her Master and counted no sacrifice too great to promote its advancement. While health permitted she was an ardent worker in the Sunday School as well as in the Missionary society.

The four brothers and three sisters that she had have all preceded her in death. The youngest brother, John,was buried in the state of Washington on the day of Mrs. Josten's death

For some time it became apparent that all was not well physically. A complication of ailments has made inroads and hastened her death.

Besides her children she leaves two grandsons, Harlan and Stanley Gauger, along with other members of the Rev. Gauger family and numerous other relatives and friends. All of whom will keep her in blessed memory. She died January 21, 1941, at the age of nearly 75 years.

Crystal Lake-Woden, Garner-Klemme In Opening Games

FIRST GAME OF THE COUNTY TOURNAMENT WILL START AT 7:30 P. M.

Second Game To Get Underway At 8:30 P. M.

Klemme's first chance to entertain the county basketball tournament becomes a reality tonight when Crystal Lake takes the floor against Woden at 7.30 for the first game in the 1941 classics. Klemme battles Garner in the second game of the evening in what promises to be one of the feature games of the meet. This contest will get under way at 8:30.

Large Crowds Expected

Every possible effort has been made to facilitate the handling of the large crowds expected to attend. Benches have been made to provide an extra row of seats on three sides of the gym, and extra standing room has been provided in the corner next to the home economics room. Both the gymnasium and the main school entrances will be used to admit the crowds and tickets will sold at both places. Coat racks have been placed in the first floor corridor to accomodate those who wish to be free of overcoats and hats during the game.

Doors Open One Hour Earlier

Doors will open one hour before playing time each night. This means that the sale of tickets will start at 6:30 on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights, and at 6 00 on Thursday night, when the schedule calls for three games.

Other games in the first round will see Goodell opposing the winner of the Crystal Lake - Woden game at 7:00 o'clock Thursday night; Britt tangling with Corwith at 8:00, and Kanawha battling Hayfield at 9·00 o'clock. The Britt-Corwith game will be another feature attratcion, as these teams were the finalists in last year's tournament.

Brazil Speeds Construction of New Warships

Fleet Greatly Strengthened By Eleven New Vessels In Recent Months.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

RIO DE JANEIRO.—Launching the eleventh warship within a few months, Brazil leads the parade of South American nations now rapidly "arming for defense" of the Western Hemisphere. The destroyer "Mariz e Barros" was launched in the Marine Arsenal shipyards on "Isle of Snakes" at Rio de Janeiro amid wild enthusiasm of cheering Brazilians, Americans and masses of spectators

President Getulio Vargas personally officiated at the ceremonies, then laid the keels of four other war vessels to be rushed to completion in Brazil's rearmament program to build 50 warships as rapidly as possible

"Sister ship" of the mighty destroyer, Marcilio Dias, launched last July, the Mariz e Barros is of the harbors and sites for naval bases which are being already strengthened against attack by warring Europe. And while the U. S. rushes construction of the chain of naval and oil bases to bridge the long ocean gap between the two Americas, Brazil's president is extending this "arm of steel" down the long coastline of South America.

Joint use of these naval bases to form a continuous All-American fortification against attack, is part of the Pan-American defense plans. U S. "borrowed" naval and air bases in British Guiana, for example, are very close to those of northern Brazil, while Argentina's shorter coastline to the south is also being fortified. With the ABC nations of South America, Argentina, Brazil and Chile, all re-arming at high speed, the security of the Western hemisphere is assured.

President Vargas, speaking at the launching of the Mariz e Barros, made a strong plea for "continental solidarity, and warned Brazilians that the moment called for preparedness in all phases of life, in order to cope with what the future might bring for the warring nations and for the Americas. "We understand that the present moment is pregnant with great apprehensions and uncertainties. The security and sovereignty of the Americas demand strict solidarity."

Expand Merchant Fleet.

Expansion of Brazil's merchant marine is also under way, as part of the defense program. While on his trip to the Amazon region, President Vargas visited the shipyards of Belem, where 27 ships are under construction and repair, including many new vessels. Old-fashioned wood - burning river boats long known on the Amazon river, are being rapidly replaced by the newer fuel-burning steamers to speed up transportation of supplies, trade and arms and fighting forces, in case of war.

Brazil has increased her army to 300,000 men, backed by a Brazilian armament industry which is fast being augmented by factories and industrial plants Brazil's first airplane motor factory is now under construction, and two airplane factories already working at high speed are rushing completion on 100 war planes ordered by President Vargas for immediate defense Brazil's first parachute factory opened this year. At present Brazil has two battleships, two flotilla leaders, four submarines, five destroyers, eight minelayers, two mine-sweepers, six torpedo boats, and about 20 auxiliary ships Air forces include about 215 planes, to which 100 more are being added as rapidly as possible.

Extensive war maneuvers in Brazil demonstrated the increased efficiency of all branches of her fighting forces A sham battle in the Parahyba valley gave Brazil's armies, navy and air fleets a chance to "defend" southern Brazil from revolt or attack from the South, where large German populations are concentrated, as well as many Italians.

Recent visit of the military chieftains of Brazil and other Latin countries to the U. S. comprised an important step toward the unity of all American nations in defense of the Western hemisphere. During the tour the U. S. gave visiting officers a preview of the military displays and spectacular war maneuvers, for the primary purpose of giving them a clear picture of the tremendous program for defense now under way.

Stress Air Defense.

Importance of air defense is also stressed in Brazil, following the plan of Pan-American defense. Brazil is watching closely developments of an "all plastic" plane, now under stiff experimental tests in the U. S., having in mind that future planes in Brazil may be made—at least in part—from coffee plastics, which are among the strongest and best plastics known The plants for making the coffee plastic powder will be opened very soon, U. S. machinery is already being installed, ready for rapid development of the "cafelite" industry, which may finally solve Brazil's defense needs also.

U. S.-built bombers are now being delivered by "mass flight" to Brazil, two groups of six planes each having arrived in Rio recently. The balance of 24 big bombing planes will be delivered as fast as completed in California airplane factories.

Possibility of a great U. S.-Brazilian dirigible line to be built by Goodyear, is also under discussion, and it is planned to establish the line of dirigibles between Miami and Rio, thus greatly strengthening continental air power. At the same time, the Condor, German sponsored air transport company, will delay its installation of a transatlantic service, as Brazil feels "the time is not opportune" for such an air service to be established.

Making a strong plea for continental solidarity, President Vargas said recently: "We all feel that, if it should be necessary, the American peoples—as during their struggles for independence—will unite their soldiers and their arms in the defense of their own sovereignty and of continental integrity."

U. S. Army Creates Real 'Boom Town'

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—In his sweetest dream probably no secretary of any Chamber of Commerce, however ardent a booster he might be, has visualized a 1,200 per cent increase in the population of his town during a single year. Yet that is what is being achieved here.

Although this post long has been the largest military reservation in the country (insofar as area is concerned), there were only a few more than 5,000 soldiers here last June. Next June, according to the army schedule, there will be 67,000 troops stationed at the post. But even that is not the whole story of the "boom" which has this section of the North Carolina sandhills busier than ever before.

Fort Bragg for years has been a sort of military suburb of the town of Fayetteville—population approximately 20,000. That was still true six months ago. But now the suburb has more than 22,000 troops plus approximately 24,000 workmen. Not only is the tail wagging the dog but it's growing and wagging faster every day.

"It's a madhouse," is the favorite description of Fort Bragg today. There are 2,478 buildings just completed or under construction (no official Bragg figure one day can be counted on the next). Soldiers are coming in by the thousands. The 24,000 workmen—to be exact, 23,546 one day last week—live in tourist camps and every available room for miles around. What is an undisturbed stretch of pinewoods one day will have a road through it the next. A week later a hundred or more buildings—each housing between 60 and 70 men—will be half finished.

Undoubtedly, it is a madhouse But probably it is as efficient a madhouse as ever operated. The contractors and the army builders themselves are well ahead of schedule on their 2,478 new building program. The military police keep abreast of each day's developments to the point they can help old timers—stationed here for years—to find their way through the new roads and streets. And over in Fayetteville the soldiers on leave grin cheerfully as they stand in line waiting for a seat in a cafe—just as they stand in line for "chow" here on the post

Traffic Courts Need More Dignity, According to Judge

Adoption of the elaborate regalia and the pomp and dignity of English law in our traffic courts would materially decrease America's huge auto death toll by impressing violators with the importance of the traffic laws and the seriousness of their violation, suggests Judge Harry H Porter of the Municipal court of Evanston, Ill., in an article in a recent issue of Northwestern university's Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology.

"I have always maintained that the proper time to teach a defendant respect for the traffic laws is the first time he appears in court," states this jurist. "If he is duly impressed with the majesty of the law at this time you have gone a long way to cut him from the ranks of the repeaters. The dignity of the court should have a psychological effect on the offender calculated to accomplish fully as much as the actual passing of sentence."

BRITAIN WANTED U. S. TO GET EIRE TO GIVE UP BASES

Confidential conversations have been taking place between the British and the state department for some time aimed at getting Irish naval bases for the British.

In these conversations the British have wanted to place the United States in the unique role of either persuading or bulldozing Eire into handing over the bases. Just how the United States handled it, the British didn't much care.

But in talking to the state department, the British pointed out that if they took Irish bases by force, there would be a burst of anti-British feeling from Irish all over the United States, particularly New England. This, the British felt, would be extremely bad just at a time when Britain particularly needs American support.

The British also pointed out to the state department that they were placed in the unfortunate position of having to bring food to Ireland at the risk of having the ships sunk, and with no protective co-operation from the Irish whatsoever.

Therefore, the British foreign office urged the state department to use its immediate and vigorous good offices with the Irish government.

The state department, however, has been eying the situation with no great enthusiasm. Informal soundings revealed that the Irish minister in Washington, Robert Brennan, is vigorously opposed to British naval bases, and so is the Irish government—at least until the recent bombing of Eire by German planes.

This has changed Irish public opinion considerably, and it is now possible that U. S. persuasion might get somewhere.

SHORTAGE OF SHEET BRASS HAMPERS DEFENSE PROGRAM

The serious shortage in aluminum (a factor behind the lagging plane production) is not the only crucial raw material bottleneck now plaguing the defense program.

Another is the lack of sheet brass, out of which shell casing is made.

As in the case of aluminum, defense chiefs are shush-shushing the brass shortage. But it is so grave that experts admit privately that it may become necessary to curtail consumption for civilian purposes in order to meet the steadily soaring military demand. In fact, brass may be one of the first base metals to be put on the military priority list.

Cause of the shortage is twofold:

1. Lack of sufficient zinc smelting facilities. Zinc is an essential ore in brass, which in turn is essential in the manufacture of all ammunition casings, from bullets for small arms to giant shells for the heaviest cannon.

2. Shortage of brass manufacturing facilities.

The two are interrelated and there can be no improvement in one unless the other also is remedied. There is no dearth of zinc ore or scrap zinc, which are in plentiful supply. The bottleneck is in smelting and brass-making plants.

At present the United States has some 20-odd primary slab zinc smelters and five so-called secondary smelters, which use scrap zinc instead of ore. Their combined output is 450,000 tons—far short of the American and British defense requirements already specified.

Meanwhile, our own shell needs and those of the British increase daily. To meet this, brass manufacturers are hurriedly expanding their rolling mill facilities and also adding machinery to turn out casings. But all this will be useless unless they can get more smelted zinc.

In a belated move to deal with this menacing situation, the Defense commission several weeks ago granted a "certificate of necessity" to a large zinc smelter at Amarillo, Texas, for an addition to its plant. That will help—when the plant is finished. But even then it will be far from enough.

Independent producers charge that the zinc delay is caused by the same factor which has held up aluminum, namely—monopoly.

They assert that the big operators don't want new competitors in the field and operate undercover to bar them, through strategically placed influences in the Defense commission.

UNDER THE DOME

Thanks to careful advance planning by Floor Leader Alben Barkley and Senate Secretary Edwin Halsey the convening of the senate was the smoothest in the memory of veteran employees. There wasn't a single hitch.

Tennessee's new Rep. Percy Priest, of Nashville, who performed the extraordinary feat of ousting an incumbent Southern Democrat who had won the party nomination, was the most photographed rookie on Capitol Hill. "And the least photogenic," quipped the new congressman.

Most active glad-hander at the opening was bulky, 68-year-old Sen David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, who, easily re-elected, sat in his aisle seat hand-pumping everyone in sight. Most conspicuous absentee was Sen. "Cotton Ed" Smith.

1841-INAUGURATION DAY-1941

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

March 4, 1841—"Old Tippecanoe" Harrison, Indian fighter, rides in triumph to be inaugurated President of the United States.

ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

INAUGURATION DAY in 1841 was an historic occasion—for several reasons. After one of the most colorful and riotous political contests in the history of the nation the Whigs had succeeded in electing a President candidate for the first time. So they were ready to celebrate in a big way.

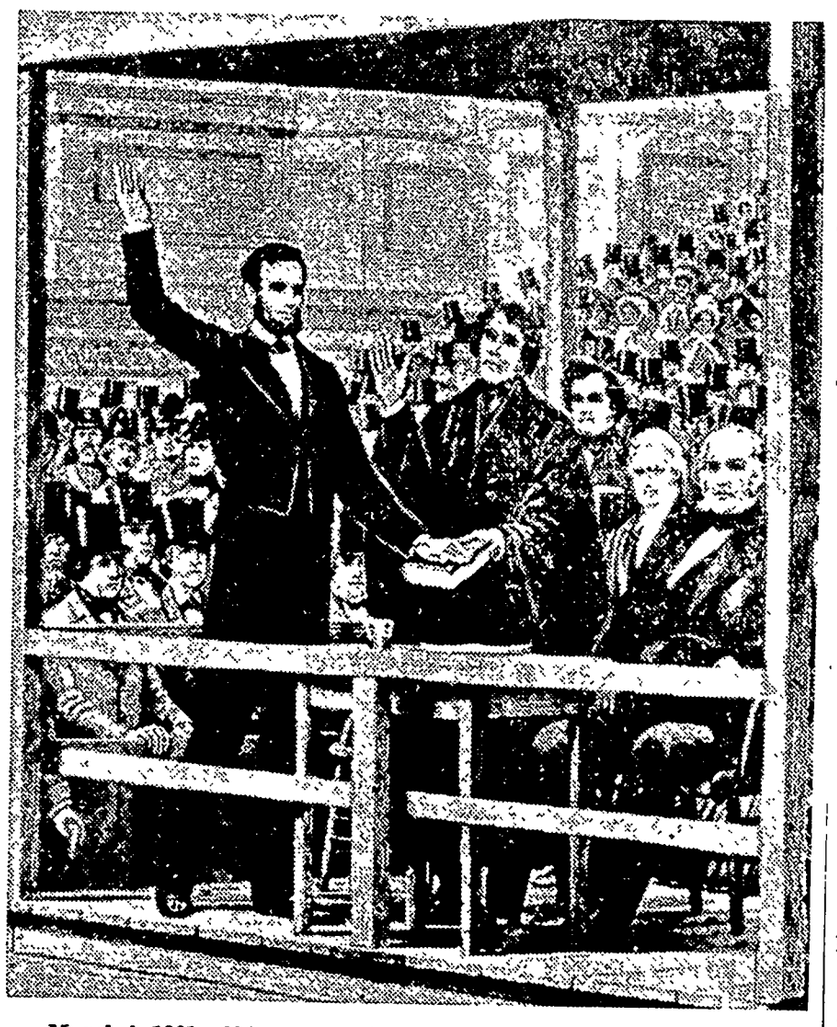
Despite a heavy rain, the greatest crowd that had yet attended an inauguration crowded into Washington to see "Old Tippecanoe" Harrison become President. A salute of 26 guns at daybreak heralded the opening of the big celebration.

Early in the morning a carriage, drawn by four white horses, presented by the Whigs of Baltimore, called for him at his hotel. But the general insisted on riding horseback to his inauguration. Mounted on a white charger, with an escort of mounted marshals, he rode to the Capitol, holding his hat in his hand and waving it to the cheering crowds massed along his route.

Behind him streamed "Tippecanoe clubs" from Virginia and Maryland, dragging floats on which was mounted a log cabin with a hard cider barrel in front and a coonskin nailed to the door. Prophetic of the new industrial era just opening in America was a power loom, mounted on a wagon, sent there from a factory at Laurel, Md.

More than 50,000 persons gathered before the east portico of the Capitol to hear his inaugural address—and they heard the longest speech that any President has ever given on that occasion. He stood for an hour, without hat or coat, in the biting wind until he had finished. But that was only the beginning of his hardships.

All the afternoon he stood in a receiving line at the White House, greeting the thousands who streamed past him to shake his hand. That night there were three inaugural balls and the old soldier (he was 68—the oldest man ever elected President), keyed up by the excitement of the occasion, attended all three.



March 4, 1861—Chief Justice Taney administers the oath to Abraham Lincoln.

After the last ball was over, the general returned to the White House but he was too tired to sleep. Tremors of exhaustion shook his body as he stumbled into bed. Outside his window an owl hooted all night and the next morning the general complained that a howling dog had kept him awake. Negro servants in the Executive Mansion shook their heads ominously. It was a "sign," they said. And they were right. For within a month President William Henry Harrison died of a cold he had contracted while reading his inaugural address. His term had been the shortest term served by an American President.

Twenty years later an even more momentous inaugural parade moved through the streets of Washington. In a carriage was James Buchanan, an old man in a rusty swallow-tailed coat, slumped down beside a tall, lanky backwoodsman from Illinois in a new black suit and a shining high hat with a gold-headed cane in his hand.

Double files of cavalry rode on each side of the carriage as it moved along Pennsylvania avenue and riflemen were stationed on roofs commanding the thoroughfare. For men in the South had sworn that Abraham Lincoln should never be sworn in as President of the Disunited States. But they could obtain no lodging.

Grant laid aside his inevitable cigar when he was sworn in but disappointed the crowd by not wearing his uniform of blue. Throughout the reading of his inaugural address his little daughter, Nellie, who had slipped away from her mother, stood beside him and held his hand.

His second inauguration took place on one of the coldest March fourths ever recorded in the national capital. Many people were frostbitten, as were some of the West Point cadets who paraded without their overcoats. The inaugural ball was a failure because the building was so cold that the musicians could scarcely play, the refreshments were frozen solid and none of the guests dared remove their outer wraps.

Wilson's first inaugural was little more than a triumphal procession of Democrats celebrating their first victory since Cleveland and it was marked by the presence of suffragists in the parade. It was marked also by the first illumination of the capital by searchlight. His second inauguration was without the customary festivities, due to the threat of war hanging over the nation. Again a President-elect rode to and from the Capitol between lines of heavily-armed soldiers and with armed watchers on the roof tops. A cold, misty rainstorm added to the gloom of the occasion. It sent the President to bed with a cold, thus giving impetus to the demand that Inauguration Day be moved forward to April, as it had been when our first President, George Washington, was sworn in.

Instead the date was moved back to January 20 and the first President to take his oath of office on that date was Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will take it again on January 20, 1941—for the third time!

March 4, 1913—Woodrow Wilson takes the oath of office.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN talk began of 50,000 airplanes a year, the American public was surprised to learn that it takes at least five men on the ground to keep one man in the air, but the picture makers of Hollywood considered the number rather small; you see, they use anywhere from thirty to forty persons behind the camera to keep one actor in front of it.

In a scene made for "That Uncertain Feeling," in which Merle Oberon appeared alone before the camera, there were 35 persons on the set to help her make a shot which will last 15 seconds on the screen. If you're interested, the list included two assistant directors, a cameraman, a camera operator, two camera assistants, ten electricians, three carpenters, two property men, four sound men, a painter, a wardrobe woman, a makeup man, a body makeup woman, a hairdresser, a still photographer, a playback operator, a pianist for offstage sound and a stand-in. The thirty-fifth was Director Ernst Lubitsch.

Betty Brewer's ship has really come in at last. Betty's the attractive but not beautiful youngster who made such a hit in "Rangers of Fortune," remember? She's been the bread winner for her family of five for a year—she's 13 now. Her family migrated from Joplin, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif., in a flivver, but her father couldn't find work there and Betty began singing at conventions and banquets.

Betty Brewer

She went to Hollywood, sang on the radio, lost her job and had to go on relief. She was singing on the streets for pennies when Sam Wood, the director, discovered her. Her second picture was "The Roundup"; she's working now in "Las Vegas Nights," and next will do "Two Bad Angels," and she's just signed a brand new contract with Paramount.

Katharine Hepburn has had her revenge on the people who not so awfully long ago considered her "poison at the box office"; her new Metro picture, "The Philadelphia Story," topped all records for New York's huge Radio City Music Hall for the last five years. Cary Grant, James Stewart, Roland Young and Ruth Hussey give her perfect support. Miss Hepburn evidently knew that she had a good thing when she found "The Philadelphia Story"; she is still starring in the stage version—she is part owner of the play—and she is full owner of the picture, as well as its star.

The success of "Teeny," Fibber McGee and Molly's little "I betcha!" girl, is no flash in the pan. Marian Jordan, who plays "Teeny" as well as "Molly," was one of radio's pioneers in adding a child's voice to her repertoire of characters. She did her little-girl routine fully 12 years ago in Chicago as part of Kaltenmeyer's Kindergarten, one of radio's first network children shows.

Marian Jordan

Fibber McGee and Molly weren't even names on a radio script until six years later, when Don Quinn, the Jordans' script writer, thought them up.

If the "Quizz Kids" are among your radio favorites prepare to see them on the screen before long. They're making a series of shorts at Paramount's Long Island studios. The star performer is sure to be that very young man, Gerard Darrow, who ranks with John Kieran of "Information Please" when it comes to natural history.

Don't be surprised if you happen to meet your favorite radio stars and discover that their voices sound altogether different than they do when you hear them on the screen or radio. Rudy Vallee, John Barrymore and Billie Burke are outstanding examples of this difference in voices; theirs are all pitched lower naturally than they are when they come over the air.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

United Feature WNU Service

Washington, D. C.

'SHORT OF WAR'

On the most debated questions in the public's mind, the President's speech on the state of the Union didn't say much that he has not said before. It is far more significant in what it did not say. One thing it did not say were the words "short of war" in promising aid. Many of our most belligerent unofficial armchair strategists who also began advocating aid but stressing "short of war" have now also dropped that qualification, and some want war right now.

The President followed these only in dropping the words "short of war," which he was so careful to include in his campaign speeches. Nevertheless, he did indicate that definitions of "acts of war" in international law are "out" so far as he is concerned, since the Axis Powers have disregarded these laws. In this he is probably right, but most of the opposition to his proposals has not rested on purely technical acts of war, which are not physically acts of warlike aggression—like trading the destroyers They have questioned our taking physically offensive action in foreign waters that would automatically engage us in war—like crashing a blockade with a naval convoy.

On the whole list of questions in this category, the message is resoundingly silent. Are we to repeal the Johnson act forbidding loans of money to defaulting nations, or the Neutrality act which keeps our shipping and our people out of danger zones? Are we to permit shipments of contraband of war in American vessels or convoy shipments to belligerents with the implied threat of naval action against any belligerent blockade of them?

All that part of the message, its silences as well as these suggestions, remain to be cleared up. With its main part, all-out and greatly speeded arms production and defense, the whole country will follow him. Some of it has been ahead of him for years. It is just possible that the unexpected obscurity of the other part is a matter of necessary or prudent timing controlled by something that is happening or intended abroad, and which Harry Hopkins is going over to explore. On the main questions of immediate policy we must wait and see. The message is not revealing.

MONETARY REFORM

Nothing more necessary and constructive than the Federal Reserve anti-inflation recommendations has come out of government in a long time and nothing more hopeful than the President's apparent acceptance of them at least in part.

Early in his first administration, Mr. Roosevelt was "sold" a cluster of schemes to increase deflated prices by monkeying with money, debasing the nation's currency.

Among them was the authority granted to the President to debase the value of the dollar by buying gold and paying for it as much as twice as much as it is worth, and to buy silver also for much more than it is worth and issue dollars against that phony price at a still higher figure. Another, more difficult to explain, was the plan and practice of spending billions more money than government had, paying for it by bonds sold to the banks (rather than to individuals) and letting the banks pay for the bonds simply by crediting government with the price of the bonds. Without going into too much detail, the tendency of this is exactly the same as printing bales of irredeemable money unless some limit is put on the bank's power to use this swiftly increasing mountain of credit exactly as though it were actually money deposited by their customers from their earnings or sale of goods. It expanded the amount of "bank" money to fantastical heights just as printing truck loads of fiat paper money expands the currency. The effect of either kind of expansion will sooner or later be to make the people afraid of the value of money and start an upward spiral of prices or downward spiral of the value of money, which is the same thing and both are "inflation."

Briefly, the Federal Reserve recommends putting a limit or a complete stop to all these authorities and practices and also to put a limit to the amount of our vast gold hoard that can be used as a basis for further increases in the volume of either bank or actual money. None of these authorities was used in full and none actually produced the real inflationary effects for which all were designed, but the danger of those effects exists.

It never has been controlled before but it must be controlled this time. If it isn't, it will double or treble the costs of living, of government and of war itself. If that is permitted to happen, in view of the tremendous debt we have and the even greater expense we face, it could possibly bankrupt this nation and it certainly would increase the burdens on our long suffering people to the breaking point.

What is at stake here is a matter of scores of billions of dollars, perhaps more than the cost of two or three world wars.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Comfort Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin to save your touchy stomach from further distress. For years, many Doctors have used pepsin compounds as vehicles, or carriers to make other medicines agreeable to your stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative that comforts your stomach, too.

Under The Iowa Capitol Dome

READY FOR ROUTINE . . .

The legislature is now fully organized. The committees in both houses have been appointed The actual work of passing bills will now sped up as the committees complete their investigations of proposed measures and report these out for action There is every indication that this work will proceed as rapidly as is consistent with the importance of the measures to be considered Speed is of course desirable but it is not so desirable as to court hap-hazard or loosely drawn laws. In the first week while the work of organization was in progress the House made a record by passing 14 bills in seven days. At the close of work after eight days in session 113 measures had been introduced in the Senate and 83 in the House.

THE 1941-43 BUDGET . . .

The 1941-43 budget submitted to the legislature is a book three-quarters of an inch thick and measuring 9x12 inches in size. According to the title page it was prepared by "C. Fred Porter and approved by Governor Geo. A. Wilson." This means that the vast array of figures covering all the departments of the state government for the years from 1936 to 1940, and the estimated figures for these departments for the fiscal years 1941-43, were gathered after a most careful inquiry into past spending, present askings and probable needs When thus assembled, the figures were given the final approval of Governor Wilson and tossed to the legislature where they will engage the attention of the committees on appropriations and ways and means.

REDUCED SPENDING . .

The outstanding feature is that the budget, exclusive of Assembly expense, shows a saving of $89,885 over comparable appropriations of the 1939 legislature. The budget recommendations total $17,008,816 a year for the next two fiscal years. The saving of over $89,000 a year is attained in face of recommendations for the state educational and board of control institutions. Getting down to the ground work of how this was accomplished, these savings were made by the governor's quiet insistence upon keeping the expenses of the different departments and commissions down to the lowest practical point.

THE BUDGET OUTLOOK . . .

From the present temper of the legislature, the budget will stand up very well as prepared. The members as a whole are economy minded. The governer has shown the way. Not only has he shown the way to savings, but he has given the budget to the legislature early in the session that there may be time for careful study and consideration of the many expenditures. Iowa should get from this kind of stream-lined legislative procedure, carefully built appropriations shot through and through with the sort of economy the taxpayers expect

OPPOSITION SWEPT ASIDE . . .

The legislature did not lose or waste any time in getting the proposed 60 percent assessment bill converted into law Very little opposition developed over the measure The League of Iowa Municipalities headed forces which began a fight on the bill. These forces were accorded a hearing in both Houses which heard the arguments as Committees of the Whole. This was about the extent of the fight made against the 60 percent proposal. When it came up in the House there was a slight flurry of opposition and an attempt at delay based on the argument that the legislature was being stampeded into hurried action with opportunity to study the measure. This did not make any headway Senator Hill, supporting the measure in the Senate, said some of the arguments were a reflection on the intelligence of the legislators He expressed the opinion that the public in general had been very well advised as to the corrective features of the bill, and that a real emergency existed for immediate passage.

HASTEN TO VOTE . . .

The House hastened to an early vote after using up a little patience in giving objectors a chance to voice their complaints. It passed the bill by a vote of 92 to 9 with all party lines down in the results. In the Senate the same bill was passed without debate by a vote of 46 to 1. The lone vote in the Senate was by Munger of Woodbury county. Two of the negative votes in the House were by the Representatives from that same county. There was very evident senitment in both Houses that immediate action was expedient There was also general opinion that the taxpayers, as well as the members of the legislature, had been very well advised of the necessity of correcting a tax problem arising from a decision of the Supreme Court which had held that under the old law a 100 percent tax assessments will go along on about the same bosis that prevailed under the old law. It will not correct the inequalities in assessments which are frequently complained about and which formed a basis of argument for those who opposed the new measure. As a matter of truth laws will not correct these inequalities. They are based on the frailties of humankind which cannot always agree as to values and interests. They existed under the old law, they will exist under the new measure, and to certain extent will exist in one form or another under almost any law.

LIMITS, BONDED DEBTS . . .

A companion bill to the 60 percent law also passed both Houses. It went through with speed and little opposition. It limits the bonded indebtedness which may be placed against property by taxing bodies. There was a strong feeling that the taxpayers needed this protection as the Supreme Court decision had opened the door to a possibility of increasing the bonded indebtedness of towns, cities, school districts and counties over the state to an estimated $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 on the one hundred percent valuation basis.

BEGIN DRIVE ON VIOLATORS OF STATE LAW

Highway Patrolmen Warn Motorists Not To Pass School Buses

North Iowa district highway patrol headquarters in Mason City announced a drive which began Friday for stricter enforcement of the law providing passing of school buses which have stopped to load or unload school children.

An increasing number of violations has been reported, several times with narrow escapes for the school children leaving or entering buses, it was announced.

The law provides "The driver of a vehicle upon a highway outside of a business or residence district upon meeting or overtaking any school bus which has stopped on the highway shall come to a complete stop and then proceed with due caution for the safety of any children and in no event in excess of 10 miles an hour in passing such school bus."

Violations are a very unsafe driving habit local highway patral authorities declared, and will be watched closely.

During the next few weeks the patrolmen will give their special attention to school buses and will co-operate with the bus drivers in bringing violators to court "Failure to adhere to safe driving principles and sane driving practices when approaching a school bus in the past have caused serious injury and spelled sudden death for numerous innocent victims," patrol officials pointed out.

"We must impose a literal translation into the conservation of human life if we are to wage a successful fight against the scourge of death on the highway," they said, in reminding drivers that the job of saving lives rests with them.

Liberty Study Group Meets

Ladies of districts six and seven of Liberty township met for their regular study period Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Lange. The subject of wall hangings and pictures was discussed. Types of pictures for various rooms in the home were studied as well as proper hanging, spacing and grouping.

A picture frame in good taste is simple in design and not too heavy nor too wide. Wall hangings or mirrors may serve the same decorative purpose as pictures.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Mrs. Emery Schaefer and Mrs. Howard Spitler gave the lesson.

THOUSAND THRILLS TO BE SEEN IN NEW DE MILLE FILM

Two great love stories, and a thousand thrills -- a thousand at the very least! Mark the new Cecil B. De Mille epic film, "North-West Mounted Police," which Paramount will present on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Avery Theater in Garner with Gary Cooper and Madeleine Carroll starred and Paullette Goddard, Preston Foster, Robert Preston, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, George Bancroft, Lon Chaney, Jr., and Walter Hamplen rounding out a list of the featured players.

Motivation for the main plot of the story has its basis in actual fact; in 1885 the Metis rebelled against the Canadian government. De Mille has built the rebellion into a story which finds the leading members of the cast, when they are not concerned with romance, trying to save the Mounted from being destroyed by the half-breesd, fighting back gallantly against almost insuperable odds.

Filmel on an epic scale from any standpoint, one might consider "Northwest Mounted Police" looms as De Mille's greatest picture, possessing a huge staring cast, romance, action, thrill after thrill -- everything moviegoers might want including technicolor to lend reality to the vivid scenic backgrounds.

Chicken prices are expected to be somewhat higher in the first few months of 1941 because of stronger consumer demand and small marketing.

During the next several months chicken prices probably will average higher than in 1940 as a result of stronger consumer demand and smaller supplies of poultry meat.

Some of the most effective ways of winter feeding of game birds are to provide unharvested standing corn near good cover; shocks of unhusked corn, which are opened regularly and reconstructed in tepee fashion; unharvested small grains and unthreshed small grains left in the sheaf ad stored for this purpose.

Play.

Bloomfield women and girls over school age can now have their play. A weekly period is being started, with Miss Caroline Grow local girls physical education instructor, assisting in planning the games.

Anemia which often occurs in little pigs is due to a decrease in the percentage of iron and copper in the blood. A good preventative of anemia is to place a piece of clean, fresh sod or dirt in the pen every few days. Pigs play about this dirt and get some of it, containing mineral matter, into their mouths and systems.

Grassy and bush areas left between fields for bird cover should not be allowed to become dense and matted, as ths type of cover not only is less favorable to birds but also likely to harbor and favor the increase of rodent pests.

Principal causes of failures of electric motors on farms have been found to be over-loading, poor or insufficient lubrication, worn bearings, improper circuit protection, lightning and operating in dusty and wet surroundings.

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE!
(But It Did)

When the seniors got their class rings, the girls speculated on which one of the boys would pass his out first Not one of the boy's rings have disappeared, but last week one of the senior girls gave hers publicly to a sophomore boy

And then there's the senior girl that gets very personal telephone calls during physics class What's more they're over a party line.

The reporters want to thank Mr Galbreth for his little byline in last week's paper. You know that reporters have to be reminded by the editor every week when it is time to hand in news and by the the time Friday came, the editor was unconscious.

Men teachers watch out! The senior home ec girls are studying charm and personality. Miss Ott guarantees results so if our grades are not definitely on the up-trend this six weeks it won't be her fault.

From now on when you hear "black-out" at the basketball games, the bombers haven't arrived; it is just Klemme's snazzy new black uniforms.

Notice to all students!

Be sure and be present at the pep meeting on January 29th There is definitely something in store for you.

We didn't know that the semester tests affected the teachers as well as the students, but we hear that Bowles got so bad he thought he was Sea Biscuit. (And that's not something to eat)

When Miss Ott jokingly asked for reasons why the students didn't like litertaure, it rather took her breath to have one of the boys stand and enumerate the reasons.

Mr Onerheim thinks that Mr Bowles has all the luck Bowles always gets classes with just girls Onerheim even helps to solve the problem by suggesting that both of of them take over such classes

Miss Ott says that Jackie may be 'Sweet Sixteen," but that's all sister.

This column had better close We would just as soon live long enough to see the county tournament, and from the cracks that have been handed out this week we have our doubts if we will.

MUSIC NEWS

The music department has a new cabinet for music. The cabinet was made at the Northern Lumber Co

The band will receive new music folios Each member will receive two, one for concert and one for marches

Nine members will be picked out of the band to play for the tournament. There will be a band every night made up of the participating towns

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

Everyone has wondered why Lorraine is so quiet about the moonless Sunday nights parked without lights. Mr. Kingery said in sociology class that a car should not be parked on any road without. at least, parking lights. (She will not talk).

Eugene Johnson has plenty of girls to pick from in the advanced typing class. There are nine girls and Eugene Now, Hank is not the only one that has a harem.

The members of the sophomore class are very glad that semester tests are over

I wonder what sophomore girl is always having trouble with a certain sophomore boy? Especially with pencils and algebra papers.

In English, the sophomores are reading the book "Ivanhoe."

FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

The freshman English club is starting a contest on theme writing. LeRoy Bachman, Lawrence Bock and Larry Van Syoc are the judges.

Wednesday the freshman became farmers and planted beans and corn in science class.

GRADES 7 & 8

Marvin Wade is our new pupil in the eighth grade. He has been enrolled at Goodell.

This semester we are taking science instead of civics. Our first unit is about rocks and soil.

Miss Merritt has had a bad cold this week, so we had a fruit shower for her on Wednesday She got several cans of fruit juices, over a dozen oranges, six apples and a box of kleenex

Thursday was the first day since Christmas vacation that no one was absent or tardy Herbert Schwartz, Wesley Suckow, Herbert Mueller, Ruth Bell, Patricia Kudje and Robert Tiggerman were neither absent or tardy the first semester.

Ronald, Ruth, Jeanne and Patricia had perfect spelling scores.

GRADES 5 & 6

During the first semester the following people were neither absent nor tardy Helen, Esther, Peggy, Elizabeth, Ruth Stokesbary and Ruth Smith.

The following people were neither absent nor tardy the third six weeks: Harold, Ruth Smith, Helen, Velma, Phyllis, Peggy, Elizabeth, Dean, Clarence and Ruth Stokesbary.

In science, we have started a new unit called "Our Earth and Its Neighbors." This week we studied the part on stars.

Mrs. L. A Ridder visited our room Wednesday afternoon.

The sixth grade got a class rating of seven on their seventh arithmetic self-testing drill.

We are trying to get better grades in spelling this semester The following people made a good start by getting perfect scores this week: Edward, Velma, Ruth Smith Esther, Darwin, Donald, William. Donna, Irene, Delores, Helen, Roger R., Roger B., Mary Lou, Phyllis, Peggy and Elizabeth.

Roger Ridder and Irene were reporters.

GRADES 3 & 4

We have started our Eskimo unit in the fourth grade. We made a frieze in art showing Eskimo life

In third grade we are studying about corn as a part of their unit in Foods and Plants.

In science we are studying the Heavenly Bodies.

Fourth grade made a study of the life of Benjamin Franklin. We read many stories about Franklin We made booklets showing important events in his life.

We had 100 percent in spelling: Dorance, Willis, Luella, Richard. Marjory, Isabelle and Iris.

Phyllis Kirkwood is the only one in our room who has been neither absent nor tardy for the first semester.

KINDERGARTEN

We wrote a letter to Mr. Day asking permission to visit the post office. We received an answer stating that we could visit Wednesday afternoon at 3:15. We enjoyed the trip and learned many things about the post office. Now we are planning a post office for our room.

For the last six weeks the following boys and girls were neither absent nor tardy: Neva Ann, Sharon, Elaine, Donna, Maxine, Harley, Jacqalea, Richard and Sondra

Harley, Jacqalea and Richard were neither absent nor tardy for the first semester. Sharon was neither absent nor tardy for the twelve weeks that the kindergarten have been in school.

RESTAURANT MEN ARISE!

"Washington.—A meeting of the Regional Restaurant Convention was told by speakers here that restaurant owners should serve foods which would help national security. 'Restaurant men should put their knowledge of nutrition and diet to work in the cause of defense,' a speaker said. 'They can help improve the stamina of America.'"—News item.

Elmer Twitchell was much interested in the above item. As an old restaurant man himself, the idea absorbed his interest. "I think there's something in it," he declared. "You take a hamburger . . .

The reporter reached out to take one, but Mr. Twitchell explained he was speaking figuratively.

"Take a hamburger. There are hamburgers and hamburgers. I don't know how they rate in the matter of stamina, but the kind many restaurants serve today certainly make a man want to fight."

"What about all-hots?" he was asked.

"The all-hot rates about B plus in a defense program," explained Elmer solemnly, consulting his charts. "They are not only nutritious, but they are a national habit. They are a part of the American system. Take our frankfurters and rolls away from us and our morale would undergo terrific damage."

"How does the combo or ham and egg on rye rate in a national defense program?"

"Our tests have shown," replied Elmer, "that a man cannot remain an adequate fighting unit as long on the combo as he can on a three-decker liverwurst with lettuce and mayonnaise, but he is within one point ten of being as durable as a man who prefers a salami on a hard roll."

"What about the minute steak?"

"This minute steak business demands an immediate study," snapped Mr. Twitchell. "It covers too much territory I ordered a minute steak sandwich in a fairly good restaurant last night. It unfitted me even for draft purposes by loosening all my front teeth."

"How about chicken salad as an aid to national security?"

"I understand there are places where chicken salad is chicken salad," replied Elmer, "but I have not been able to locate 'em. There is nothing in the chicken salads I have ordered that would sustain a man through a minor skirmish with a platoon of Singer midgets."

"What about the cheeseburger sandwich? Could the nation put its trust in that in time of war?"

"The war and navy departments have the cheeseburger under consideration at this moment. Messrs. Stimson, Knox and others had a special session to determine the proper place of the cheeseburger in any defense program," said Elmer.

"How about beef stew and beans?"

"Now you're talking sense," concluded Elmer. "No matter what the restaurant man or the defense bodies may suggest, stew and beans are what the fighting forces will get . . . and past performances show it ain't half bad."

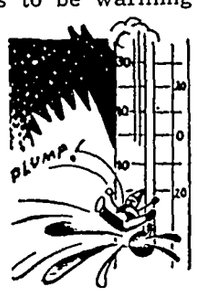
MID-WINTER MENUS
(See Recipes Below)

You may have a mental filing system for your menus, or you may jot down your meal ideas and slip them into a recipe box. Either way, the chances are that mid-winter finds you in the market for some fresh and workable ideas for what to feed the family.

First and foremost, you will want your winter menus to be warming and heartening. The calorie content may be a little higher because more energy is needed to supply heat and because the cold stimulates us to more activity. Vitamin suppliers need to be carefully watched. With your garden adrift with snow, not so many fresh vegetables and fruits will find their way to your table without a special effort on your part.



Even if fresh peas, green beans and vine-ripened tomatoes are out of reach, almost any market boasts whole bins filled with apples, sweet potatoes, cabbage and carrots—all of them potent sources of vitamins. Plenty of grapefruit, oranges and tomato juice will help to replace the fresh tomatoes.

But now for the menus! Two are dinners—one built around a fragrant, red-brown dish of Hungarian goulash served with plenty of hot buttered noodles; the other, sausages baked under a covering of Yorkshire pudding. The third meal is a hot soup luncheon.

Hungarian Goulash
Buttered Noodles
Salad Bowl
(spinach, carrot, raw cauliflower)
Brazil Nut Cherry Pie

Yorkshire Sausages
Canned Green Beans with Mustard Butter Sauce Whole Carrots
Red Cabbage Salad
Honey Spice Cake

Red Cabbage Salad.
(Serves 5 to 6)

2 cups red cabbage (shredded fine)
3 tart, red cooking apples (unpeeled) (diced)
1 cup grated carrot
4 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons French dressing (prepared)

Buy a small, solid young head of red cabbage, one with thin, tender leaves. Remove core, and shred very fine. Place shredded cabbage in ice water for 30 minutes to crisp it. Combine cabbage, diced apple and grated carrot. Mix brown sugar, vinegar and French dressing and pour over salad. Toss lightly, until dressing is thoroughly mixed with salad.

Hungarian Goulash
(Serves 4 to 5)

1½ pounds beef round (cubed)
3 tablespoons fat
3 beef bouillon cubes
3 cups hot water
½ clove garlic
½ bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
2 cups cubed potatoes
1½ tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon paprika
1 cup canned tomatoes (sieved)

Have beef cut in 1½-inch cubes. Brown on all sides in hot fat, then add bouillon cubes dissolved in hot water. Add garlic, bay leaf, salt and cayenne pepper and simmer the mixture for 2 hours. Remove garlic and bay leaf, and add potatoes cut in ½-inch cubes. Cook 30 minutes, then remove ¼ cup of broth from pan and cool. Combine with melted butter, flour, and paprika and blend into a smooth paste. Add to goulash, stirring constantly; cook until thick, about 5 minutes. Add sieved tomato and cook 10 more minutes.

Brazil Nut Cherry Pie.
(Makes 1 9-inch pie)

2½ cups sour, red cherries (canned)
1 cup cherry juice
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup sliced Brazil nuts

Drain cherries, and set aside the juice. Blend cornstarch and sugar in a saucepan; add cherry juice. Place over heat and cook, stirring constantly until thickened, about 3 minutes. Remove from the heat, add drained cherries, butter and Brazil nuts. Pour the filling into a 9-inch pie plate lined with pastry. Moisten the edge of the pie with cold water; arrange lattice of pastry strips across pie. Press down rim with fork. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes, then in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes.

Honey Spice Cake.

3 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cup butter or other shortening
⅓ cup sugar
¾ cup strained honey
2 egg yolks, well beaten
½ cup chopped nut meats
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup water
2 egg whites (stiffly beaten)

Sift cake flour once, add baking powder, salt, soda, and spices and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add honey gradually. Beat after each addition. Add egg yolks, nuts, and vanilla; beat well. Add flour, alternately with water, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a paper-lined greased loaf pan (9 by 13 by 2 inches) in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 50 minutes.

Tomato Chicken Soup.
(Serves 6)

2 tablespoons onion (finely chopped)
1 tablespoon butter

2 No. 1 cans condensed chicken soup
1 No. 1 can condensed tomato soup
1⅓ cups water
1⅓ cup light cream or milk
⅓ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper

Saute onion in butter until yellow and transparent. Add chicken soup, tomato soup, water, milk, salt and white pepper. Stir thoroughly and heat to serving temperature.

Apricot Sweet Potatoes.
(Serves 6)

6 medium-sized sweet potatoes
½ pound dried apricots
¾ cup water
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Peel sweet potatoes and cook in boiling salted water (1 teaspoon per quart) until tender, about 35 minutes. Mash with a potato masher. Cover apricots with water and let soak for 30 minutes. Then simmer until tender, about 25 minutes. Mash the fruit to a pulp and add sugar and salt. Whip apricot pulp with sweet potatoes until very well blended. Serve very hot. Apricot sweet potatoes are especially good with ham and broccoli.

THE INDIVIDUAL'S RESPONSIBILITY REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Habakkuk 2 15; Genesis 4 9-12, Mark 9 42-48, I Thessalonians 5:22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Abstain from every form of evil.—I Thessalonians 5 22, R. V.

"Responsible for the drunkards of my community? Not me; I am against the use of intoxicating liquors." Such is the answer Christian men and women would probably make if faced with that accusation. But wait! Responsibility means more than just refraining oneself or speaking against "booze" in a church meeting. Before we finish the study of our lesson, we may find ourselves guilty of the charge, and needing to ask forgiveness, and see the need of bringing forth works meet unto repentance. We hear God's Word telling us:

I. Do Not Tempt Your Neighbor (Hab. 2:15).

God is very severe in judgment upon those who tempt others. Of course He condemns the one who gives another a drink of liquor. Nothing could be more despicable than thus to start a man or woman on the way to a drunkard's grave. There can be no question about the guilt of the one who makes the stuff and the one who sells it. But beyond that, those are guilty who share in the profits from such a business, who rent their buildings for the manufacture or sale of liquor, who vote to legalize its sale or support politicians who do such things; in fact, everyone who encourages, condones, or in any way profits, whether directly or indirectly, from "the traffic." Are you still "not guilty"?

II. Do Not Fail Your Brother (Gen. 4:9-12).

Everyone who says, "Am I my brother's keeper?" classes himself with the murderer Cain. Certainly I am my brother's keeper. This is the positive side of the matter. It is not enough that I do not tempt my brother. The question is: "Have I neglected to do anything that I could and should have done to save him?"

That makes it my positive business to eliminate every possible temptation. It means that the Christian is vitally concerned about the taverns, road houses, dance halls, and what not, which entrap and destroy our young people. It is not enough to passively lament their presence; we must actively seek their removal. It can be done, and is being done all over the land.

III. Do Not Offend Children (Mark 9:42).

The Lord holds His followers to a high measure of responsibility regarding the children whose lives they touch, whether they be in their own family, or in the community in which they live.

Children are innocent until their elders make them otherwise. In their innocency they are trustful and ready to learn. Their knowledge of the right way to live is received from their parents and other grown-ups, and (mark it well!) they learn more from what we do than from what we say.

Here is the question each one of us should honestly face right now: "How does my daily walk influence the children who see me?" Let us answer that in the light of verse 42.

IV. Abstain From Evil—Judgment Is Coming (Mark 9:43-48; I Thess. 5:22).

The Christian is called to abstain from "all appearance of evil" or, as the Revised Version puts it, "every form of evil" (I Thess. 5:22). That may call for the sternest kind of self-denial (Mark 9.43-47), but why not? We do not follow a Christ who sought for Himself the way of ease or comfort. He gave Himself in complete and willing sacrifice, going even to the death of Calvary's tree for us. Do we then falter and seek the easy way?

The fact that there is a day of judgment to come is something to remember, but may we not stress the other side of the truth. "The very sternness of our Lord's strictures regarding the importance of self-denial only serves to enhance the value of the privilege we enjoy in being citizens of the kingdom of God. If it is worth the loss of a hand, a foot, or an eye to gain that life, then, in view of the great value we place on these members of our bodies, how great must be our divine privilege. Christianity is not merely a negative religion, but it takes the negative similes to show us the positive glories" (Dr John W. Bradbury).

Blind Bigot

No blinder bigot, I maintain it still, than he who must have pleasure, come what will.—William Cowper.

Bloomin' Parrot Was Passing Its Lesson On

Bert had spent hours trying to teach his parrot to say "Hello, Uncle," ready for the visit of his wealthy relative.

To no purpose. Uncle came—and went—and the parrot was dumb.

Bert seized the bird by the throat. "Say 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck," he roared.

And when silence continued he twisted the bird's neck and threw it into the fowl pen.

Queer squawks drew him to the fowl pen next morning. On the ground were three dead hens. The parrot had a fourth by the neck, shaking him and shouting: "Say, 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck."

Grapevine Telegraph

People will talk, and the confidential gossip from one person to another is known as the "Grapevine Telegraph."

Maybe a stranger drives into town and stops at the filling station, the restaurant, the bank or a store, he wants to know the "low down" about this person or that business place. Such conversations are a part of the "Grapevine Telegraph"

Maybe a young person of our community is applying for a position in a far-away town. the superintendent usually contacts several people of the home town, and wants to know, in strict confidence, does this young person come from a thrifty family? Does he drink? Can he be trusted to handle money? Etc. All such information is said to pass by "Grapevine Telegraph."

A Furniture Store and the people who run it are naturally more or less in the public eye and are mentioned often over the "Grapevine Telegraph" at the Ladies Aid, at Civic Club, at any and every gathering of people.

The "Grapevine Telegraph" has been good to the Wellemeyer Furniture Store. Many new customers find our place of business because of the recommendations of an old customer.

Yes, the "Grapevine Telegraph" is our best means of advertising. Just now I wish the "Grapevine" would pass the word around that Wellemeyer's have just unloaded the first carload of furniture for the Spring Season. We expect to sell ten carloads before snow flies next fall, and if you feel that you can do it, tell them they will get LOWEST PRICES AT WELLEMEYER'S!

Maybe you had better stop at the Store and have a look at all the new furniture yourself, then you will have the "low down" on the Furniture Business.

If we can just keep the "Grapevine Telegraph" busy this spring I am sure this Store will enjoy a record business.

e game that the whole town been waiting for had a happy g for the local fans when me downed Garner by a of 33 to 20. Coach Bowles' looked good and made few ks, and everybdy had high hopes for the Britt game after this contest was over. Bill Grosshuesch garnered twelve points for Klemme, and Barz got seven. Stille and Knoke each got seven for the losers.

Crystal Lake 41, Goodell 21

With Christenson and G. Jenson both hitting a torrid pace, the Lakers took their second easy victory of the meet by doubling the score on Goodell. Wes Boller, who usually gets about three-fourths of Goodell's points, shared the scoringhonors with his cousin Darwin. They got seven and six points respectively. Christenson got thirteen and Jenson, twelve for the winners.

Britt 28, Corwith 12

Bing Hartzell did most of the damage to Corwith when last year's finalists met in a second round battle Thursday night. He collected five field goals and three free throws for a total of thirteen points. Britt exhibited its powerful defense, never allowing their opponents to get more than four points in a quarter. Stevens was high man for Corwith seven points.

Hayfield 48, Kanawha 30

With Dale Nelson looping in field goals from all angles, Hayfield gave a pre-view of its offensive power in rolling over Kanawha in the final game of Thursday night's session. The Black Raiders ran the count to 41 to 15 at the end of the third quarter, then slackened the pace in the final period as Kanawha outscored the Hayfield reserves 15 to 7. Mariner was high point man for Kanawha with ten points.

Crystal Lake 36, Hayfield 33

Hungry for their first victory over their rivals in ten years, Coach Norton's Hayfield warriors just about turned the trick. They stopped everything but Calvin Christenson's southpaw slants, and his evening's total of sixteen points tells the story. Baker, Hayfield center, turned in a performance almost as good, getting five field goals and a free throw for eleven.

Britt 29, Klemme 20

Klemme put the shackles on Hartzell and held him to a lone field goal, but Peterson, Packard and Larson took charge of the scoring for Britt to down the home team in the semi-finals. Bill Grosshuesch fouled out trying to stop the big boys under the basket, and Britt's guards controlled the rebound game at Klemme's bankboard. Allen Barz led the Klemme attack with seven points, while Brinkman collected five.

Klemme 36, Hayfield 35

Probably the best game from the standpoint of the average fan was the consolation game in which Klemme eked out the only one-point margin of the tournament The home boys ran up a 12 to 5 lead in the first quarter and appeared to have the situation well in hand, but the Raiders came back to tie the count at 21 all by half time. From then on it was nip and tuck. Hayfield was ahead 30 to 29 at the third quarter and with ten seconds to go in the game, the score was 35 apiece. At this point Kaduce was fouled and given two free throws. He cashed in on the first one; then the Shamrocks took the ball out of bounds and stalled to victory. Grosshuesch and Stille led the Klemme attack with twelve and eight points respectively. Ivan Taylor got thirteen for Hayfield.

Britt 26, Crystal Lake 22

Crystal Lake started strong against Britt and looked like the championship team for the first quarter of the final game. They built up a 13 to 6 lead by the end of the first period, but then something happened and the story for the second quarter was reversed. Score at half-time was 15 to 14 in favor of Britt. The Eagles ran their lead to 24 to 18 at the end of the third quarter, and from there on were content to protect their advantage with a stalling game. Stevenson led the scoring for the champions with eleven points, while G. Jenson gathered eight for the runners-up. Murray also played a good game for the losers.

Girl Scouts Go Sight-Seeing

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Last Friday the Forget-Me-Not partlo held a special meeting with Phyllis Christiance as hostess. After attendance and dues were checked, we made plans for our Badge Ceremonial. Then came the games and a lovely lunch served by Mrs. Christiance. Our meeting ended with the Girl Scout Promise

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Quentin Stille and Mrs Schaeffer took the White Rose Patrol to Mason City as a part of their Reader and Architecture Badge work. After making a library appointment we started out to Indian Head Farm. We drove past it by mistake but were glad we did when we found the town of Portland, south of Mason City. There we discovered a building, formerly a cheese factory which was 86 years old. It was made of natural stone and its walls were almost 2 feet thick. From here we went to Indian Head Farm and were given permission to walk around the stone mansion. Then back we went to town. At 4 o'clock, Miss L. M Barrette, librarian, took us through the beautiful modified Colonial Library. We learned how to look up books without the librarian's help, hw to act when at a reading table, how to find books in the stack and how rural schools and organizations borrow books. We saw the Bookmobile that serves Cerro Gordo county. We saw how to mend books. We learned how many volumes of books there are in the Mason City Library and the average life of a book. We learned why Cerro Gordo county residents may borrow books without paying each time and why we outside of the county pay.

We learned that we might borrow 4 books every 3 weeks by buying a three year membership card and paying 10c each time for postage or $2.00 a year flat rate. We saw a photographic exhibition in the lobby and a very fine stamp collection of a former Mason City resident We saw the conference room, the Iowa room, the Art and Music room, the Children's library, the Parent-Teachers room and the lovely stage and outdoor balcony upstairs.

It would take a lot more space to tell you all the things we saw in the library but by now we are sure you wish you could have gone along.

Before returning to Klemme, we drove all over Mason City studying differet types of architecture. All agreed we had spent a most enjoyable and very profitable afternoon.

LIEUT. E. G. SCHAEFFER GETS CALL FOR SERVICE IN THE ARMY

Dr. E. G. Schaeffer, who holds the rank of First Lieutenant in the Dental Corps, has been called into army service.

Lieut. Schaeffer will go to Fort Knox, Kentucky, and will leave Klemme about the middle of March to take his physical examination. If he passes the physical examination successfully he will be assigned to the army for a year of service.

Dr. Schaeffer has been practicing dentristry here for the past year Mrs. Schaeffer expects to join her husband at Ft. Knox soon after he has been assigned to his post.

SHAMROCKS WIN OVER GOLDFIELD IN CLOSE GAME HERE TUESDAY

The Klemme Shamrocks defeated Goldfield here in a close game Tuesday night, 28 to 24.

After getting off to a rather slow first half start the Shamrocks found their stride in the second half when Barz unlimbered a barrage of shots that found the loop to put the Shamrocks ahead and with Brinkman's long range shots made the Shamrocks look good.

Barz collected six baskets and three charity tosses to lead with 15 points while Brinkman found an opening for three buckets worth six points.

It was the third time in a row that the Shamrocks had defeated the fast Goldfield club.

CIVIC CLUB MEETING WILL BE HELD ON THURSDAY EVENING

Rites Held Sunday For Mrs. Nonna Krause

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Immanuel Reformed church in Klemme for Mrs. Charles Krause who died at her home near Klemme, Thursday afternoon, January 29.

Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch preached the funeral sermon. Interment was on the Ell Town Cemetery north of Klemme and Mrs. Krause was borne to her final resting place by Elmer Katter, Ben Katter. Walter Blumer, Jake Blumer, John Goll and George Goll. The Wellemeyer Funeral Service of Klemme was in charge of arrangements.

Obituary

Mrs. Nonna Krause was born April 7th, 1861, at Gnitlingen, Germany, the first born child in the family of Jacob and Christina Blumer.

She was baptized in the Evangelical church, where she also received her religious instruction and was confirmed.

At the age of 21, she came to America alone and made her home with her aunt, Mrs. John Goll. Her parents and other members of the family arrived the following year. The Blumer family were farm residents of Liberty Township for many years.

She was united in marriage to Karl J. Krause on Febr. 14th, 1884. They lived in Garner ten years, where Mr. Krause worked as a blacksmith. Then they moved to Klemme and located on a farm one-half mile north of town. Since the death of Mr. Krause in October 1934, Mrs. Krause remained on this farm with her son, Albert.

Mrs. Krause was the mother of six children. Two preceeded her in death, Louise, who died at the age of 18, and, Alvin, who died at the age of 5.

In the year of 1904, death called twice at the home of her brother; the brother, Jake died in July and his wife died in October, leavmg seven orphaned children. These children were taken into the Krause home where Mrs. Krause raised them with her own All of these children are now grown and have homes of their own.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Krause were faithful members of the Reformed church. On moving to Klemme, they united with the Reformed church here and Mrs. Krause was one of the Charter Members.

Mr. and Mrs. Krause were privileged to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Febr. 14, 1934.

Mother Krause will be remembered by her many friends as a consecrated Christian woman. She always had a kind word for everyone she met, sympathized with those who were in trouble, but seldom complained of the burdens that she herself had to bear.

Had she lived until the 7th of April, she would have attained the age of 80 years. Her death came suddenly, Thursday, January 30th, 1941, as the result of a heart attack. The surviving children are: Karl Jr., Garner; Mrs. Martin Bachman and Albert, Klemme; Emil, Garner, and 9 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

The passing of Mother Krause also brings sadness to the families of the Blumer children, whom she befriended during their childhood years, they are: Mrs. Anna Waddingham, Ventura, Mrs. Herman Baack Klemme, Miss Minnie Blumer, Jewell, Emil Blumer, Liberty Twp., Mrs. John L. Lemke, Garner, Walter Blumer, Klemme and Jake Blumer, Garner.

New Automatic Direction Finding Device Determines Position of Airplane in Flight

By WILLIAM KELLER
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO. — The danger of commercial aircraft becoming lost because of inclement weather or faulty navigation has been practically eliminated by a revolutionary new invention. Location of a plane in flight is automatically recorded at ground stations by an automatic direction finding radio receiver developed by radio technicians under J. P. Cunningham, United Air Lines' director of communications.

Four years of study and experimentation were conducted under Cunningham and Sandretto, head of the company's radio laboratory, before the direction finder reached its present stage of perfection.

An amazing degree of accuracy has been obtained by the device. Cunningham reports that tests conducted over a period of more than a year reveal that better than 99 per cent of the bearings made by the new receiver proved to be accurate.

Entirely automatic, the receiver operates without any special assistance from the plane in flight. It is described as remarkably simple in operation.

Each time that a plane in flight makes its routine half-hour position reports, the receiver acts on the radio waves. Large antenna that form the heart of the instrument pick up these waves. This antenna is constantly being rotated by a motor.

Electric waves picked up by the antenna are transferred to a standard radio receiver which amplifies it into energy. This energy operates a moving pen which draws a line on a scroll chart that constantly unrolls beneath it. The pen traces the form of the wave in a vertical zigzag line which reveals the maximum and minimum strength of the signal.

All bearings are based upon the minimum signal, or "null," as it is called by radio engineers. The null is recorded when the revolving antenna is exactly at right angles to the direction from which the signal is coming.

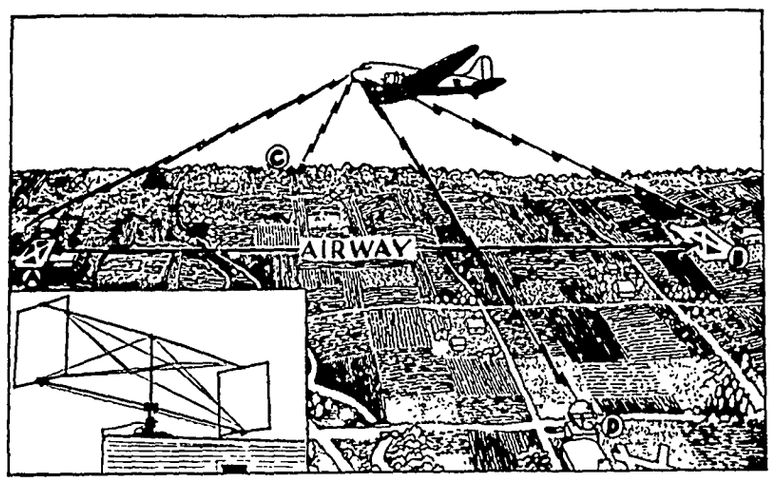
The null as shown on the chart form can be plotted exactly from a transparent plexiglas plate graduated in degrees which is placed over the chart The radio operator can then read off the bearing of the airplane in degrees.

It is necessary for at least two stations equipped with the antenna and recorder to work together in triangulating a plane's position. This position is then immediately radioed to the pilot who uses the report to check upon his own navigation

If three stations take bearings simultaneously from a plane in flight, lines from the stations are projected on a map. The exact position of the plane will be shown by the point on the map where the lines intersect.

"In practice," Cunningham explained, "we will use two or more ground stations simultaneously in receiving the reports from any given airplane The bearings obtained by these stations will be electrically transmitted to our key dispatching posts on the transcontinental route. There the bearings can be plotted on charts in a few seconds and we thus know the location of every plane within a mile or two.

"For practical purposes, with a swiftly moving object like an airplane, this is 100 per cent accuracy."



Operation of the new airplane location recorder is illustrated by this sketch. Ground stations equipped with the device automatically receive bearings on a plane every time its radio transmitter is used. By taking simultaneous bearings, stations A or B, which are on the airway, can determine the plane's position with the help of C or D which are off the airway. At the lower left is shown the revolving antenna which makes the high degree of accuracy possible.

Cunningham added that the first station is now being installed at Salt Lake City. United Airlines expects to install about 20 to serve its entire system from coast to coast.

Finding directions by radio is not a new science. It was known in 1912 when radio was still in its infancy and was used at sea during the World war of 1914-1918. Pan-American Airways engineers subsequently developed a long range direction finding receiver. This receiver gave fairly satisfactory results over water where radio signals are more effective than land.

Unsatisfactory results were obtained about 1935 when the Pan-American system was tried out over land. Since then an antenna system that would operate over land has been sought by a number of radio manufacturers, the army and the navy.

Accurate results up to 80 per cent of the time were attained by a number of systems, but this was not considered sufficiently safe for use with passenger carrying planes

Static interference was the fundamental cause of trouble with most of these direction finding receivers. It spoils signals and gives inaccurate nulls Because United's device produces visual charts it is possible to weed out the bad bearings.

The army and navy are deeply interested in the receiver. It has been offered to other airlines in the United States.

'Gyp' Schools Rise To Offer Training For Defense Jobs

MINNEAPOLIS.—"Racket" trade schools are springing up all over the United States to take advantage of the anxiety of young men to secure quick training for defense jobs.

Like most rackets, the "gyp" job-training school is flourishing on a wave of popular enthusiasm for something legitimate, and is "muscling in" among the many legitimate schools for trade and vocational training.

The job of separating the good schools from the bad is complicated for the ambitious young job seeker by the fact that some new trade schools are entirely legitimate and have been established due to the fact that many older schools are already crowded to capacity and have long waiting lists.

High pressure salesmen for the "gyp" schools have already filched the savings and secured the contract signatures of thousands of ambitious young job seekers by "guaranteeing" jobs with the big airplane plants and other defense production industries, and by representing that their schools have "deals" with such companies to supply them with trained employees, according to a report by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

The situation has become so bad that major aircraft companies have been flooded with inquiries and complaints regarding "guaranteed placements" promised by such salesmen; several California companies have issued warning bulletins to the effect that they had authorized no such agreements, understandings, or guarantees. Chambers of Commerce in various defense industry centers are issuing warnings on the subject.

The report emphasizes that the two principal faults of the "racket" trade school are to oversell the opportunity in the first place and to undertrain in the second place.

The report suggests simple tests which any youth can apply to the school he is considering, before he pays any money down or signs an application blank. He should demand a list of recent graduates of the school. He should get in touch with several such graduates, either by personal contact or by letter, and ask them the following three simple questions:

1. Was the course satisfactory?
2. Did it help you to secure a job?
3. Has it helped you win advancement in your job, or if you have been employed only a short time, do you feel that it is likely to help you win advancement?

In the case of a newly established school the prospective student should enlist the help of some older friend, to investigate the financial responsibility of the sponsors, the completeness of the equipment, and the previous connections of the instructors. Public school authorities can usually give helpful information about a local private school, and the report emphasizes that a legitimate school will welcome investigation.

The report also warns that a certain proportion of young men, due to individual tastes, mental characteristics, and personality type, could not be fitted to hold a job in a mechanical or technical trade. Therefore, the legitimate trade schools invariably examine the qualifications of the applicant and refuse to accept those who they feel cannot be successfully trained. The "gyp" school exercises no such selection, but accepts any applicant who can raise the amount of the down payment.

Low-Income Families Use Housing Projects

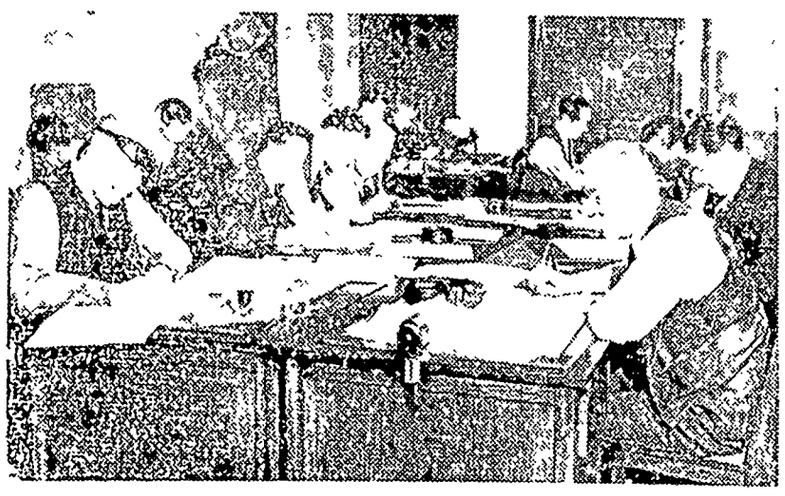
WASHINGTON. — Nearly half of the families who live in the low-rent housing projects of the United States Housing authority have incomes of $2.50 a day or less.

For these families that $2.50 or less—the price of a decent hotel room to most Americans—must cover the daily cost of food, rent, clothes, and all the other things it takes to live. In some cases that daily income averages out to little more than a dollar.

A survey of the incomes of more than 12,000 tenant families released by USHA shows that 47 8 per cent earn less than $899 a year. In the case of 2.6 per cent of the families the annual income is actually under $400.

Only 7 per cent of the families—with many mouths to feed and in areas of unusually high living costs—have incomes of as much as $100 a month, according to USHA Administrator Nathan Straus.

Behind Scenes in Radio War



With most of the popular music ruled off the air waves by the ASCAP-BMI radio war, a staff of Broadcast Music, Inc., musicians work overtime on new arrangements of musical classics. They are busy putting Foster, Schubert and Bach to swingtime to replace tunes copyrighted by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

11,000 Tax Bills to Face State Legislatures in 1941

CHICAGO.—Predicting that 60,000 bills will be introduced in the 43 state legislatures to meet in 1941, Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, president of the National Consumers Tax commission, warned the nation-wide membership that "no fewer than 11,000 will be tax bills."

She added that "if the lawmakers run true to form they will enact into law more than 1,800 of the tax bills, or an average of 43 per state."

Scientific Research Increases in Petroleum Industry

PITTSBURGH.—Research in the petroleum industry has expanded 539 per cent in the past 11 years, Dr. William A. Hamor, associate director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, Pittsburgh, Pa., says in a survey reported in Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, journal of the American Chemical society. The industry now ranks second in scientific investigation, having risen from seventh place.

About 26,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline were produced last year. This output could be increased if needed to over 40,000,000,000 gallons in a short while, according to Dr. Hamor.

"Octane rating motor fuels of 100 and over are produced for aviation use, and these products may be utilized in pleasure cars within five years," Dr. Hamor predicted. "In aircraft work a fuel system is wanted which will compensate for the drop in pressure at high altitudes."

REPORTER'S PRIVATE PAPERS:

Chuck Barnett would have you believe he sent this taunting cable to Adolf Schickelgruber of Berlin: "Hey, long time no seize."

And Victor C. Rodgers, of San Diego, offers this after hearing FDR's last speech: "Better to Pay Taxes Than Belong to the Axis."

Quentin Reynolds, who just returned home from London, is autographing copies of his new book, "The Wounded Don't Cry," to girl friends (married or single) in this manner: "In memory of a glorious weekend at Lake Como."

Quentin's book is crowded with eye-arresting wordage like: "That night I heard the German radio expert report that London had been panicked by the German bombers. I got a cable from New York saying: 'Reports here that London in flames.' There was damage in London all right; there will be further damage, but I don't think London will be ruined or that London will be panicked. They never panicked Jack Dempsey, did they? Sure they hit him and hurt him and London will be hit and hurt. In fact, it is being hit and hurt today. But what of it? These people know they are in a war and know they've got to take a beating before they've won it. They know that lots of them are going to be killed. Every time the bombers come over they shake the debris out of their eyes, go to the nearest pub, have half a pint of bitters and say: ' 'Ow many did we get today?' "

The following appeared in Canada "There'll always be an England and England shall be free. There'll always be a Scotland and nothing will be free."

There is a group called "Alcoholics Anonymous" in New York, the moving spirit being a well known transatlantic flier . . . The group's aim is to "straighten out any fellow who will even admit he drinks too much" . . . They meet at an illustrator's place and have big "rallies." These "rallies" are attended sometimes by hundreds of lushes, many of whom have been in institutions for alcoholics, etc . . . They've succeeded where doctors and psychiatrists have failed, working on the theory that only a drunk knows how to talk to a drunk.

Page One heroes don't last long. Remember how we cheered the Finns? . . . Well, Finland's Minister Procope chanced upon reporters and mentioned that he hadn't seen them lately.

"My country isn't interesting now," he said unhappily, "nowadays we are just fighting cold and hunger."

The Once Over by H. I. Phillips

A LETTER TO MR. DISNEY

Dear Walter Disney:

I have just read in the papers that you do not think a child could possibly be scared by any of the weirder effects in your new picture, "Fantasia," particularly by the episodes in "Night on Bald Mountain," and while you may be right, what about the grownups? I give you my word, Walt, that the scenes in that episode had me creepy for days and I still ain't sleeping well. If that comes under the head of entertainment, then a great idea for the Follies would be a night in a morgue.

You are a genius in my book, Walter, and nobody is even a close second to you in movie entertainment, but it would be okay by me and, I think, most movie fans, if you would cut out a tendency to go in for the creepy stuff. You could throw out the entire night on Bald Mountain and do the nerve doctors and psychopathic ward attendants a great favor.

I know this is supposed to interpret a musical composition for drums, bass fiddles, cymbals, horse pistols, dynamite caps and saxophonists with the D.T.'s, but if it does so, then Moussorgsky should have stayed in bed where he could never make the hair of a movie fan stand on end, man or boy.

"Fantasia" is a beautiful thing full of what the critics call enchantment, but a smart spectator will grab his hat and make for the nearest exit when the Bald Mountain stuff starts. It is nothing but 20 minutes of skeletons, ghosts, flibberty-gibbets and assorted apparitions flying across the screen like they was fugitives from Hades, and I mean the basement not the mezzanine floor. A skeleton rates at the bottom of the list for purposes of public entertainment, anyhow, even if it is a quiet, dignified unassuming skeleton. And when a skeleton turns out to be a jitterbug acting as if it was being auditioned for a ballet it is no good to nobody nohow, even with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra as sponsor.

The episode should be retitled "Heebie-Jeebies in Technicolor."

Give them skeletons two weeks' notice, Walt, and give Bald Mountain back to Hitler, where it must have come from.

Yours for fewer goose pimples, with sound.

Elmer Twitchell.

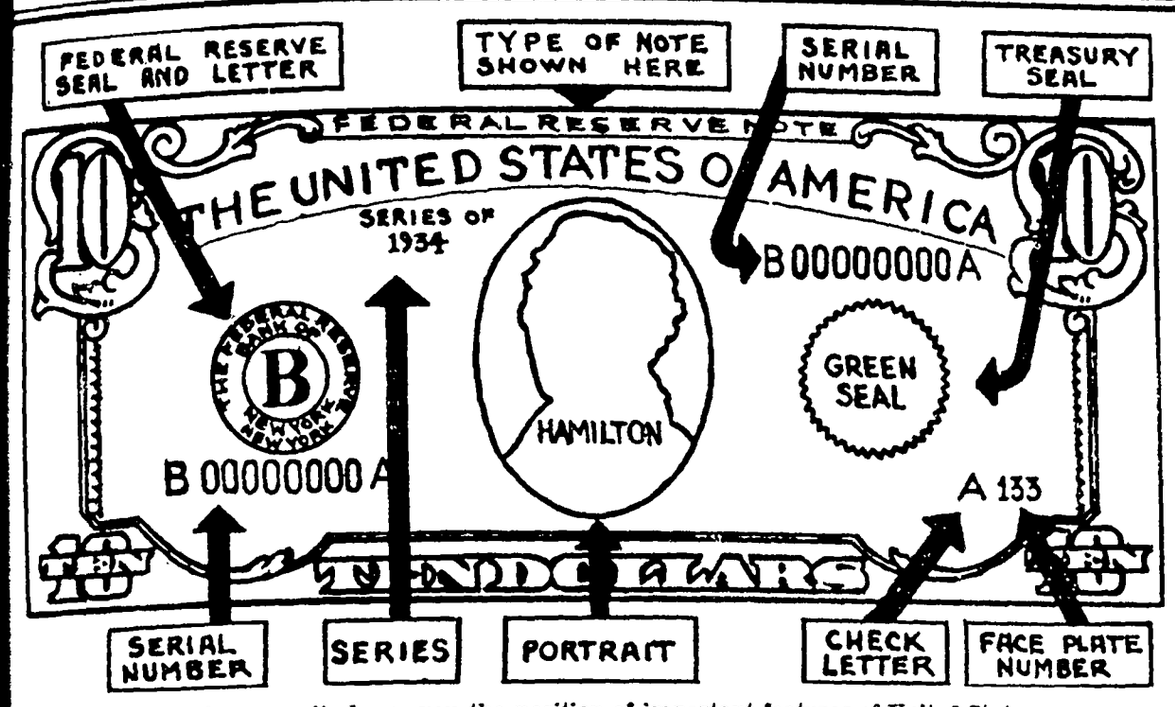
Know Your Money and You'll Not Be Losing It to Counterfeiters,' Says Chief of the United States Secret Service



Study the above diagram—it shows you the position of important features of United States paper money. If get a suspected bill, compare it with a genuine bill and observe carefully the following features:

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN your friends say to you, "Well, don't take any wooden nickels!" you laugh heartily for you recognize it as a good joke. Of course, you wouldn't take y wooden nickels! But there's always a chance that you'll something worse—take a paper bill that looks as though worth $1 or $5 or $10. But it's just as worthless as a oden nickel because it's a nterfeit.

n fact, during a recent five-ar period Americans were indled to the tune of $1,-),000 a year by counterfeit-s and these crooks got by th it mainly because of the difference and ignorance of eir victims.

How about YOU?

Do you ever do more than just nce casually at the paper bills at are handed you in making ange—especially when they're nded you by a stranger?

Do you know whose portrait is a one-dollar bill, or a five, or a n?

Do you know what pictures are the backs of those bills?

If you do, you have made a good ginning towards protecting your cketbook from the counterfeit-. If you don't know the out-anding features of your money, u have only yourself to blame you become the victim of the unterfeiter and his vicious cket.

"Yes," you say, "but how can I arn about money? I know what looks like, but I don't know what look for."

Well, the United States Secret rvice has undertaken to show u what to look for. A trial edu-ational campaign indicated that is loss was largely due to your ck of knowledge about money. ut the campaign also showed at enlightenment of the people ould protect them. Therefore, e campaign of education against rime was intensified, under the ogan "Know Your Money." For e calendar year of 1940 the pub-c losses through acceptance of unterfeit notes were reduced to out $100,000. The Secret Serv-e believes this 90 per cent re-uction is the dividend of its Know Your Money" campaign.

Newspaper stories, magazine rticles and educational pam-hlets carry the message into omes, schools and the business orld. A 32-page illustrated book-et, just off the press, entitled Know Your Money," published y the Secret Service, tells how to etect counterfeit notes and coins, nd how you may protect yourself gainst the forger of government hecks. The booklet may be ob-ained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for 10 ents the copy. A sound motion icture, also entitled "Know Your Money," entirely made by the ecret Service, and with Lowell homas as commentator, is being hown in high schools in the 48 tates and to business groups of 00 persons or more.

"There is no secret formula for letecting a counterfeit note," says rank J. Wilson, chief of the Unit-d States Secret Service. "Years of experience have proven that he human eye is the best coun-erfeit detector in existence. But it must be properly trained. Gen-uine paper money is printed on distinctive paper containing tiny red and blue silk threads. The printing is done from steel-en-graved plates made by a corps of the most expert engravers in the world.

"Do you have a bill in your pocket or purse? Take it out now and look closely at the portrait of Washington, Lincoln, or another of the great Americans shown on the various denominations. You will see that the facial character-istics are shaded by small dots and dashes, each of which is clear and distinct. In the portrait back-ground you will see tiny perfectly square spaces between horizontal and vertical lines, which are also very clear. Around the border of the bill, face and back, are intricate white lines resembling a net. These are known as the geometrical lathework, and each line is unbroken from beginning to end. Look at the colored treasury seal on the face of the bill. Around its outer edge are many sharp points which look like the teeth of a circular saw.

"The counterfeiter has a hard time to imitate a bill and most counterfeits are crude, but sometimes he makes one above the average. Whether a counterfeit is a good or poor reproduction, you should be able to detect it by comparison with a note of the same denomination which is known to be genuine. A comparison of this kind will readily disclose defects in the portrait, the seal and the lathework border, and is definitely the best method of counterfeit detection. If the suspected bill is counterfeit, its portrait will be dull, smudgy or scratchy in appearance. The points on the counterfeit treasury seal will be uneven or blunt, instead of sharp and regular. The white net lines in the border will be broken in many places, and generally the texture of the paper and the color of the ink will be quite different than the genuine."

It is often said that if the ink or color can be rubbed off a bill, the bill is counterfeit. Nothing could be more wrong, according to Mr. Wilson. The ink or color can be rubbed from both genuine and counterfeit notes, and such a test proves nothing.

Counterfeit coins are also a source of trouble. Genuine silver coins have a clear, bell-like ring. Counterfeits sound dull. Ring silver coins on hard surface and beware of those which sound like stone. In extremely rare instances, genuine silver coins may have an invisible crack or air bubble which would make them sound dull. However, these are so few that your chances of receiving one are very slight, indeed.

The corrugated outer edge of silver coins is known as the "reeding." It is this feature which should be closely examined on suspected coins. Likewise, this reeding should be compared with that on a coin of the same denomination known to be genuine. On most counterfeits the reeding is noticeably imperfect, but on genuine coins the corrugations are regular and distinct. In some cases, of course, the reeding is completely worn away on genuine coins which have circulated for a long time.

PORTRAIT—On genuine bills, the portrait is lifelike, stands out from the oval background which is a fine screen of regular lines. Notice particularly the eyes. On a counterfeit the portrait is dull, smudgy or unnaturally white; scratchy; the background is dark with irregular and broken lines. The portraits of 11 great Americans appear on United States money. It is important for your protection that you know on which bills these portraits appear. Regardless of the type of bill, all bills of the same denomination bear the same portrait, as follows:

Washington	on all	$ 1	bills
Jefferson	on all	$ 2	bills
Lincoln	on all	$ 5	bills
Hamilton	on all	$ 10	bills
Jackson	on all	$ 20	bills
Grant	on all	$ 50	bills
Franklin	on all	$ 100	bills
McKinley	on all	$ 500	bills
Cleveland	on all	$ 1,000	bills
Madison	on all	$ 5,000	bills
Chase	on all	$10,000	bills

2. SEAL—On the genuine bill, the sawtooth points around the rim are identical and sharp. On the counterfeit these points are usually different, uneven, broken off.

3. SERIAL NUMBERS—On the genuine bill, they are distinctive in style, firmly and evenly printed in the same color as the seal. On the counterfeit the style is different, poorly printed, badly spaced, uneven in appearance.

4. PAPER—Genuine bills are printed on distinctive paper containing very small red and blue silk threads.

The following information about paper currency will also be helpful:

SIGNATURES — The signature of the secretary of the treasury appears at the lower right side on the front of all United States paper money. The signature of the treasurer of the United States appears on the lower left side.

TYPES OF CURRENCY—Our government now prints three types of currency or paper money: federal reserve notes, silver certificates, and United States notes.

Every note or bill is distinguished by words telling which type it is, printed at the top of the bill on its face or front. The type of each bill is also shown by the color of its treasury seal and serial numbers. The treasury seal and serial numbers are GREEN on federal reserve notes, RED on United States notes, and BLUE on silver certificates.

FEDERAL RESERVE NOTES —Federal reserve notes are placed in circulation by the federal reserve banks, each bank placing its own notes in circulation through the banks located in its district. There are 12 federal reserve districts. Each district has a number and a corresponding letter of the alphabet for its symbol.

City	SYMBOL LETTER	DISTRICT NUMBER
Boston	A	1
New York	B	2
Philadelphia	C	3
Cleveland	D	4
Richmond	E	5
Atlanta	F	6
Chicago	G	7
St. Louis	H	8
Minneapolis	I	9
Kansas City	J	10
Dallas	K	11
San Francisco	L	12

The letter "A" in the regional bank seal on a federal reserve note shows that it was issued by the Boston Federal Reserve bank in the First district. The letter "B" in the regional bank seal and the figure "2" shows that a bill was issued from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and so on through the list of the 12 banks to San Francisco, whose symbol letter is "L" and district number is "12." The regional bank seal and the district number on federal reserve notes are always BLACK.

PRESIDENT'S POWER

When the blank check, lease-lend bill has been bums-rushed through congress, the United States may not be at war—but the President will be.

He has announced his peace terms —freedom of speech and of worship, social security and the end of wars through disarmament—not merely in Europe but "everywhere in the world" including, of course, Russia. This is the new world-wide New Deal with our taxpayers and workers, as they did for the American New Deal, paying as much of the whole bill as the President shall determine Mr. Roosevelt has also announced the kind of peace in which he will not "acquiesce." People who are not at war don't prescribe either the kind of peace that will be accepted or the kind that won't.

The President also asks for ultimate power to dispose all the war strength in America, except manpower (maybe?) to fight for whom and at any place he decides—all our guns, ships, planes, shells, rifles, all our materials and facilities for production and, by the same token, if not all our wealth, then at least billions of it. He can send as much or as little into the battle lines as he decides, and that is nothing less than the position of international commander-in-chief.

What is requested is the complete strength of the nation in economic war—and in these modern days that is 90 per cent of military war with a margin over as deadly as military war, if not more so.

This astonishing bill was prepared under the direction of Mr. Morgenthau in the treasury and there is good reason to believe that neither Secretary Stimson of war, Secretary Knox of navy and Secretary Hull of state was consulted on its terms before it was published. Somebody beside Henry the Morgue ought to be consulted before we buy a ticket to perdition.

We have no effective naval vessels to send without hurting our navy. We can send no modern tanks, planes or guns that wouldn't delay the training of our army. Aid to Britain, yes, but in this momentive hysterical spasm, can't somebody be thinking one little thought about the interest and security of the United States.

LEASE-LEND BILL

What would have happened if two months ago anybody had proposed the lease-lend bill giving the President unlimited authority to engage in economic and possibly military war "everywhere in the world," to provide a world-wide bill of rights for people "anywhere in the world," and whether they want it or not?

Nobody can say precisely what would have happened, but the chances certainly are strong that it would even have had a hearing. Certainly, earlier, nobody could have campaigned for office and such a bill.

What has happened in the meantime to incite public sentiment to entertain such a perilous course, such a revolution in our system of government, such an all-out totalitarianism in the United States? Certainly not any greater danger to the belligerent nations that have our sympathy. There have been some terrible bombings of cities, but, if anything, their actual military position has been much improved.

What has happened is the most effective war-ballyhoo and propaganda headed by a few sincere and masterful but certainly very rash men. Over the air, in the mail, in the press, their voices for war have been continuous and many times the volume of any voice for caution.

Popular polls have asked hypothetical military questions on which no mere layman would be likely to have the facts and professional knowledge to express any valuable opinion—such as, "Do you think Britain will lose the war, if we do not give her all aid?" Lacking access to any guiding facts, except the incessant haranguing of the war-criers, who themselves are not much more competent to give an opinion, these "sample" voters say "yes" in substantial majorities to the question: "Shall we go to war?"

It is mostly fantastical nonsense, this government by harangue and unofficial plebiscite, but the result is not nonsense. It is the stark national tragedy of the lease-lend bill; subjecting the wealth, the peace and the welfare of our country in war to the discretion of a single man, who, with almost unlimited war powers in the past for preparation and defense, has not used them wisely or well. If he had, we should be in no such panic as we are today.

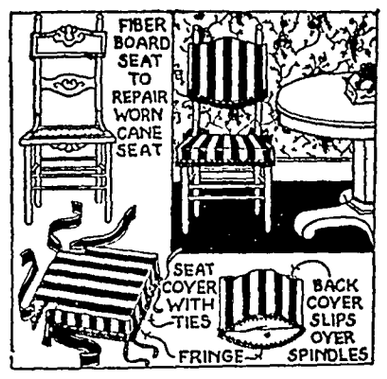
Just as the public has been war-danced and tom-tomed by equivocal propaganda into even considering such a bill, so that bill itself is not candid. It would be far better and more honest to appropriate $3,000,000,000 to lend or give Britain, Greece or China to be spent here for munitions, than to authorize the President to engage our entire strength in arms and resources in economic war "everywhere in the world" and to guarantee freedom of speech and worship and from want and war "anywhere in the world."

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears



IF A CHAIR is all legs, angles and curves in the wrong places, a slip cover may do as much for it as a becoming frock will do for an awkward girl. The right color, a dash of style, fabric cut to bring out graceful lines and cover defects, and presto—a new personality for the ugly duckling!

That was the treatment given a set of old chairs like the one shown here. A two-piece frock was planned to repeat tones in the wall paper of the room in which the chairs were to be used. The bold stripes of the putty tan, green and wine red material gave just the right contrast with the flowered pattern on the wall. Narrow green fringe was used for edging and the sketch shows how the two pieces of the slip cover were made.

TREAT HORSES NOW TO RID STOMACH OF BOTS

This is one of the most effective times of the year to treat horses for bots and certain other internal parasites, Iowa State College veterinarians assert.

Horses respond well to proper treatment for parasites, going into spring work with more endurance and manifesting greater resistance to other disorders. Symptons of heavy infestation are easily recognized, but others may go unchecked for some time unless treatment is administered.

Three kind of flies, including the nosefly, are responsible for the stomach bots. Eggs laid on the hairs of the horse during the summer find their way into the stomach, where the bots are found at about this time of the year.

One carbon disulphide treatment will control bots and stomach worms and will be partially effective against round worms. Treatment should not be delayed now, as the bots may leave the stomach and move into the intestines where they are harder to kill.

THIS AND THAT AT THE TOURNAMENT . . .

Klemme school officials have demonstrated that the Klemme gym can take care of as large a crowd as any other school in the county. In fact, the crowds at the tournament this year have exceeded those in the past. The Klemme gym is ideally arranged to handle a large tournament crowd. Many out-of-town fans have asked that the tournament be held in Klemme again next year.

Thursday night was referees' night" at the local tournament. Messrs. Quinn & Quinn had a fine time chalking up a grand total of 87 fouls. That is a lot of fouls in anybody's tournament.

One Klemme Shamrock dreamed that he made the first basket against Garner. He did on the first play! That boy should have done some high powered dreaming before the Britt game.

One Klemme lady, mother of one of the Shamrock stars, saw her first basketball game Wednesday night. She was so thrilled that she is now bemoaning the fact that she did not become a fan several years ago. Now . . . just try to keep her away from a basketball game!

The fans, as a whole. have been good sports during the basketball tournament here. Very little booing when referees called the play not in accord with the fan's point of view, or when decisions seemed to favor the other side. The fans were better sports than at some tournaments we have seen.

In the opening game Wednesday night, the score board failed to give Crystal Lake full credit for the score against Woden. The board could not register any higher!

Looks like the Seniors will get a swell banquet this year! The Juniors sold apples and candy at the tournament and will use the proceeds to feed the Seniors. We have a tip that the Juniors made plenty of dough!

IT AIN'T HEAVEN AROUND HERE . . .

A ship without a sail, a car without a spare tire, a golfer without a golf ball, a fisherman without tackle . . all in the same boat with this writer . . without his favorite pipe. Now whereinell did we put that cabbage burner? We mean the one that resembles an Irishman's hod . . . or did some body swipe the doggone thing? Its' very conspicious by it's absence here!

BANQUET WHERE LADIES DIDN'T SMOKE!

Yep, that's a true statement Editor's may not be nagels, but the wives of the editors at the banquet held at the Country Club a couple of weeks ago might come close to being fitted out with wings. It's the first banquet for some time this writer has attended that several women did not draw out a cigarette for a few puffs after the dinner! The male of the species may have many bad habits, but the ladies of the press are ladies in every sense of the word

ARE YOU FEEDING THE BIRDS?

It won't cost you much than a few minutes of your time a few days each week and you will be amply repaid if you will feed the birds during the cold weather Tie a few pieces of beef tallow and dry bread crusts to the branches of trees and bushes near your window and watch for results. It won't take long until you have feathered visitors every day to get the food you have placed for them. We don't know our birds. but we have seen Downy Woodpeckers, Blue Jays, Sparrows, Starlings, Nuthatches, Chickadees and other birds we could not identify, come for their daily ration of a choice bit of fat or a share of their toast.

You may be even lucky enough to attract a beautiful red Cardinal to your feeding station.

EARL HALL FLEEING THE COUNTRY?

We hear it rumored around that W. Earl Hall of the Mason City Globe-Gazette is leaving for South America . . . so we are informed by our private bureau of investigation!

Can it be that Earl would go clear to South America in order to dodge a fishing date he has had with this writer next May?

It will be recalled that Hall challenged this writer to a fishing contest at Clear Lake two years ago. Our readers know the result of that expidition. Hall explained his inability to catch fish by accusing Dr. Frank Knudson of Clear Lake, referee and guide deluxe, of rowing the boat in such a manner that ALL of the fish were on this writer's side of the boat.

The gauntlet was tossed back to Earl last summer . . . but he was always TOO busy to go fishing! He promised to go again this spring.

Earl is supposed to go to South America on some sort of a good will mission . . . but the REAL purpose of his going is that he wants to get as far away from Clear Lake as possible. He can't get away with it . . we're going to South Amercia too!

BUSINESS MEN GET TOGETHER ONCE A MONTH . . .

One of the best things the members of the Klemme Civic club did at their last meeting was to vote to meet at least once a month The first monthly meeting is scheduled for tomorrow, Thursday night at the Community Hall.

It's a chance to rub elbows, do some good natured ribbing and really get better acquainted. If there is no special business to take up there will be time for a few games . . . bridge, whist, checkers, cribbage, or just visiting. Then there will be a lunch and problems can be better talked over with a cup of coffee.

Yep, it's a good idea to get together a bit more often.

Bombed.

Members of the P. B. Miller family in Nashua thought they were being bombed by some enemy the other day. Wendell Miller had thrown some old flashlight batteries into the stove and one by one they exploded

FIND THREE SUPERIOR SWEET CLOVER STRAINS

Cmparisons of sweet clover varieties and strains in filed plots at Iowa State College reveal that three varieties—Iowa Late White, Illinois Sangamon, Ohio Evergreen —are consistently high yielders.

The yields of these three varieties have been similar, report college agronomists, but the Evergreen strain matures several days later than the others

In connection with these sweet clover tests, the effect of late spring clipping on seed yields was studied. Considerably higher yields were obtained with the yellow sweet clover from unclipped lots than from the plots clipped to a height of from 8 to 12 inches on 3 dates during the last half of May.

With the Iowa Late White variety the highest seed yield obtained on plots clipped Clipping on May 30 resulted better seed yields than clippings with both varieties sweet clover.

Flax ranks first as a cash in Iowa among crops sown broadcast and is second only to corn total revenue.

All sheep in Iowa known infected with sheep scab are immediately quarantined, dipped under state supervision and held under quarantine for a number months following the last dipping until danger of the reinfection past.

Bets, pep meetings, chewed fingernails, shaky knees, tears, laughter, yells, bands, colors, crowds, breathless moments. No tournament would be the same without them and this year's tournament was no exception. We witnessed all the last four nights. There were compliments on everything. The good-looking coach, the boys' ball handling, their new suits and the school building were only the few which we overheard We're mighty proud, we hope everyone had a grand time, and we hope we can entertain the tournament again, soon.

The sophomores in biology have been studying the bones of the body and are now taking up the study of teeth.

It has been noticed by many that a senior boy's ring has appeared on a sophomore girl's finger. It can easily be imagined by all whose ring it is.

In English the sophomores are still reading "Ivanhoe."

In history the sophomores are making a chart of important dates and events.

FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

The home economics I class are finishing their towels and many have already started on their aprons Doris Spitler says she thinks she'll be a dressmaker since she can sew so well.

We finished the study of plants in general science and are now starting the chapter "The Human Body."

English class is vainly trying to tell the difference between a noun and a verb; however, they try, try again!

The latest rumor: Phyllis and Merle are always fighting in the science class. Quote: Mr Oneiheim, "Ah, a romance." Unquote.

GRADES 7 & 8

The eighth grade is studying the newspaper. This week we elected Edward Barz as editor of the paper we plan to publish. Patricia Kudje is assistant editor and Herbert Schwartz was chosen as business manager.

Many have brought rocks to school this week because we are studying rocks and soil in science. Ewald brought pipestone from Minnesota; Edward Buntenbach, rocks collected on a trip west; Jeanne Trumbull, rocks from Arkansas; Harlan Stille, a fossil found here. Herbert Mueller, Duard and LaVonne also brought stones.

GRADES 5 & 6

We elcted new room officers. Edward was chosen president and Dean our secretary. Roger Ridder is librarian and Donna assistant librarian.

We are proud of our efforts to get better spelling grades on Friday. Twenty-three of the twenty-six in our room had perfect scores. They were: William, Darwin, Robert, Shirley, Donald, Harold, Esther, Arlene, Roger B., Ruth Stokesbary, Peggy, Ruth Smith, Elizabeth, Phyllis, Dean, Clarence, Mary Lou, Roger R., Irene, Donna, Helen, Edward and Delores.

In art we drew pictures of evergreens in winter.

We had a free reading period on Thursday We talked about how to make book reports. During the period we read books we could use for our book reports.

Elizabeth was our reporter

GRADES 3 & 4

Fourth grade took number drill 7. We had an average score.

We made Polar Bear posters in art and started an Eskimo movie.

In health class we studied the unit on "Sleep." We made posters

Fourth grade history finished the unit of the Vikings.

In science we are studying the Stars Earth and Moon.

The following had 100 percent in spelling Iris, Isabelle, Marjory, Dorance, Luella, Richard and Phyllis Stokesbary.

KINDERGARTEN GRADES 1 & 2

Janise Swanson visited school Thursday afternoon.

We have our post office nearly finished. We are reading about post offices and writing letters to each other.

Neva Ann and Sondra had birthdays this week Neva Ann's birthday was Friday and Sondra's on Saturday. Sondra was seven and Neva Ann six. They brought treats to school.

SIX WEEKS OF COLD WEATHER?

Sunday, February 2nd was Ground Hog Day, and according to an old tradition, or superstition if he sees his shadow on that date it will frighten him so much that he will immediately go back into his burrow for six weeks, during which time it is supposed to be cold winter weather.

The day was bright and sunny, so no doubt Mr. Ground Hog saw his shadow . . . so we can expect six weeks of cold weather ahead.

BARN FIRES

Agricultural engineers at Iowa State College have complied rural fire statistics which show that the number of barn fires from spontaneous ignition of hay increases as the haying weather becomes more favorable. This situation may be due to the fact that farmers stack their hay while the stems have excessive moisture, because the leaves dry more quickly than the stems during the most favorable hay-drying weather.

Comfort.

Anyone committed to the Lake Mills jail, may expect to sleep in comfort. An error was made by the company shipping new mattresses to the Lake Mills jail and innerspring mattresses were sent instead of a cheaped grade ordered. They were permitted to keep them.

EVER GREENS CAN STAND LOW BRANCH PRUNING

Evergreens will withstand pruning practices that hardwoods will not endure, says G. R. Ramsey, extension forester at Iowa State College.

In the case of hardwoods, the forester points out that pruning should not remove limbs over 2 inches in diameter and in no case should young branches be removed if they have formed heartwood.

Hardwoods Rot

"If branches are removed after heartmood is formed rot may enter the scar and cause a defect in the log," Ramsey says. "Rot will spread once it gets started even though the wound may be healed over with healthy tissue, and a hollow place in the log will result."

With evergreens, pruning can be practiced on trees older in age or upon limbs of larger size, the forester declares.

Pitch Protects

"This is due to the exudation of pitch which forms a protective coat around any wound made on a pine, spruce or fir tree," he says.

Any pruning cut should be made close to the trunk. No stubs should be left, because the wood will grow around the dead stub resulting in a knob reaching from the origin of the original branch to the end of the stub, forming the entrance point for rot.

A decrease in marketings of grain-fed cattle now seems probable for 1941 but marketings of other cattle and calves probably will be a little larger next year than in 1940.

VICTOR GREIMAN WINS RECOGNITION FOR MILITARY WORK AT I. S. C.

Victor Greiman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Greiman who live north of Klemme, has won military recognition for his training at Iowa State College at Ames. Victor, who is a civil engineering Junior, has won the shoulder cord award.

Edgar Dorow, Garner, a freshman, has won a star for his work in military training.

Bred ewes can be carried thru the winter in good condition without any other feed if they have plenty of good quality legume hay.

DELAY ORCHARD PRUNING UNTIL LATE IN THE SPRING

Horticultrists at Iowa State College are advising fruit growers whose orchards were blasted by the November "quick freeze" to delay pruning until late spring or summer. It will be less difficult then to tell what wood is alive and wood is not.

"Dormant" pruning, a common winter practice among some fruit growers, may be a waste of time on many trees, H. L. Lantz, research horticultrist points out. In some orchards, pratically all of the trees are dead.

On the other hand, Lantz says that many fruit trees which now show some browning of the cambium layer may recover. This happened after the freeze in October of 1925, when enough connecting tissue between the roots and the branches survived to keep the tree alive

By waiting until the normal spring growth, fruit growers can determine exactly what sort of a program of pruning and replanting will be necessary.

CHUKAR PARTRIDGE HAS NOT INCREAED IN IOWA

The chukar partridge is now on its own to "sink or swim" as far as Iowa is concerned, reports Elmo A. Hicks, extension wildlife specialist at Iowa State College.

Hicks says the chukar partridge does not seem to be a satisfactory game bird for the state. The first stock of the partridges were made in Iowa in 1938.

"Since that time little evidence of reproduction of the birds in the wild has been reported," he says.

Now the Iowa State Conservation Commission has decided not to propagate any more of the partridges unless those already stocked show a tendency to reproduce in satisfactory numbers.

Another reason for the failure of the chukar as a game bird is that it is susceptible to many diseases common to domestic poultry such as coccidiosis and blackhead

In 1940, a total of 964 chukar partridges were stocked in 11 Iowa counties. The largest number of birds went to Monona county, Cass, Pottawattamie and Mills counties received 100 each.

The State Game Farm has now discontinued propagating the birds and none are being held at the present time.

FEBRUARY HOSTESS? TREAT GUESTS TO A PATRIOTIC TEA
(See Recipes Below)

ebruary is a party month; ev- hostess calendar should have the twelfth, the fourteenth, and the twenty-second ringed in red! And this year, with the renewed emphasis on patriotism which world crisis has brought, there's y reason to make Washington's Lincoln's birthdays occasions more patriotic partying than uso holiday in February lends it- to a tea quite like Washington's nday. But instead of tea, serve e with squares of hot, fragrant erbread as you see it in the pic- above. The spicy squares are h in keeping with the day, for hington's mother was said to been famous for her ginger- d. Make it by your own special e or use one of the packaged erbread mixes. All that you need for decorations is a bowl lowers and the silhouettes of rge and Martha Washington nted on white paper and hung to a background for the tea table. s a part of the food for the oc- on, serve a minted pear salad small deviled hot breads. These tender, crunchy biscuit hearts the top section cut out to show deviled ham filling. Let the bev- e be a deep red cranberry punch garnish each cup with a cube neapple stuck on a pick. If you to have a second course, small s or ice cream molds will finish menu in fine style.

sugar heart cake is a dessert ch any hostess could serve with e when a few friends come in Valentine's day evening. Fine e cake is put together with a my chocolate filling, and the e-top is decorated with confec- ers' sugar sifted through a lace y with a heart motif on it. When doily is removed, the design re- ins, etched neatly in sugar on eake.

Cranberry Punch.
(Makes 3 quarts)

cups sugar
ps boiling water

Pour punch mixture and bonated water over ice. Insert eapple cubes onto cocktail sticks place one in each cup. Fill s with punch.

Sugar Heart Cake.
(Makes 2 9-inch layers)

cups cake flour
teaspoons baking powder
teaspoon salt
cup butter or other shortening
cups sugar
eggs (unbeaten)
½ cups milk
teaspoons vanilla

ift cake flour once before meas- ng, then add baking powder and t and sift 3 times. Cream but- until soft, add sugar gradually d cream together until light and ffy. Add eggs and beat thorough- Add flour, alternately with milk, small amount at a time. Beat til smooth after each addition. en add vanilla.

Pour batter into 2 well-greased nch square pans (2 inches deep). ke in a moderate oven (350 de- ees Fahrenheit) for 35 to 40 min- s. Put together as layer cake, spreading chocolate cream filling between layers. Place lace doily made with heart motif over top of cake. Fasten securely to top of cake with toothpicks. Sprinkle surface generously and evenly with confectioners' sugar. Brush off excess with pastry brush, then remove picks and carefully lift off pattern. The design should be neatly etched in confectioners' sugar.

Chocolate Cream Filling.
(Makes 2½ cups)

3 squares unsweetened chocolate (3 ounces) (grated)
1¾ cups milk
¾ cup sugar
4 tablespoons cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg (slightly beaten)
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add chocolate to milk. Heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater to blend. Combine sugar, flour and salt. Add gradually to chocolate mixture and cook until thickened (about 5 minutes), stirring constantly. Then cook 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Pour small amount of mixture over egg, stirring vigorously, return to double boiler. Cook 2 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Then add butter and vanilla and cool.

Patriotic Sandwich Plate.
(25 star sandwiches;
40 rolled sandwiches)

2 1½-pound loaves sandwich bread
Softened butter
2 17-ounce cans jellied cranberry
1 cup dried beef (ground)
4 3-ounce packages cream cheese
4 tablespoons milk
4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon onion juice

Trim crusts from 1 loaf with sharp knife. Slice, lengthwise into ⅛-inch slices. If very long knife is not available, loaf will be easier to handle if cut in half crosswise before slicing. Wrap slices in damp towel and place in refrigerator for 30 minutes to 1 hour.

Meanwhile slice second loaf lengthwise into ⅛-inch slices. Cut out sandwiches with star-shaped cutter, then spread with softened butter. Slice jellied cranberry sauce into thin slices and cut into stars with same cutter. Place each slice of cranberry between two slices buttered bread.

Blend cream cheese with milk until softened, then add lemon and onion juice. Combine with ground beef and chopped nuts. Remove sliced bread from refrigerator, unwrap, and spread with softened butter, then with filling. Roll tightly into long rolls. Wrap each roll in waxed paper and place in refrigerator. When ready to serve, insert a small flag into end of each rolled sandwich. Stand them up around sides of a shallow bowl or basket so that flags hang over edge. Fill center of bowl or basket with star-shaped sandwiches.

Deviled Biscuit Hearts.
(Makes 18)

2 cups flour (all-purpose)
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup milk (approximately)
2 2¾ ounce cans deviled ham

Sift flour once before measuring. Add baking powder, salt, and sift together. Cut in shortening, using a pastry blender or two knives, or rub it in with the fingers. Add milk, stirring it in lightly with a fork, until a soft dough forms. Turn onto a lightly floured board and knead for a few seconds. Roll out to about ⅛ inch in thickness. Cut with a heart-shaped cutter. Remove the centers from half the biscuits. To do this, fold biscuit in half and cut out center with kitchen scissors, leaving a narrow rim. Spread deviled ham on whole biscuits, top with rims and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 12 to 15 minutes. Serve hot to accompany salad.

THE CHRISTIAN'S ATTITUDE TOWARD POSSESSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:10-15, 19-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye cannot serve God and mammon.—Luke 16:13.

"In the service" is an expression much used today. Every community has young men in the service of their country. But they are not the only "service men," for the fact is that every man and woman serves under some authority. Our lesson today reminds us that our attitude toward our possessions determines both character and destiny. We decide whether they shall rule us or we shall rule them.

I. Who Is Your Master—God or Gold? You Decide! (vv. 10-15).

The decision here is of the "either—or" variety. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (which means "riches").

Money itself is neither good nor bad. It is the use to which it is put that determines whether it is to bless or to destroy. Rightly gained and rightly used, money is an honor to the man who has it, and will, through him, become a means of blessing. On the other hand, money which controls a man will blast his own soul and those of others round him.

Who decides which it shall be? You—and you alone. Here we come to the central truth of the matter. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much" (v. 10). We generally read that as though it said, "He that is now faithful in a little will later have an opportunity to be faithful in much." That may be true, but what Jesus said here was that he "is faithful in much."

The point is that the man who is faithful in the much shows that life attitude by being faithful in the little. That is, only the man who is right in the great matter of his relationship with God will be the ruler over his possessions for the glory of God and the good of his fellow man.

Someone may say, "I don't believe that." Well, you are in bad company (see vv. 14, 15). The Pharisees, who loved money, who were self-righteous, and whose attitude was an abomination in the sight of God, derided the words of Jesus.

If you don't like that kind of companions, I invite you to come over on God's side.

II. Where Will You Spend Eternity? Your Life Decides (vv. 19-23).

Our life beyond the grave is determined by our life on this side of death. Yes, we know that eternal life is a gift of God received by faith in Christ as Saviour, quite apart from our own works or our merit. But let us not forget that this means far more than uttering a few words of profession or going through a formula.

The man who really turns to Christ in saving faith becomes a new creature; he is born again (I Pet. 1:23). That means that he walks "in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4). And thus his life in this world determines both by decision for Christ and daily living for Him that he will, like Lazarus, be received into eternal blessedness.

Sad to say, the opposite is also true. Living as the rich man did, for self, will bring judgment in the world to come. There is no indication that he was especially wicked, but only that he loved his money, revelled in the flamboyant display of his wealth (v. 19), and had no thought for others (v. 21). Here again, the point is that these outward deeds were the expression of a heart attitude against God.

Death came to both of these men. It will come to all of us, unless the Lord returns to take us to Himself. It is not a pleasant matter to think of death, but only the unintelligent will fail to recognize the coming of that day. When it comes, it may be too late to make any real life decisions. Now is the acceptable time. Today is the day of salvation.

The verses immediately following our lesson in chapter 16 indicate that the decision of men concerning their relationship to God is not dependent on the miraculous, but on moral and spiritual truth. The man who says he would believe if he could only see God perform a miracle is only evading the issue. Verse 31 says that the man who rejects God's Word does so because he wants to, not because he needs to be convinced by a miracle.

We Sleep to Wake

One who never turned his back, but marched breast forward,
Never doubted clouds would break;
Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph;
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better.
Sleep to wake.
—Robert Browning.

Know Yourself

The sage knows what is in him, but makes no display; he respects himself, but seeks not honor for himself.—Lao Tze.

THIS FUNNY WORLD

They Can See

Jim—I wonder why women pay more attention to beauty than brains?

Marion—Because no matter how stupid a man is, he is seldom blind.

As They Come

"What's the difference between ammonia and pneumonia?"

"One comes in bottles and the other in chests."

No Favors

Nockby—I think it commendable that Jubbs is so impartial.

Dzudi—Yes; but he carries it too far. When we went hunting last week he didn't seem to care whether he shot the rabbits, the dogs or one of the party.

Lots of Merriment

"I love looking at her when she laughs."

"Why?"

"There seems to be so much of her having a good time."

American women feel war horrors—perfumes scarce. (Headline in newspaper.) Scentimentalists.

Oh, So!

"What's your favorite dish?"

"A clean one."

Still Up

"Did you hear the step-ladder slip, mother?"

"Yes; I hope your father didn't fall."

"Not yet; he's still hanging on to the curtain rod."

Other Interests

Two boxers were engaged in what appeared to be a hugging match.

A voice from the gallery shouted: "Turn out the lights. They want to be alone."

Came a second voice: "Leave the lights alone. I want to read."

Trivial Cause

"What did your father die of?" the doctor asked a Negro who was being examined for life insurance.

"Ah don't know, boss," he replied, "but it wasn't nothing serious."

PATTERN DEPARTMENT — SEWING CIRCLE

HERE'S a pretty new home frock that looks well on everybody from slim size 12's to stately size 40's. Made up in bright percale or calico prints, or in checked gingham, with ric-rac outlining the neckline and points of interest, it looks fresh and gay as a morning-glory. And this is a thoroughly comfortable dress, too. The sash belt, tied in the back, enables you to adjust the waistline to exactly the snugness or slimness you like.

A glance at the little diagram drawing, showing pattern No. 1305-B cut out and ready to assemble, shows you how simply made it is. Merely straight, long seams, a few darts and gathers—that's all. Anybody can make it, quickly and easily.

Pattern No 1305-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 5⅝ yards of 35-inch material, 1 yard trimming. Detailed sew chart included. Send order to.

The Dark Ages

Most historians place the period of the Dark ages between the time the western Roman empire fell in 475 A. D. and the discovery of the pandects — a systematically arranged collection of Roman laws—at Amalfi, Italy, in 1150, or a period of about seven centuries. The discovery of these laws led to a general study of Roman and Greek literature which overcame much of the intellectual darkness which had come with the barbarians who had spread over the continent from northern Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jahnke, of Garner, are the proud parents of a baby boy born Friday, February 7th. The new arrival has been named Ronald Gene. Mrs. Raymond Gruben is caring for the mother and baby.

PIGS WON'T GAIN BEST IF WATER IS ICE COLD

You can "lead pigs to water" but you can't make them drink as much as they need from an ice-bound trough while a cold north wind is whipping about says A. L. Anderson, animal husbandman at Iowa State College.

"The water supply is just as important in maintaining good hog gains in winter as it is in summer," Anderson states, "and the supply is more often deficient in winter."

The important thing is not so much to have warm water as to have the place of watering close to the feeding quarters. However, in an experiment at Iowa State College pigs which were given water warmed by an automatic kerosene heater made slightly higher gains.

Two lots of pigs were used in this experiment, Anderson reports. One lot given cold water twice daily consumed an average of 8.3 pounds of water per head as compared to 10.26 pounds for pigs receiving heated water. It was found that there was not much difference in amounts consumed between watering twice and three times per day.

Anderson says that water given hogs need not be warm to be satisfactory. If the chill is removed, however, the hogs will drink more.

Prison Terms Meted Out By Judge Boynton

THREE MEN SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR FARM THEFTS

Belmond and Goodell Men Each Given Five-Year Terms

Raymond Pals, 37, farmer near Belmond, and Kenneth Griggs, 19, of Goodell, were each given five-year sentences Saturday afternoon when they pleaded guilty to County Attorney Lovrien's information and were brought before Judge Tom Boynton at Forest City who pronounced the sentences.

Earlier in the week Harold Riekens, 23, of Thornton, was arrested for his part in the crimes committed by the trio, and he plead guilty and was sentenced to five years at Anamosa.

The men were accussed of a series of farm thefts in Hancock County and Wright County and were arrested last week by Sheriff Brower who was working with Wright County officials in obtaining confessions. The men confessed to larceny of a number of hogs, besides the theft of gasoline. Sheriff Brower apprehended the men when they were in the act of butchering a stolen hog at the Pals farm.

Pals was sentenced to the state penitentiary at Fort Madison, Iowa while Griggs was sent to the reformatory at Anamosa

About thirty members of the Klemme Civic club met at the Community Hall last Thursday evening, and after the business session enjoyed a social evening and a dutch lunch. The Auxiliary ladies served the lunch and the men enjoyed hamburger sandwiches, coffee and pie.

A number of minor problems were discussed and a few plans made for the coming months.

The monthly meetings of the Club are intended to bring the men in closer contact with his neighbors and after the business session the balance of the evening will be spent in recreation or visiting.

First Signs Of Spring

START GARDENING DURING FEBRUARY

Gardeners who want to have early blooming flowers don't need to wait until spring to plant them. Two of the most popular flowers. Penstemon and Salvia farinaceae, can be planted indoors in February.

L. C. Grove, Iowa State College extension horticulturist, says that these two flowers will come into bloom a month or two sooner if they're started indoors, repotted when necessary, and transplanted into the garden in May.

Penstemon, which has trumpet-shaped blossoms, will look much like the snapdragons, will bloom all summer if one keeps cutting the flowers. The Blue Bedder variety of salvia, which is the best to plant, is equally as prolific.

Grove suggests a starting-flat soil mixture of equal parts of garden loam, peat and sand. He recommends transplanting the seedlings to "thumb-size" 2½ inch pots as soon as the true leaves appear, and transplanting to 3½-inch pots as the plant grows.

Most annual flowers will bloom earlier and longer if planted early indoors. In March, for example, snapdragons, petunias, ageratum, verbena and dwarf dahlias may be started.

NEW RED CLOVER WILL BE OFFERED

Midland, a new variety of red clover, will be available to Iowa farmers in limited quantities for spring planting, according to reports received by agronomists Iowa State College from United States Department of Agriculture. The new clover, result 12 years of breeding, testing increasing in mid-western states is believed to be superior to the average red clover seed in Iowa

Three Old Strains

Dr. C. P. Wilsie, research agronomist, says that Midland red clover is a composite of three outstanding old strains, one from Illinois and two from Ohio The new clover appears to be somewhat resistant to northern anthracnose, is winter hardy and good growth characteristics check of the new variety over 3-year period at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station indicates that it is well adapted to Iowa conditions.

Wilsie said that supplies of the new seed probably would be made available through the regular seed channels such as seed marketing associations and private companies..

Send Western States

Under a program worked out by seed improvement associations and the United States Department of Agriculture, mid-western states will produce pure seed stock of the strains which make up Midland red clover. These strains will be sent to western states for use in red clover seed production. The western states are a naturally "favorite" seed production area, but in the past have been producing seed not adapted to the mid-west. Supplying foundation stock to western seed growers will eliminate this problem, agronomists believe.

MACHINE SAVES INFERTILE EGGS

A new "egg-saver" machine that makes possible the removal of infertile eggs from their hatches at from 15 to 20 hours of incubation and their sale at top egg prices to consumers has been developed at Iowa State College.

Dr. George F. Stewart, poultry specialist, who developed the machine, says it is adapted for use both large and small hatcheries units can be added.

Two Units

The "egg-saver" consists of separate units. One is a preincubation chamber in which eggs are carried at normal incubator temperatures for the 15 to 20-day periods; the second is a candler which enables the picking out of infertile eggs at this early stage. The incubation chamber prevents the loss of carbon dioxide from the eggs, thus preserving their quality so efficiently that the average market grade of the eggs recovered is U S Extra.

Three Savings

Three distinct savings for the operator are claimed through use of the machine: Infertile eggs are recovered and sold. Space is saved because eggs that will not hatch are not kept, and there is the possibility of getting an earlier check on hatching-flock fertility. Tests of the machine show that the total cost of the preincubaion and candling is less than half of the return obtained from the sale of the recovered infertile eggs.

Boy Scout Work Encourages Confidence in Young America

By WARREN WILLIAM
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Plagued by fears of world disaster, Americans will find new encouragement in the future of this country during Boy Scout week, February 7 to 13. More than 1,500,000 future citizens are enrolled in this nation-wide organization which follows the slogan, "Be Prepared."

Fully conscious of the emergency facing America today, the Boy Scouts are endeavoring to become a signal and effective asset to the country. Scout officials point out that the new slogan "Strengthening and Invigorating Democracy," is more than just a slogan—it is a plan of action.

Take 'Roll Call.'

First step in this new program was taken last September. Because it was done smoothly and efficiently, few persons were even conscious of the nation-wide roll call and inventory taken in every one of the 40,000 Scout units throughout the nation. This work forms the basis of an extensive plan to make Scouting more effective.

In many communities older boys are making ready to act as Emergency Service Corps, trained to apply Scout lore in assisting the Red Cross and other existing agencies in times of disaster.

Invaluable services performed by Boy Scouts during emergencies are familiar to almost all Americans. Every year brings additional accounts of youngsters who save lives through prompt action made possible by their rudimentary training in first aid and self-reliance.

Help in Emergencies.

New England and Florida, still recovering from the hurricanes and floods of 1938, remember the Boy Scouts with warmth. Running messages, taking care of refugees, and many times actually saving lives in dramatic episodes, these Scouts showed themselves to be fine examples of young manhood.

These teen-age boys also proved their worth during the World war by selling more than $400,000,000 worth of Liberty Loan subscriptions. They also distributed $43,000,000 worth of War Savings Stamps and located over 5,200 carloads of standing walnut trees for defense authorities.

"Learning by doing" is the only "secret" to the ability of Boy Scouts to meet emergencies. Their program is an active one, stressing outdoor life and self-reliance.

The Boy Scouts of America were founded as the result of a "good turn" performed by an unknown Scout in London. During the winter of 1910 the late William D. Boyce, a Chicago publisher, was in London on a business trip. One evening when he became hopelessly lost in a heavy fog, a boy appeared out of the night and offered to guide him. Mr. Boyce handed the youth a tip, but he refused it, saying he was a Boy Scout and part of his duty was to be helpful.

Familiar to millions of Americans is this symbolic picture of a Boy Scout. It has appeared on the front cover of the Scout Handbook for many years.

The result was the founding of an organization in America that has attracted more than 8,700,000 persons during the last 31 years.

Taft Honorary President.

President William Taft accepted the office of honorary president proffered him immediately upon the organization's incorporating, and since that time each succeeding President has held that office.

Great progress was made in 1911 to put the organization on a sound basis. The national council was established and the first annual meeting was held at the White House. The first edition of the Handbook was published and the Scout oath, law, badge and fundamental policies were adopted. Before the end of the year the membership grew to include 61,500 Scouts and organizers.

The Scout movement was expanded to include members in every state during 1912. Sea Scouting was launched and Boys' Life was purchased to become the official magazine. During the spring of 1913 the Scouts gave their first assistance in a major disaster when spring floods inundated parts of Ohio and Indiana.

After the end of the World war in 1918, the Scouts rendered first-aid service throughout the country in the influenza epidemic. That year Rotary clubs started the present wide-spread co-operation by business men's clubs and other institutions in sponsoring troops.

Half-Million Members.

Membership in the Boy Scouts of America passed the half-million mark in 1920. The first International Scout Jamboree which was held in London that year was attended by representatives from 32 countries, including 300 from the United States.

Today, with the largest membership in its history, the Boy Scouts of America are ready for any demands that may be made of them in the present world crisis. It is ready not only to act in case of emergency, but it is ready to continue to uphold American democracy.

World's Largest Airport Nears Completion in Miami

MIAMI, FLA.—The world's largest commercial aviation landing field, a 900-acre tract with runways a mile long, is nearing completion on the outskirts of Miami.

Known as the Miami International Air terminal, the new air base will be the clearing house for all air traffic between the United States, the West Indies and the South American Republics. It represents a potential expenditure of more than $9,000,000.

Present plans call for the runways and landing field facilities to be completed by July 1, when the new airport will be formally placed in service.

Last year during a period of six months 1,152 planes entered or cleared Miami to and from the West Indies, Cuba and Central and South American countries, carrying 45,814 passengers, 243,428 pounds of mail, and 291,540 pounds of express, valued at more than $5,500,000.

Author Describes 'Life After Death'

Claims Ample Experiment Provides Real Proof For His Theory.

NEW YORK.—Though differing in its military phase, World war II nonetheless appears to be running true to the form of World war I in an aspect important in the opinion of psychologists. That aspect has to do with revival of wide-spread interest in what from the religious standpoint is called spiritualism and in scientific circles is known as psychical research.

It was during the mass killings of the first World war that Conan Doyle stopped the flow of his famous Sherlock Holmes detective stories to announce boldly that he was in communication with the dead and could prove it. The rest of his life was given over to offering that proof, or what he thought was proof of his theory.

'Speaks' With Dead.

Actuated by the same conviction, Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the great physical scientists of all time, brought consolation into millions of bereaved British homes by his book, "Raymond." In it he related conversations he believed he had had with his son after the latter's death in action during a battle "somewhere in France."

But the psychic work of Doyle and that of Lodge were only examples of the hundreds of "revelations" published in England and America between 1914 and 1920—by ouija board operators, table-tilters and amateur clairvoyants as well as by trained scientific experimenters. In addition, strange tales had been brought back by soldiers who had fought at the front. Many still remember the story of the Angels of Mons.

And now with Europe once more drenched in blood, with people being killed daily and whole populations living under hourly threat of death, men of achievement like Lodge and Doyle are again testifying to their conviction that those who have died can and do communicate with the living. And this time something more than mere testimony is being offered. One book, just published, "The Unobstructed Universe," by Stewart Edward White, undertakes to chart a program for proving survival by physical experiment and not just through so-called revelation.

Life After Death.

He has embarked on what he considers an even more important exploring task—that of finding out and reporting what goes on beyond the very borders of life itself. Why he believes he has succeeded in this new exploration is told in "The Unobstructed Universe."

His interest in psychical research is due largely to the persistence of his wife, Betty. It had long been established that she herself was possessed of remarkable psychic powers. But White was skeptical. 20 years ago of his wife's excursions into a forbidden frontier which he could not explore himself. An unusually practical man, he had to be shown, and was at last convinced only by the mounting weight of evidence she provided.

It was a logical outcome of their joint psychic experiments that, after his wife's death in April, 1939, White set about seeking to establish contact with her. How, in his own belief, he finally succeeded he related in "The Unobstructed Universe."

White's book purports to present a detailed report of how the spiritual form retains its personal identity; how it is fed, clothed and sheltered. The work and even the pleasures of life after death are described.

Of intense interest is the explanation offered of how the transcended individual lives on with earthly friends, though unseen—not merely as a memory, but as a fully aware person.

Some will think, as they did in the case of Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge, that Stewart Edward White, self-deceived, is just another brilliant writer of good literature gone wrong.

"I don't object to that," he says. "It's part of the game of putting over a new idea."

CONVOYS FOR SHIPS TO BRITAIN

WASHINGTON. — Advisers who have talked to the President during the last four months say that he has gone through a significant transition regarding aid to Britain, also regarding a more aggressive policy toward Japan.

Last August, for instance, Secretaries Stimson, Knox and Morgenthau, who have strong influence on international policy, wanted Roosevelt to bar all oil shipments to Japan. But the state department persuaded Roosevelt to the contrary.

Several months later, when the duke of Windsor flew to visit Roosevelt during his Caribbean cruise, the duke put up to him the desperate plight of British shipping and asked for American naval convoys to protect British ships across the Atlantic. To this the President gave an emphatic No.

It was at approximately the same time that the late Lord Lothian came back from England and submitted a list of the naval vessels Britain would need to maintain her lifeline of supplies from the U. S. A. The list included not only destroyers, but four cruisers of the Omaha class.

Lord Lothian did not actually ask for these ships. He merely listed the vessels which Britain desperately needed. But Roosevelt continued to shy away from the idea of convoying British ships with U. S. naval vessels.

Later certain White House advisers, including such powerful figures as Secretaries Knox and Stimson, pointed out that the British navy had lost a terrific toll of men, did not even have enough seamen to man the American over-age destroyers. What Britain needed was ships manned by the U. S. navy.

The British picture was also made depressing by the difficulty of finishing work on vessels in British shipyards. Two battleships of the King George class were launched last spring, but since then no ship of any importance has come off the ways. Reason is that the bombardment of Britain began in earnest last summer, and shipyards have been one of the main targets. Since the yards are exposed they have suffered much more than factories. As a result ships have been bombed, patched up, then bombed again.

Another development is that within the last 10 days in the Mediterranean, where the British have lost the equivalent of seven ships. The Southampton was sunk. The Illustrious was put out of commission, and five others damaged so badly that repairs will take two or three months. Repairs are difficult in the Mediterranean because Malta is under constant bombardment and the naval base at Gibraltar is small.

Meanwhile, German bombers, realizing that the strength of the British fleet in the Mediterranean is the key to victory, have taken over Italian bases and are raining destruction on the royal navy.

It was the succession of these developments which began to change Roosevelt's mind about U. S. naval convoys for British shipping.

Note—No commitments have been given the British, and no policy has been definitely decided for convoying British ships. But advisers believe the President will adopt such a policy if permitted by congress.

SCURRILOUS LITERATURE

Sensational feature of the forthcoming report of the senate campaign fund investigating committee will be an expose of scurrilous literature disseminated in last year's hectic presidential battle. A 500-page "scrapbook" of exhibits has been assembled by Harold Buckles, committee investigator, from all over the country.

While partisans of both candidates resorted to this type of literature, more than 80 per cent of Buckles' collection is anti-Roosevelt. Also, of 466 typical exhibits, one-half are wholly [illegible]mous or only vaguely identi[illegible].

The [illegible]ittee lists 135 such groups, [illegible]which 111 were pro-Willkie and 22 pro-Roosevelt. Only six of the 135 filed reports of their contributions and expenditures with the clerk of the house. This failure to report is a violation of the law and carries heavy penalties.

Dominant theme of the scurrilous literature is racial and religious prejudice. More than 60 per cent of the committee's exhibits harp on this, 10 per cent played up the war issue, and 15 per cent leveled foul personal attacks on the candidates.

Note — Committee investigators are of the private opinion that not less than $10,000,000 was spent for this material.

THE AUTO HORN SOLUTION

Mayor LaGuardia of New York is in another campaign against automobile horns, but hizzoner makes the same mistake others make when he thinks anything can be done about auto horns except abolishing the darned things. Campaigns to soften the notes, decrease the volume and dilute the pitch are silly. An auto horn is an auto horn anyway you take it, the human thumb being what it is today.

Caricature of Mayor LaGuardia by Jack Rosen which won first prize recently in Waldorf-Astoria employees exhibition in arts and crafts.

The mere presence of a horn on an automobile transforms a driver into a speed maniac, a pig, and a fathead with the manners of a dictator and the ethics of a gangster.

He can own a revolver without the slightest yen to use it; he can possess a shotgun without the least impulse to use it, but put an automobile horn under his control and he becomes a potential assassin with all the instincts of a hungry hyena.

"It is the horn," said Elmer Twitchell today, "that gives an auto owner the Nero complex, shucks him of all remnants of civilized impulses and makes him a plain damned fool, filled with the idea that all he has to do is to press the button to make the whole world jump.

"I don't care whether it is a loud horn or a soft horn, a bass horn or a canary, a blaster or a boop-a-dooper, nothing can prevent the owner from making a nuisance out of it, and Mayor LaGuardia is suffering from drooping intelligence if he thinks otherwise.

"All the reckless driving, all the violations of automobile laws, all the disrespect for the rights of other highway users, and most of the auto accidents are due to the horn, and to nothing else. Take that horn off the car and the driver would be forced to depend on common sense.

"Back in the horse and buggy days you didn't see teams crashing into one another at every crossroad or wobbling all over the road at breakneck speed, did you? And why not? Because they never had horns on horses!

"Yes sir, this world started going savage the day the first horn was clamped to a gasoline vehicle. It started swelling up with inconsiderateness, self-importance and the to-hell-with-everybody-else spirit the first time an auto designer put a button under a car owner's calloused thumb. It converted a nation of tolerant, easy-going, kindly folks into a country of bad-mannered, jittery, wild-riding, mean and homicidal dogs. It made bigger and better hospitals the never-ceasing need of America.

* * *

"And there will be no change until the horn is removed, made unconstitutional and plowed under for all time. Man won't be so reckless, so selfish and so pigheaded once he has to depend on brakes instead of breach of the peace'"

But yesterday I caught him with A folder on Southern resorts!

SHORT STORY

A motor car,
A little horn,
A human thumb . . .
And peace is "gorn."

Women's hats for spring and summer are being taken from the old family album. Instead of out of old numbers of "Puck" and "Judge."

A New Jersey court holds that anybody walking on a moving escalator does so at his or her own risk. Not only that, but it looks so darned silly.

Elmer Twitchell, in our opinion, always had the right idea on escalators and energy conservation. He always sits down on them.

American Agriculture Indebted To Abraham Lincoln More Than To Any Other of Our Presidents

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

A TALL man in rusty black arose from his chair on a flag-draped platform and made his way awkwardly to the speaker's stand. He seemed ill at ease as he gazed on the athered faces of the crowd before him.

Then he began to speak. Almost at once his self-consciousss vanished. His sorrowful, deep-set eyes lighted up. His ce warmed. His hearers ned forward to catch each rd.

"No other human occupan," he said, "opens so wide ield for the profitable and reeable combination of la- with cultivated thought agriculture . . . Every blade grass is a study; and to oduce two where there was t one is both a profit and a easure. And not grass one, but soils, seeds and asons; saving crops, dises of crops and what will event and cure them; hogs, rses and cattle; trees, rubs, fruits, plants and wers—each is a world of udy within itself."

The speaker was Abraham Lin-ln. The time was September , 1859. The place was the agriltural fair held by the Wisconn State Agricultural society at ilwaukee.

Most Americans remember Lin-ln as our first martyred Presint, as the Great Emancipator, the statesman whose principles ave stirred men everywhere. ew, perhaps, realize what a pround influence Lincoln and his dministration left on the agriulture of the United States. Yet ll his life he was a close student farming. He knew its needs nd foresaw the possibilities of its dvancement as few men have one before or since. And it was s a nationally recognized repreentative of the farmer and the mall town democracy he knew o well that he was invited to ddress that meeting in Milwaukee.

These things considered, it is ot surprising that in the anguish f the Civil war that threatened he nation's existence, Lincoln ound time to promote the cause f agriculture and give it an impetus that is felt down to this day.

Boyhood on a Farm.

Abe's early boyhood was spent n a farm of 30 acres near Knob reek, about 10 miles northeast of his birthplace at Hodgenville, Ky. Because of the hills and gullies nly 14 acres could be cultivated.

In the fall of 1816 the Lincoln family moved again—this time across the Ohio river into the heavily timbered wilderness of southern Indiana. Here they established themselves on a knoll surrounded by marshy, malaria-ridden fields. There was no drinking water within a mile. Although Thomas Lincoln acquired an option on 160 acres to be paid for in installments at $2 an acre, he completed payments on only half of this land. The elder Lincoln continued to vary his farming and hunting by doing occasional jobs of carpentry. In 1824, after the family had been in Indiana seven years, the cultivated area of the farm totaled only 17 acres.

Thus young Lincoln as a boy of 15 was hired out to the neighbors to plow, hoe corn, split rails and make fences. He also worked as a ferryman on the Ohio river. For this work his father received $6 a month. During the hog-packing season, however, he received an additional 31 cents a day.

Once more the Lincolns pushed westward. This time it was early in the spring of 1830 and the family trekked to the bluffs along the Sangamon river in Macon county, Illinois. Reaching majority soon afterward, Abraham Lincoln bade farewell to his family and began life for himself.

Although he left farm work behind as a career, Lincoln never ceased to interest himself in agriculture. As a surveyor, as postmaster and storekeeper at New Salem, as a lawyer riding the court circuit around Illinois, as a congressman and as President he continued to be a student of farming and farm improvement.

When Lincoln entered the White House, farming was being carried on much the same as it had been in the past half-century. Man and horse power were still the main reliance on the average farm, although an impressive start had been made toward mechanization and improvement of farm implements. It took about as long to plow a field, plant a crop and cultivate it as it had taken in Revolutionary war days. This was particularly true of the newer areas of settlement.

The reaper had been invented about 30 years before, but its use was by no means universal. The steel plow had been introduced in the late 1830s and had helped speed the opening of the newly settled West. The science of soil chemistry was even more recent. Although experiments in plant feeding in Europe led to the establishment of the modern fertilizer in this country in 1850, production amounted to only 20,000 tons in 1860. Today American farmers use nearly 8,000,000 tons annually.

Aids to Agriculture.

Soon after his inauguration, Lincoln began throwing the weight of his influence behind measures that would strengthen the position of agriculture and promote its future growth. This was sound strategy in view of the impending Civil war. Within a year three bills of outstanding significance had been passed. These were the Act Establishing the United States Department of Agriculture, the Homestead act, and the Land Grant College act. Agriculture today owes a debt to the administration which sponsored these acts. The progress it has achieved in the past 75 years would never have been possible without them.

JUSTIN S. MORRILL

As early as his first message to congress in December, 1861, Lincoln pointed out the necessity for a department of agriculture.

"Agriculture, confessedly the largest interest of the nation," he declared, "has not a department, nor a bureau, but a clerkship only assigned to it in this government.

"While it is fortunate that this great interest is so independent in its nature as not to have demanded or extorted more from the government, I respectfully ask congress to consider whether something more cannot be voluntarily given with general advantage."

The Act Establishing the Department of Agriculture was the result, and in his second annual message the President was able to report:

"To carry out the provisions of the Act of Congress of May 15th last, I have caused the Department of Agriculture of the United States to be organized. The Commissioner informs me that within the period of a few months, this department has established an extensive system of correspondence and exchanges both at home and abroad which promise to effect highly beneficial results in the development of a current knowledge of recent improvements of agriculture, in the introduction of new products, and in the collection of the agricultural statistics of the different states. Also it will be prepared to distribute, largely, seeds, cereals, plants and cuttings, and has already published and liberally diffused much valuable information in anticipation of a more elaborate report which will in due time be furnished, embracing some valuable tests in chemical science now in progress in the laboratory."

Lincoln closed his statement with the hope that the department would "realize at not too distant a day all the fondest anticipations of its most sanguine friends and become the fruitful source of advantages to all our people."

How prophetic was this hope is a matter of history. Although the department was not represented in the cabinet with a secretary until 1889, it proved its worth immediately. Today every farm home feels its benefits. County agents everywhere assist farmers in improving their farm methods, testing their soil to determine its plant food needs, advising them on how to increase the productivity of their holdings.

The Homestead Act.

Another milestone in agricultural development was the Homestead act, signed by President Lincoln on May 20, 1862. During the course of its operation nearly 250,000,000 acres of public domain have been thrown open to private farm ownership.

Instead of requiring the payment of $1.25 or more per acre, the Homestead act gave 160 acres free to every settler who would live on it for five years. Settlers rushed into the new lands, and while the Civil war was still in progress 2,500,000 acres were thus given away. This created more than 15,000 farms of 160 acres each. New railroads were built to link the western farm lands with the eastern markets. The new crops helped feed the Union armies, furnish fibers and raw materials to factories, and provided an exportable surplus which built a profitable trade with Europe.

Most important step in aiding the cause of scientific agriculture was the Morrill act, or Land Grant College act, named for Justin S. Morrill, representative in congress and afterwards senator from Vermont. Signed by President Lincoln on July 2, 1862, this law gave to each state as many times 30,000 acres of public land as it had senators and representatives. This land was to provide funds for the establishment and support of a "college of agriculture and mechanical arts."

The far-flung system of agricultural colleges in every state of the Union today owes its existence to this act. These colleges are a powerful factor in discovering new facts concerning the soil, its needs, crop and live stock improvement and better farming methods. Not only do these colleges educate young men to apply these facts and methods in actual farm work, but agronomists and soil scientists are continually carrying on experiments with crops, soils and fertilizers in their states. As a result of their work, the average farmer can have the benefit of expert and practical advice in preparing his soil for profitable crop production. Many of these colleges provide recommendations for fertilizer grades best adapted to the needs of a farmer's soils and crops after a test has established the necessity for nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

"Lincoln's contributions to the development of agriculture," said an official of the Middle West Soil Improvement committee recently, "stand as much a monument to his greatness as any of his other achievements during his presidency. It was astounding that under the stress of war and destruction he could have sponsored and supported measures that would have such epochal consequences to our development."

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

Washington, D. C.

ROOSEVELT THE LEADER

No matter how much you may disagree with him, or how sincerely you feel that the course he has followed and is following is dangerous to the very principles he is trying to uphold, you have to concede, that our third-term President is a great credit to our country in a troubled world.

Nobody could help being proud of General Pershing among the Allied commanders of the World war. No foreign general approached him in soldierly appearance and bearing. None was his superior in determination or professional attainment None contributed more to Allied victory. It made you glad that you too were an American to see him in any contrast with soldiers of other nations. For every good quality of his is a characteristically American quality refined and brought to a peak of excellence. He looked American, talked American and acted American.

All this was especially apparent and must have been emphasized to the whole world throughout the day of his third inauguration. This column isn't going to go softy in its debate of what it thinks are Mr. Roosevelt's dangerous errors in these critical times, but there is surely no aspect of that in acknowledging a thrill of pride in the thought that I am a citizen of the same country of which he is President and that, in the face of a world so dangerous, this country has a leader of such commendable stature.

No matter what fate may have in store for Mr. Roosevelt—and for us—I think that for good or ill, he will also take his place in that company. As President of the United States I don't agree with him, but as a citizen of the United States I am proud of him just the same.

YOUR OWN GALLUP POLL

The lowering level of British dollar credits may be a reason for hastening some kind of provisions for granting credits or even gifts to England, so that her placing of orders here may not be delayed, thus delaying deliveries a year from now. But that is no reason for bum's-rushing the "lease-lend" monstrosity through congress without ample debate.

That bill is very much more than an aid-to-Britain bill. It is an abdication of congressional war powers to the President and authorizes in him to engage in economic and partial military and naval war, for or in behalf of any nation anywhere in the world. That is not at all necessary for aid-to-Britain, which could be given to the full of whatever has been asked by her in a much simpler bill and without surrendering our constitutional form of government in favor of a one-man commander-in-chief of all our destinies. There is no popular demand for any such revolutionary action. There is popular demand for aid-to-Britain. Advantage has been taken of this to write a bill for a military dictatorship and then say: "This is aid-to-Britain—in the only way." That simply is not true. It is a cruel misleading of the public and a misuse of public opinion, as are many other aspects of this bill.

In this remark, our tendency to government by Gallup polls is somewhat responsible. During a recent five days in bed with flu, I had a chance to check up on my fan mail. It is full of sentiment for aid-to-Britain. It is overwhelmingly against our rushing into this war. As the points made in this column are beginning to be understood, it is increasingly against the bill. I believe if the bill is debated long enough to make clear what is going on here, it can never pass without amendments restricting it to the real popular purpose—aid-to-Britain.

No Gallup polls have brought out these distinctions. The questions, especially recently, have been increasingly phrased in such a way as to lead to answers looking to our greater and greater unnecessary involvement in war. Yet every poll posing the stark question of involvement results in resounding "no's," in overwhelming majority.

Here is an experiment that every American bewildered by these sinister developments can make for himself. Conduct your own Gallup Poll. When you hear from Washington (as you will because that is part of the pro-war propaganda) that the people overwhelmingly want this bill or something vastly more than aid-to-Britain, set aside a part of every day, to ask not only friends, but strangers, whether they want to go further than aid-to-Britain?

I can't guarantee the result, but from my mail most of our people don't want to go a step further than the preparation of an impregnable American defense and such help to beleaguered Britain as can be given without getting us into bloody war. Try it yourself. If you find the facts as my mail indicates, make yourself heard in Washington by exercising your constitutional right of informing your representatives in congress what their constituents think. These are critical days in the Battle of America It is your battle for the future

THE baton Judy Garland carried fourteen years ago in an act which she did with her sisters at a Lancaster theater has been rejuvenated for her starring role in "Ziegfeld Girl."

Four-year-old Judy kept the "stick" among her souvenirs of "The Gumm Sisters" era. During "Pigskin Parade," in which she first won screen recognition, she carried it again. Now as the drum majorette in the M-G-M musicale finale number, it once again comes out of hiding—but with a difference. Like Judy, it's been glamourized.

Painted in silver, it has 100 sparkling rhinestones studding the head. "I'm sure if it had been as impressive 14 years ago as it is now, we would have received more than 50 cents apiece for our 'Gumm Sisters' act," chuckled the young star.

Rise Stevens, young American mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, who made her first appearance at the White House when she participated in the Inaugural concert this year, has been signed by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer. Her first picture will be a Technicolor musical; she'll leave for Hollywood at the end of April, after the completion of her concert and radio season, and begin work in May.

Rise Stevens

She made her debut with the Metropolitan in 1938 (she'd shattered a 55-year-old record, when she was 19, by informing Metropolitan officials that she was "not yet ready to accept the greatest opportunity opened to a young artist"). Still in her mid-twenties, she is one of the company's leading mezzo-sopranos, and lovely looking to boot. She's going to offer very, very keen competition for Jeanette MacDonald.

It was aching arms, not art, that lent a new and more sinister note to Humphrey Bogart's performance in Warner Brothers' "High Sierra." Visitors to the set noticed a new and sinister alertness, produced by Bogart's carrying his arms out from his body as if ready for a quick draw.

But—"When you have a holster strapped tight under each arm all day, you get tired of the contact and involuntarily hold your arms away from your body," Bogart explained. "But I may as well confess; when I found that it gave a sinister effect, I kept doing it, even without guns."

Boris Karloff is appearing on the New York stage in a goofy and hilarious murder mystery entitled, "Arsenic and Old Lace." He's cast as a man who terrifies people because he looks so much like Boris Karloff of the movies. And even highly sophisticated members of the audience are audibly delighted when they recognize him. Mr. Karloff, incidentally, gives an excellent performance as the man who resembles him.

Hospitality for Our Over-Night Guests

SOME people have a talent for making guests comfortable and they are not always the people with big houses and what used to be called a "spare room" for company. I thought of this one morning as I sat propped up on a perfectly comfortable folding cot eating breakfast from a tray.

When not in use my cot was stored in the hall under the in-

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

The Plea of The Milk Bottle

W en he leaves me on the doorstep
Then the milkman's work is done,
But, my friends, I wish to tell you
That your business has begun
D r t.- don't leave me out unnoticed
If you'd have me sweet and nice,
Take me in at once and put me
Very quickly on the ice.
And if you wish my service
To be altogether right,
I beg you keep me covered
Thru the day and thru the night
For those bandits called "bacteria"
Are a most mischievous mob,
And to rout them, a milk bottle
Must always be on the job.
When my work for you is over,
Pray don't turn me out to roam,
But be good enough to wash me,
And then kindly send me "home."

CUR BOUQUET TO EARL HALL . . .

Our bouquet this week goes to W. Earl Hall, managing editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette, for being chosen by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and head of the Carnegie Foundation of International Peace, as a member of a party of twelve educators and journalists for a South American Good Will Tour in March and April.

The group is made up of five educators, five newspaper men, a representative of the Carnegie foundation and the executive secretary for the tour from Columbia University.

No better man could have been selected than Earl Hall. He is Iowa's No. 1 Prince of Good Fellows and if the other eleven gentlemen are of equal caliber, the Good Will Tour will be a great success and will do much to further our friendship with our neighbors to the south.

We are sure Earl will do a splendid job of representing Iowa and the Middle West on this good will mission.

No. Bounty.

Page county supervisors have recently ruled that before a bounty can be paid on animals or birds, they must be identified and the location of the farm on which they were killed must also be told. In the past, they have discovered that they have paid bounties on birds and animals killed outside the county.

Saved.

Glen Lundberg and Walter Eickelberg of Waverly were able to save the life of H. H. Schmidt of Denver, Iowa. Schmidt had fallen and injuring his back seven days previously. After managing to get to a cot had lain there without food or water or any fire. When found both legs were frozen in spite of his efforts to keep warm.

Exports or imports of feed grain are exepected to be of little signficance in 1941.

MUSIC NEWS

Because of the change in the home economics classes, it will be necessary to make out a new lesson schedule. This schedule will go into effect this week. Small instrumental groups that will enter the contest are Clarinet Quartett, Brass Quartett, Brass Sextet and Saxophone Quartett.

Schools that took part in the tournament band were Goodell, Garner, Corwith and Klemme. Corwith had 3 instruments the first night. They included a baritone, a drum and clarinet. Garner had nine instruments including 1 cornet, 1 trombone, 1 tuba, 1 baritone, 1 alto sax, and 4 clarinets. Goodell had 4 instruments, including 1 cornet. 1 trombone, 1 drum and 1 clarinet. Klemme had a total of eight instruments including 2 cornets, 2 horns, 1 trombone. 1 alto sax, and 2 clarinets.

The second night Corwith had 5 instruments including 1 cornet, 1 trombone, 1 baritone and 2 clarinets. Garner had 6 instruments, 2 cornets. 1 trombone. 1 baritone and 2 clarinets. Goodell had 5 instruments, 1 cornet, 1 trombone, 2 drums and 1 clarinet. Klemme had 14 instruments. 2 cornets, 2 horns. 1 trombone, 1 baritone, 1 tuba 2 alto sax, and 5 clarinets.

SPORTS

On February 17th the Klemme Shamrocks will travel to Mason City where they will meet the Holy Family Maroons. Holy Family will try to seek revenge for losing their first game of the season to Klemme. The Holy Family has greatly improved since their first few games of the season, so this should be a good game.

SPORTS NONSENSE

Wayne Bird Can't play basketball very well any more because he's suffering from a very sore toe. Evidently too many girls are stepping on his toes when he dances. He says it's an ingrown toenail, but we know better The latest rumor is that he doesn't like to leave for basketball games before 6 30 so he can listen to "Little Orphan Annie" Oh! Bird

Keith Stille Fell while while playing during the tournament and he still has a gash under his chin. Gee! there must have been pretty girls in the crowd.

Coach Bowles There was a lot of comment on Klemme's HANDSOME coach during the basketball tournament. It must have been his good looking tweed suit!

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

TIME MARCHES ON! Maxine Mau a United States Senator, 31 years of age, and married to a Count. The government class agrees that this would be great life for Maxine

The class has been asking what the Count would in this case. The best answer submitted is that the Count would be Maxine's husband'

The senior class has been looking at announcements, but as yet have not decided.

Jackie agrees that Bruce A should join the senior home economics class, and learn more about manners. To learn a more graceful way to pull out a chair for a lady.

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

Friday, February 7th, the junior class picked out their class rings from a wide selection from the Jostens company which has sold rings to Klemme High School seniors for a number of years.

In history this week we have been studying the chapter concerning how Americans received their independence.

Whose this 'Johnny" a certain sophomore girl is talking about?

Have you ever heard this poem before? 'Mary had a little lamb, It's fleece was white as snow, and so on.' This week a certain sophomore girl brought one to school, only it's fleece was black as coal. Some wonder if it was the sheep that drew the attention or the one that brought it.

Freshmen

Oh to be a freshman,
The envy of them all,
To know the joy of living,
Instead of 'sitting on the wall.'

All those funny jokes,
The frshmen all can tell,
The seniors look at us queerly,
And tell us we're not well.

To be a freshman and feel green
Is better far than yellow.
People know we're green and growing,
While the sophomores still are yellow.

Some say the juniors are terrible,
That doesn't require much thought,
We freshmen at least have a lot of wit,
And the juniors have but naught.

We can't forget the seniors,
And their motto 'we can't do wrong.'
They skip three-fourths of their classes,
To go and play ping-pong.

Yes, our freshmen class is pretty nice,
We like it at any rate.
If any of you have different ideas,
Please tell us before it's too late.

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Max Barz, member of the National Guard, visited our room Friday morning. We asked him many questions about his work Everyone enjoyed his visit very much.

In science we studied metamorphic and igneous rocks. LaVonne Edward, Ruth and Patricia brought more rocks to school this week. We made concrete and plaster, too.

Mavis, Ruth, Patricia and Edward earned perfect scores in spelling.

The eighth grade studied feature stories and editorials this week.

GRADES 5 & 6

Roger Ridder volunteered to take our microphone home and to "remodel" it. He did a very good job. Last year Jimmie and Ronald made the microphone for our room.

The sixth graders made a class rating of eight on their eighth self testing drill. Roger Ridder got a star rating.

Peggy was our reporter.

GRADES 3 & 4

We enjoyed seeing the caracal lamb that Betty Ward brought to school.

Robert Baack showed us an owl that he had found.

We made finger-paint designs of Valentines for art.

The third grade arithmetic class had their first lesson in fractions.

In fourth grade history we are studying the unit about the Crusades.

Isabelle has been absent from our room all week. Richard was absent Monday and Maurice was absent Friday.

We had 100 percent in spelling. Marjory, Iris, Larry, Luella, Dorance, Phyllis Stokesbary, Delores, Willis and Merlin.

KINDERGARTEN GRADES 1 & 2

Tommy Waddingham visited at school Monday afternoon as it was his brother's, Billy, birthday. Billy was six years old. He brought treats to school for all of us. After school the kindergarten class was invited to a birthday party for Billy at Mrs. Larsen's home. We had a good time and had ice cream birthday cake and candy hearts to eat.

Dennis Ridder also visited school Thursday afternoon as it was his birthday. He was five years old.

Another pre-primer called "Here and There" was read by the first grade. We are now ready to read "Peter's Family."

Our postmasters for this week were Richard Tiggerman and Nancy Johnson. They were busy, as many letters were written and sent through our post office.

Lights On?

Ed Boicourt manager of the light company in Rockwell City has often answered the question of why the street lights are turned on in mid-afternoon occasionally They turn on the lights when they are "patrolling." When they are "patrolling" they are driving around town to see which lights aren't coming on for various reasons. When asked why not do it at night, he explained, well, why do it at night when they can do it in the daytime.

HANCOCK D. H. I. A. REPORT FOR JANUARY

The 303 cows on test, 43 of which were dry, produced an average of 840 pounds of milk and 31 2 pounds of butterfat There were 95 cows made the honor roll or 35 percent of the cows in milk

Fifteen members were feeding silage; 20 members were feeding legume hay and seventeen members were feeding balanced grain rations. Four cows were sold as unprofitable and three cows were sold for dairy purpose.

It might be well to explain about herd average so that everyone's idea of such are the same.

Every herd that is on test, includes every cow that has freshened at least once, whether she be dry or milking

Breakfast-Skippers, Beware!

Do you have a breakfast-skipper in your family—one who would rather have 20 extra winks than a piece of toast and coffee? Next week Eleanor Howe devotes her column to recipes for breakfast specialties, guaranteed to get the whole family up—and off to a good start for the day.

Peanut Butter Crust.

1 cup flour (all-purpose)
Few grains salt
2 tablespoons peanut butter
4 tablespoons shortening
2 tablespoons ice water (about)

Sift flour once before measuring, then sift together with salt. Cut in peanut butter and shortening with a pastry blender, two knives or rub it in with the fingers. Lightly stir in ice water, using a fork, until mixture forms a stiff dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board, and roll out to fit top of casserole. Cut several slits in crust to allow steam to escape. Place over top of casserole and seal edges.

French-Fried Green Pepper Rings.
(Makes 6 servings)

4 large green peppers
1 egg (well-beaten)
1 tablespoon water
½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup flour

Wash green peppers, cut into thin slices (about ⅛ inch thick) and remove seeds and membrane. Combine beaten egg with water. Season bread crumbs with salt. Dip rings first in egg mixture, then in flour. Dip again in the egg mixture, and finally in crumbs. Fry them, a few at a time, in deep fat at (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until nicely browned, 2 to 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. The green pepper rings are excellent with broiled steak.

Any-Season Spinach.
(Makes 4 servings)

1 14-ounce box quick-frozen spinach
1 cup water
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 hard-cooked egg

Place water in saucepan, add salt and heat to a brisk boil. Drop frozen spinach into boiling water, bring again to a boil and cook 4 to 6 minutes or until just tender, separating the leaves with fork during cooking. Remove from fire and drain thoroughly at once. Add butter, salt and pepper. Garnish with slices of hard-cooked egg. Reserve the liquid to use in a vegetable soup or stew.

Vegetable Pie, Peanut Butter Crust.
(Makes 6 servings)

12 small white onions
3 carrots (sliced)
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups hot water
2 beef bouillon cubes
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 cup canned or cooked peas
1 cup canned or cooked green beans

Place onions in saucepan with 1 cup water. Cook for 10 minutes, then add sliced carrots and continue to cook until both vegetables are tender (about 15 minutes). Cooked leftover onions and carrots may be substituted. Melt butter and blend with flour to a smooth paste. Dissolve bouillon cubes in hot water and add to flour together with salt, paprika, and celery salt. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Combine onions, carrots, peas, and beans with sauce and place in shallow greased baking dish. The ingredients should come nearly to the top of the dish. Top with peanut butter pastry and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 20 minutes.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for February 16

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS AND GRATITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 17 1-4, 11-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4 32.

Did you ever hear of "vinegar saints"? They are the Christian folk who are "preserved" (as Paul prayed in I Thess. 5:23), but, are apparently pickled instead of sweetened. Every housewife knows that things may be preserved with sugar or with vinegar.

God never intended it to be that way. All through His Word there are admonitions and encouragements to gracious and considerate living. Every Christian is under orders to "grow in grace" as well as in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ (II Pet. 3.18). This lesson stresses two leading Christian graces.

I. Forgiveness—Not Always Easy, but Always Possible (vv. 1-4).

The Bible is ever realistic in its approach to life. God knows that Christians must live in just our kind of world; in fact, your kind of world, and makes provision for it.

Offenses cannot be avoided. There will always be occasions for stumbling. No matter how closely we may guard our children, they will face temptations. Let us prepare them to meet them with the power of Christ, and let us be so prepared ourselves.

The fact that offenses must come does not excuse the one who creates the cause of stumbling Someone is responsible for every such occasion for offense, and the woe of God is pronounced upon him.

What shall I do about the one who thus tempts me and others? Just grieve over it and look the other way? No indeed. "Rebuke him," says God's Word. Let us do it! If he does not repent, there is no occasion for forgiveness. To do so would only encourage him in his sin.

If he repents, or even says he repents, we are to forgive, not just once, but over and over again (v. 4). That's not easy for any of us, but it is possible if we, like the disciples (see v. 5), ask God to "increase our faith," and use it as Jesus directs in verse 6.

II. Gratitude—the Almost Forgotten Christian Grace (vv. 11-19).

Nine men wonderfully healed of the dreadful disease of leprosy, and only one said, "Thank you," to Jesus, "and he was a Samaritan," an outsider or stranger. One wonders whether in our own day of professed enlightenment and culture the average of those who express their gratitude would even reach one-tenth.

"Gratitude is as scarce as friendship." Many there are who profess to be Christians who never offer praise to God for the provision of their daily food, let alone for all other temporal and spiritual blessings. The kindness of friends is taken for granted. The thoughtfulness of others is accepted without comment.

Have you told your minister that you appreciate his sermons and his ministry in the community? Does your Sunday School teacher know that you have received help and blessing in the class? Does the editor of this paper know that you enjoy and appreciate this column? If you do, why not encourage him by calling him on the telephone or writing him a note to tell him so?

Young people, have you ever said a real heart-felt "thank you" to your father or mother for all they have done for you? Perhaps some older sister or brother or school teacher or neighbor would be greatly heartened by such a word from you.

Someone may say, "I am grateful, but I am not the type that talks about it." One wonders whether Henry Van Dyke was not right when he said, "A dumb love is accepted only from the lower animals." A dog will show his thankfulness by wagging his tail, but a man has a tongue with which to say kind and tender words of appreciation to both God and man.

Most important of all, let us bear in mind that God awaits our words of praise. Christ valued the words of gratitude of this man and missed them from the nine others. When He was in Simon's home (Luke 7: 44-46), He gently rebuked His host for failing to show him the ordinary courtesies of the household.

Appreciate Beauty

Never lose an opportunity of seeing anything beautiful—welcome it in every fair face, every fair sky, every fair flower and thank Him for it who is the fountain of all loveliness; and drink it simply and earnestly with all your eyes; it is a charmed draught, a cup of blessing. —Kingsley.

Bible Is Valuable Guide

I have read it (the Bible) through many times; I now make a practice of going through it once a year; it is a book of all others for lawyers as well as divines, and I pity the man who cannot find in it a rich supply of thought and rule for conduct.—Daniel Webster.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

MAKE up this smart tailored dress in a refreshing Spring print, or bright-colored wool, or dark flat crepe with bright buttons. It will give a real lift to your spirits and look gay as a holly berry under your winter coat. There's no better way to start the year right than with a really smart new everyday dress, and a crisp shirtwaister is smartest of all!

This easy-to-make design (No. 8853) is exceptionally becoming to those who take woman's sizes, and exceptionally useful, whether you're a suburban wife or a city business woman! It will be pretty for home wear, too, made up in tubfast cottons, and the trio of envelope pockets may be omitted if you prefer.

Steel Beds and Springs

We bought a generous supply in December, and thus own them at the old low prices. Steel goods took a sharp advance January 1st, but our supply will last 2 or 3 months and you may have them at last year's low prices.

Mattresses

We expect the price of Cotton to advance, but our stock is large and we can supply your spring needs at low prices.

Sewing Machines

This Store has sold Sewing Machines for a half century, and have had the best of luck selling machines made by the New Home Company. February is the "Big Month" in Sewing Machines. It seems that the housewife does her spring sewing about this time of year. Maybe your old machine needs repairing, bring in the head and we will repair it, or trade your old machine for a new machine.

PLANTING LATE OATS IN IOWA RISKY BUSINESS, TESTS INDICATE

Iowa farmers who plant such mid-season or late varieties of oats as Swedish Select, Green Russian and Vanguard are venturing out on a rather shaky limb, according to the Farm Crops Subsection of Iowa State College.

These varieties are grown extensively in Canada and are usually not well adapted to Iowa, the agronomists point out. The Canadian growing season has a 2 to 3-hour longer day and a much lower temperature than that of Iowa, and consequently is adapted to larger and later maturing varieties than those best suited to Corn Belt conditions.

Early Ahead 4 of 5

The Iowa Station calls attention to the fact that 4 years out of 5, early varieies of oats, ranging from Iowa 105 to Gopher, have given better results than the later maturing sorts Occasionally in a "late cats year," such as 1939, weather conditions are less disastrous to the late than to the early maturing varieties.

In such occasional seasons often the early drouth brings the early maturing varieties into heal before they are much more than a foot high. Under these conditions the later maturing sorts head out after the drouth has broken and make a better crop than the early maturing types.

Highly advertised Canadian varieties such as Legacy and Vanguard are both midseason in maturity under Iowa's conditions. Vanguard carries stem rust resistance but is quite susceptible to all forms of leaf rust and to both smuts.

Legacy Record Poor

Legacy is not resistant to either of the rusts or the smuts the agronomists report. In 1939 it was estimated to be grown on but 1 or 2 percent of the Canadian acreage, although it had been available there for 10 years.

Stem rust resistant varieties have been available to the Corn Belt for the past 20 years and the bulk of the crop now grown in Iowa is resistant to this rust.

The leaf or crown rust problem has been recently solved by the discovery of leaf rust resistant varieties, Victoria and Bond, used in developing the Boone variety by the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station and Vicland by the Wisconsin Station.

Fire Dept. Called

FIRE DAMAGED ROOF AT THE A. C. BIRD RESIDENCE TUESDAY

The Klemme Fire Department was called to the A. C. Bird residence in south Klemme Tuesday morning where the roof had caught afire.

The fire had gained some headway but was soon put out by the firemen. Chief Brinkman reports that the damage would amount to about $150.

The fire department was called to the same residence again about an hour later when a small blaze had started on a porch roof, presumably from an ignited shingle that had blown from the roof and was not noticed. No damage resulted, however.

We Thank You!

We wish to take this means of thanking our neighbors and friends and especially the Klemme Fire Department for their prompt and efficient work when our home caught afire Monday morning. We want to thank each and everyone who helped us.

HOG PRICES JUMPS: STARTS HUNT FOR SOWS

But Increase In Pigs Next Spring Is Not Likely To Be Large

The 2½-dollar jump in the hog market between mid-December and mid-Januray was a dramatic signal that an end of the downturn in hog prices had come and that the direction was going to be up for awhile.

Many Iowa farmers went scurrying around the countryside looking for gilts and sows when the jump upward occurred, report agricultural economists at Iowa State College. Sales barns and livestock dealers were reporting nothing available at the end of January.

Change "Intentions" Figure

Efforts of farmers to increase hog production may change the previous indicated size of the spring pig crop, according to the economists. The government survey made in December showed farmers were planning a 14 percent reduction in number of sows to farrow in the first half of 1941.

The actual reduction may be somewhat smaller than this because of the holding back of bred sows and gilts which might have been sold during December and January if prices had continued low and because of the breeding of more gilts and sows around the beginning of the year.

Feeding Hogs Longer

The economists report that the rise in the hog market came too late to change the prospects for the spring pig crop very much. The higher hog market, however will change considerably the number of pigs farrowing during the last half of the year. It is even possible that the fall pig crop may be about as large as in 1940, although at present some reduction seems more probable.

Because the hog-corn price ratio is much more favorable to feeding than it has been for more than a year, farmers are beginning to feed out hogs to heavier weights. This will result in some delay in the marketing of the 1940 fall pig crop. It also means that the reduction in the supply of pork and lard this year will not be as great as the reduction in numbers of hogs marketed.

The main influences on farm prices continue to point toward a higher market during the first half of 1941 than during the first half of last year.

Valentine to U. S. Women

ON FEBRUARY 14, 1842, a Bostonian, named Corson, and his wife presented a valentine to the women of America—although at the time they had no way of knowing they had done so. For on that date the Corsons became the parents of a daughter to whom they gave the name of Juliet. And it was this little girl who was destined to establish the first cooking school and thereby have a far-reaching effect upon the diet of future generations, not only of Americans but of people all over the world.

Juliet Corson's parents moved to New York when she was six years old and, because she was a sickly child and denied the joy of taking part in most children's pastimes, she became an avid reader and devoted most of her time to her studies Forced to make her own living at the age of 20, she became librarian of the Working Women's library for which she was paid $4 a week. However, she raised that to $9 by writing a weekly article for the New York Leader. This led to her being asked to prepare the semi-annual index of the National Quarterly Review and later to her becoming a member of the editorial staff of that publication.

Juliet Corson.

In those days most Americans still believed that "women's place is in the home" and the nearest thing to a career open to them was employment as a seamstress. In order to make them more efficient in this occupation, Miss Corson in 1873 started in her own home a free training school for the young women of New York city. The school grew so rapidly that she was forced to seek larger quarters and these were provided by Wheeler and Wilson, manufacturers of sewing machines in their building. They lent machines for the use of the school, as did other manufacturers, and within a year more than 1,000 girls had been taught how to sew and at least three-fourths of them immediately found employment.

Trained Stenographers.

By this time Miss Corson had also added stenography and bookkeeping to the curriculum of her school and soon afterwards began giving training for domestic service. As her school grew she took a large house, used the top floor as a dormitory for her students, the first floor for classrooms where sewing, laundering and other household work was taught and the basement for a kitchen where meals were served at cost to many girls employed in the neighborhood.

Out of the latter grew her belief that "diet can make men strong or weak, intelligent or stupid" and she began her life-work of teaching both the rich and the poor the proper way to prepare foods. She did this through public lectures and through articles which she wrote for the newspapers.

In 1876 Miss Corson established in New York a "cooking school for ladies," the first of its kind in America, and within a short time 1,000 women were receiving instruction there annually. She charged rich women high fees to attend the school but asked only 50 cents a lesson from women of the middle class and gave instruction free to poor girls. The next year, during the railroad strikes, when there was great distress among the poorer classes she wrote a valuable little book, "Fifteen-Cent Dinners for Workingmen's Families." It cost $6,000 to print and distribute this booklet, free of charge, to workingmen earning $1.50 a day or less, but all but $100 of this sum was provided by Miss Corson out of the earnings from her school. Incidentally, her booklet was translated into several foreign languages and soon had a world-wide circulation. It was a boon to the poor people of every nation.

After the success of this booklet, Miss Corson became a lecturer on diet and founded many other cooking schools. She also began campaigning for the introduction of the study of cooking into the public schools and because of this she was asked by the United States commissioner of education to prepare a "Dietary for Schools" which was published and distributed by the department of the interior. Her long career of usefulness, especially to the laboring classes, came to an end with her death in 1897.

Another Claim to Fame.

Another of Juliet Corson's claims to fame rests upon her pioneer work in preparing "concentrated foods" for soldiers and explorers, and medicated foods for invalids. At the Chicago World's fair of 1893 she was the only person who was given an award for "scientific cookery and sanitary dietetics." She was also chosen as a member of the committee of judges of food products at the exposition, was twice elected to that position and was finally asked to serve permanently.

SOIL FERTILITY VITAL TO U. S.

National Security Requires Productive Land.

By PROF. J. C. CHAPMAN
(Department of Agronomy, University of Wisconsin)

American agriculture is coming to realize that a national defense program against the forces of soil depletion and exploitation is just as vital to the future of this country as defense against foreign aggression.

In every past age soil fertility has played a dominant part. Succeeding civilizations have sought and fought for fertile lands that would provide food and clothing.

The restlessness of the earth's early inhabitants, their migrations and invasions of new countries were in most instances due to the depletion of the soils in their own countries and a desire to acquire and settle the more fertile areas of the then-known world.

It was not until comparatively recently that the development of the science of soil chemistry taught the nations of the world how to maintain soil fertility on their lands.

Of recent date, too, is the recognition by American agriculture of the dangers of soil exhaustion in this country. Farmers have come to realize that every year they are selling plant food from their land in the form of cash crops, dairy products and live stock. They have discovered that even in a system of live stock farming where all the crops are fed to stock and the manure returned to the fields, they are losing fertility at an alarming rate. Everywhere we have been drawing checks on our bank account—the soil—and spending and using our fertility much faster than we have been replacing it with plant foods.

The hopeful fact in our situation, however, is that farmers in increasing numbers are becoming aware of the seriousness of these losses and are taking steps to prevent them. They are using lime and fertilizers and following soil and crop management practices that will restore the native productiveness of their farms.

This national defense program against the forces of soil depletion is steadily gathering momentum. It is being spurred forward through the co-operation of the federal government, the AAA, the state agricultural colleges, and farmers' organizations everywhere. The war against soil exhaustion gives promise of final victory.

Capons Require Special Care Before Marketing

Where capons are being fattened for market they should be fed a regular growing ration and plenty of whole grain, which should be hopper fed. Clean quarters and range are important. Close confinement should be avoided. A clean open field with protection from the weather, such as that afforded by a good range shelter, is ideal.

During the last couple of weeks before marketing, it will pay to feed a wet mash twice a day consisting of growing mash and milk or whole grain soaked in milk in addition to the usual ration. Such feeding will improve the quality of the birds, but actual poundage is made by keeping them on a full and complete growing ration throughout the summer and fall months.

Worms should be strictly guarded against, tapeworms in particular, since wormy capons simply refuse to get fat. If the birds are wormy, they should be treated without fail. After which, they should be removed to a clean range.

Mulch of Pine Needles Reforests Eroded Field

Pine needle mulch can sometimes be used to reforest old fields or clay gall areas, recent experiments at the Southern Piedmont Soil Conservation Experiment station at Athens, Ga., show.

Seeking an economical way of seeding eroded areas, the station mulched four clay-galled plots with 800 pounds of pine-needle litter from adjacent woods. In five months a healthy mixed vegetation developed, including more than 1,600 shortleaf seedlings—an average of two seedlings from each pound of mulch.

The study will observe for several years the survival and height growth of the seedlings resulting from this simple and inexpensive scattering pine-needle litter over the bare area to a depth of about one inch. If only one-fourth of the existing seedlings live for five years, the area will be well planted.

CAROLYN LEE is only six years, but already she has made more money in the movies than most people are able to save in a lifetime.

By spring, when her latest picture, "Virginia," will have been seen by many people, she should be established as a child star. In "Virginia" she has an important role and speaks almost as much dialogue as the stars, Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray. Yet she can't read. Her mother reads Carolyn's lines to the child two or three times, and little Miss Lee commits them to memory.

How'd you like to act as a target for tomatoes and like it—and even ask for more? That's what George Michelson spent his time at the other day, and after the fourth shot he was the happiest man in Hollywood.

Michelson is assistant property man on James Roosevelt's "Pot o' Gold," and he had to make the tomato that James Stewart throws at Charles Winninger. He did it first by filling the thin outside skin with a mess of catsup, chocolate sauce and other little items, and then had somebody throw it at him while a camera turned.

After the first three smacks Michelson shook his head. "Nope," he said. "This won't do. I'll have to put some whipped cream in it."

So the whipped cream was added, and once more he took a tomato right between the eyes. This time he could grin—he'd made a photogenic tomato, one that photographed so well that when it meets up with Winninger on the screen all of us will think it was just the ordinary garden variety.

Oddity at this conference was the presence of the German newsman, Kurt Sell, correspondent for the official Nazi news agency, D.N.B. Sell busily took notes while Halifax was saying, "When the history of this war comes to be written, it will say that Hitler lost the war in June of 1940."

PERKINS VS. EVANS

Agriculture department liberals, led by Milo Perkins, aggressive chief of the surplus marketing administration, have been gunning for Evans' scalp ever since the European war shut off cotton and wheat export markets, thus aggravating the economic plight of small farmers who make their entire livelihood from these crops.

Perkins wants to meet the loss of foreign markets by less emphasis on "cash income"—the guide-rule of big, commercial farmers — and greater emphasis on the food stamp plan for disposal of surpluses at home. His group contends that small growers should be made more self-sustaining by less crop control, and by more diversified farming for domestic consumption.

Evans looks coldly upon any departure from the "cash income" principle as rank heresy, and views the food stamp program as a deterrent on farm prices, rather than a benefit to needy in the cities and a way to dispose of surpluses on the farm.

That Perkins' program stands high in the favor of Wickard was shown when the latter publicly advocated the policy, as soon as he was sure he would remain as secretary of agriculture.

NEW AAA WAR

The Agricultural Adjustment administration, has long rocked by backstage rowing. This year's is the fourth since the AAA was created in 1933.

AAAdministrator Rudolph M. Evans plus certain aides have been accused of being in opposition to Secretary Claude Wickard's announced policy of increasing federal aid to small, under-privileged farmers and tenants.

Evans has never enthused over such a program. He has consistently preached that the way to achieve higher commodity prices was through government loans and AAA benefit payments—a system that has netted handsome dividends to large commercial farm operators but has reduced few mortgages for the little fellow.

Before Evans, there were the explosive George Peek, first AAA boss, who departed in 1934; Chester Davis, who rowed with Wallace; and Howard R. Tolley, Evans' immediate predecessor, who was shifted to the bureau of agricultural economics. All were "liquidated" following bitter policy rows over this same issue.

eat deal of opposition to this based upon the assertion Germans would not live up "guarantees" which they ive. But, curiously enough,

The 'Other Side'

Many persons believe that it would be impossible to satisfactorily supervise distribution of food sent to conquered nations of Europe. Among those who hold this view is Wallace R. Deuel, who has spent six years in Germany as foreign correspondent for the Chicago Daily News.

Recently a reader wrote him and asked, "If we could ship food through the blockade to the starving Belgians (for example) what percentage of it might we expect the Nazis to take?"

To this question he replied, "You might expect the Nazis to take either most or all of what you sent. If they refrained from taking the same food you sent they would take a corresponding amount of other stocks The starving Belgians would, in either event, be little or not at all better off than they were before."

guarantees are of secondary importance and German national interest the primary factor. What are these so-called "guarantees"? Naturally, operations could only begin after the negotiation of an undertaking with the German government that they will abstain from seizing either native or imported supplies.

Small Help to Germany.

But food alone would scarcely provide the motive for seizing the imported supplies. Native produce is hers for the taking, anyway. Germany is consuming today 1,400,000 tons of food a month; the invaded territories would need about 280,000 tons a month; foodstocks would be maintained in these countries (as they were last time) on a two-weeks' protection basis. Thus, if at any one moment Germany effected an all-embracing seizure from the North Cape to the French border, she would receive thereby exactly 72 hours of supplies for her 80 millions of people. And if she did, the flow of food would be cut off from one shipment to the next. There we see exposed, amazing and yet so obvious, the maximum menace to Britain—a three-days' supply of food for Germany!

Some believe that it is Germany's obligation to feed these people, but this also is inconsistent with the prevailing opinion of the German regime. The more ruthless one believes them to be the more obvious it is that they are not going to raise a finger to help their victims.

We have heard of requisitions and leaks of food supplies during the World war, but the audited and published accounts of the commission that did that job reveal that throughout the four years of their operations there was not one single requisition;—at least, not one that was not replaced directly or in equivalent supplies. It is not improbable that there were small leaks such as have been cited in personal letters to the press; but when it is considered that over 11,000,000,000 pounds of goods were taken into the occupied territories, it is petty to raise these infinitesimal proportions of the total amount handled as an objection that may condemn these 37 millions of people to death.

Revolt Held Unlikely.

Is it possible that if we do not feed these people they may revolt against their conquerors? Formerly, when there was less disparity between the weapons of an army and those of a mob this would have been possible; today, it is absurd to expect that a mob armed with scythes and pitchforks, hunting guns and knives, could withstand the weapons of modern warfare.

Anyone who advances this theory is apparently unacquainted with famine which, far from emboldening men, slowly and progressively breaks their spirit and reduces them to impotence and utter apathy.

Some thought, too, must be given to the question as to whether it is not, after all, merely one of distribution and not of shortage in Europe. Agricultural experts reveal that Europe is normally 15 per cent short in her food supply. Due to one of the coldest winters on record last year followed by one of the wettest springs, there is a further shortage of another 15 per cent. Add to these the additional shortages due to war phenomena, such as the doubling of consumption immediately upon mobilization, the destruction of stocks, and the interference with sowings, cultivation and harvests, and it is obvious that the total shortage in Europe this year will be far over and above 30 per cent.

One proposal has been to send into these countries medicines and food concentrates for children. There is but one cure for famine and that is food and no amount of serums or medicines can ward off death by starvation. Such "relief" is but a saline solution, a prolongation of the agony.

No, either this thing is right and of no risk to England or it is wrong. If it is right, since we have a stake in this war which we are steadily increasing, it is our duty to raise our voice that at least a trial be made to save these millions of people of our own ideals and philosophy—especially when the risk, the worst that could happen for the British cause, is but 72 hours' supply for Germany.

The only alternative is to deny food to these victims of aggression, exposing them to dangers of starvation.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

United Features WNU Service

Washington, D. C.

DRAFT EFFICIENCY

A quick glance at the selective service administration's record to date indicates it is going forward efficiently and well and with general popular approval. When you stop to consider that what we are dealing with here is outright conscription supposed to be in direct conflict with our Anglo-American traditions of democracy and personal freedom, this condition speaks volumes for the excellence with which the job has been handled. This is a cause of understandable satisfaction to this writer, because the whole system follows without many important changes the plans and policies worked out by trial and error during the World war.

The biggest single causes of dissatisfaction are army medical rejections after draft boards' acceptance and the lack of uniformity among the thousands of local boards in taking or deferring married men. In this respect the law leaves Mr. Dykstra with less discretion than we had. The fact of actual dependency of wives and children rather than the fact of marriage is made the deciding circumstance The question of dependency is one of the relative degree to which a family is dependent on its head. The law puts that up to the local boards and not to the director.

Where the wife and husband both have jobs, is she "dependent"? Where the wife and husband have ample income apart from his work, is that dependency? Where the husband is a no-good bum who never took the trouble to support his family, should he escape service on the ground that he is married?

If the answer to such questions is left entirely to the local boards, there is bound to be a very wide difference in result. This created the toughest problem in the World war draft also. It makes more noise than the facts warrant. Then there were 4.8 million married registrants. About 4,400,000, or 90 per cent, were deferred. Many of those not deferred had no claim filed for them either by themselves or their wives. In hundreds of cases, a wife would drag some worthless loafer in and demand that he be taken. In some of these cases the demand was recanted on the ground that the threat of service had made a perfect husband.

The net result of that experience was a gradual and continuous relaxation of the rule in favor of not breaking up families wherever it could be possibly and justly avoided.

'LOOSE-END' BILL

Two apparent absurdities attend the arguments for the Morgenthau "loose-end" bill, now being so hotly debated.

One is the insistence of certain sincere congressional advocates that the bill does not surrender to the executive the constitutional safeguards against dictatorship—the famous congressional "power of the purse."

In our own and English experience, it is the strongest weapon of democracy. Our Constitution gives congress alone the power to declare war and to "raise and support armies." To this latter highly important grant the Constitution attaches a condition, "but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years."

Under the "loose-end" bill, the President is given authority to transfer to another nation any "defense article" he desires. The words "defense article" are defined to mean any conceivable military or naval resource which the United States owns or may hereafter acquire. When this is attacked as a surrender by congress to the executive of its power of the purse in war, the answer is made that the bill appropriates no money and hence, that congress, through its power to appropriate, still controls action under the bill.

Right off the bat, it is apparent that as to the many billions of dollars worth of military and naval equipment that this country now has, the answer simply is not true. The bill gives the President authority to transfer it with no further appropriation whatever.

Neither is it necessarily true as to gifts of new equipment. It is true, under the bill, that before he could, for example, order a new battleship built, expressly announced as a gift to China, he would have to go to congress for authority. But there is a loophole that is as broad as a barn door. In this crisis, congress has refused no appropriation to build armament for the United States and it is as sure as sunrise that it will refuse none in the future. But, if this bill is passed, not a nickel can be spent on armament by this government, which would not automatically fall under the proposed grant of presidential power, to transfer that armament to another country as soon as it is finished or even before. He doesn't have to go back to congress for appropriations before he can transfer American equipment and resources.

It is an even more complete surrender of the power of the purse in favor of other nations than would even be openly requested by a President in favor of the United States.

THE NEW YORK SCENE:

Memos of a Midnighter: Click for April will "exclusively" report that Russia will shelve Hitler for Churchill . . . Oh, Mr. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox! Have a new word: Navyation—or Navyator . . . James McKinley Bryant (who keeps company with seven gals all at once) finally explains things . . . "How do you manage to keep so many women interested? Don't you get tired now and then?" he was asked . . . "Yes, I do," he said blandly, "but what else is there but Love? It keeps you alive—young—and foolish."

Broadway Ticker-Tape: Quent Reynolds' affectionate description of Their Majesties to the boys over at the Foregn Press Ass'n: "To the people they are simply George and Betty Windsor" . . . The networks are discouraging the repetition of "Jeanie with t.l.b.h." It's about time . . . The feud between Lucius Beebe and Ben Hecht (over well-dressed dudes) has the midtowners a-ga-gog. The controversy has rocked New York like nothing since laced shoes came in.

Willkie, in supporting FDR's foreign policy, has been practically excommunicated by the G.O.P. for putting the Republic ahead of the Republicans . . . Willkie's support of the President surprised many of his backers, who find it hard to understand how a man would rather be an American than a politician . . . When a few New Yorkers are shot in the streets by gangsters it occasions universal indignation . . . But thousands of people are killed by dictator-gangsters in the streets of England, and you find many Americans with a so-what attitude about that . . . FDR's physician reports that his health is the best it's been in years . . . So is America's!

Faces About Town: James J. Walker and George Jessel, twin toastmasters at the dinner for "Jimmy"—both in excellent form. And the way the ex-Mayor parried divorce reports, to wit: "Life would be very dull if Jessel and I didn't marry someone every once in awhile" . . . Mrs. F.D.R., Jr., at a Copacabana ringside with her pumps comfortably kicked off—and munching on a napple . . . Gertrude Lawrence, a bundle of talent from Britain . . . Winthrop Rockefeller. The lowdown on why he enlisted as a buck private: He has a tremendous youth plan in the making. To keep finger-pointers from saying: "He was rich so he got a good job during the war!" he enlisted. He could have had a big Gov't job—he's an oil expert.

Orchestra Pilot Sammy Kaye alleges he overheard this repartee-hee in Lindy's the other midnight. Two Broadwise-guys were mangling a herring in contemplative silence when one suddenly started dreaming out loud . . . "Boy," he mused, "I wish I were at Hialeah where it's nice and warm. We'd play the races and plunk some dough down on an 8-to-1 shot. The nag would win and we'd bet the winnings on a 6-to-1 to win. Then for the third race, we'd take the winnings and bet on a nag running at 4-to-1. And then we'd—"

"Justaminute," interrupted his buddy, "I think we oughta skip the third race—I don't like that horse at all."

NOTES OF A NEW YORKER:

Man About Town: The Book of the Month Club has selected "Blood, Sweat and Tears" (Churchill's speeches) for April . . . Petain of Vichy sent the Warren G. Pershings a wire of congrats on their recent Blessed Event . . . The femme editors of two smart fashion mags are sizzling at Moss Hart for his show, "Lady in the Dark" . . . Dorothy Thompson, as hinted here long ago, will be divorced by the Herald Tribune as of March 16. Her new syndicate may land her in the Post on the 17th . . . C. Vanderbilt Jr. just sent Lindbergh an umbrella with a rattlesnake wooden handle . . . From evidence in the hands of Federal men, Princess Hohenlohe will be asked if it isn't true that the property confiscated from her was first taken from Max Reinhardt because he was Jewish.

A fellow who knew the late F. Scott Fitzgerald in Hollywood recalls a chat with him. "I have no talent," confessed the novelist, "it took me ten years to discover that I didn't have any."

"Well," said the man, "why didn't you quit writing then?"

"I couldn't," Scott said, "I was too famous by that time."

The Dies Committee's first step after the expected renewal by Congress will be to compare the Bund and Communist lists against the alien registration and conscription lists . . . Ask some of the broadcasting company biggies—they'll tell you that they know of German "Stukas" and Nazi pilots actually in Mexico! . . . That was some scene in the cloakroom of the House of Rep, when Davis of Memphis threatened to "knock the . . . out of" Cong. Geyer of Los Angeles. Geyer wants to abolish the poll tax.

DRAMATIC REVIEW OF A 1941 INCOME TAX BLANK

"You Can't Take It With You" or "Tax Blank for 1941" has had its presentation before the American public, and, while it met with a mixed response, your reviewer would describe it as adequate. It is a straight, direct, merciless, tightly written affair which, despite muddling passages here and there, gets its message across. That, after all, is its purpose.

"Tax Blank for 1941" is in a sense a revival. It follows the pattern of other years but has been extensively rewritten, with many new lines and some startling effects, particularly that part of the narrative where it is discovered that Jonathan Q. Doe, our hero, supposing he gets the same exemption as in the past for being a married man, finds the exemption has been cut from $2,500 to $2,000. This is an obvious slap at matrimony, and, since it is a widely cherished institution, we do not think the authors have done a service to society by belittling it in this way.

A moment of high drama comes in a bleak scene laid in the Upper Brackets country. Here we have the same heavy mood of resentment, of anger, pain and despair so characteristic in previous years. Seldom has there been a more moving scene than when T. Dudley Softtouch and Luther Gettahead come face to face with Paragraph 6, Item 7, Page 4 and find that on the same income as they had last year they must now pay a supertax of almost twice as much. Here is action belonging to the sternest school of realism.

Perhaps the peak of emotion comes in a little scene where Softtouch, almost a mental wreck after having finally figured up what he owes the government (with the help of six lawyers), is about to make out a check when he suddenly discovers that congress has placed a separate defense tax of 10 per cent on top of all! For a moment this reviewer thought the performance had all the elements of a fusion of "Hellzapoppin" and "Macbeth." Screams penetrated the rafters and seldom have such lines as "They can't do that to me," "This is an outrage" and "It's that feller in the White House" been delivered with such power and feeling.

There is both drama and comedy in the later chapter when millions of Americans in the lower income group, who have been laughing at the upper groupers all these years, discover that at last they must come across too.

All in all (and that's the way they take it now), the production is sure to have the usual appeal, coupled with the additional response always occasioned by the surprise note. Your reviewer must say in all candor that "Tax Blank for 1941" lacks laughs. There is hardly an amusing line anywhere if you exclude the old gag, "Were you damaged by fire or storm during the last fiscal year?" But it is set for a run lasting through to next December 15. Nothing can stop it.

Bill Pfriender says that Mr. Roosevelt's broadcasts these days might be billed as "Firearms Chats.'

Wendell Willkie has now gone over to the administration side so completely that some people are even speaking of him as Wenlin Wiloovelt.

New York city will have a population of eight to nine million people ultimately, an expert says. It is hard to imagine that many people running around asking questions on how to reach destinations in New York city.

The annual National Automobile show has been abandoned for this year. The public will have to find some other good excuse for going to the big city for a two or three-day spree.

The Jackson day dinner by the Democrats will be a unity banquet. This will require special arrangements to see that nobody gets hurt.

I trust Wendell Willkie doesn't get into a bombing raid in London and send Roosevelt a card "Having awful time; wish you were here!"

* * *

The only difference between our aid to England in the last war and in this one will be that this time our aid will have a zipper on it.

FOUR YEAR TERMS . . .

One of the recommendations in Governor Wilson's message to the legislature was a four year term for county officers. Since the proposal aims an increased efficiency through a reduction in the heavy costs of biennial elections and the probability of attracting more able candidates, it is strictly in line with the governor's traditional economy attitude. On the surface such a proposal might appear simple of application but a study made by legislators and others interested, has uncovered many mechanical difficulties. None of these difficulties is necessarily insurmountable but it has become obvious that something more than mere passing of a bill by the legislature is required Certain offices, both state and county are created by law These can be adjusted by the same process. Others, however, are provided for in the state constitution and cannot, therefore be changed except by a constitutional amendment.

STUDY UNDER WAY . . .

Proceeding, apparently, on the theory that a remedy beneficial to county offices might well be applied to other two year terms, legislators singly and in groups are surveying all public offices. At the outset, it should be pointed out that the necessary legislation can be considered unselfishly by the members of the present legislature since it could not, if passed, affect to "freeze" any present state or county officer in his present position. Therefore each legislator is in a position to consider the question entirely in the light of public benefit. Offices created by law might be given four year terms following the 1942 elections. The machinery necessary to make a constitutional amendment operative requires more time and could not affect constitutional offices until 1942. In other words, the legislature as representatives of the people could change the terms of some offices But the constitution itself cannot be tampered with without a direct vote of the people of the state.

...ons of the federal constitution. Legislators have found in their studies thus far, that the problem tangles itself up more and more as they pursue it.

WHO WILL SEE THE FIRST ROBIN . . . .

Most any day now we can give out the leather bound medal to the person who sees the first Robin of Spring . . . or is it the last robin from last fall? At any rate, most any day now we will start to get telephone calls about seeing the first robin.

And talking about the first robin . . . that brings to mind that spring is just around the corner and soon time for the ladies to parade in their new Easter outfits.

And, in case you do not know. Easter comes this year on April 13. And other important dates for your calendar will include Ash Wednesday on February 26, Palm Sunday. April 6, Good Friday on April 11 . and of course Easter Sunday April 13.

WHEN MARCH WINDS BLOW . . .

When March winds come with snow and sleet
You'll get sniffles and cold, wet feet . . . .

. . and that is something to look forward too, or is it? At any rate when March is here we can look forward in real earnest toward spring . . . but why bring that up? For this Scribe that means to rake the yard (how silly); clean up the garden (another pain in the neck); take the screens out of the garage . . . take off the storm sash . . hang up the screens and maybe wash the windows in the bargain. Who the heck wants spring to come anyway?

HOW CAN THEY CARRY IT ALL? . . .

At one of the recent bridge parties, each lady was given a sheet of paper and pencil and told to enumerate the articles to be found in her hand bag. Our Bureau of Investigation procurred the lists. Believe it or not, there were all the way from 34 to 146 separate and distinct articles to be found in the respective purses and bags. Here's one list:

6 sticks gum, Gov. Wilson campaign card, check book, powder puff and case, 4 hankerchiefs viper. compact, lipstick, 9 pills comb, file, file case, 56 matches 3 calling cards, 4 keys.

Another file, perfume. cigarette lighter, mirror, lodge membership, jelly roll recipe, ticket stub, mirror, index list, $1 bill. another lipstick, blank check, brokerage bill basketball schedule, 1 safety pin 3 hair pins, 50 cents in change token, 8 calling cards, bobby pinn . . and a couple of other items that would look better not in print!

Another assortment will be printed later.

Girl Scout News

7 00 o'clock Monday evening brought the Girl Scouts together in the Community Hall where they had their meeting The White Rose Patrol, who have been working on Architecture and Readers badge, completed their requirements in these badges. Mrs. Stille has helped them on these badges. They have decided next to take a badge in Design.

The Fer-Get-Met-Not Patrol worked out design for borders with lines and dots, and also they worked out patterns for dress material.

Corrine Merkel read a theme on "My Community" and "The History of the Alphabet" which she prepared for her Scout Scribe badge.

After the meeting was over, the girls played several games, one in which Eunice Larsen won a prize. The meeting was dismissed by having a treat, which LaVonne Hammitt prepared for us, since it is required in order to pass her tenderfoot requirements.

A senior and freshman were heard arguing heatedly in the halls. On listening in we heard the following

Senior "Well I guess I know a few things, too."

Freshman "Well I guess I know fewer"

Well, Dear Freshmen, that's one thing the seniors won't argue over.

The seniors will preserve their likenesses for posterity until Mar. 1st

While sauntering along one nice balmy evening, Allen came upon a nice gray Chevrolet He climbed in and lay down in the back seat. Soon the owner (Ruth) and a friend (Betty) came out, climbed in and started off It seems like Allen got some first-hand information and let the conversation go too far before he made his presence known Needless to say the girls will from now on look in the back seat first. (Better watch the trunk, too)

MUSIC NEWS

The contest number for band will be "The Crusaders," an overture by Forest L Buchtel This is an excellent piece of music especially from the music appreciation standpoint of view. The entire overture is based upon the crusades, as the title suggests. Inspired by the deep sincerity of the medieval leaders who organized the 'Crusaders' to regain the Holy Land from its captors, the composer has linked together several of the general moods related to the romantic story of the "Crusaders."

The members of the Girl's Glee Club will be measured for their gowns which will be used for the music contest as has been the custom.

In answer to last week's poem by the freshmen we print this poem

Listen student freshmen,
And glance awhile our way,
To the sophomores, juniors and seniors,
While we have our say!

To those who think just freshman rate.
We'd like to make it known,
That you're not alone on A's & B:
Our report cards have shown

Perhaps we're not just green now,
But should we fret or scold?
Perhaps we're in a blossom,
That would knock your greenness cold.

SAFETY FIRST!

Direct from geometry class!

Wednesday all the geometry students were asked to hand in their notebooks They were placed on the desk until Thursday. Thursday during class Mr Galbreth, the instructor, was counting the workbooks to see if they were all there All of a sudden a loud ouch was hear. -- it was Mr Galbreth -- someone had left their compass in their workbook and he had stuck the point of it with his finger. He then explained he was going to see whose workbook it was. Much to Mr. Galbreth's and everyone's surprise. it was Lucille Hartbeck's. one of the best geometry students in the class.

For once in the history of Merylin Ulrich, he agreed with somebody Thursday in mixed chorus Mr. Onerheim made the statement that high school girls were lazy, and without hesitation Merylin agreed with a loud hee-haw

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

The juniors received their class pins Thursday and are very much pleased with them. We are wondering who will be the first boy to give his away. Could it be Prof. Arnold?

Advised from the learned of Klemem High School.

Robert Schulz: Eat pickles in case of lovesickness.

Lucille Hartbeck: Don't blush when mistakes are made.

Garland Brinkman: Don't set tacks under girls.

Phyllis Swanson: Don't stake your future on a basketball game.

Bruce Arnold: Don't be too harsh in pulling chairs out from under girls.

Maxine Mau's inferiority complex is shyness.

Charles Bock. Never let girls play with your glasses, they break easy. (Charles, why were yours broken? We have always wondered.)

Ellen Kilgore: Don't bank too much on a ping-pong table to bring you company.

Melvin Coobs: Attend more dances and attain beautiful companions.

Arlene Schmidt: Remember to pack your own school lunches. (But don't starve your sister)

Billie Zabilka: Don't spend too much money on pins that you can't keep.

Arlene Buseman: Don't get excited when a long distance telephone calls

Aaron Wille: Don't get hysterical when that certain somebody walks by.

Betty Lass: Don't plan too far ahead. Remember things have a way of turning.

Luella Thieman: Why does she always send letters with her driver and offer her humble services in return.

The members of the sophomore class seemed to get their share of the funny valentines.

One sophomore boy has his own idea of attracting the girl's attention. He wears red fingernail polish

In biology we have been studying the transportation system of the body.

In algebra we have been making graphs.

Sophomore high boys!! Here is our "Ideal Girl" for you.

She will probably have---
Irene Schmidt's red hair,
Betty Etchen's clothes,
Betty Ward's done up hair styles.
Arlene Wille's figure,
Luella Lewis' sewing ability.
Audrey Mau's eyes,
Eva Velau's cheery disposition.
Maxine Bachman's dancing ability,
Vivian Harberts' pep,
Ardella Nelson's smile,
Bonnie Jean Stokesbary's daintiness.

FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

For a valentine Mr .Bowles did not give us the test he promised us Now that's sentiment for you.

We've started on the simple sentence in English. To tell the truth, they aren't simple; they're hard.

The home ec. I class motto: "I might as well not make anything and get 'F' as make something and get 'F.'"

The latest rumors:

Corrine Merkel and Barbara Johnson are going to work for the New York Syndicate"

Mildred Busse can eat four hot dogs and it doesn't bother her (We know it's true because we've seen it.)

The 1941-41 biography of Eunice Erdene Larsen is really quite vivid. This "Terror of the Freshman Class" is reporter for the paper and can think up something about everyone except herself, so a few of her friends have abligingly added a kind word for her.

Our star (?) student in science, has finally discovered a place to put that word "transpiration." She now breathes more easily.

Eunice loves to sew! Especially, when she can tear out every seam she finishes.

Rumors have it that Eunice and a certain preacher's son have been having deep conversations together. Their main topic of conversation is "Song of India."

Her favorite saying is "There's so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us, etc. She can never remember the rest of it.

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Miss Merritt is reading "Drina" by Marian W. Flexer. This story relates to the life of Queen Victoria when she was young.

Ewald Grosshuesch was chosen as feature editor by the eighth grade English class.

LeVonne brought a Mexican match, some Mexican candy and a toy amorilla to school. Her parents brought them from a recent trip in Mexico. Many, including Miss Irvine, were frightened when they first looked at the amorilla.

One day in science, Miss Merritt, gave each of us a rock. We had to identify it and write all we could about it. There were one or two people who didn't identify their rocks correctly. Mr. Galbreth visited our room during this class. We also went to the science room and performed experiments using the Bunsen burner.

Junior B., Patricia, and Ruth received perfect scores in spelling.

GRADES 5 & 6

The following people had perfect spelling scores this week: Roger B., Phyllis. Peggy, Elizabeth, Dean, Clarence, Mary Lou, Roger R., Ruth Stokesbary, Robert, Donna, Delores, Donald, Irene, William, Ruth Smith, Helen, Esther and Darwin.

We had a party on Velentine's Day. We played "Ahoy" and other games.

In English class on Wednesday we studied the picture "Portrait of Lincoln" by Douglas Volk.

Mrs. Bridges and Mrs. Stokesbary visited our room Thursday afternoon.

GRADES 3 & 4

Graydon Barz visited our room Monday.

Fourth grade took Number Drill No. 8. Third grade took Number Drill 5. We had average score.

We enjoyed seeing the baby rabbits Robert Baack brought to school.

We weighed Friday as a part of our health unit on foods .All of us showed an increase in weight.

We had 100 percent in spelling: Marjory, Larry, Luella, Dorance, and Merlin.

We had a Valentine party and box Friday.

KINDERGARTEN GRADES 1 & 2

We have completed our study of evergreen trees in science Now we are studying "Weather."

We have been writing stories about our post office. We also completed our post office frieze. Harley, Ruth and JoAnn were our postmasters this week.

Our Valentine party was Friday afternoon. We sent our Valentines through our post office. After our valentines were delivered we popped corn and had apples to eat We had some small visitors to our party.

Everyone in the room received a nice valentine letter from Mr. Wellemeyer.

Marengo residents are pointing with pride to the picture taken in their town is contained in Sherwood Anderson's book, "Home Town - The Face of America." Oddy enough, the picture was first discovered by an out-of-towner who frequently visits Marengo.

Density of Fogs

In 1921, the British weather bureau set up standards for describing fogs which fall into more or less definite categories. The range from "very dense" in which objects become invisible at 27 yards distance in the daytime through "thick," "rather thick," "fog," "moderate," "mist or thick haze," and "slight mist or haze" —in which objects are visible at a distance of 7½ miles.

JESUS CALLS TO PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Lord, teach us to pray. —Luke 11:1.

Imitations may be so clever as to cause us to marvel, but to the one who knows the real thing, they are "just imitations." Particularly is that true in the realm of the spiritual. Make-believe faith in God fools only the hypocrite and those who know as little as he does of real Christianity.

Prayer is undoubtedly the greatest privilege of the Christian, putting him and his life in touch with the omnipotence of God. But it must be real prayer, not just some formal exercise which masquerades under the name of prayer. We combine the two parables of our lesson to contrast prevailing prayer and powerless prayer.

I. Prevailing Prayer.

The prayer which really lays hold upon God and brings results must be the expression of a life of prayer. It is no occasional effort brought about by a great need or a deep sorrow. We must pray

1. Without Ceasing (v. 1). Jesus had just been talking of the trying days which were to come (Luke 17:26-30). To stand fast for Christ in a day when almost all the influences are against such faith, a man needs real prayer or he will surely faint.

To pray constantly is not necessarily to be saying the words of prayer, but is the outreach of the life toward God, the setting of our minds on things above. That we can and may do at all times and in all places.

2. With Assurance (vv. 2-9). If an unjust judge will respond just to escape the constant plea of a widow, we may rest assured that God, who is just and looks upon His people in loving-kindness, will not fail to respond to their plea. He says, "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not" (Jer. 33:3).

3. In Humility (vv. 13, 14). We come to God, not to demand, but to humbly plead the blood of Jesus Christ. That was what the publican did. When he said, "Lord, be merciful," he used the word "propitiated," which refers to the mercy seat on which the blood was sprinkled as a propitiation for sin (see Exod. 25:17, 18, 21; Heb. 9:5; Lev. 16:5). Such a plea brought salvation to the repentant sinner.

II. Powerless Prayer.

We use the word prayer here in the broad sense, for strictly speaking there is no such thing as prayer without power Men call it prayer, but it accomplishes nothing because it is offered

1. In Self-sufficiency (vv. 9, 11). Those who trust "in themselves" will naturally do what the Pharisee did; he "prayed with himself." "He had an intellectual conviction, but that does not make a contact with God. Hell is full of intellectual conviction. God? Oh, yes. But he was so occupied with himself he could not get away from himself" (Morgan).

2. With Boastful Pride (vv. 9, 11, 12). Despising others, the Pharisee boasted of his own fine character and good works. "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble" (James 4:6). It is proper that a man should live uprightly, but if it only makes him self-righteous it becomes a barrier between him and God (Luke 18:14).

3. For the Sake of Publicity (v. 11, cf. v. 13). While the publican hung his head and stood afar off to offer his prayer, the Pharisee apparently took a prominent place and spoke with a loud voice. Jesus described that kind of prayers in Matthew 6:5 as just putting on a publicity "stunt." When men had seen them pray, the transaction was finished. They had not been in touch with God at all.

The result of the two prayers is so well described by Dr. J. Campbell Morgan that we quote his words:

"Two men at prayer. One, eloquently, in phrases circling round his own personality with which he was pre-eminently pleased. The other, hating his sin, and grasping out after the infinite and tender compassion of God to operate for him. . . . The man who justified himself remained unjustified. The man who sought the compassion of God went back to his house justified."

There Is Another Life

I cannot believe, and cannot be brought to believe, that the purpose of our creation is fulfilled by our short existence here. To me the existence of another world is a necessary supplement of this, to adjust its inequalities, and imbue it with moral significance.—Thurlow Weed.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

IF YOU'RE taking a midwinter vacation, you'll certainly want this tailored frock, in white sharkskin or luscious pastel flannel. And it's an excellent style to fit into town wardrobes, too—made up in bright flat crepe or a tailored print. Design No. 8814 is one of those slick, immaculately tailored styles that form the backbone of a busy woman's wardrobe the year-round. And the lines of stitching, the turned-down corners of the pockets, make this an unusually interesting version of your favorite button-front classic.

There's mighty little to the making, as you can see. Just a few long seams, a few simple darts, to create a tailored effect of faultless chic. And this is a style becoming alike to misses and to women. Sew chart included.

Ask Me Another
A General Quiz

The Questions

1. What capital letter is used most frequently in English words?
2. What is a Jolly Roger?
3. Of currants, grapes, cranberries, oranges, tomatoes and bananas, how many are classified by botanists as berries?
4. Without stopping to count, give the number of zeros in one billion.
5. In major league baseball, how often are games won by a no-hit, no-run pitching performance?
6. Are glow worms worms?
7. Where in the United States is the longest stretch of railroad track without a curve?
8. Is the train of a peacock its tail?

The Answers

1. The letter "S," according to Funk and Wagnalls New Standard dictionary.
2. A pirate flag.
3. All of them.
4. Nine—count them—1,000,000,000.
5. Only one in about 1,400 games.
6. No, glow worms are actually beetles. The males can fly, but the females cannot, so they light up to let their lovers know where they are.
7. North Carolina claims this record. Between Wilmington and Hamlet, a distance of 78.86 miles, there is a stretch of track without a single curve.
8. No. The beautiful, long plumes that the bird raises into a large, fan-shaped shield are in front of the short tail feathers that are used as a support.

Mrs. Meyer Composed Poem

Mrs. William Meyer composed the following poem which she read during the program. It is entitled

OUR BOSS

"About thirty-four years or more ago,
A tall young man whose name you know,
With his wife and small son
Moved to Klemme just for fun,
And his General Store was begun.

He helped make this town
The best in the state, for he toiled from morning till evening late.

This man we are proud of Built a large brick store,
And the Clerks were numbered
By the Score, but now they are scattered like roses in June,
Some at the altar and some at the tomb.
Art sells furniture far and wide,
To many a town and countryside,
And he serves the community now and then
When death enters the homes of sons of men.

On Washington's birthday in nineteen six
He made a wise choice and took Lydia Griewe to be his bride,
And now, for thirty-five years they have walked side by side
Five children helped make their home complete,
With jolly laughter and memories sweet.

This Boss of Ours is hard to beat.
He smiles when we meet him in the store or on the street.
And the little children from all around,
Think him a kindly man in town.

But now his hair is turning gray,
And I almost forgot this is his birthday,
And his employees and their families
Have met here this way to wish him Much joy and a happy birthday."

—Mrs. Wm. Meyer.

March 1st Sees Moving Changes In Klemme Trade Territory

A NUMBER OF FAMILIES MOVING IN KLEMME TERRITORY

Several Farmers Moving To Farms Purchased Past Year

March 1st will again see more or less moving in the Klemme territory. A few changes will be made in town while most of the moving list this spring will be in the country.

The Times has endeavored to get a complete list of the changes but no doubt there are a number of changes we have not recorded. The Times will be glad to publish other changes and we will appreciate having this information.

Herman Meyer moves from the C. A. Larsen farm north and west of Klemme to the Loock farm in Twin Lakes township. Cecil Petheck comes from the Thornton vicinity and will farm the Larsen place.

Robert Loock and his sister are moving to town having purchased the Gobeli residence where Paul Fitzpatrick and family now live. The Fitzpatrick family will move to California.

The Hoick brothers who have been farming Albert Kehl's place north of Klemme, are moving to a farm near Corwith which they purchased. Mr. and Mrs. John Kaduce are starting up farming and will locate on the Kehl farm. Mr Kaduce has been working for Mitchell Bock the past year.

Mrs. Cutshall and family who have been farming about 8 miles east of Klemme have rented a farm near Maxwell, Iowa. We have not learned who moves to he farm vacated by the Cutshall famiy.

Chester Renner begins farming for himself and has rented a place north of the Linden ranch. He has been farming with his father east of Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. George Albers have retired from their farm east of Klemme and are now living in Klemme. Some time ago they purchased the Paul Grange residence in the southwest part of town. Their son, Menno and his bride, will farm the home place.

Roy Schaefer and family are moving to Klemme from the Edw Schaefer farm in Liberty township Roy and family have rented the Greiesmer house in south Klemme. Francis Buseman moves to the Schaefer farm vacated by Roy.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Durham who lived in the Greiesmer house have moved to a tenant house on the Gatchel farm near Garner as Mr. Durham will work for Mr. Gatchel.

Art Johnson moves onto his own farm which he purchased some time ago, southwest of Klemme. This is the place where Stuart Hevilm now lives.

Earl Corlett, who has been on the Mrs. Gladys Ruber farm northwest of Klemme, moves to a farm he purchased near Postville. A Mr. Braund moves onto the Ruber farm.

Leon Gilpin moves to one of the Zinn farms southeast of Klemme which will be vacated by the Verner Lewis family. Gilpin has been on the Paul Van Buskirk farm. We understand Mr. Van Buskirk will farm the place himself and may have a tenant.

Robert Hanson and family are moving over near Kanawha where they have purchased a farm. They have been on the Harry Trumbull place east of Klemme. Alex Early of near Goodell moves to the farm vacated by the Hansons.

Another circle of moving will be completed when M. Hegg moves to a farm east of Kanawha which will be vacated by Chris Hegg. Chris Hegg has purchased a farm near Britt where he moves. Peterson Brothers from the Goodell territory move to the farm vacated by M. Hegg.

Wm. Legge who has been on the Zinn farm east and north of Klemme, moves to the old Wellemeyer farm which he purchased. This is in Liberty township and Richard Ax and family have been residing there. The Ax family moves to a farm south of Clear Lake.

Dan Fjetland will occupy the farm vacated by Wm. Legge.

Harold Johnson and family who have lived in the apartment above the Lewis Radio Shop the past year, are moving to a farm north of Clear Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will move into the apartment vacated by the Johnson family.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jackson will move into the rooms vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis. We understand the Jacksons have been farming west of Klemme.

Sylvanus Wacker, who purchased the old Ben Swalve farm south of Klemme, has rented it to a Mr. Lacey who comes from near Clear Lake. Francis Buseman, who has been on the place moves to the Ed Schaefer farm in Liberty.

Asa Legge, who has been farming near Manly, has purchased the 80 acre farm where Lloyd Ulrich has been farming for several years northwest of Klemme. He moves on the farm March 1st and Lloyd Ulrich moves to a farm near Clear Lake.

Mitchell Bock has purchased the land east of town which Art Johnson has been farming. Mitchell will farm the place in addition to the home farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Meyer, and Carol Meyer will start up farming for themselves on a farm two miles east and three and one-half miles north of Klemme.

STILLE ENJOYED EARTH QUAKE IN CALIFORNIA

The Times editor received a letter Monday morning from Wm. F. Stille, who with his grandson, La Rayne Stille, are spending the winter in California visiting with Mr. Stille's son, Don. Stille and wife.

Mr. Stille writes, "Well, California certainly has been good to us and we are having a grand time. Have had fine weather most of the time and we enjoyed the small "quake" very much. I might add that we also enjoy the home town news."

Yours very truly,
W. F. Stille.

KLEMME SHAMROCKS WIN OVER FAST ORIENT FIVE AT SIMPSON COLLEGE

Southwest Iowa Team Met Their First Defeat In Saturday Tilt

Coach "Bodge" Bowles' fighting Shamrocks downed a fast quintet from Orient on the Simpson College floor Saturday afternoon. Orient met its first defeat of the season when they tumbled before the boys from Klemme.

The Shamrocks trailed most of the way by a narrow margin and were behind 7 to 10 at the first quarter of play, and were behind 12 to 14 at the half.

Orient came back with a power drive that pierced the Shamrock's defense and at the close of the third quarter led the Shamrocks 25 to 17. However, Klemme solved the attack, plugged the leaks and proceeded to put on a Blitzkrieg and forged ahead 29 to 27 when the final whistle blew.

Coach Bowles had but five men in the battle: Grosshuesch, Zabilka, Stille, Brinkman and Jacobs. The teams were well matched and both used the Simpson style of play, as the Orient coach is also a Simpson graduate.

Shared Washington's Birthday

THE fame of two American artists rests largely upon their association with George Washington and their portraits of him. They were Charles Willson Peale and his son, Rembrandt Peale, and coincidence also plays a part in their relationship with the Father of His Country. For Rembrandt Peale was born on Washington's birthday—February 22, 1778—and his father died on Washington's birthday—February 22, 1827.

Being the son of an artist, it was only natural perhaps that Rembrandt Peale should become a painter. So it is not surprising to learn that he began to draw at the age of eight and by the time he was 13 he had painted a portrait of himself.

Charles Willson Peale had made the first known portrait of Washington (painted in 1772 and depicting him as an officer in the Virginia militia) and had served as a captain of volunteers under him at the Battle of Trenton. When Washington became President, he was constantly importuned to sit for his portrait. Some of these requests he denied, but he could not refuse his old friend, when in 1795 Charles Willson Peale asked him to pose for his talented young son, Rembrandt. In fact, he granted the boy three sittings in his father's studio in Philadelphia and the portrait reproduced below was the result.

This portrait of Washington was the only one which Rembrandt Peale made from life, but another of his pictures of the First American, not drawn from life, is even more famous. Known as the "Equestrian Portrait" it is entitled "Washington Before Yorktown" and it was not made until 1823. But when Chief Justice John Marshall, who had served under Washington in the Revolution, saw it, he exclaimed "It is more like Washington himself than any portrait I have ever seen."

In 1796 Charles Willson Peale decided to give up portrait painting and recommended his talented son, Portrait of Washington, made by Rembrandt Peale when he was only 17 years old.

Rembrandt, to the public as his successor. But the son was not immediately successful and went to Charleston, S. C., where he had his studio for several years. In 1801 he went to England to continue his studies under his father's instructor, the famous Benjamin West, but after a short time there his health failed and he returned to his home in Philadelphia. He intended to abandon art for agriculture but, after painting a few portraits, he was surprised to find himself hailed as a worthy successor to his famous father.

In 1804 he advertised himself as "Rembrandt, portrait painter in large and small, head of Mulberry court, leading from Sixth, three doors above Market street" and explained that he desired to be known by his first name alone, "the adjunct Peale serving only to show of whom descended." Three years later he visited Paris to paint the most distinguished men of the day and was successful in this enterprise. After a second trip to Paris in 1809, he came back to America the following year and from that time, until his death in 1860, his fame as a portraitist, a painter of historic scenes and a lithographer (one of the first to practice the art in America) was undiminished.

Although Washington sat for his portrait by the 17-year-old Rembrandt Peale in 1795, it was not until 1823 that the artist finally finished it. He spent those 28 years in working on it to make it suit his ideal of a true likeness of the great man. He took it with him when he went abroad and exhibited it in Italy and England where it attracted a great deal of attention. After his return to America, the portrait was bought by the United States senate and it now hangs in the vice president's room in the senate wing of the Capitol.

FEED RECORDS REVEAL COSTS

Lead the Way to Improving Farming Practices.

By S. B. CLELAND
(Extension Specialist in Farm Management, University Farm, St. Paul)

The farmer who wants to study his farm business should not overlook the importance of good records of feed consumption by his live stock. Along with the cash and the crop records, the information on feed use will help show the way to improvement in practices from year to year.

Records of feed consumption are usually kept on groups of live stock rather than on individual animals. In practice the operator observes carefully the amount of feed used in a day, and on this basis estimates the quantity fed in a month. In the record book, one page is assigned to each class of live stock, with different columns for the different kinds of feed.

It is a good plan to check once in a while on the estimates by comparing the total feed recorded with the amounts of feed that have been actually used.

By placing a value on his feed as he goes along, the farmer can readily figure his feed results in cost per pound of gain for meat animals and cost per unit produced by dairy herds.

In order to study his feed records intelligently, the operator must have standards with which to compare his own results. Cow testing records supply convenient yardsticks for the dairyman. Co-operative farm management groups use the average for the association in the various classifications.

Files of the county agent's office usually contain records of various feeding trials which afford good standards for comparison. The farmer who wishes to evaluate his records can do so conveniently by consulting the county agent and assembling a set of standards applicable to his own type of farming.

Nitrogen in Apples

A 600 pound crop of apples from a vigorous tree 25 years old removes about one-third of a pound of nitrogen from the soil. For growth of its wood, bark, and roots such a tree uses about a half pound of nitrogen. The leaves used from a half pound to a pound of nitrogen in their growth and development, but this is restored to the tree and soil, and is not ultimately removed from the orchard.

If loss of nitrogen by leaching can be prevented, a pound of actual nitrogen a year for a tree in full bearing is an ample supply. Too much nitrogen checks the desirable coloring of the fruit. About 6 pounds of nitrate of soda or 5 pounds of sulphate of ammonia would supply a pound of nitrogen.

Farm Machine Sales Show Big Increase

Comparative study of the farm situation since 1935 with the five-year period preceding the World war reveals that current purchases of farm machinery and motor vehicles has doubled those made in the early period.

The great increase was made in the purchases of motor vehicles, while expenditures for other farm machinery averaged about the same.

The number of horses and mules on farms was reduced from 25 to 15 million head and the number of hired laborers employed was about 13 per cent lower than in the pre-war years. The number of farms is about 10 per cent greater, the acreage cultivated has increased, and agricultural production is materially greater than it was.

Care of Orchard

Fertilization of the "orchard" instead of the "trees" would do much toward maintaining good orchard sites through succeeding generations of trees, says Grover F. Brown, agronomist in the northeast region of the Soil Conservation service.

Nitrogen has been the chief plant food used in orchards with the result that cover crops often lack lime, phosphorus, and potash. Tests show, says Brown, that although trees in orchards may not respond to phosphorus and potash, the cover crops frequently do need these two elements.

Seedlings Need Room

It is a big mistake to plant forest tree seedlings too close together, according to R. W. Graeber, extension forester of N. C. State college. He recommends a spacing of six by seven feet, requiring 1,000 trees to the acre. This can be varied somewhat according to conditions, however. In reclaiming gullies, for example, a closer spacing of four or five feet by seven feet may yield better results. Much closer planting will stunt the trees' growth.

Something About Dogs

To many people—perhaps to the majority—a dog is just a dog. They recognize a bulldog, a chow, an airedale, or a collie, because these breeds are widespread and their characteristics are conspicuous. Any person who is considering the acquisition of a dog should be interested to learn of a few equally hardy and useful, though less well-known breeds.

One of the handsomest of dogs is the Samoyed (pronounced Sam-o-yed). He is a furry, well-muscled dog, with a bushy tail curving sharply over his back, and with pointed, erect ears. The breed may be either pure white, white and biscuit, or cream color, and may vary in weight from 36 to 45 pounds for the female, and from 45 to 55 pounds for the male. These dogs were bred originally by an ancient Siberian nomadic tribe, supposed to have been of Finnish origin. The dogs have proved themselves invaluable in various Arctic expeditions, since they take readily to harness. They are, moreover, fine playmates for children, being of friendly aspect and not inherently vicious.

The beagle, another little-known dog, is also of ancient origin. It is supposed that the ancient Greeks used his ancestors in the coursing of hares. If your need is a hound for rabbit hunting, the beagle is your dog. No weight specifications are set for him, but the largest may not stand over 15 inches at the shoulder. The beagle resembles the foxhound and may show any hound color. He has a short, muscular back, broad deep chest, and rugged-square-set legs. His ears are pendant; his general head character indicates gayety and determination. He is a handsome, friendly, useful dog.

IRISH WOLFHOUND

If you have a bit of the Celt in your blood, you will be irresistibly drawn to the Irish wolfhound, a dog whose blood lines run quite as far back as do those of the Samoyeds or the beagles. Long ago, when elk, deer, wolves and wild boar abounded in the British isles, the Celts used the wolfhound for hunting. Many of the earlier specimens were of truly monstrous size, and while their descendants are not as large as were those remote ancestors, they are, nevertheless, huge dogs. Individuals have been known to weigh more than 150 pounds, and to stand 37 inches and more at the shoulder. These are magnificent dogs: bold, strong, fearless, and loyal.

Another splendid dog, whose ancestry is lost in the mists of the long-ago, is the German shepherd dog, commonly known in America as the German police dog.

The German shepherd dogs have been bred and used in Germany for centuries and the standards for the breed are set by the Society for German Shepherd Dogs. Under those standards, practically any color is permissible from pure white to solid black, with many variations of brindles, wolf colorings, browns, and grays. However, white, or pale and washed-out colorings are not desirable. These dogs are beautiful because of their strong, lithe, muscular bodies, and are highly desirable as herders, watchdogs, and companions. They are noted for courage and loyalty, and for a high degree of intelligence. The latter trait, together with a natural capacity for trailing, has led to their development into high-class police dogs.

TOY DOGS

Among the so-called "toy dogs," without mention of which no list, however tentative, could be considered complete, the Pekingese is one of the most interesting, both because of its striking appearance and because of its ancient, oriental origin. History indicates that these little dogs were members of the royal household of imperial China, many centuries ago. The most desirable weight for the Pekingese is from 7 to 9 pounds, although under the American standard they may go as high as 14 pounds. All colors—even parti-colors—are allowable in this breed but in the parti-colored, the colors must be evenly broken. Characteristically, these tiny dogs have flat, massive heads and "an aloof, lion-like expression."

Another general favorite among the toy dogs is the Pomeranian, for whom the weight is set at seven pounds, maximum. This tiny dog is compact of body, with a fox-like head and expression, and is active, alert and intelligent.

For information concerning the dog of your choice, send five cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1491.

COCKROACHES

These troublesome insects are members of the grasshopper family. They love dark places, run with great speed when disturbed and the European species is a great nuisance in houses. It feeds on pastry and vegetable matter. Our native species are harmless creatures, living under boards and bark and never entering houses. Tropical species of the cockroach are very large, individuals nearly as long as a man's finger being by no means uncommon.

U. S. OBSERVER IN GERMANY

Avra M. Warren, chief of the state department's visa section, uncorked a sensational earful about conditions in Germany and its conquered countries when he testified at a closed-door session of the house appropriations committee.

Warren had returned from a prolonged inspection tour of Germany, France, Poland, Holland; and the information he disclosed about their internal situation was so confidential that a committee stenographer was instructed to leave much of it unrecorded.

Highlights of his testimony were:

(1) That Germany had enough crucial supplies (food, gasoline and war materials) to continue the war for some time, but was beset with serious internal problems in the nations she has occupied.

(2) That France, Holland, Belgium, Poland and Denmark were not "cooperating" with Germany—in fact, civilians in these nations were at the point of rebellion against the wholesale confiscation of foodstuffs and other necessities for the German army.

(3) That German prisoners of war, on the whole, were treated decently.

The internal situation in the occupied areas, Warren reported, was becoming graver by the minute. Civilians were bitterly resentful of German troops quartered among them, and kept in subjection only by the sternest military discipline.

Germany has plenty of gasoline supplies, though of poor grade, he said, but the shortage of lubricating oil is so intense that its use for civilian purposes, such as in operation of elevators, is prohibited.

PLAN DEMOCRACY PROPAGANDA

The New Deal has hired more publicity men and run off more miles of mimeographed press handouts than any other administration in history. Yet the biggest and most worthwhile job of propaganda today remains completely untouched. It is the job which George Creel did for Europe during the last World war.

For it is an indisputable fact that American propaganda and the speeches of Woodrow Wilson, percolating behind the lines in Germany and Austria, helped materially to cause the 1918 collapse of the Central Powers.

Today, a confidential plan for a similar propaganda agency is somewhere in the White House—where, no one knows exactly. Drawn up two months ago by certain chiefs of the war department, it was sent to the White House with the recommendation that such a plan could do almost as much as airplanes to bring about the defeat of Hitler. But nothing happened. The idea still is reposing on the desk of one of the six White House secretaries.

U. S. war chiefs are convinced that this country can perform two important propaganda functions:

1. Get across to the people of Italy and Germany the disadvantages of Hitler, the advantages of democracy, and the general idea that there is no quarrel between the peoples themselves.

2. Bring about greater national unity within the United States, especially among foreign-born, naturalized citizens of German and Italian extraction.

It is probable that the great majority of Italians and Germans in the United States are anxious to be good American citizens and are all too glad to be out of Europe. However, national and racial psychology can easily alienate them if not counteracted.

To date the only agencies which have attempted to influence German and Italian opinion inside the United States have been the Bund, the Fascist Black Shirts and similar Nazi-Fascist organizations. There has been no active propaganda from the democratic side.

Furthermore, these Italian-German groups can be the most effective spearhead in getting propaganda into Germany and Italy. Leaflets printed in England and dropped from British airplanes have had no perceptible influence in Germany. But propaganda sent from purely German organizations in the United States to fellow Germans under Hitler is bound to carry weight.

This was what George Creel did under Woodrow Wilson. Czech, Polish, Austrian and Slav groups from Chicago to Pittsburgh created such effective organizations that eventually they brought about the fall of the Austria-Hungarian empire and the crumbling of the entire war front.

A NEW YORKER'S NOTES:

On one of the forums the other Sabbath the opposing sides wrestled with the topic of the best way to stifle the Fifth Column. All agreed on one thing: Publicity is the best way to wipe out all the rodents. But a certain WW, who has been doing that for a long time now, is called "hysterical," among other things. Ho, hum . . . Some of us, incidentally, are heckled for playing up "unimportant" news . . . But the New York H-T devoted a 2-colyum front page spread to the news that Princeton stewdents are now allowed to have panther soup in their rooms . . . The same day the NY Times reported that all the bishops in Norway condemned the Nazis . . . Wonder how the Satevepost feels about that? Since the SEP ran a piece claiming the Norwegians are playing ball with them . . . Lindbergh, the aviation expert, claims we need 10,000 planes to be safe . . . Rickenbacker, another expert, claims we need 150,000 planes . . . In short, what the country needs is —less experts and more planes.

Local loiterers have perfected a game of Pedestrian Poker. It's played with names. The first player yells a common monicker, like "Bill," at a mob of passersby. He counts the number who turn around and that's his hand . . . The next player hollers: "Jack!" . . . If he attracts more neck craners he takes the pot.

The colyum recently itemed that commentators should pronounce Mr. Knudsen's name "Nood-sen," not "Ka-nood-sen" . . . A country-woman of the Defense Chief responded by saying that "K" was silent . . . Well, she's wrong, too . . . We now learn from Leon Henderson, one of Mr. Knudsen's colleagues, that his name is pronounced "Ka-noo-sen"—the "d" being excess baggage.

Over at the 18 Club, Pat Harrington relayed this one of Mr. Ka-noo-sen . . . The Defense biggie was playing his favorite card game, poker, with some Washington cronies. The limit was a dollar . . . During a big pot, Mr. Ka-noo-sen was about to wager a whole dollar to call his opponent's bluff . . . "Be careful," cautioned the opponent, "that's a whole year's Government pay!"

The London Daily Express reports this sign observed on a board outside a London church: "If your knees are knocking, kneel on them" . . . Germany's Minister of Justice has just died . . . Gone to join Justice, no doubt.

It happened over at Barbara Hutton's house in Hollywood the other party . . . The wealthy lady invited several of her friends on the Coast newspapers and trade dailies . . . Herb Stein, of the Hollywood Reporter, a newcomer, was talking with her in a dimly lit corner—a heart-to-heart talk.

"This is all very nice," said Stein, "everybody is so pleasant to me. But can you imagine how they'd snub me if I didn't have a colyum?"

"Can you imagine," was the grim reply, "if I didn't have money?"

New York racing officials met and toasted each other over the heap of moolah they had fetched the State via the race track parimutuels . . . Then they voted down "the daily double"—which allows a chump to pick two races at a time . . . The reason the officials gave should go into the history books. The double, they said (with straight faces), was "outright gambling."

NEW YORK SCENE:

Sallies in Our Alley: Joe E. Lewis forwards the silly about the mixed-up man who went to the psychiatrist: "What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor . . . The daffydillo responded by vigorously brushing imaginary things off his arm, explaining: "See? I have dragons on my sleeve!" . . . The psychiatrist, backing away, hysterically screamed: "Well, you don't have to brush them off on me!"

Memos of a Midnighter: Glenn Warner, vet football coach, has slapped a $100,000 libel suit against the Satevepost—over their piece on football "boners" . . . One of the town's biggest papers can't get a British visa for one of its star reporters because of pro-Hitler utterances . . . Bob Benchley is the town's leading pacifist. He gets into such violent arguments that his peace arguments sound a little Benchleyish.

Manhattan Murals: The way subway riders stare at a man who wears a tuxedo . . . The few midtown French restaurants which have more happy Frenchmen than in all France . . . The black cat crossing against the light at 47th and 7th and putting the traffic to a standstill . . . The sign in a 4th Avenue bookshop: "We Fill Bookends" . . . The 48th Street cabaret sign that states: "No Minimum—No Cover." Under which some disgruntled patron or critic has pencilled: "And No Nothin'!"

City of London Financial 'Hub' Of British Empire

Great Commercial Center Selected as Target By Bombers.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON. — The compact "downtown" financial district of London known as the City, which is the special target for German raiders' incendiary bombs and the scene of England's greatest fire in three centuries, has been acclaimed one of the most important commercial areas of its size in the world.

The irregular semicircle of ancient streets beside the Thames known as the City is only one square mile in area, but for centuries it has set the financial pace of the world, according to the National Geographic society.

The Bank of England, known as the exclusive "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," sits in the midst of it—a private institution which since 1694 has had the exclusive right to issue England's paper money and to hold the reserve funds of all other banks in the country. A coin's throw to the east on Throgmorton street, stands the Stock exchange, which deals in the government bonds of its own and foreign countries, and in the stocks of most important corporations of the world.

London's 'Wall Street.'

Throgmorton street becomes the "curb market" for trading in American securities during the daily interval between the closing of the London exchange and the closing five hours later of New York's stock market. Lombard street, noted for its banks, adjoins Threadneedle and Throgmorton streets to form the "Wall street" district of London.

Lloyd's of London, a short walk east of Leadenhall street, in 250 years has grown to be the world's largest insurance institution. It is an association of underwriters. Within the area also are the famous old financial house of Rothschild, and the even older Child's bank, which Dickens described in his "Tale of Two Cities" as Tellson's bank.

Within vast metropolitan London, whose 8,000,000 people have spread their buildings over 692 square miles, the "City" is a tight little center packed inside ancient boundaries like an English walnut in its shell. It reaches from the Inns of Court and Fleet street in the west to the Tower of London in the east, from London bridge north to Clerkenwell road. This is the oldest part of London. Through 20 centuries it has preserved its identity and practically its original limits, thanks to the thick wall 35 feet high built around it by Roman conquerors.

Remnants of this frequently rebuilt wall and its nine gates are responsible for the names of such streets as London Wall, Newgate, Aldgate, and Cripplegate, as well as Billingsgate Market. The wall enabled City dwellers to hold off William the Conqueror, who prudently built his Tower of London just outside the City. Since then, no sovereign has lived within the City. The king today first receives permission from the lord mayor of London before passing the spots, such as the Temple Bar, where modern streets cross the City's antique boundaries.

'City' Deserted at Night.

Historic and literary landmarks, some dating from Roman times, fill the City, barely a yard apart. By night the district is usually deserted, since almost the only permanent residents are the custodians or watchmen of buildings which are treasured by the Empire for their past or present significance. By day, however, a million people daily crowd in and out of this small area on business.

The volume of news dispatched from the newspaper offices of Fleet street in normal times makes this a world center for journalism as well as finance.

This same square mile of London's inner core was the birthplace of John Milton, Sir Thomas More, Charles Lamb, and William Penn. It was the residence of Chaucer, and was visited by countless notables who were involved in the literary activities of Grub street or Paternoster row. There at 17 Gough square, Dr. Johnson wrote his epochal dictionary of the English language.

A few blocks south, within the high paneled walls of Middle Temple hall, on February 2, 1602, a troupe of actors presented a comedy by one of their company, a newcomer named Shakespeare; it was "Twelfth Night," destined for Broadway in 1941.

Famous Men Lived in Area.

A physician at old St. Bartholomew's hospital, which had been founded by a king's jester, discovered the circulation of the blood—William Harvey. Meanwhile, in the Fifteenth-century Guildhall, successive lord mayors were elected and banqueted under the traditional but mysterious figures of Gog and Magog. Another landmark of the region was the Cheshire Cheese, the inn made famous by Dr. Johnson and Boswell. The Old Bailey, site of London's modern criminal courts, has associations with the old debtors' prison and the execution place where malefactors were hanged or burned at the stake; the last burning took place in 1789.

John Bunyan, William Blake, and Daniel Defoe wandered through the City to a common burial place on its northern fringes. Other tombs in the district include those of John Wesley, the Methodist founding father, and George Fox, first Quaker.

Both traffic and tradition center of the City is St. Paul's cathedral, "the empire's parish church."

Names of the knotted streets of the City are almost unbelievably quaint: Stew lane, Friday street, Budge row, Knightrider street, Red Lion court, and Fetter lane.

Maybe We Need Him Again

Workers' Income Rises as Expenses Stay at 1936 Level

Increased Buying Power Reflected in High Store Sales.

MINNEAPOLIS.—Spreading payrolls from roaring defense industries have hoisted the American family's buying power to new recovery heights, a current family buying-power survey reveals. The average urban worker's household saw its monthly income soar nearly $7 in the last six months of 1940, while household expenses remained at 1936 levels, according to a current family buying-power study.

The favorable margin between average earnings and living costs is the largest in the eight-year history of the company's index, according to the survey conducted by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company. Record department store trade volume, and improved installment collection ratios reflect this greater net buying power in the hands of the American consumer.

Living costs sank to a low for the year in October, and have stiffened a trifle since, but have been far outstripped by the rise in industrial pay checks, the report states.

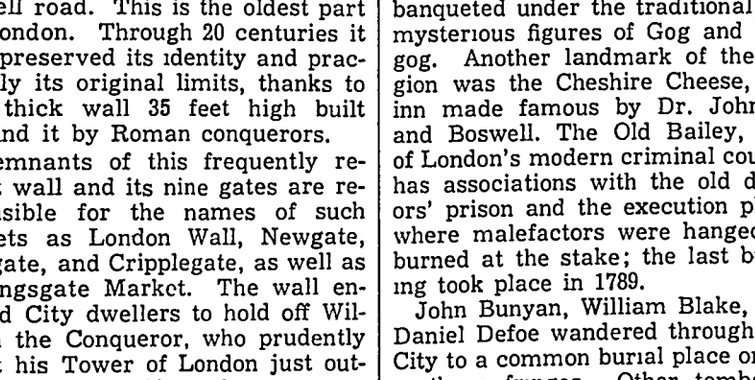
Measuring the effects of payroll and living cost changes on the American pocketbook, the study shows that an average employed worker's family of four, with earnings of $120 at average 1933 payroll levels and spending the same amount for its living expenses at average 1933 retail prices, had to pay $131.11 in June, 1936, to maintain the same standard of living; meanwhile the family pay check had climbed to $133.92.

In June, 1940, the same standard of living for a family of four cost $131.86, while the family's pay check had climbed to $150.86; by the year-end, the monthly pay check had rocketed almost another $7, to $157.49, while living costs had actually fallen $1.10 from June levels, totalling $130.76 in December, 1940, or practically the same as in mid-1936, the report shows.

Thus the great increase in payrolls in recent months has meant a net increase in American spending power, the report points out, as total living costs are the same as they were a year ago, and actually less than they were last summer. Minor increases in clothing and fuel, have been offset by the decline in food prices, the study shows.

Farm Prosperity Continues Rise

LaSalle Map of Business Conditions



A survey of business conditions for February reveals that prosperity is steadily rising. Increased industrial employment is stimulating demand for farm products. The resultant larger farm purchasing power is raising demand for manufactured products. Meanwhile many prices are gradually moving higher.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
(President, LaSalle Extension University)

Prosperity of the farmers is slowly improving. Farm income has again risen higher, and is now the best in 10 years. The outlook is for continued improvement as long as defense expenditures remain large.

Greater demand has pushed the prices of many products higher. The general average of the prices received by farmers is about 5 per cent above that of last year at this time. The trend continues to be slowly upward with only temporary interruptions.

Effects of expansion in industry and larger consumer incomes are rapidly spreading out into every community.

Consumer purchasing power has been most strikingly reflected in recent weeks by the heavy buying in retail stores, both in cities and in rural districts. Sales have declined from the high holiday peak but they are still from 10 to 15 per cent higher than a year ago

Army Mechanic Rescues Navy Aviator in Desert

RANDOLPH FIELD, TEXAS.—If it had happened in the movies, audiences would have shrieked in disbelief.

Technical Sergeant O. A. Miller, veteran air corps mechanic, of Randolph field, Texas, was driving across the Arizona desert not far from Gila Bend. Suddenly a navy training plane sputtered overhead and then glided to earth on the desert wastes, just off the highway.

"Forced landing . . . Motor quit," explained the navy pilot to Sergeant Miller. With the aid of his auto tool kit, the army man proceeded to "trouble shoot" the ailing engine. In a couple of hours it was purring smoothly again.

A passing motorist was pressed into service to halt any stray traffic that might happen along on the road, the plane was taxied onto the highway and after a final check, Sergeant Miller turned it over to the navy man, who used the roadbed for a runway to get into the air.

A very nice letter of appreciation was received by Sergeant Miller a few days later from the navy pilot who had been assisted from what might have been a rather hazardous situation. The signature at the close of the note of thanks . . . Robert E. Lee, Ensign. USNR.

BIG CITY BLACKOUT

The move for a blackout test of New York continues, but this department is against it. More people would get hurt by the blackout than by any enemy attack. New Yorkers, as Elmer Twitchell pointed out today, can't even get around safely with all the lights on.

And then, too, there's the question of morale. What would a New Yorker do if he couldn't be seen by anybody?

What would happen to a genuine Manhattanite if he suddenly found there wasn't a light on him or near him? "No sir, it would never work in a city like New York," Mr. Twitchell insisted. "Think of what would happen to the stamina of those thousands of New Yorkers who live in night clubs if this blackout comes! If they couldn't find the night clubs, they'd be in a bad way. And what would be even worse, suppose they got into a night club and then couldn't be seen in 'em by the columnists!'

* * *

Mr. Twitchell was terribly worked up. "Take the matter of photographs," he continued. "Pictures can't be taken during a complete blackout. There must be a coupla million New Yorkers who lose weight and go into a decline if they ain't photographed wherever they go.

* * *

"If they have to leave their apartments without being seen, travel to the theater without being seen, and even enter it and leave it without being noticed or photographed, can you imagine what would happen to their morale!

"I tell you there are tens of thousands of New Yorkers who can't even sit at a dinner table and have a cocktail in complete happiness unless a snapshot is taken. Ask all these classes to go a night in complete oblivion, and what will they do? Revolt, that's what. And there's no telling how far a revolt in New York by people who demand the spotlight might go. It might spread all over America.

* * *

"And there's the matter of some of our big personalities. What would be the reactions of Elsa Maxwell, Billy Rose, Jimmy Walker, Dot Parker, Tom Dewey or Mayor LaGuardia in a blackout? They'd curl right up and expire.

"The same thing goes for the rank and file. What do New Yorkers live on? Delicatessen products. Where do they get 'em? Delicatessen and drug stores. How would they find these stores without all those red, green and yellow lights on 'em? Why, they'd starve to death in 48 hours. Blackout of New York! It's a crazy idea. Why, the enemy could locate the city by the loud squawks, wails, protests and letters to the editor."

OUT OF WORK

Silken frills and all their glory
Have changed their former category,
For now milady's lingerie

Her stockings, too, from top to toe,
Are coal and air and H2O;
Alas, the erstwhile busy worm
Has nothing left to do but squirm.

That Space Between The Built-In Closets

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHAT could be a greater luxury than two extra closets in your bedroom! That is exactly what a young friend of mine thought. But, when they were built in, she was painfully conscious of their angles and the room seemed much narrower. This sketch shows you how the feeling of width was restored and the angles were made to melt away.

A wallpaper border all the way around the room helped to soften down the angles of the closets, also added an exciting color note to the plain painted walls. The chest of drawers in the upper sketch was moved to another part of the room, and the long spacious dressing table was built into the space between the closets. The top of the table and stool and the frame of the mirror were enameled porcelain blue which was one of the colors in the wallpaper border. Dotted swiss skirts were fastened on the inside of the finishing boards across the front of the table and around the stool with snap fastener tape—one side tacked to the wood and the other sewn to the skirt tops.

NOTE: Directions for making three types of dressing tables are illustrated in booklet No. 1 of the series which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers. Details for making the frilled lamp shades illustrated today are in No. 5, which also contains a description of the series. Each booklet illustrates 32 home-making projects and may be ordered direct from Mrs. Spears by sending her your name and address with 10c in coin for each number requested Send order to:

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Comfort Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin to save your touchy stomach from further distress. For years, many Doctors have used pepsin compounds as vehicles, or carriers to make other medicines agreeable to your stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach.® Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative that comforts your stomach, too.

MEADOWLARK IS THE EARLY BIRD

We will probably be accused of seeing things . . . but this writer was perfectly normal Friday forenoon when he saw a meadowlark on the highway a mile north of the Elltown church.

The meadowlark also appeared to be in good health and did not seem to mind the frosty air.

As yet we have not seen any robin red breasts, the first harbinger of spring. But then the robin is smarter than the meadowlark. The robin waits until there are nice juicy worms to pull out of the ground! We have a slinking notion to tame a few robins . . . it would solve that problem of getting a supply of fishing worms—robin red breast would catch them for us.

OUR BOUQUET FOR THIS WEEK

. . . . goes to the Klemme American Legion Post for having the courage to go to the expense of installing bowling alleys in the Community Hall.

The boys have gone to a lot of expense to bring this fine recreational game to Klemme. We hope that both the men and ladies of the community will show their appreciation by liberally patronizing the Legion's bowling alley.

We have been told that if enough ladies become interested in the healthful sport of bowling, that special time will be set aside for them. Ladies, learn to bowl and keep that girlish figure.

Also a nice chance for a few men we know to reduce that Milwaukee front, or whose chest has slid downward!

KLEMME SHAMROCKS DIVIDE HONORS

The Klemme Shamrocks are an all around good basket ball team if records mean anything. The squad does not boast of any one or two stars on the team, but all are above par for a Class B ball club.

Of the seven boys who have seen the most service on the first string, each of the seven has been "high-point man" in a game this season. The seven who have held the scoring honors are Billy Grosshuesch, Billy Zabilka. Keith Stille, Allen Barz, Garland Brinkman, Elwyn Jacobs and Hank Kaduce.

And that is what it takes to make a good consistent, game-winning basket ball team.

To date, they have won nineteen games and lost four. Not a bad record for any team, anl it looks like they will tuck away a few more wins before hanging up their basket ball shoes for the season.

Shamrocks Win Again!

SHAMROCKS HANG UP VICTORY OVER SWALEDALE

Fast Swaledale Team Upset In A Double Feature Tuesday Eve

More victories were added to the Shamrock string when the locals won in a double header with the fast Swaledale teams Tuesday evening.

The Shamrock Reserves came through with a 22 to 16 victory.

Swaledale has one of the best teams the Shamrocks have met this season. They are leading in their conference and have been defeated but once, by the Holy Family in the Cerro Gordo County tournament.

The Shamrocks trailed for three quarters and were behind 10 to 13 at the half way mark.

In the beginning of the final quarter Swaledale was still out in front 20 to 16, but the Shamrocks bottled up the visitor's scoring drives to start forging ahead.

In the last part of the final quarter the Shamrocks worked their famous "scissors" play, pulling out the Swaledale defense and setting up openings for pot shots that payed real dividends. The Shamrocks closed the gap and came out in front 30 to 28 at the final signal.

COUPLE MARRIED SATURDAY EVENING AT KLEMME PARSONAGE

Miss Alice Rapp became the bride of Mr. Marvin Meintz, of Belmond at the Klemme Reformed Parsonage, Saturday evening, February 22.

Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch performed the rites, using the single ring ceremony. The marriage was winessed by Mr. and Mrs. John Rapp, parents of the bride.

REPORT CIVET CAT IS HELP IN RAT CONTROL

Since the rat problem is becoming more serious as vast amounts of corn are stored on Iowa farms the year around, many farmers may wish to give the civet cat a chance to aid in ousting rats.

Investigations by wildlife specialists at Iowa State College, as reported in the Farm Service Reporter, have revealed that the civet cat, or little spotted skunk, will often drive out rats under circumstances where good cats have little effect on them. In several places in scutheastern Iowa it was observed that a heavy population of rats during the summer and fall completely disappeared during the winter months when the spotted skunks were in residence.

The Wildlife specialists list the following good management practices for the encouragement of the spotted skunk.

(1) Do no trapping around corncribs, granaries and barns if civets are known to be around.

(2) Kill civets around poultry houses only when it is positively known that they are molesting the birds.

(3) Control the farm dog by tieing him up at night and otherwise discourage the pursuit of the civets.

An excellent method of using soybeans for grazing is to seed them in rows, and after the first cultivation of the soybeans, seed a row of Sudan grass between the rows of soybeans. Such a combination supplies more grazing than the soybeans alone.

CORPORATE OWNED LAND MAKES A LARGE AMOUNT

Nearly 2 million acres of Iowa's farm land is held for sale today by insurance companies and agencies of the Farm Credit Administration, reports W. G. Murray agricultural economist at the Iowa State College.

In a statement recently released, Murray stated that insurance companies alone own 1,724,000 acres of farm land in Iowa, or 5.1 percent of the total land in Iowa. This land is worth approximately 120 million dollars, or an average of $70 per acre.

Mostly Over-Appraised

These corporate-owned farms were obtained for the most part through foreclosure, frequently because the physical productivity of the land had been over-appraised.

"Both buyers and sellers should make a special effort to prevent this mistake of over-appraisal and subsequent foreclosure from occurring again," Murray declared.

Northern, Southwestern

Insurance company land is concentrated in northern and southwestern Iowa. In 10 counties in the north and southwest the companies have available more than 10 percent of the farm land. Most of the land is held by a relatively few companies, Murray said. Five of them own 1,100,000 acres out of the 1,724,000 total.

Federal farm credit agencies, owning less than one-eighth of the nearly 2 million acres for sale by corporates, have most of their holdings in southern and western Iowa. In 12 counties the Farm Credit Administration has 5,000 acres for sale. Holdings of the FCA are divided between the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, The Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation and six joint stock land banks.

BUTTER FAT PRICE ABOUT SAME THIS YEAR AS LAST

Iowa dairymen received about the same price for butterfat in Januray as they did a year earlier, although production was much heavier, report agricultural economists at Iowa State College.

Milk production is expected to continue heavier during the first half of 1941 than a year earlier because there are more cows in milking herds and feed supplies are plentiful.

Improving general business conditions, a result of the defense program, are expected to offset the effect of the larger supplies of dairy products on prices.

HOW GOOD IS—

FELCO Chick Starting Mash

- FELCO Chick Starting Mash is according to the same formula which was used ten years ago, when the FELCO Feeding Program was started.
- It was good enough then to meet competition and today it is still just that good.
- Many feed manufacturers tell you year how much they have improved their thus admitting that there was something ing before.
- FELCO Chick Mash is the same as was at first and has no apologies to make somehing it did not have last year or some year.
- When you buy FELCO Mash you get good a feed as can be had.

MUSIC NEWS

The dates for the preliminary music contest have been set for April 3, 4 and 5. At this time our band, glee clubs, mixed chorus and small chamber groups will journey to Hampon to show their music ability to the North Central District. Parents of the members of any music group are urged to "keep at" their children to practice at least ½ hour a day until contest time. We konw all parents are proud of their children when perform to the best of their ability Let us increase this ability by practice. Practice for results, not hours. We have thirty-six days until the CONTEST; so brother, WORK.

CAN YOU IMAGINE?

BRUCE ARNOLD hanging around the girls?

LUCILLE HARTBECK falling for every boy she meets?

LUELLA THIEMAN being a national "jitterbug?"

BILL ZABILKA not being a musician?

CHARLES BOCK not having a case on that certain sophomore blond?

ARLENE BUSEMAN without any boy-friends?

ARLENE BUSEMAN carrying on in classes like some of the pupils?

ELLEN KILGORE having perfect attendance?

MAXINE MAU not taking a spill each day?

AARON WILLE not interested in farming?

MELVIN COOBS leaving the girls' pencils and notebooks alone?

ROBERT SCHULZ without a date on Sunday night - regardless?

LORRAINE BUNTENBACH sitting home alone on Sunday and Saturday nights?

BETTY LASS being short, fat and silly?

SPORT'S NONSENSE

Keith Stille plays a swell ball game while he plays but at Hayfield he hurried and fouled out so Phylls Swanson could doctor him after she had stabbed him with a pencil Some say it was mercurochrome, but it must have been lipstick!

Shirley Johnson gave Mr. Glenn Bowles a few extra "rahs" at pep meeting the other day. She says it was accidental, but it probably was accidentally on purpose!

DRAMATICS

The Senior class have decided to show the public their dramatic talent by giving a three-act play and also a short play in with their class day program Who said the Seniors haven't any dramatic ability?

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

The seniors got their memory books from Josten5s in connection with their announcements last week.

Some of the Seniors will visit the telegraph office next week in connection with their physics studies. We say "some" because according to Mr Onerheim's announcement, only those passing the Friday's test will be allowed to go.

Mr. Galbreth wanted to get some lively interest in geometry class so he devised a contest for last week. The feeling of competition got pretty hot. Friday Mr. Galbreth didn't dare announce the winning side or he'd have been in danger of his life.

In history the sophomores were studying about the French Revolution and Napoleon.

It seems that Betty Etchen's favorite saying is "Hey! You with the curl." Was she embarrassed when the wrong person came in answer to her call.

In English, the sophomores are finishing the "Ivanhoe," and Monday are going to have a test over the book.

Sophomore girls! Here's our ideal boy for you.

He'd probably have:

Elwyn Jacobs' ability to always look nice in his clothes.

Billy Grosshuesch's winning smile.

Donald Schafer's curly hair.

Leonard Kaduce's height.

Jesse S.'s humor.

Leo Blumer's good manners.

Eugene Haberkamp's brown eyes.

Wayne Bird's accent.

Dean Merkel's freckles.

Who is that girl from Britt that Bird is always dancing with? His favorite song seems to be "Fifteen Minute Intermission."

FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

Some of the home economics I class have started on blouses and pajamas. Our hand-hemmed towels were graded when we got them back Wednesday. Quote the class!! "Oh, well, we can't expect to get C's all of the time."

Doris Spitler is always giving Corrine Merkel pointers on general science, anyway, that's what Doris says.

The freshmen's "Good American English Club" is soon to be of service to the whole high school.

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Marvin Wade brought three books to add to our library. We also got several books from the traveling library.

Wesley Suckow and Patricia Kudje are the only two who have finished book reports for this first six weeks.

We took a history test over the first part of unit 5 on the Civil War Edward Barz had a perfect score Other high scores were earned by LaVonne Hammitt and Patricia.

Mavis, Bobby Roths, Ruth, Patricia, LaVonne and Edward got perfect scores in spelling.

We now have a history honor roll. If our papers are done neatly and correctly, our names are placed on it. Ten have their names on it now.

GRADES 5 & 6

Thursday was Donald's eleventh birthday. He brought a treat for everyone.

One day Robert brought one of his white mother rabbits and her six little baby rabbits to school.

The fifth graders made a class rating of six on their arithmetic self-testing drill this week.

The six graders finished the unit "The Fringe of Europe." On Thursday they began the unit, "Western Europe."

The following people had perfect spelling scores: Roger R., Roger B., Clarence, Mary Lou, Carol Elizabeth, Edward, Irene, William, Donna, Darwin, Ruh Esther, Delores, Donald, Shirley, Willis, Velma, Helen and Robert.

GRADES 3 & 4

We have many new books from the Iowa Traveling Library.

Fourth grade finished their Elson-Gray reading books. We will read from "The Children's Own Readers" now.

Third grade are reading the books, " If I Were Going." We are studying the unit about Norway. Fourth grade are studying Norway in geography.

KINDERGARTEN GRADES 1 & 2

As we are studying the wind and air inscience class, we made wind toys or pinwheels. We watched the wind turn them around.

We have finished our large flag which we made from paper chains.

We wrote thank-you letters to Mr. Wellemeyer for the valentines hat he gave us.

LuVerne made up this story in kindergarten class. "LuVerne helps his mother." LuVerne works."

Ronald's birthday was Friday He brought treats to school.

Paul Fitzpatrick advertises his closing out sale of household goods to be held Saturday. Read his adv for a list of goods to be sold.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Barz are moving into the apartment on the second floor of the C. F. Keraus residence. Mr. Barz will be employed as a truckman by the Hancock County Co-Operaive Oil Association and will have territory east of Klemme.

Basket Ball Boys Entertained By Coach Over The Week End

Coach "Bodge" Bowles entertained members of his basket ball squad over the week end by taking them to Des Moines where a number of interesting places were visited, and then they went to Indianola where they were guests in the Bowles home, visited Simpson College and played a basket ball game with Orient on the Simpson College floor. Those who made the trip were Billy Zabilka, Billy Grosshuesch, Keith Stille, Garland Brinkman and Elwyn Jacobs. Other boys in the squad had been invited but were unable to make the trip with their coach.

E A PEEK AT YOUR PASTRY

ny a cook who shines brightly ake-baking sadly admits that she doesn't have the knack of making flaky, melt-in-the-mouth pastry. She feels that it is something she can't help, like the color of her eyes or her hair. But a careful look at her pie crust ugh a magnifying glass or microscope often gives a clue as to t is the matter.

aky pastry is made up of many, y thin layers of dough separat- y long, thin air pockets or spaces ed when the layers of fat and are separated by steam dur- the baking.

rt of this flakiness depends n the manner in which the fat ut into the flour and part upon handling of the dough. If a of the fat is rubbed in with the ers or a pastry blender, until it n very small particles and is ly distributed throughout all of flour; and if the remainder of fat is cut in so that it is in y large pieces about the size navy beans or peas, then the t has an excellent chance of be- both tender and flaky. The large es of fat separate the flour into rs, while the small particles to make the dough more er.

all the fat is distributed in ll particles the crust is apt to "crumbly" rather than flaky.

o this fat and flour mixture is ed the water, a procedure which best accomplished with a fork. he dough is worked lightly to- er into a ball so that it can be ed out. Overhandling at this nt foreshadows a tough crust, yet dough must be kneaded enough that it will stick together and n a smooth sheet under the roll- pin. A slightly richer formula— roportion of ⅓ cup of fat to 1 cup flour instead of the usual ¼ cup flour to 1 cup of fat, makes it sible to handle the pastry dough re without toughening it appre- bly.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

IN "BILLY THE KID," Robert Taylor's new starring vehicle for Metro, there is one scene in which all of the characters have to check their six shooters with the sheriff before attending a mass meeting. Each morning on the set, the assistant director takes up a collection from all the extras and bit players. He "frisks" them—not of their guns, but of their wrist watches.

Here's the reason. The other day Robert Taylor was playing a scene in the back room of a saloon. Also in the scene were Gene Lockhart, as the bad man, Lon Chaney Jr., Norman Willis, Grant Withers and several western type extras. With hand on the door about to exit, Taylor spoke his line—"What time is it?"

Lockhart was about to make the reply called for by the script when Director David Miller called "Cut!" One of the bearded extras had forgotten where he was and automatically pulled back his cuff to look at his very modern wrist watch.

"Gone With the Wind" started Ona Munson on a career of what she's afraid will develop into type casting, the bugaboo of actors. She did "Belle Watling" in "Gone — etc." and then played another "shady lady" in the picture "Wagons Westward." Now she's set for the same sort of part in "Lady From New Orleans," a story laid in the period of the Louisiana Purchase. It's a relief to her to do those "Big Town" broadcasts with Edward G. Robinson.

Naturally, everything possible is going to be done to put Shirley Temple back at the top of the star list when she goes to work for Metro. The wealthy little miss (she has more than a million in the bank) will appear in the screen version of "Panama Hattie," a successful musical now running on the New York stage, with Ann Sothern, Eleanor Powell, Connie Russell and Red Skelton. Shirley starts her "comeback" at a salary of $2,500 a week.

"The Lady Eve" gives Henry Fonda an opportunity for which he's grateful—the chance to wear his own clothes on the screen for the first time in three years, and to have his hair cut. The only other time it's been trimmed during those three years was when he got that prison hair-cut for "The Grapes of Wrath." His roles have called for straight drama with a minimum of comedy, and the only time he kissed a heroine on the screen was in "Chad Hanna."

In "The Lady Eve" he wears 14 different outfits—everything from full dress to silk pajamas—and indulges in some bits of torrid love-making. As for Barbara Stanwyck, she wears the longest bob ever worn by a star—16 inches; she's been growing it for the last five years, ever since "Stella Dallas." She wears 25 stunning costumes, and indulges in slapstick comedy, in her role of a woman card-shark.

Horace Heidt has finally escaped his reputation as "the man with the trained dog." Before his orchestra hit the national networks and Heidt's name became a synonym for scintillating syncopation, Horace had a vaudeville act featuring Lobo, an amazing dog. Booking agents always thought of Lobo when Heidt's name was mentioned. But that's all in the past now, since the smashing success of his "Pot O'Gold" program.

Overcoming unfortunate breaks was nothing new to the band-leader. At the University of California he was well on his way to football fame as a tackle when he found himself on the bottom of a scrimmage pile-up, and was carried off the field with a broken back. Lying in the hospital, he decided to organize an undergraduate orchestra to help pay his way through college. The orchestra gave him conducting experience which helped him on his way to the top ranks of radio band-leading.

THE AUTHORITY OF CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:41—20:8.
GOLDEN TEXT—And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?—Luke 6:46.

"By what authority doest thou these things?" The question of the scribes was a proper one, even though their spirit and purpose in asking it may have been wrong. Any man who claims to have authority over others should expect to be asked that question and be prepared to give an honest answer.

I. Authority Rejected (vv. 41-44). On the previous day our Lord had made His kingly triumphant entry into the city and many had acclaimed Him (see vv. 37-40); but the city as a whole—and especially its leaders, both religious and governmental—had rejected Him.

As He came toward the city the next day and it spread out before Him in beautiful panorama, His tender heart was broken and He wept. His tears were not for Himself, but for the people who had rejected Him. We are told that the word used "for weeping here does not mean merely . . . tears" but "rather the heaving of the bosom, and the sob and cry of a soul in agony" (Morgan).

That is how He feels about you who reject His authority today, for the city of Jerusalem represented the attitude of all unbelieving humanity. He loves you, sinner, and weeps over your rejection of Him; but just as He ultimately had to reject the city because it rejected Him, He will have to condemn you in your sin if you continue to reject Him. Why do it?

II. Authority Asserted (vv. 45, 46). The act of Jesus in cleansing the temple was very bold, for He held no position in the temple and He had no police powers. Only a man with a disordered mind or in a frenzy of anger would assume such authority if it did not belong to him. This means that Jesus acting as He did here, quietly, deliberately, and intelligently, was declaring by His deed that the one whose authority is above and back of all human authority had come to cleanse His Father's house.

It is a striking scene. Let us see in it all the gracious majesty, power and authority of the Son of God, our Saviour and Lord.

III. Authority Accepted (vv. 47, 48).

The people "were very attentive," or more effectively, as in the Revised Version, they "all hung upon him." How remarkable it is that "the common people heard him gladly" (Mark 12:37), while the learned leaders, both in religious and political circles, hated and rejected Him.

That situation has continued throughout the centuries. Let us not be disturbed or confused by the fact that so many "leading" men and women (thank God, not all of them, by any means) reject or question the claims of Christ. It is the very thing we ought to expect.

Young people, be not at all disturbed by that supposedly conclusive statement, "scholarship is agreed," for usually it proves to be wrong. Don't be surprised if some leading novelist, or tycoon of the business world, is not a follower of Christ.

Meet Jesus yourself and you will learn to love Him and want to serve Him. Get the balanced judgment of "the common people" who have really met the Lord, and you will find the right way—God's way.

IV. Authority Defended (20:1-8). Humanly speaking, the priests and scribes were right when they challenged Christ. He had no official position which justified His acts and His words. But note carefully that the very fact that He, in return for their "Tell us," replied, "Tell me," indicates that the human authority which had a right to challenge other human authority had now met the One who is "the head of all principality and power." He had a supreme right to say, "Before I answer you, tell me."

We are apt to regard the answer of Jesus to their question as a skillful evasion of a difficult situation, but it was far more than that. If they had replied honestly to His question regarding John, and admitted that His authority was from heaven, Jesus would probably have said, "Then what did he say of me?" He would have reminded them of the statement of John that he was not, worthy to loose the latchet of His shoes, of his prophecy of the judgment to come, of the baptism of fire (see Luke 3:16-17), of the day when John called Him "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

Here was proof concerning His authority, but they did not dare to ask for it because they did not want it. You too, reader, if you have questions regarding the claim of Christ to authority over your life may have a satisfying answer, but only if you honestly want it and will receive it with open mind and heart.

SEWING CIRCLE

NO WONDER there's a prideful prance in this youngster's step as she goes forward to more and better playtimes. It's the frock she's proud of—any little girl will be proud of it, and there's no reason why your own daughter shouldn't have half a dozen just such, because it's so easy to make. Take a look at the small diagram drawing, to convince yourself how quickly and simply you can finish it.

Design No. 8840 is easy for even a two-year old to get into all by herself, because it goes on like a coat and buttons all down the front. Its princess lines are accented by sweeps of ric-rac up and down, the neckline is finished with a little notched collar, and panties are included, of course.

Pattern No. 8840 is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires, with long sleeves, 2 yards of 35-inch gingham, percale or linen; with short sleeves, 1⅞ yards; 9 yards of ric-rac. Send order to:

HIGH PRICES
Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

YES!

NOW is the time to be seriously thinking about your BUILDING and REPAIRING jobs.

Only a few items so far have gone up in the Building Line. Right now we are advising each and every one of you who are needing Shingls to be making arrangements to get them purchased—no matter from whom you buy them.

Cement, Re inforcing Rods, Blocks, Mortar Mix, Plaster, and many other items are still the same price. But who can tell what will happen when the Government gets "nuts" and buys everything in sight whether they are needing it now, or in six months, or maybe never needing it. Anyway, that is the situation and one has to govern himself accordingly if he has the opportunity.

If you have a Shingling Job get the shingles on the ground and when it warms up a little get them put on before the Spring rains start and all the carpeners get out into the Country.

HOME ECONOMISTS SIGN FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Home economists are doing their part in national defense.

Registration of every trained home economists in Iowa has been started as part of a nation-wide plan of the American Home Economics Association to have on file brief training and qualification records of woman trained in home economics.

About 1,000 Iowa towns working through their home economists teacher and home demonstration agent will cooperate with the state committee in the registration

Purpose of the plan is to locate every woman in the state who has had specialized training, in case of a national emergency or community defense needs. Probably most of the work will be in the form of leadership duties in or near home communities, according to Iowa co-chairmen Edith M. Sunderlin and Rosalind L. Simon.

Every woman who has had training in home economics, whether in Iowa or out-of-state schools, is urged to contact her local home economics high school teacher or home demonstration agent for cards. Work will not be compulsory with registration.

County Triple A Meeting Community Hall Tonight

BUSINESS MEN AND TOWNSPEOPLE INVITED TO ATTEND MEETING HERE

Business men, townspeople, both men and women, are given a special invitation to attend the AAA meeting to be held at the Community Hall tonight, Wednesday. An interesting program has been arranged by C. J. Wille and Lester Stille, who are sponsoring the meeting here

They have secured Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson, State Chairman for the Women's Work, who will give a talk and also show films which will be of interest to all. This will be Mrs. Richardson's only appearance in this county.

Mrs Richardson has travelled all over the globe and is a forceful and entertaining speaker.

The meeting is called for 7 30 o'clock.

Said one of the sponsors of the county-wide meeting here:

"One of the most talked of subjects today is marketing quotas for 1941, which are sure to come if we get a normal crop of corn. With the surplus crops that we now have and with no outlet for our corn, cotton, or wheat, we feel that every farmer should cooperate We want every farmer and also every businessman in Hancock County to know what might happen in case marketing quotas are voted down."

SALE OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS WILL BE HELD HERE SATURDAY P. M.

ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION WILL BE HELD MONDAY, MARCH 10

The annual school election for the Klemme Independent District will be held on Monday, March 10, from 12 noon until 7:00 p. m. at which time a director will be named for a term of three years to succeed A. H. Dulmes, whose term expires March, 1941.

A treasurer will also be named to succeed F. A. Arnold, whose term also expires. The treasurer's term is for a period of two years.

Both of the incumbents are candidates for re-election.

HELLO, FOLKS!

Mr and Mrs. Martin Elstad, of Chicago, Ill., announced the arrival of a baby boy. The new arrival has been named Erick Lee.

This makes two boys in the Elstad family.

The Bell Tolls!

The bell peals, the liquor traffic says, for what alcoholic beverages have done to this nation since such narcotic drinks were returned to the public market place by repeal in 1933!

The bell tolls, the social and religious leader says, for what liquor has done and is doing in multiplying the human and economic miseries which always are the dregs in each drinker's cup!

The bell clangs an alarm to the nation, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union says, to stop what liquor is doing, to return to a sane, sober concept of life, instead of giving in on all fronts to human weakness and commercial greed!

Every American who is mentally awake knows that the nation faces serious problems resulting from the sale and use of alcoholic beverages.

1941's Saloon

Leaders of the liquor traffic advise their saloonkeepers to "curb excesses" or an aroused public will prohibit their trade.

Leaders of the temperance forces say these "excesses" and their bad effects spring from the "narcotic which the liquor traffic peddles."

Apologists for liquor point to taxes paid, jobs furnished, and grain bought by the alcoholic beverage industry.

Crusaders of the temperance forces say to look behind these claims and see the huge costs of liquor - inspired delinquency and crime, of wasted lives and opportunities, of actual economic losses.

In trying to evaluate this problem and to think through to a conclusion, the average citizen has run up against a mass of propaganda but a minimum of cold, hard facts.

If the American public has the facts, no one need worry about the public's final decision on any problem of great social importance. But, the public must have the facts, enlarged only by sound, logical conclusions which those facts and mankind's history will support.

One Result

The W.C.T.U. believes the facts point the way to personal abstinence for the individual and prohibition for the traffic. It has made available its 66-year collection of the findings of science on "What alcohol is and what it does" for presentation to the public in cooperation with this and other newspapers.

Given these basic, uncolored facts it will be up to the public to reach its own decision as to what is to be done.

Mussolini's explanation of his army's difficulties in Albania sounded like Greek to us.

Magnify Objects 100,000 Times With New Device

In all fields of science, no tool is more commonly used than the ordinary optical microscope, which can give magnifications up to 2,500 diameters Yet, despite the magnifying power of these instruments, they have not been developed to the point where scientists can see everything they want to see; as a result, inhabitants of the smallest world, such as viruses that pass through the finest grain filters, have escaped detection and analysis.

For years, scientists have believed these sub-microscopic organisms would be forever closed to them. But lately they learned otherwise. Described at the meeting of the American Philosophical society in Philadelphia was a radically new kind of microscope that would open up a realm of knowledge heretofore hidden.

Developed over a several-year period in the RCA laboratories at Philadelphia under the direction of Dr. Vladimir K. Zworykin, noted for his contributions to television, the new instrument is an electron microscope. Between it and the ordinary microscope there is no resemblance. Looking more like a large telescope than the ordinary microscope, it uses electrons (electrified particles) instead of light to detect the previously invisible organisms.

The instrument is capable of magnifying extremely small objects 100,000 times their actual size. With this power, scientists may be expected to throw light on the mystery of how viruses and proteins reproduce themselves, and also on the structure of proteins.

Before its demonstration at the A. P. S. meeting, the electron microscope already had demonstrated its worth. In tests, during which enlargements were made up to 25,000 diameters, the $18,000 device disclosed why streptococci have always been seen in chain formation, like beads on a string, and it revealed for the first time how thread-like growths connect each individual organism with its neighbor.

Klemme Ties Lakers

KLEMME—By defeating Goodell 29 - 18 here Friday night, Klemme high school continued in a tie for the Seven Eagles conference lead with 9 games won and 1 lost, along with Crystal Lake. Both leaders have completed their schedule of games. Klemme led at the half 11 to 9, Allen Barz pacing the winners with 14 tallies, Darwin Boller the losers with 6. Goodell seconds won their game, 14 to 11.

KANAWHA TAKES FOURTH

KANAWHA---By virtue of its 39 to 20 victory over Woden Friday night, the Kanawha high school cage squad clinched fourth place in the Seven Eagles conference and put the losers into fifth. Gordon Lonning and Fred Eenhuis each put in 8 points to lead the victors, while Rudisill was top scorer for Woden. Kanawha seconds also won, 20 to 8.

CRYSTAL LAKE WINS

CRYSTAL LAKE---The Crystal Lake cagers trounced the Hayfield five 57 to 23 here Thursday night, tying Klemme for the Seven Eagles title.

With the half-time score at 24 to 16, the Lakers, paced by Glen Jensen forged ahead to a decisive victory. Baker was high point man for Hayfield with 17 points which included 11 free throws.

CALLED INTO SERVICE

Dr. E. G. Schaeffer was notified this morning to report for Military service immediately at Camp Claybourne, Louisiana. The doctor expects to leave Klemme in a few days.

Mrs. R. R. Reece was hostess to the Birthday club at her home last Friday afternoon. Bridge was played and high score was won by Mrs. Ed Buntenbach, second high by Mrs. Martin Barz and Mrs. Clarence Lemke held low score.

Lunch was served following the games and then the ladies went to the Comunity Hall to enjoy bowling.

Robert Loock Purchases The Kudje House And Not The Gobeli Residence

The Times reported last week that Robert Loock had purchased the Gobeli property in the northwest part of Klemme. However, the deal was not closed. On Friday Mr. Loock purchased the Art Kudje residence and Mr. Loock and his sister have already moved in.

Entertained Aunts At Noon Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bock entertained their aunts at a one o'clock luncheon at their home Thursday noon. The guests were Mr. Bock's mother, Mrs. Naska Bock, and his aunts, Mrs. Fred Bell, Mrs. Fred Greiman and Mrs. Gretchen Schlawin. Mrs. C. J. Wille, Mrs. Carl Wille and Lydia Bock from this community.

Remorse.

Twice in ten days, someone has gone to J. S. Oppenheimer, Chariton businessman, and offered to pay for something taken sometime before. One man insisted that he would not feel right until he had paid for a tie he had taken from the stock. Another gentleman said the only way he could forget was to pay for a suit he had bought from Oppenheimeier's father several years previously, although there was no record of the transaction.

Correction

The Times reported last week that Mrs. Thada had purchased the Henry Josten house east of the Frank Kluckhohn residence. The Times errored on the report, as Mrs. Thada did not purchase the place.

'Terminal Education' of Junior Colleges Prepares Youth for Actual Employment

By WARREN BROKER
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK.—With college degrees needed for only one-sixth of the jobs available today, the great majority of American youth is forced to look elsewhere for training. Young men and women frequently find they can't get a job without experience, and cannot get experience without a job.

To provide these youth with training necessary for satisfactory employment, junior colleges have been founded in forty-four states.

Problems and responsibilities of these schools face members of the American Association of Junior Colleges meeting in Chicago February 27 to March 1.

Unlike high schools which frequently serve as preparatory schools for a college education, junior colleges strive to prepare their students for semi-professional and skilled occupations. This training for actual employment is known as "terminal education" and represents the fundamental purpose of their two-year courses.

'Violates' Old Tradition.

Some educators watched the introduction of "terminal education" courses with distaste. They frowned upon instruction in trades, where they were accustomed to seeing only English, French and other liberal arts, and condemned the policy as beneath the "dignity" of college instruction.

Junior college administrators refuse to be swayed by this appeal to "tradition." To them the needs of the pupil are uppermost.

A more justifiable criticism was raised by other educators who pointed out that adequate professional education cannot be crowded into two years.

Leaders in the junior college movement explain in defense that their schools don't even attempt to train surgeons, lawyers or engineers. For example, while they don't train doctors, they can prepare dental assistants, medical secretaries and sanitary inspectors.

These semi-professional skills provide five times as many jobs as the ones requiring two to eight years more training.

Liberal Arts Still Taught.

Specialized training in these skills does not necessitate neglect of the so-called liberal arts. Usually only about half of the time is required to provide the specific training desired, leaving the remainder for broader objectives.

During the last six years enrollment in the junior colleges has doubled There are now 610 junior colleges in the country serving 236,162 students. Enrollment last year jumped 20 per cent, while enrollment in four-year colleges and universities increased less than 1 per cent.

"Experience shows that most junior college students will not go on into a university," says Walter C. Eells of Washington, D. C., secretary of the American Association of Junior Colleges. "Although two-thirds of them say they are preparing for university or four-year college work, three-fourths of them do not go beyond the two junior college years."

Many Business Courses.

While junior colleges offer courses in almost every field of endeavor, no one school gives instruction in all of them. On the contrary they generally specialize in certain fields.

In business alone, for example, 286 junior colleges are giving terminal, two-year courses. General business courses are offered by 204 of these, and secretarial by 202. There are also many less usual courses, such as accounting in 27, banking and finance in 6, hotel and restaurant management in 5, merchandising in 28, and salesmanship in 24.

Junior colleges set aside tradition to offer training in many fields. The student to the left, above, is doing work which will prepare him to be a competent carpenter upon graduation from his two-year course. The window dresser, right, will have two years of experience behind him when he finishes "going to school on the job" in a local department store.

Business institutions in many cities co-operate with the junior colleges in planning and giving these courses. In Hillyer Junior college, Hartford, Conn., the student works eight weeks as a salesman, machine operator, or secretary, then attends classes for eight weeks while the job is taken over by another students, with whom he is paired.

When a person in San Francisco buys a shirt or sits down to lunch or registers in a hotel, he may be waited on by a student of San Francisco Junior college who is taking the course in salesmanship or hotel and restaurant management.

Engineering Very Popular.

One of the most popular branches of terminal education is engineering and technology, in which 216 junior colleges offer courses. This does not mean they try to persuade young graduates at the end of two years that they are engineers. But it does mean that there are from three to eight times as many foremanships, drafting jobs and technological positions requiring two years of preparation, as there are professional engineering positions requiring four to eight years.

Requirements of national defense have given impetus to interest in aviation training. Terminal courses in aviation are given by 196 junior colleges. One group of California junior colleges is even participating as a part of the defense program

More than 200 junior colleges cooperated this winter in the pilot instruction program of the Civil Aeronautics authority. Nine thousand students were trained for pilots' licenses in these courses.

Terminal courses in agriculture are offered by 83 junior colleges. Seventy offer general courses in this field, while eight give instruction in floriculture and 34 in forestry.

Instruct in Many Fields.

Training is offered in almost every occupation. In the fine arts there is instruction in architecture, costume design, interior decoration, music, photography and dramatics. Health courses prepare students to work as dental assistants, medical secretaries and nurses.

Trades are well represented in junior college curricula. Instruction is given in welding, radio engineering, drafting, auto mechanics, building trades, chemical engineering, mining, navigation and oil technology. There is also a large number of courses in more specialized fields.

"When one considers that there are 20,000 occupations, it is clear that there could not be 20,000 courses of study to train workers for them," Edward F. Mason of the American Association of Junior Colleges explains. "Fortunately the trainings overlap a good deal, thus permitting training for one field to help fit the student for several."

Although junior colleges have been known in America for only 40 years, and received their real start just 20 years ago, they are found in 44 states. Only two small eastern states, Delaware and Rhode Island, and two sparsely populated western states, Wyoming and Nevada, are without them.

In California the junior colleges have had their greatest development with 86,357 pupils. Illinois has 19,589, Texas 15,085, Missouri 8,143, North Carolina 6,602 and Massachusetts 5,994.

Educators are well aware of the need for improvement. They are striving to remedy the evils of a secondary education that frequently persists in preparing students for colleges they will never enter, or giving them vocational training for jobs they will never find.

Junior college administrators believe they have found the answer. The youth of America hopes they are right.

U. S. Park Service Acquires Autogiros

WASHINGTON. — The national park service is taking a tip from the hummingbird, the stationary flier.

Unlike that small but pugnacious species, park autogiros will not fly sideways or backward, but they will hover over treetops, lakes, and streams by the use of two 225-horsepower autogiros which have been acquired through transfer from the war department. Under favorable conditions the machines are capable of maintaining stability at a virtual standstill over a chosen spot.

Standard planes have been employed from time to time for several years in national parks and allied recreational areas in fighting forest fires, finding lost persons, and transporting medical supplies and food to isolated stations. It was not until 1936, however, that forestry experts used an autogiro for forest spraying In that year a successful pioneering experiment in distributing a wet spray over cankerworm-infested trees was carried out at Morristown National Historical park, New Jersey.

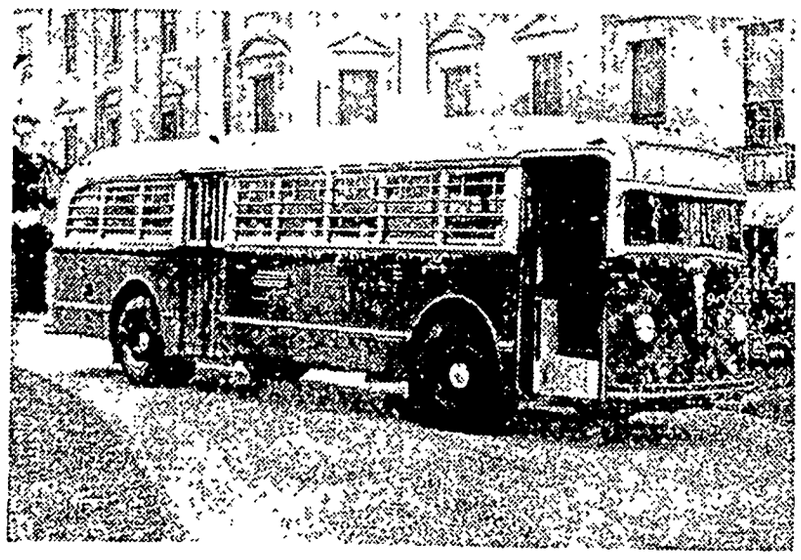
Special Uses Also.

Special uses are contemplated for the two transferred autogiros. They will scout out forest fires occurring in "blind spots" behind ridges where tower lookouts cannot see, and search for "sleeper" fires that smoulder for several days before bursting suddenly into a general conflagration of serious proportions A few minutes early in the life of a fire, national park foresters point out, are worth many hours later.

They can execute a 250-foot takeoff without wind. Power is supplied by a seven-cylinder radial engine.

The autogiros also will be employed in scouting tree diseases, surveying insect infestations, and taking censuses of wildlife populations. The slow, low-flying machines likewise are adapted specially to precision in certain types of aerial photography, a feature which will make them serviceable to landscape architects, park planners and others who have the task of preparing general development programs for new recreational areas.

First Traveling Post Office Opens



To provide more adequate postal facilities for remote sections of the country, traveling "post offices" are being introduced. The first of these offices on wheels is shown above shortly before it was put into service.

Farmers Are Seeking Self-Sufficiency as Exports Dwindle

LOS ANGELES.—American farm exports have taken a nose-dive as a result of the European war, department of agriculture experts report, but they add that at least part of the loss is being replaced by domestic production of farm products which were formerly imported.

Although wheat exports declined from 61,165,000 bushels during the first 10 months of 1939 to only 13,500,000 bushels in the same period last year, it was explained that America's current drive for self-sufficiency is leading many farmers to use otherwise idle land for growing natively "old world" crops.

Fruit growers and truck gardeners, specializing in such comparatively new crops as figs, lemons, limes and tomatoes, have been among the chief beneficiaries of this new trend, foreign trade figures reveal. Whereas 176,000 boxes of lemons were imported in 1932, practically all are home grown.

ENGLAND'S POSITION IMPROVES

Little by little the British position has improved. Gallant Greek victories, the triumphant march of British forces across North Africa, the daring of the royal navy in the Mediterranean, all have helped to balance the scales of war.

In addition, Admiral Leahy's sea-dog diplomacy in Vichy is reported to have had some effect upon General Weygand, to whom he has promised American gasoline and oil; while the passage of the lease-lend bill is found to have tremendous reverberations throughout all Europe.

Furthermore, preliminary reports indicate that the trip of Wendell Willkie had a stirring effect, not only upon British morale, but upon Germany. The fact that the son of a German sent an anti-Hitler message to the German people is bound to percolate beneath the surface.

Germany cannot forget that it was American entrance into the World war which finally turned the tide and defeated the kaiser. And that is why the Willkie visit plus the lease-lend bill are so important. Both indicate an American people united regardless of politics.

Second Battle of Marne.

Hitler's position today is not unlike that of Germany after the Battle of the Marne in World War I. In the first Battle of the Marne German troops came within 14 miles of Paris, could have taken the city had they not stopped to consolidate their forces. But not knowing what lay ahead, they waited for reinforcements, giving General Joffre time to send his "taxicab army" from Paris.

German defeat at the Marne turned back the tide of the war in 1914, and by the time the German army had come back for the second Battle of the Marne in 1915, the Allies had mobilized sufficient strength to stop them.

Similarly, Hitler's forces last summer probably could have taken England had they pushed immediately across the channel to the disorganized British Isles after the fall of France. But uncertain of what lay ahead, Hitler waited, and with typical German efficiency consolidated his position on the Continent. This gave the British just enough time to hold back a Nazi invasion last September in the first "Battle of the Marne," 1940 version.

Soon will come the Second Battle of the 1941 Marne—the second attempt to invade England. Into that second attempt Hitler is going to put more than ever before. He may succeed. But on the other hand, the British are in a far stronger position now to withstand invasion, and if they do withstand it, sooner or later the war will veer toward them.

$30 PENSIONS

Mrs. Roosevelt's recent statement in a pension magazine, favoring a $30-a-month federal pension, tips off what the President has up his sleeve on broadening the Social Security act.

During the 1940 campaign and in his annual message to congress, he advocated a revision of the law by which a flat federal pension would be substituted for the existing state-contributory system, so as to broaden the scope of the law and adding medical features. He gave no details, but here is what he is planning.

(1) A federal annuity for all "senior citizens" over 65, without a "means test"; in other words, regardless of their financial condition.

(2) In states where a larger pension already is paid, as in California, which pays $40 monthly (half from the state and half from the government), the difference between $30 and the larger sum would be made up by the state. This would apply only to California, the only state paying more than $30 The next closest is Colorado with $29 68 Twenty-one others pay $20 or slightly more.

(3) Extend unemployment insurance to groups not now covered, such as seamen and farm workers.

(4) A nation-wide program of medical and hospital service for low-income groups.

Roosevelt will submit his recommendations in a special message to congress sometime this month. He already has had several private discussions with Sen. Sheridan Downey of California, No 1 Townsendite on Capitol Hill, and Sen. Jimmy Byrnes, astute South Carolina legislative adviser Personally, Downey favors a pension of $60 after 60, but realizes that he has no chance at this time.

Dear Mom:

I thought I would drop you lines to let you know I have seen no fighting yet. I heard noises last night and was nervous, but everything was quiet morning so I guess it was ordinary.

They do not get you up no more in the army. They electric buzzer. I kept getting up and looking for a front door on my tent because I thought it was the milkman or somebody. Where I made my mistake was going back to bed found no milkman, and just "nuts" to the buzzer the next morning.

The guardhouse is not a hotel and I will be out in a few

Love,

Dear Mom:

I am out of the guardhouse I mentioned in my last letter I still don't like buzzers. If the bugle was good enough for Grant Sherman, Teddy Roosevelt, and Pershing, it is good enough for me. I was talking this over with the captain and he says he thinks the bugle is being used just to make the men mad. An army is no good when it is mad, he says Well the bugle will do it. A bugle would not make me mad at 5 a. m. too, mom. There is sort of romantic. It kind of wakes you up and makes you feel like you was a fighter A buzzer just makes you feel like you was a sap.

We have a couple of millionaires in my company. One of them is Rockefeller. It is a funny thing that no matter whether you are rich or poor your feet hurt just the same. The photographers are always taking pictures of these rich people but none of me but you know me and look anyhow so do not worry.

I am well except for that cold I can't help hollering "Cut" whenever I hear it.

Could you send me some more socks, a homemade cake and some dice?

Love,
Oscar

Dear Mom:

Well, just a line to let you know everything is still okay at camp. Typical of democracy as it is in the newspapers. I am getting along well, except the coffee is lousy and the cream is plain sour. Another modern rifle arrived here so I guess things are speeding up in the defense program.

I nearly got in the guardhouse again. I asked the captain if the typewriter could write letters that and he said should I have rated a typewriter, I said this is a war, ain't it got very sore.

Never mind the dice I asked to send me. The camp is full of 'em. Dice are the one which ain't behind schedule.

BULL HANDLING IS DANGEROUS

'Quiet' Animals Suddenly Become Vicious.

By DR. GEORGE E. TAYLOR
(Extension Dairyman at New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University)

Every day is a "lucky day" for the dairyman who is careless about handling dairy bulls—he's lucky to be alive!

It is often the "quiet" bull that suddenly turns on his caretaker. And dairy bulls which are closely confined are likely to get playful when they are handled, and just as soon as a playful bull discovers his own strength, he becomes vicious. But there are numerous ways to insure reasonable safety.

The bull stall should be constructed of durable material that will withstand heavy blows. Cement or extra heavy metal tubing is satisfactory. The fence surrounding the outside exercise paddock should also be built of extra heavy material. Discarded boiler flues that are set in cement posts are often used. As long as bulls are properly confined they have less chance of injuring human beings. From the standpoint of safety, it is a definite mistake to allow a bull to run with the dairy herd. The use of safety breeding pens further reduces the necessary handling to a minimum.

A strong bull staff which is attached to a heavy metal ring in the bull's nose should always be used when handling becomes necessary. A bull should be trained to a staff before one year of age. It is also wise to remove the horns at about one year of age or when the bull shows the first signs of becoming ugly. Removing the horns will often tame down a young bull for an indefinite period.

From a management standpoint, it is advisable to provide a pasture exercise paddock of several acres. On larger farms where several bulls are needed, they can be turned together in pasture. Thus they will get ample exercise and will not store up a lot of energy that must find an outlet sooner or later.

It is, however, a good practice to handle bulls occasionally in order to keep them accustomed to it. This should be done without taking any undue risk. Bulls that are never tied or handled in any way actually get afraid of a caretaker in time and may be most unruly. Always remember that any animal is usually able to sense when the caretaker is shy and timid. Train a bull so he will always understand that you mean business and that you are not afraid. A bold front plus safety precautions will avoid unnecessary injury.

Poor Year for Wheat Causes Premium Deficit

Crop insurance last year offset heavy losses by wheat growers, particularly in four of the largest producing states where near-record abandonments occurred, according to Leroy K. Smith, manager of the Federal Crop Insurance corporation.

Unusually large abandonments in Nebraska, Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma, Mr. Smith said, accounted for the greatest part of about 22,000,000 bushels in indemnities paid farmers throughout the country under the 1940 crop insurance program. The growers paid premiums for their protection with almost 15,000,000 bushels of wheat, but the corporation paid out about 7,000,000 bushels more than it took in.

Mr. Smith emphasized that excessive acreage abandonments such as occurred this year will not take place every year, and that when the wheat belt experiences a year of average yields, premium collections can be expected to exceed indemnity payments.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

AT LAST moviedom's favorite word, "colossal," can really be applied to a motion picture, "Land of Liberty." It was more than a quarter century in the making, cost incalculable millions, and boasts a cast of more than 30,000, headed by dozens of top-flight stars. Cecil De Mille assembled it.

It's an all-industry picture. It was assembled from scenes of 112 feature pictures, dozens of news reels, shorts and documentary films, dating from the present day back before "The Birth of a Nation."

Spectacles include practically every great moment in our history, from the battles of Bunker Hill and Lexington, of the Alamo and Gettysburg, to the beginning of World War No. 2.

Some of the "matching" of scenes from different pictures is remarkable. One instance covers a mine disaster, the first part of which was taken from De Mille's "Dynamite," produced in 1929, and the second part from a news reel shot of an actual event, taken in 1937.

This is a stirring document, as well as a great human one, far more important than a mere motion picture. The producers receive no revenue from "Land of Liberty"—rental receipts beyond cost of distribution will be devoted to war emergency welfare work.

The men of Sigma Phi Epsilon like the fact that she has "enough meat on her bones to make a bathing suit justify its existence, obtainable only by ordering flapjacks and sausage instead of lettuce-and-tomato sandwiches when on dates with fraternity men." Says Jane, as comment on that, "And do I eat like a horse!"

Mickey Rooney pushed war news off page one of the London Daily Mirror recently, when it was announced that, as the result of a poll of 4,000 British cinemas—motion picture theaters, to us—he was the top box-office star of 1940. He also won top honors in the recent annual poll of American exhibitors.

Stirling Hayden is headed straight for the top, if Paramount executives know anything about what makes a movie star. He's slated for a top role in "Dildo Cay," opposite Dorothy Lamour; he'll play the rich young owner of an island in the Caribbean who's regenerated by his overseer's daughter. And a year ago Hayden never dreamed of having a movie career!

Greer Garson stars her second year in pictures in this country with a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract and the outstanding role of her career. In "Blossoms in the Dust" we'll see the full beauty of her red hair and green eyes. The picture is based on incidents in the life of Mrs. Edna Gladney, famous Texas humanitarian who has devoted her life to child welfare.

WINDOW DRESSING

The lease-lend bill, as it passed the house amended, carries a lot of meaningless window-dressing but it meets one principal objection of those whose only real opposition was because, in its original form, it almost completely transferred the power of the purse from the congress to the President.

It has been said that no such power was intended or would ever be used. So—well, why grant it? The good faith of the administration in disclaiming any such wide purpose or intent was pretty well evidenced by permitting the amendment limiting the value of certain defense articles to be disposed of "procured from funds heretofore appropriated shall not exceed $1,300,000,000."

Of course, there is no limit on future appropriations, but as to them congress still keeps the "power of the purse." The important point is that without that amendment, the total field in which this authority could have been executed might have exceeded $50,000,000,000. What is it now?

As to articles "procured from funds heretofore appropriated"—guns, planes, ships and the like—clearly it is 1.3 billions of dollars of value. But how about that gold hoard of billions for example? Was that procured "from funds heretofore appropriated?"

A similar objection probably applies to other commodities which were not "procured from funds heretofore appropriated"—a field too complex to discuss in this limited space. I am informed by some congressmen in charge of the legislation, that the 1.3 billions is a limitation designed to cover all these things and if it does not, it will be made to do so.

If that is done, it would deflate 75 per cent of the valid objection to this bill. It is hard to see why it should not be done. The obscurity as to the true effect of the limitation in this regard is very real and this is no time for obscurities.

NEW ANGLE ON LEASE-LEND

Mr. Arthur Krock's column in the New York Times recently was more important than Mr. Willkie's testimony on the same day, even though it will not receive one-tenth the publicity.

Arthur, who rarely writes until he has sifted out the possibilities of error, cried "unclean" of the provision of the lease-lend bill which terminates the extraordinary powers it grants the President if and when congress shall pass a concurrent resolution quashing them. He says that, according to constitutional lawyers, this provision "was writ in water on the atmosphere." In other words, it is a deceptive fake—splendidly null.

This is a very serious matter. The question is not too technical from the legalistic angle for lay discussion. The central point is this: Without a congressional delegation of its own war powers, the President could not possibly exercise them. Such a delegation can be made, within flexible constitutional limits, by a majority vote in both houses. As matters now stand, the very wide proposed powers of the lease-lend bill could obtain such a majority vote. They could not conceivably obtain a two-thirds majority vote.

But if they are once granted, according to Mr. Krock's legal advisers, they could never be retaken by congress over the opposition of the executive except by a two-thirds majority.

Mr. Krock's reason is that the President, under the Constitution is, by his veto and approving power, a part of the law-making machinery, that while a concurrent resolution of both houses does not require the action of the President, yet, if it "contains a legislative proposition" it does require full presidential action under the Constitution.

Concurrent resolutions usually govern only the business of congress with no application in the general statutory sense. The point of view of Mr. Krock's advisers is that, since repealing a law is as much a legislative action in the general statutory sense as enacting a law, no concurrent resolution can repeal a law except subject to veto.

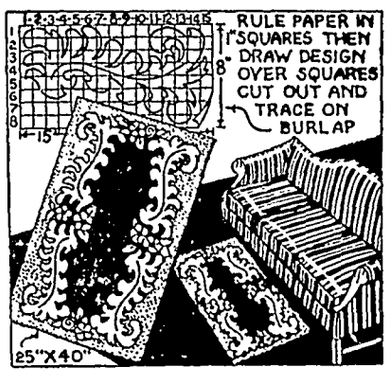
It is a strong point and one never decided by the courts, but it certainly would be a strange result if congress can, in part, suspend the Constitution by a majority vote, but can't restore it by less than a two-thirds majority, when the Constitution itself provides that an amendment may not even be proposed except by a two-thirds majority ratified by three-fourths of the states.

The contrary view is that whenever congress grants an extraordinary power, it can condition what it grants. It can put a time limit on it and thus work its repeal without any legislation whatever.

It can make it depend on any contingency it likes, such as some administrative finding of fact or future conditions of time, tide and weather. If those conditions do not occur, it does not speak. It speaks while they continue. It becomes silent when they cease—regardless of presidential veto power and with no new vote.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears



HALF the fun of hooking rugs is in making your own designs. All you have to do is to mark the pattern on burlap with a wax crayon and then go over it with a warm iron to set it. Simple flowers are easy to draw and in the olden days real leaves were used for patterns. Scroll designs combined with flowers are popular now for use with Eighteenth century furniture. The scrolls of the handsome rug shown here were hooked in gold color outlined in brown. The edge medium blue; the center darker blue and the flowers in tones of red and deep rose with leaves in two tones of green.

This diagram shows you how to make a scroll pattern that you may use in different ways. Just rule a piece of paper in one-inch squares and then follow the diagram outlining the scroll so that its lines cross the squares exactly as they do here. Now, cut the scroll out and trace around it on the burlap repeating it at each corner; then fill in the flowers.

NOTE: There are several other rug designs with directions for knitting, crocheting and braiding in Booklet No. 6 of the series of home-making booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers. Copy of Booklet 6 with description of the other numbers in the series will be mailed to readers who will send name and address with 10c in coin to:

Sandy's Blowing Appeared To Be a Bit Overdone!

He was of a thrifty turn of mind, having originally come from Scotland. One day he was told by a friend that instead of putting a quarter into the meter, much the same effect could be obtained by blowing smartly into the slot. That night he tried the experiment with gratifying results.

This went on for some time, and finally an inspector from the gas company called to examine the meter. He was obviously puzzled.

"What's the matter?" asked the economizing householder.

"Man," exclaimed the inspector, "I just can't make it out. According to my reading the company owes you three dollars."

In making applesauce slice your apples, cook them in a little water until they are soft, then add the sugar. If you add the sugar at first you may need to put in more later and the apples are likely to become hard.

To remove the cloudiness which comes over highly polished furniture, wash it with a sponge and tepid water and rub it dry with a wet chamois wrung out of cold water. A dry chamois streaks the surface and does not remove the blur.

Here's A Timely-- Warning!

Did you ever stop to think of the damage that slushy weather does to your car? We have had some slushy weather . . . and more is ahead for Spring.

SLUSHY WEATHER means that you should watch the grease more closely. Have your car greased a bit more oftener to get rid of dirt and grit that works into the bearings more easily during slushy weather. Fresh grease forces out old dirt, grit and grease and gives you a new coat of protection. It is real economy to have us grease your car thoroughly and it may save you money!

"Baker" Bowles---

You'd never believe it, but someone told on him. Just ask the basketball boys whether Bowles can cook He can make sponge cakes that will melt right in your mouth. And those biscuits are so delicious! His mother told us so. Some time when your around him ask him for his special receipe on how to bake cherry pie.

"Unknown"

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

That's right. The basketball team is the victim! After being guests of the Bowles', Simpson College and the "Quarterback" club (a business organization) during the past week end, some oddities occurred and the boys are being 'squealed on' through this column.

Individually they will be remembered as:

"Courtesy of" Zabilka—Gazing at a watch he exhaustedly remarked "What?? 12·49½!!" He jumps up and races to the front row of the theater to enjoy the stage show P S He wasn't alone!

"Mule" Brinkman—while admiring a mule of the novelty variety, he slowly raised it and inquiringly asked, "Don't you see some resemblance?" Yes, we did.

"Pie" Stille—He hid under Brink's and Zabilka's bed -- after the "boogie men" passed. he had so much trouble (pie trouble) getting out that he woke the neighbors

"Curly" Jacobs -by the points a certain Orient player scored, Jake must've spent too much time setting his wave before pursuing this opponent. At 'least the wave looked good?

"Ty" Grosshuesch—Klemme lassies, 'take a peek', he really didn't bring any femine comment? But one of I. H. S.'s BB stars only response to us was -- "That the center looks like Tyrone Power." It must be the way he combs his hair!

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

Last Saturday the seniors journeyed to Mason City to break the camera. They took in a show in the afternoon and spent the rest of the day looking the town over.

Everyone is busy getting their "Memory Books" filled and the teachers are rather disgusted at having classes interrupted to sign their autographs.

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

The sociology class has completed their course on Driving and are now sudying First Aid which has so far proved very interesting to all

The juniors are very anxious to get started on the banquet, some of the girls have already chosen a formal.

A new game that has swept the Klemme High School students and teachers off their feet is bowling. We are all wondering if this isn't a good place for a romance to start.

Maxine is slipping for she fell off her chair in American Government class Friday.

In history the sophomores are studying about "New Nation" and "New Nationalism."

We notice Jake is flashing a 1942 junior class pin around. How does he rate!!

Here are the personality songs of some of the sophomore girls:

Maxine Bachman, "Practice Makes Perfect."

Luella Lewis, "It Makes No Difference Now."

Bonnie Stokesbary, "Little Sleepyhead."

Betty Ward, "Faithful Forever."

Irene Schmidt, "My Heart Belongs To Daddy."

Anna Lee Brunes, "A Little Bit Independent"

Ardella Nelson, "25 Additional Words or Less."

Vivian Harberts, "Playmates."

Eva Velau, "Smiles."

Betty Etchen, "Six Lessons."

Arlene Wille, "And I Do Mean You."

Audrey Mau, "Accidentally On Purpose."

Our sophomore reporter seems to put in the paper things about everyone but herself so we'll try and give you a line about her:

Guess Who?

She's got hazel eyes. Combs her hair too often. She's a sophomore in high school, wears nice clothes, seems to like a tall, blackhaired, sophomore boy pretty well, she has a pleasing personaliy, has a job hanging on to her papers, pencils and books, yells when she sits on a tack, plays in the band and she wouldn't miss a basketball game for anything?

SCIENCE (?)

In this scientific world of ours
There's room for lots of brains.
You have to know just where to go
In case it starts to rain.

People ask the sophomores lots of questions
Like: "Do people of 40 really grow?
Everyone answers, "Ask the freshman they know!"

Some people just can't understand
Why we know so much.
The correct answer is that
We study hard and such.

Six week's tests again. S'nuff said, the latest rumor Julia Bell says her favorite song is "Oh, Johnny."

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Ruth Bell is our new librarian for the next six weeks.

Patricia Kudje received an answer to a letter she wrote to Julia Parsons, who lives in Newfoundland. Everyone enjoyed reading the letter.

Duard Lewis brought a book entitled "The Civil War Through a Camera". I has many interesting pictures that make our study of the war more interesting.

Jimmy Thomas also brought 3 story books to school.

Patricia got a perfect score in our spelling six weeks test.

GRADES 5 & 6

We finished our science unit called "Our Eearth and It's Neighbors." We had our unit test on Friday.

Darwin, Harold, Esther Delores, Velma, Helen Ruth Stokesbary, Edward, Elizabeth and Roger Ridder were neither absent nor tardy this six weeks.

The sixth graders made a class rating of eight on their Arithmetic Self-Testing drill this week. Roger Ridder got a star rating on this drill.

We had another picture study. The picture was "70 Degrees North" by Frederick Judd Waugh.

The people who earned perfect spelling scores on their six weeks review test were Roger R., Phyllis, Helen. Irene, Delores, Edward, and Roger Bock. Many of us improved in our spelling this six weeks.

GRADES 3 & 4

In third grade number drill No. 6, we had an average score.

Our health classes have been studying proper habits of eating and good manners

Fourth grade had choral reading of our favorite poems for reading class.

We are studying about Marco Polo in history class.

In art we are making "movies' of our favorite stories.

The six weeks spelling race was won by Marjorie Lau in fourth grade, and by Luella Priebe in third grade.

The following people had 100 percent in spelling: Iris, Marjory, Isabelle, Larry, Luella, Willis, Merlin and Dorance.

KINDERGARTEN GRADES 1 & 2

Maralee's mother came to school Wednesday afternoon and took our pictures.

Dwayne and Norman are moving away. We are sorry to see them go. We gave them some surprise gifts.

Dwayne Lucille and Sondra were the postmasters this week. We brought old stamps to school and looked at the postmarks.

THE NEW OLIVER 60

For Small Farm Operators — For "Second Tractor" Service on Large Farms.

TRY BEFORE YOU BUY!

THINK—about all you've wanted in a small tractor. You'll find the 60 is built to your specifications!

TALK—with men who know Oliver equipment and men who know tractors. Ask them what they think of the 60. We think you'll agree with them—the 60's the biggest "little" tractor ever built.

TEST! Here's the best proof in the world that the 60 answers your particular needs! Test the 60 in your fields under your own conditions. Compare the 60's performance with all others. We think you'll say "I'm going to buy an Oliver 60." Ask for a free demonstration.

Have you tested Raydex bases and points?

THE MOST COMPLETE SMALL TRACTOR

If you're thinking of buying a new "small" tractor—and even if you aren't—don't put off seeing the great new Oliver 60 at our store!

And on your way, prepare yourself to see a tractor marvel—a marvel of completeness—a marvel of power, wide usefulness, comfort and economy! Prepare to see what you've been looking for in a small tractor! Prepare to compare the 60 with all others and say "Oliver's done it again—scooped the field in presenting a money-saving, income-producing, comfort-increasing 1-2 plow tractor that will make my farm a more pleasant place on which to live!"

CHRIST REJECTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 20.9-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.—Matthew 5 11.

Rejection of Christ by Israel as a nation is pictured in our lesson. We know how the judgment of God has come upon that nation because of its failure to receive Him and believe on Him. God had to take the vineyard from them and give it to others (v. 16).

Men today reject Christ, and we find that the sin which causes them to do so and the judgment which follows are essentially the same as in the case of Israel. There is a reason for Christ rejection, and there is a certain time of answering to God for that sin.

I. Why Men Reject Christ (vv. 9-15).

Self-will, the very heart of all sin, underlies every refusal to let Christ have His rightful control over our lives. There are two forces which may dominate and direct my life—God's will or self-will. Just as love of God is the essence of all virtue (Matt. 22:37-38), so love of self is the essence of all sin.

The leaders of Israel, both political and religious, had one great fear which dominated all of their thinking concerning Jesus; namely, that they would lose all their authority if He were recognized by the people for what the leaders must have known Him to be—the Son of God, and their rightful King. God had entrusted to them as underservants the care of His vineyard, and in their wicked greed they had determined to have it all for themselves, even though it meant destroying the Son and rightful Heir.

We need only a moment's reflection to realize that this is exactly what occurs every time someone now rejects Christ. It is because in self-will that person decides that the one who has a right to his life is not to have it. There are many sins, but this is the root sin of them all.

II. What Happens When Men Reject Christ (vv. 16-18).

Judgment. It came to Israel, as all history even to this dark day so strikingly testifies. Just so, it will come to every one who rejects Christ.

It is not a slight matter of comparative unimportance whether a man accepts or rejects Christ. He likes to make it appear so, saying that it is just something about the local church that he does not like, or the preacher does not exactly suit him; or perchance he hides behind the time-worn excuse that there are hypocrites in the church, when in doing so he proves that he is himself the worst of hypocrites.

All of these excuses do not hide the fact that in self-will he is rejecting God's will for his life in Christ. At the end of that road he will have to meet the judgment of God upon sin. God reads the heart, knows the falsity of every excuse and the real rebellion against Christ, which may be hidden from fellow men by smooth words and polite manners.

Tear off that mask, unbelieving friend who may read these words. Face the truth that you are refusing Christ's authority because you are self-willed, and look squarely at the fact that "it is appointed unto men once to die, and after this cometh the judgment" (Heb 9:27. R. V.)

III. How Men Reject Christ (vv. 19, 20).

Deceit and treachery of the vilest kind marked the rejection of Christ by Israel's leaders They feared the people, and lacking the authority to condemn Him themselves they had to obtain some evidence under which the Roman law would have to sentence Him It is significant that they could not find one bit of real evidence against Him and had to proceed by trickery and treachery.

Christ rejection in our day is just as deceitful and treacherous, although it does not often appear so outwardly As a matter of fact, the leaders of Israel were outwardly polite and careful They sent spies who could "feign themselves to be just men." They "feared the people" and did not dare to speak openly against Him.

Men cover up their motives today. Some would wish to excuse themselves on the ground of lack of knowledge, but in our land at least that is largely their own choice Others might say they have only been careless, but on what ground can one justify neglect of a life and death matter? Some blame the sins of professing Christians, but this is an individual matter—you must answer for your own soul.

No matter which way man may turn in seeking for an excuse for his rejection of Christ, if he is honest he will have to admit that he has dealt deceitfully with God. When he does that, he is ready in repentance and faith to take Christ as his Saviour and Lord

Lewis Joins Marines

KLEMME YOUTH TO LEAVE FOR SERVICE IN U. S. MARINE CORPS

Glen V. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Lewis of Klemme, has received orders to report at Des Moines Monday morning, March 17th, for a final physical examination.

Glen enlisted in the U S. Marine Corps some time ago. Upon completing his final examinaton at Des Moines he will leave immediately for the base at San Diego, California. Glen is the first and only Klemme man to serve with the Marines.

SNOW FELL HERE SUNDAY NIGHT AND MONDAY MORNING

Snow fell in this part of the state throughout Sunday night and up to noon Monday. The snow melted nearly as fast as it fell but about three inches fell on the level.

Country roads are in bad shape following the mild weather of the past week. The Iowa River is out of its banks and has much of the appearance of a large lake.

DR. DULMES ELECTED SCHOOL DIRECTOR FOR THREE YEAR TERM

The annual school election in Klemme Monday afternoon was a rather quiet affair as the candidates, Dr. Dulmes for director and F. A. Arnold for treasurer, were unopposed.

Up until six o'clock there had been but a dozen ballots cast but from that time on things began to happen as the voters came in larger numbers.

When the ballots were counted Dr. Dulmes tallied 29 votes while Herman Paul, whose name had been written in, tallied 19 votes. Several ballots were spoiled.

Funeral Services Held For Goodell Resident

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Klemme Girl Scouts held their annual Birthday Party at Schaeffer's Monday evening. The girls opened their meeting with a song fest after which games were played. Then most of the girls chose to listen to the radio play while others continued games and sewing in another room.

The Troop Committee met in Dr. Schaeffer's office for their business meeting but as soon as the birthday cake was lighted we invited them upstairs. Each girl made a wish before the candles were blown out by Lorraine. The cake was then served with hot fudge nut sundaes.

SWALEDALE WINS FINAL GAME FROM KLEMME BY A SCORE OF 31 TO 28

Clear Lake Nosed Out Britt To Go Into District Class A Meet

The Klemme Shamrocks wound up their season of play Saturday night when they were defeated in the sectional tournament at Clear Lake by Swaledale in a close contest that ended 31 to 28 in favor of Swaledale.

Klemme went into the finals after defeating Alexander 29 to 24 and then setting back Meservey 34 to 24. Swaledale went into the finals by defeating Wesley and Thornton.

The Shamrocks played in the tournament under a handicap as three of the first string players, Barz, Brinkman and Stille, were ill with the flu for a few days, but had recuperated sufficiently for the final game, but were not up to par for the game against Swaledale.

Clear Lake defeated Britt in a thriller to win the Class A sectional and go into district play.

Crystal Lake the only other Hancock county team besides Britt and Klemme to participate in the finals went down in defeat to Rake 32 to 21. Forest City took the Class A event by defeating Northwood 41 to 13. This sectional was held at Lake Mills.

YOUNG PEOPLE ATTENDED A RALLY SUNDAY AT THE GENEVA CHURCH

Twelve young people from the Klemme Reformed Church, accompanied by Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, attended the Youth Rally at the Evangelical and Reformed church at Geneva Sunday afternoon and evening.

Those who attended were Lorraine Buntenbach Irene Becker, Lucille Hartbeck, Arlene Wille, Gertrude Grosshuesch, Adala Wille, Avis Barz, Billy Grosshuesch, Allen Barz, Dean Merkel and Luella Thiemann.

Circle No. 2

Circle No. 2 will meet on March 20th at the home of Mrs. Jack Etchen.

A. C. CARPENTER, 74, DIED SATURDAY AFTERNOON FROM HEART ATTACK

Served As Principle Of Klemme Schools Several Years Ago

A. C. Carpenter, 74, prominent resident of Goodell and well-known throughout the county, died at his home in Goodell Saturday afternoon of heart disease.

Mr. Carpenter attended Leander Clark College at Toledo and taught in the rural schools of the county. He was principle of the Klemme High School in 1897-98.

He sarted farming in 1899 on his farm two miles north of Goodell, retiring after his wife died on February 4, 1923, and moved to Belmond. He was married to Miss Maude Griggs on June 1, 1925, of Goodell, and since that time had resided in Goodell.

Mr. Carpenter was a member of the United Brethren church and sang in the choir and quartette. He also served as Sunday School superintendent and was active in all church work. He took a great interest in civic affairs and was at one time mayor of the town.

He leaves his widow, six children: Mrs. Thelma Schlichting of Kanawha Harry and Lloyd of Goodell; Mrs. Thora Trees of Belmond; Alfred of San Diego, Cal.; and Richard of Los Angeles, Cal. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Della Christie of Goodell.

Funeral Services Held Tuesday

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the United Brethren church with Rev. Harold Knight officiating. Special music was provided by a male quartette composed of W. E. Burk, Warner Butts, B. E. Dillon and Amos Hanson.

Interment was on the Amsterdam cemetery east of Goodell and the casket bearers were Henry Christenson; Earl Ruka, Arthur Ruka, Will Schlichting, W. F. Beier and O. F. Conwell.

James Stewart and Hedy Lemarr Co-Star For First Time In "Come Live With Me"

One of Hollywood's best all-round casts, coupled with Hollywood's ablest director, contribute the talent on view in "Come Live With Me," co-starring James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr, directed by Clarence Brown and opening at the Avery Theater Sunday, March 16 for an engagement of three days.

The amusing story deals with the plight of a beautiful Austrian refugee who is forced to make a choice between marrying some American citizen, thus obtaining a quota number, or being deported to her native Austria. She chooses the former, proposes to a penniless young author portrayed by James Stewart, and then proceeds to become involved in too many romantic entanglements.

Stewart proves an ideal choice for the poung author who decides to throw imagination to the winds and rely upon real life experience for his plots. It is Stewart's first picture since completing a leading role opposite Katherine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story".

Miss Lamarr, as the refugee, displays a new side to her glamorous personality in a role which requires the utmost of her talent. Of particular interest to women will be her elaborate but practical wardrobe, comprising only fifteen changes in all, designed by Adrian.

Garner Man Is Arrested

Trial Will Be Held March 21 At The Community Hall

H. Sporey, of Garner, was arrested in Klemme Tuesday night on an alleged petty larceny charge.

Sporey, we understand, posted bonds and will appear for trial, which has been set for 7:30 o'clock next week Friday night, March 21.

Mystery seems to hang over this particular case and little information can be pried out of the authorities. Sporey was likewise contacted but he would give out no information and only replied "Be at the trial, I'll show that Klemme bunch a thing or two."

The trial will be open to the public, we are told, so the community hall should be packed to hear the case.

neral Services Held For Eleven Year Old Boy

Funeral services were held this Wednesday afternoon at the Reformed church for Dennis Donavon Greiman, eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Greiman, farmers southwest of Klemme. The youth had been in ill health for the past year.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch and the arrangements were in charge of the Wellemeyer Funeral service.

Following is the obituary:

Obituary

Eleven and a half years age, a first born son came to gladden the home of Herbert R. and Esther Greiman in Twin Lake township. The lad was named Dennis Donavon, his birthday was on August 29th, 1929.

He was an active and a happy child, and his parents were privileged to have him share their home, not for a short time, but for these several years.

He learned his first prayer at his mother's knee. He attended Sunday School and the Summer Bible School and would come home and recite the beautiful Bible stories to his parents. He progressed in his public school studies up to the sixth grade.

About a year ago, Dennis complained of being very tired, he was placed under a physician's care, but he was still tired. He was taken to the Iowa City Hospital for six months without noticeable improvement. Since Christmas he was bedfast at home. He passed quietly away into his last long sleep Monday morning, March 10th, 1941. Age 11 years, 6 months and 10 days.

One brother, Louis, preceeded him in death, and one brother, Herbert Junior, age two, remains to comfort the saddened parents.

He also leaves his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Greiman, Twin Lake township; and Mr. and Mrs. Berg, Thief River Fall, Minnesota and many other more distant relatives.

Interment was on the family lot in the Ell Township Cemetery near Klemme. Dennis was carried to his final resting place by Carrol Etehen, Merle Etchen, Norman Swanson, Vern Greiman, Stanley Pringnitz and Dean Neuhring.

Women Play Important Roles in Wars Fought Throughout Centuries of Conflict

By ROGER SHAW
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK.—A well-known British historical novelist once remarked to me: "The greatest companionate marriage in world history is that of Venus with Mars." The more you think about it, from any old aspect, the truer it seems to be. Kipling added to this something about the female being deadlier than the male, and there's also the old slogan about the hand that rocks the cradle rules the home, and the home-defense program to boot. All this sounds rather anti-sentimental, but this is meant to be a factual piece, and not one gushing with the Whistler and his Mother spirit.

As a matter of fact, the war functions of women go back a long ways. They date all the way to the mythical amazons of ancient Greece, who were war-women with a kick and a vengeance.

In the Middle ages, lovely ladies often directed the defense of feudal castles, locked into chastity belts of cold, hard iron, while their mailed husbands were off at the crusades. Some of these medieval amazons were very effective in siege warfare, and at times they even wore armor. One rule was always observed in this type of fighting. The lady went with the castle, if she were attractive. So much for medieval chivalry, which was more realistic than Sir Walter Scott is always ready to admit.

Joan of Arc.

Then there was the mad maid of Orleans; that German maedchen

Women are found in almost every branch of service in beleaguered Britain. This woman ambulance driver attends civilian casualties and transports wounded soldiers from camps and hospitals.

from Lorraine known to some as Joan of Arc. Here was a woman at war, a regular feline field-marshal of the first water. She gave the English their worst defeats until the battle of Dunkirk in 1940, which is saying a good deal in anybody's language. Joan was such a good war woman that the English said she was a witch, and burned her as such. As a matter of fact, Joan must have given them a terrible inferiority complex, for when she entered the picture, the French and English had been battling for a century, and the Hundred Years' war was drawing to a disastrous close.

In the Russian revolution there emerged the Women's Battalion of Death, which got even more press-agenting than the U. S. marines, and that's saying an awful lot right from the horse's mouth. This was a Kerensky unit, and it was commanded by a brainy, grim-visaged 1917 amazonian who always carried poison tablets in case she were captured.

Some Actual Fighting.

The w. b. of d. really did some fighting, against the Bolsheviks and the Germans both. They carried the extra-long Russian rifles, with extra-long bayonets which could not be removed from the rifle barrels, and which stood taller than some of the w. b. of d. ladies. Finally, Kerensky ran away, and the Kerensky following dispersed.

In the Spanish civil war, up in the northerly Basque country, the big bounding Basque country girls fought side by side with their men folks. They pushed Italians over cliffs, and vicariously kicked them in the pants. La Passionaria was a famous Spanish Communist fighter, and she raised hades up and down the Spanish peninsula, for years on While some women play an active role in England's defense, this mother's work is even more important. Life must go on, war or no war.

Women are playing vital roles as noncombatants in England today. Somewhere in England the young lady above (left) covers plane fuselages with fabric on an airplane assembly line. An expert flier, the other lady (right) serves as an experimental pilot. She is shown in the cockpit of a new bombing plane.

end. Everybody was afraid of her, including the Spanish Loyalist government which she was supposed to be serving, in her own sweet rubicund way. After the end of the civil war, this Passion Flower fled over the border to France.

In the first World war, women went to work in the British and German ammunition factories with a vim and a vengeance. They liked it. It meant female emancipation, higher wages by far, and plenty of wartime glamour, lure, and sex appeal. They worked hard and efficiently, and they had the time of their lives. There were feeble echoes of this in America, but nowhere near the high-pressure goings-on as in the lands of those ill-assorted first cousins, the king and kaiser.

Again, Mars and Venus.

In 1940, June, France collapsed, and the defense program came to the United States. Again it was women and war; Mars and Venus; hearts and swords. When it came to forging the swords, or co-operating with them in other ways, the hearts came in with a vengeance. By the middle of 1941, for instance, some million and a half men will be in training camps. Some six million more people will be needed in offices and industrial plants, to back them up in the speedup of the defense and help-England programs. That six million, required, is where the women come into the present picture, and in large numbers, too. Women are good for any factory process except heavy lifting, or similar strong-arm stuff. In some munitions lines, like special fuse making, the finicky female fingers outmode the mere male.

In Philadelphia it's fuses; but in Detroit it's automobiles. Some Detroit women have been working in auto factories for a quarter of a century, and like it. You find them in all departments: ignition wiring, piston inspecting, soldering things together, body trimming, working a 40-hour week with decent social safeguards. They can't work unless they are 18, and that's enforced rigidly under the stringent Michigan laws, and most of them marry, have children, and lead a home-life.

These auto workers, or motorettes, so-called, could and can be easily converted into airplane conditioners and girl-groundhogs. They paint plane wings, inspect mechanical details and check deficiencies, clean up, and etch identification numbers in the aircraft works from dawn till dusk. They toil at gun-making, and stick the caps on shells, and fuss efficiently with machine-tools, which have now become the veritable sinews of modern warfare. So it goes. In America we always employ close to two million women in industries, and that figure is going up, up, and up.

Canadian 'Speed-Up.'

Canada has already speeded up its gals, or perhaps the gals have speeded up the land of the maple leaf. Factories and shipyards are on the make in the previously under-industrialized dominion, for England must be served and supplied. All Canadians and Canadiennes over 16, have been registered by the Ottawa government, and the airplane and munitions works are getting rapidly feminized. There are even girlish armament engineers, and so on down the gamut. In Canada the women work 44 hours per week, as against the Yankee 40, but they don't work nearly as hard. They have more fun at it, and it is more human and less on the soulless robot pattern.

The American women take to overalls and old clothes, while the Canadiennes toil in the get-up of our own mid-western college coeds. They munch on candy, sport the old high heels, and kid their male shop bosses, if any. They're not as well protected as the Yankees and they're paid somewhat less, but there's the other side to the coin—that of the lighter heart and the wiser crack. This attitude, too, is reflected in the Canadian male conscription. It's only for a month, as against the grimmer year (a minimum?) of the American draft system. When it comes to Canadian military wives, they get $20 per month from the husband's pay, and another $35 from the government. There is another monthly $12 each for children. A Canadian private soldier gets $1.30 per day, which is very good military money—in fact, the world's top for doughboys.

Then, up in Canada, there are all sorts of women's volunteer groups, for washing sailors' laundry (Halifax), button-sewing-onning (Toronto), work in the Salvation Army, the Y. W. C. A., running military saloons called canteens, dancing with the boys, and marrying them off. They also drive trucks, roll Red Cross materials, collect books and magazines for the camps and campers, and collect blood for transfusions.

Professional Nurses.

Trained nursing is a completely professional job up north of us. Nurses are in the army with the rank and pay of "lieutenants," and there are actually some 14,000 of them—four units being overseas in the snappiest of all the current snappy war uniforms. These are public healthers, diet gals, hospital experts and so-called physiotherapists, plus some free-lances and glamourites. They like it, and are liked. In England they are super-popular and have the time of their lives, so they write home to Winnipeg, or Three Rivers, or Guelph.

In the new American conscript army the women will also take a hand, or hands. Each new camp is to have a librarian and three hostesses, and the local clubwomen sponsor weekly dances and other such goings-on. In some communities, "nice" girls are not supposed to step out with private soldiers, especially in the conservative South. A fair ratio, in the camps, is 50 girls to 250 men when it comes to dancing and such festivals.

By the middle of this year, some 4,000 Red Cross nurses will be called up for the U. S. army, to supplement the hundreds of female "regulars." Army nursing will be multiplied by five, and navy nursing by something like four. They'll all be under 35 years old, and preferably attractive, although that fact isn't advertised. Then, there are the military and naval secretaries, typists, clericals, etc., who throng Washington, and type their country's battles at a snappy clip. These were the naval yeomanettes of 1917-18. And that's only the beginning.

Birth Rate in U. S. During 1940 Highest in Ten Years

WASHINGTON. — Approximately 2,350,000 babies were born in the United States in 1940, the highest number recorded in any one year since 1930, according to preliminary figures released by Vergil D. Reed, acting director of the census.

The 1940 total was nearly 100,000 greater than in 1939 and the increase lifted the national birth rate from 17.3 to 18 live births per 1,000 population. Census bureau officials emphasized, however, that this increase in the birth rate had no long-range implications. From a rate of 24.2 in 1921, the rate has continuously declined to its lowest point—16.5—in 1933. Since then it has risen irregularly. The long-range tendency is still downward, explains the census bureau, the present rise resulting from the fact that babies born from the greatly increased volume of marriages following the first World war are now coming into reproductive ages.

U. S. FIRMS PAY AXIS POWERS

WASHINGTON.—While the senate is preparing to enact the lend-lease bill committing this country to vast outlays for Great Britain, certain American firms are paying out hundreds of dollars monthly to Germany and Italy, which funds are being used to fight both the United States and Britain.

This secret Axis aid is being delivered in the form of royalty payments on industrial formulas, trademarks, copyrights and patents. The money is paid in dollars and is deposited to German and Italian accounts in New York banks.

The justice department, which has conducted a secret investigation, has uncovered these interesting facts:

1. That the royalty payments are now running around $500,000 a month, of which Germany gets at least 80 per cent.

2. That a considerable portion of the money was used by Germany last year to buy U. S. goods for delivery to Latin American buyers, to make good on contracts that Germany confidently had signed after the fall of France but was unable to fill, because of the unshaken British blockade.

3. That Nazi and Fascist agents have drawn on the funds to finance racial and anti-defense propaganda in this country, also anti-American propaganda in South America.

4. That while U. S. firms fork over their tribute in dollars, such royalties as Germany and Italy pay are in the form of blocked marks and export lira; that is, money that can be spent only in Germany or Italy.

Actually, the money levy is a secondary consideration. What really worries the authorities is how much vital military production information these royalty agreements betray to the Axis.

Since most royalties on patents are paid according to the number of units sold, it should be a simple matter for the Axis to obtain detailed figures on types and rate of flow of important materials to the U. S. army and navy and to Britain. Last year the justice department cracked down on Bausch and Lomb when it discovered that under a secret royalty agreement the firm supplied the German licensor with a detailed accounting of certain instruments delivered to the navy.

WILLKIE RATES CHURCHILL OVER F. D.

Wendell Willkie went all-out for the President's lend-lease bill, but personally he doesn't like Mr. Roosevelt any better than before. Willkie made this clear to friends following his conference at the White House.

Winston Churchill, he indicated, had it all over Roosevelt in ability and personality, was "much simpler and more direct in manner."

"There isn't anyone in America quite like Churchill," Willkie said. "He was the most congenial companion I've met in a very long time. He has a gay buoyancy that is incomparable."

Willkie also told his friends that he had absolutely no intention of taking a job under Roosevelt.

"The President hasn't offered me anything," he said, "and I hope he doesn't because I'll turn it down. One thing I don't want is an appointive office. If war should come I will enlist in the armed forces, but I'm not taking a government job."

Willkie is still undecided what he will do, but is leaning toward a return to law. He has been offered a number of lucrative positions, one carrying a salary of $120,000 a year.

NEW FARM BOARD

After many years of supporting the New Deal farm program, the powerful Farm Bureau federation wants to set up a new government farm agency which it would largely dominate.

In backstage congressional conversations, the farm leaders have proposed that the AAA, the soil conservation service and the farm security administration be taken away from the department of agriculture and be made a completely separate agency. Then they want a five-man board to run these important bureaus.

Naturally, they expect to have a goodly representation of members on that board.

So far, Vice President Henry Wallace and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard are vigorously opposed. So also is the President.

Note—Herbert Hoover established a famous farm board to buy wheat. It was a mess.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Elder Statesman ex-Senator King of Utah is being promoted by friends to become a commissioner of the District of Columbia.

Although hampered by having its offices scattered in six widely separated buildings, the immigration bureau is mailing out 95,000 receipts a day to registered aliens.

Pennsylvania Republican chiefs will not have to ask Sen. ("Puddler Jim") Davis twice to be their candidate for governor next year. He is panting for the chance.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Mom:

The cake and things you sent arrived okay only I did not get none on account of my buddies opened them. The trouble with the army is that you can't keep a separate mailing address. Well, everything is going along good and life in the army ain't so bad once you make up your mind it can't be any too good.

We have movies here but no screeno, so you would not like army life, mom. We have hostesses here, too. I thought a hostess was somebody you found in airplanes, but in the camps a hostess is a lady who has charge of the entertainment side of life and I think we may even get rumba lessons in this war. There are quite a few hostesses here, but do not worry about me, Mom, as they are all pretty old, some even as old as 38 and 40. I don't know who is picking them, but it ain't Billy Rose.

At first I thought the Camp Fire Girls were being drafted, too, but I found out the government wants the soldiers to have as much amusement as they can get in the next war, including double features, swing music and Mickey Mouse. They even have cafeteria lunchrooms for visitors so if an outsider gets poisoned they can't blame it on the regular army cook.

More rifles are arriving and I guess maybe by the time war comes almost every soldier will have a gun.

Do not keep sending me heavy underwear as you have my tent full of it already.

Love,
Oscar.

Dear Mom:

I am getting so I do not mind being here at all and my morale would be good except I didn't keep getting newspapers and reading the news from Washington. I have got around to the point where I am used to taking orders and to facing a war if there is no way out, but what is all this stuff about going to the aid of China, Greece and all nations everywhere?

In one breath I am told I will not be sent out of the United States and in the next I hear all countries in trouble anywhere can depend on help from me, and if all this is so, I keep asking myself why I didn't join the navy to see the world, which I may have to see anyhow.

What is all this lease-lend stuff, and do I go with the lease? Also could you send me some newspaper article explaining what is being lended. I hope no tanks are being lended as we are still using ice wagons here. If we must lend something let us lend first sergeants as there are too many of 'em around this camp.

The food here could be better. I haven't had a good juicy steak yet. Are they lending them to somebody, too?

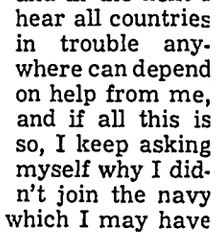
Well, do not worry, as I am getting used to everything and am very happy today because I learned Otto Bixby, who was my boss at the store, has been drafted, too, and will be here, too, any day now.

Love,
Oscar.

* * *

Dear Mom:

Bixby, my old boss (who was such a stinker), just arrived and is in my company. I am going to work hard now to be a sergeant, or at least a corporal.



I will write more later.

Love,
Oscar.

Historical Highlights

The 'Original Cowgirl'

WHEN an automobile accident resulted in the death of Lucille Ulhall near the town of Mulhall, Ila., recently, it snapped another link with the Old West. For she was the "original cowgirl," the first of that tribe of daring young women who risk their necks riding bucking broncoes and roping steers or wives. But unlike many of the "synthetic cowgirls" you see at the rodeos or in circuses today, Lucille Ulhall was "authentic."

She was the daughter of Col. Zach Mulhall, a pioneer of Oklahoma, whose ranch on Beaver creek once comprised more than 80,000 acres. While she was still a little girl her father offered to give her every sterling she could rope and brand for herself. But he soon begged off on his bargain when he noticed how many of his steers were wearing the brand of "L. M."

When she was 14 she was the star attraction at the reunion of Roosevelt's Rough Riders in Oklahoma City in 1900. There she matched her skill as a rider and roper against some of the best cowboys in the Southwest and held her own with them. Four years later at the cattlemen's convention in Fort Worth, Texas, she did even better when she entered the steer-roping contest.

Lucille Mulhall in 1916.

'Queen of the Range.'

Each contestant drew three steers from a lot. Miss Mulhall got two big fresh ones at the start. She roped and tied the first one in 1 minute and 45 seconds. She cut that time down to 1 minute and 11 seconds on her second steer and she topped her third one in the remarkable time of 40 seconds. Her total time for the three was 3 minutes and 36 seconds which was seven seconds faster than her nearest cowboy competitor. So they hailed the slight girl (she weighed less than 100 pounds) "Queen of the Range" and awarded her the championship belt and medal valued at $1,000.

To prove that her victory at Fort Worth was no fluke, she entered a steer-roping contest at McAlester, Okla., in 1903 and roped and tied three steers in 30¼, 40 and 40⅘ seconds. From that time on Lucille Mulhall was the sensation of every contest which she entered and her room in the Mulhall ranch house was filled with her trophies. She was the star of the Wild West show which Colonel Mulhall organized and took to the world's fair in St. Louis in 1904. When it showed in Madison Square Garden in New York the next year, the Eastern papers and magazines waxed lyrical over her and printed pages about her as the "Best Horsewoman in America."

A 'Trail Boss.'

Another of her feats for which she became famous came about in this way. Colonel Mulhall had bought a herd of 700 steers down in the Texas Panhandle but was too busy to go down there and drive them back to his ranch. So Lucille Mulhall proposed that she and her sister Mildred, take on the job. They hired a few cowboys with them but while she was the "boss of the outfit" and under her direction the 700 steers were driven over the 300-mile trail through bad weather without suffering the loss of a single steer.

* * *

When they buried her in the family plot on the Mulhall ranch an old timer was heard to remark: "Them girls and cowboys might live longer if they stuck to horses." Perhaps he was thinking of the fact that Tom Mix, who had once worked on the Mulhall ranch, had been killed in an automobile accident in California a few months earlier and that Will Rogers, who had also been a Mulhall ranch cowboy and a rider and roper in Colonel Zach's Wild West show, had lost his life in an airplane accident in Alaska.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IF RALPH MURPHY, Paramount director, needed to make a little extra money he could write a book entitled "Ten Lessons on How to Catch a Man" and the shekels would roll in.

Here's what he has to say about it. (He's a graduate of Syracuse university, has been a stage and motion picture actor, producer and director for years, so he's qualified to talk.)

"I have three girls in 'Las Vegas Nights.' Each would use a different technique. Each technique would require eight reels to fold. So—I let Constance Moore get her man with the direct-approach technique. I give Virginia Dale a man before the picture starts, and I leave Lillian Cornell out on a limb with nary a male in sight.

Constance Moore

"The allure technique is used by a woman conscious of the fact that she has an enormous amount of feminine appeal for men—a screen example would be Hedy Lamarr. Flattery is used by women ranging from the baby-talk girls to the mothering type. There's the girl who gives the impression that she's helpless; men want to stand between her and the world—Bonnie Baker's an example.

"There's the girl who uses the direct approach; spots the man she wants and makes no bones about it; she's a good sport, a playmate, and picks a man with the same characteristics. Barbara Stanwyck's a screen example. And the coquette, whose eyes say 'if you chase me I'll run—but not too far.' Like Virginia Dale on the screen.

Virginia Dale

"Then there's the one who is not brilliant and not dull, not beautiful and not homely; every girl asks 'What's she got?' The answer is 'She's got the man that a lot of other girls wanted.'"

Some other girl may have Errol Flynn for a husband now; Olivia de Haviland's married him five times—on the screen—and when she finished "Santa Fe Trail" she fled to the equally ardent arms of James Cagney, in "Strawberry Blonde."

She was a little dubious about it; after all, Cagney's had a bad movie reputation where women were concerned since he squashed that grapefruit in a lady's face. But Olivia is safe in this one—he's cast as a belligerent dentist who gets into plenty of fights, but all with men.

Twenty-four of the show girls in "Ziegfeld Girl" voted for their favorite movie actress the other day. Vivian Leigh got eight votes, and Bette Davis and Greta Garbo each got five. But—Judy Garland, Lana Turner and Hedy Lamarr couldn't be voted for. They're in the picture.

Billy the Kid has finally joined the side of law and order. It happened recently near Tucson, Ariz., where Robert Taylor was made a deputy sheriff of Pima county. Taylor plays the fast-shooting desperado of the 1870s in Metro's picture, "Billy the Kid," which was on location in the Southwest at the time Taylor took over his duties.

They were shooting scenes on the Double U ranch in Pima county when Sheriff Ed Echols paid the troupe a visit and pinned a shiny new badge on the star's shirt.

(3) The house in West Los Angeles which belongs to Wayne Morris which he and Franchot Tone rent, it's known as Annex No. 1 to Stewart's abode. (4) A small beach house which he rented at Santa Monica, called Annex No. 2—he took it with the idea of week-ending there, but so far has been so busy that he's hardly seen it. But he has hopes, now that he's completing his work in United Artists' "That Uncertain Feeling."

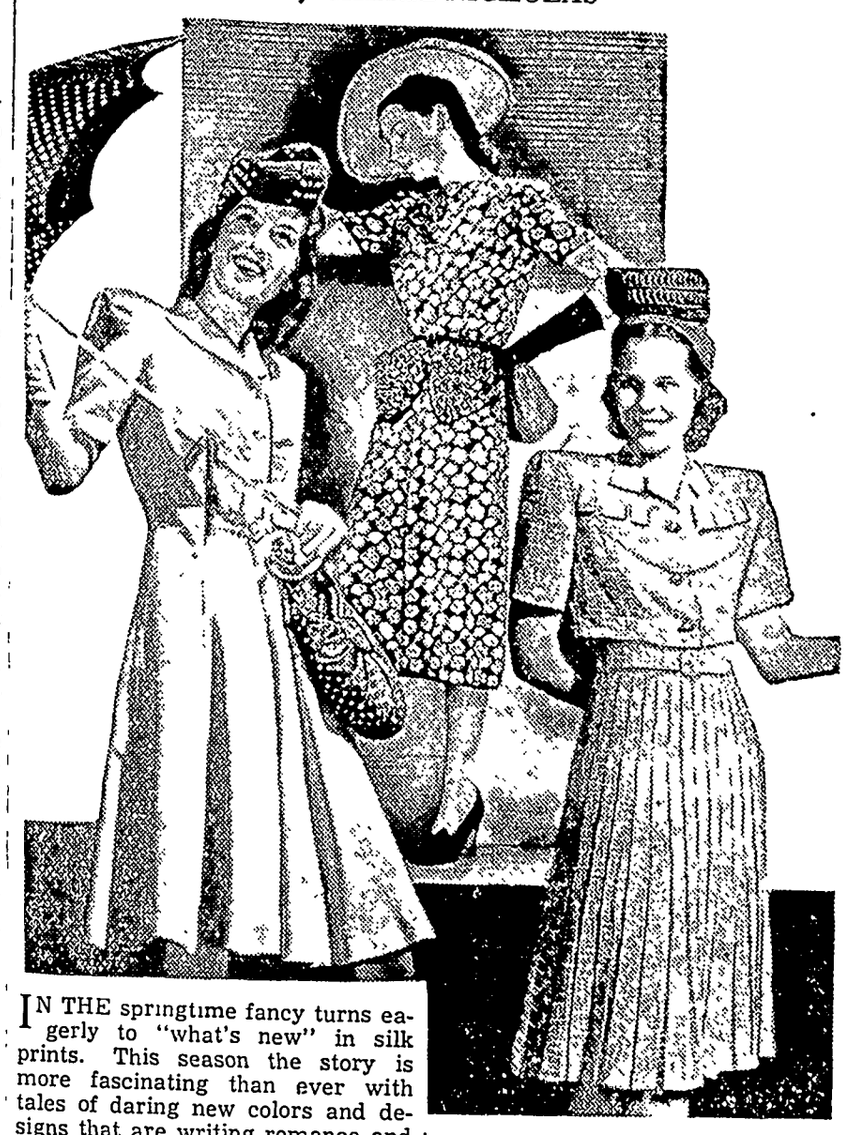
ODDS AND ENDS—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart in Honolulu listened to radio's "Hilltop House" last year, and liked the story and its star, Bess Johnson, so much that they named their home for the serial. Recently Miss Johnson learned that all her Hawaiian Islands' mail is being delivered to the Harts! . . . For the betterment of Latin-American relations, Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth are making a ten-thousand-mile junket to Mexico City, Puerto Rico and Havana for three "Vox Pop" broadcasts . . . "The Uniform" ends Clark Gable's two-months vacation and brings Rosalind Russell back to the Metro lots after an absence of more than a year.

Silk Prints for Spring Feature Polka Dots, Fruit Motifs, Color

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



IN THE springtime fancy turns eagerly to "what's new" in silk prints. This season the story is more fascinating than ever with tales of daring new colors and designs that are writing romance and drama in every chapter.

There's a mad rush for red, a play-up of fruit motifs in realistic colorings on white background, a new array of shantung silks, either monotone or printed; a repeat on polka dots with special emphasis on twin prints; and a predominance of patriotic colors. You'll see a record-breaking number of prints that key beige and brown to tangerine, bittersweet and kindred colors, a strong accent on bizarre South American colors, especially purples and reds and Peruvian pink, a hand-paint technique used for flowery party-dress prints—and here we "pause for identification" of some of the newest print fashions as shown in the illustration herewith.

A sure way of being fashion-right in selecting the new print frock for spring is to think in terms of silk shantung, which is exactly what the designer did in creating the neat and attractive dress to the right in the picture. Styled the South American way with its bolero silhouette and general detail, this printed plaid silk shantung dress is the very embodiment of style at a new high.

One of the delights of shantung is the lovely pastel monotones that are favorites for dresses and suits, tailored to a nicety for both sports and daytime wear. The dress to the left in the group is made of a pastel blue shantung with gay dotted shantung for the turban and bag. If you look close, you will see the tip edge of a matching polka dot parasol. The dress under a monotone wool coat makes a perfect greeting for spring. You'll be carrying the smart parasol ever so pridefully when summer comes.

Navy prints with navy wool topcoats or long dramatic capes are "tops" in fashion. Stylish accessories are a hat and bag of plaid silk in colors as mad and merry as you please. You can either make, (patterns are easily available) or buy ready made, these enlivening twosomes.

Two designers are sounding the patriotic note by introducing wide bands of red and white crepe silk in the lining. You can do the same thing with the vivid South American colors—introduce them in linings, or in the yoke of the dress.

Look about in the silk displays and you will be impressed with the number of prints that couple pink with black or with navy. These pretty ladylike prints invite gracious styling, such as has been given to the gown centered in the group pictured. This dainty frock is made on slim lines with novel petal pockets made of self-print. There is increasing interest shown in pockets throughout current costume design. They contribute great charm to simple print daytime dresses. The pink hat worn with the frock pictured complements the dress. It has a crochet bumper edge — crochet touches are ever so chic—and what is most apropos is that this hat sports a knitting needle trim. Wear pink or black suede gloves with this outfit for proper accent.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Smart Simplicity

Statistics show that there is an increase in yardage sales owing to the fact that a growing number of women are taking up home sewing. This, they say, may be largely attributed to the fact that almost every community nowadays has a sewing center where one can learn at little or no expense the short-cuts and tricks of the trade. The dress pictured can be made up easily and at minimum cost. The material need not be expensive. Why not learn to make your own clothes? Some of the rayon mixtures in pastel colors would be practical for a beginner to start with, and the new gabardines are lovely and wearable. The pattern for this dress calls for soft gathered detail and is a type that can be easily made at home.

Cape, Suit Ensembles In Spring Collections

Considerable emphasis is being placed on cape costumes in the advance spring showings. The cape formula is being worked out in ways most fascinating. For example, a charming costume turned out by a noted designer plays up bright and neutral colors in the latest approved manner. The suit of soft gray wool consists of an all-round box-pleated skirt with a dressmaker-styled jacket that is hiplength and has two huge patch pockets. Now comes the stunning cape that tops this neat suit! It is full length, made of red herringbone weave, lined with lime green silk.

A good rule to follow might be "a cape with every costume" so popular is the cape idea growing. One of the newest outcomes of the cape vogue is that many of the early spring print silk frocks are worn with long cloth capes lined with the identical silk of the dress.

Modern Handbags Gain Slick Smooth Efficiency

What handbags have lost in the absence of French models, (which formerly inspired 90 per cent of our handbag styles) they are gaining in improved construction, better materials, and interesting tricks which make them newly efficient. One trick is a slot which feeds a nickle outside the bag. Another is a key clip on a light for inside the handbag—so that keys may be located instantly Another is the gluv-gard, which anchors one's gloves to one's handbag.

Handbag interiors are gaining a great deal of attention. More and better planned pockets are the rule. And one important new detail in interiors is a special pocket zipper. When you slide your hand into a pocket protected by this fastener, there are no rough teeth to get past —the zipper is kind to nail polish. It slides like a streak and adds ornamentation, as well as safety to American-made handbag interiors

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON Says:

'HUNCH' ON LEASE-LEND

This is little more than a hunch story but it is a hunch based on a good many circumstances all facing in the same direction—the administration's willingness to compromise on amendments on the lease-lend bill that do not conflict with it and its adamantine opposition to any amendments that do, the nature of the military and naval problem in its present phase, the opinions of some naval officers, the apparent determination of Mr. Roosevelt to defend the British empire wherever it is threatened.

The hunch is that very shortly after that bill is passed, we shall see one of the most startling switches of American and British naval equipment ever yet rumored or imagined.

What is most needed to keep ocean lanes of supply open to beleaguered Britain and oppose the German air and submarine blockade are destroyers. cruisers and other light swift warcraft. What is most needed if we are to challenge Japanese sea power in the west Pacific is battleships.

These latter take a long time to build and we are not too comfortably equipped in this category as compared with Japan, especially considering distance, lack of bases and tricky defensive naval terrain of the Japanese Archipelago.

Trading some of our lighter craft for just one British battleship would not be a very thrifty thing to do. It would be hard to fit it into a squadron otherwise composed of battleships of American design, caliber of guns, fire-control and so forth. But getting a whole squadron of British battle wagons could be a much more effective addition to our naval strength if our purpose is to fight the Japanese navy.

We are turning out some honeys of destroyers and doing it ahead of time. The conversion and modernization of our old destroyers is moving very rapidly in our own and British shipyards. The British are not experiencing the difficulty in manning our light craft that we might have in manning theirs. But even with our difficulties, this whole idea of wholesale shifts is not so screwy, assuming always that we have decided to gamble our position in the Atlantic on the British manning American ships and our going to tackle Japan in the Pacific with Americans manning British ships.

What we are possibly facing here is a British-American pool of the fighting ships of both navies. In the lease-lend bill as it now stands in the senate, there is no financial or other limit whatever on the President's power to make these shifts, even to the whole of our navy.

LABOR AND MANAGEMENT

On more than one occasion during the World war when suggestions were made to the late great Samuel Gompers, that labor should have a voice in industrial management, he always shook his head—just as he always shook his head at suggestions of labor's greater participation in partisan politics.

His reasoning was clear and may be fairly paraphrased thus: "If labor is a party in management it partakes in one of the great responsibilities of management, namely profits. It is the business of labor organizations to see that workers get a fair day's pay for a fair day's work. In hard times capital gets no wages. It can afford this for long periods of time. Labor can not. We want neither that responsibility nor that sacrifice."

As to close political affiliation, the argument was that parties must compromise on a vast assortment of issues which are not the direct concern of organized labor. That concern is always to champion the cause of workers. It must work politically but it must do so in the manner that serves it best. It is not served best by entangling its fate with any political faith where often the demand on it may be "everything for the good of the party" when at times that "everything" may be all to the disadvantage of labor.

That always seemed to me a very sound philosophy for a labor leader.

It all seems now to be in the ash-can. In the defense set-up, organized labor, at least insofar as it is represented by Sidney Hillman, demanded and got an authority over industry in control of war production (which is all production) on a par with industrial management at least insofar as it is represented by Mr. Knudsen. Neither of these good men is completely representative of his group, but this strange du-umvirate control was certainly intended to signify at least partial labor management of industry.

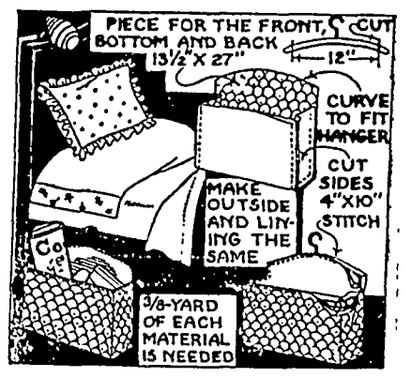
As Mr. Frank Kent has pointed out, there are many signs in this direction and almost none in any contrary direction. Mr. Phillip Murray, head of C. I. O., has proposed a plan, whereby the sadly lacking organization of all-out American industrial mobilization shall be supplied by topside committee control of whole industries—committees in which labor and management shall be equally represented in more or less dictatorial administration of each regimented industry.

If You Read in Bed You'll Want This Bag

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS bag was planned as a hospital gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines, writing materials and spectacle case scattered about and forever getting lost. If you like to take an assortment of reading matter to bed, sick or well, you will enjoy a bag like this. Its hanger hook



PIECE FOR THE FRONT, CUT BOTTOM AND BACK 13½" X 27" 12"
CURVE TO FIT HANGER
CUT SIDES 4"X10" STITCH
MAKE OUTSIDE AND LINING THE SAME
⅜-YARD OF EACH MATERIAL IS NEEDED

may be sewed to box springs and there you are with everything at hand.

The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery material in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the sateen lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside part were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; these being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

INDIGESTION
may affect the Heart

Gas trapped in the stomach or gullet may act like a hair-trigger on the heart. At the first sign of distress smart men and women depend on Bell-ans Tablets to set gas free. No laxative but made of the fastest-acting medicine known for acid indigestion. If the FIRST DOSE doesn't prove Bell-ans better, return bottle to us and receive DOUBLE Money Back. 25c.

Dignity and Proportion

Remember this—that there is a proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life.—Marcus Aurelius.

Duty Toward Health

To do all in our power to win health, and to keep it, is as much our duty as to be honest.—T. F. Seward.

Nervous Restless Girls! Cranky? Restless? Can't sleep? Tire easily? Because of distress of monthly functional disturbances? Then try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pinkham's Compound is famous for relieving pain of irregular periods and cranky nervousness due to such disturbances. One of the most effective medicines you can buy today for this purpose—made especially for women. WORTH TRYING!

Tempting Price

Few men have the virtue to withstand the highest bidder.—Washington.

That blitz rampage of two modern "Carrie Nations". They decided slot-machines and dice were making too many homes unhappy. so they cracked down with hatchet and hammer, and bang! Down went the town's lid. Read why they did it. and how, in The American Weekly the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

Memorandum.

After first traveling to the Gaylord Johnson home north of Fenton, then to the E. K. Johnson home south of Fenton, Dr. J. A. Mueller finally concluded that he was to pick up his wife at the E K. Johnson home, southwest of town, to pick up his wife and four ladies after an afternoon of bridge His wife says for him to keep a notebook or else pay more attention when she talks.

Marriages.

Rev. S. E. Wright, pastor of the Exira Federated church, recently married Miss Francis Wolfgram of Gladbrook and Wilson Dinsdale of Traer. This made the ninth wedding Rev. Wright had performed for the Dinsdale family of nine children.

MUSIC NEWS

The clarinet quartet, which will participate in the contest, has chosen for its selection "American" Sketches" by Francis McKay. The two members who have been chosen so far are Billy Zabilka and Eunice Larsen The other two are yet in question

Soloists for the contest will be Billy Zabilka, clarinet, Melvin Coobs, baritone, Billy Grosshuesch, tuba, and Irene Becker, marimba.

The gowns for the vocal group have arrived this week They are electric blue and are very attractive

We wish to thank those parents whose children have shown marked progress by practice in response to last week's article It is very easy to tell which students practice regularly and those who do not.

SPORTS

The Klemme team won the first two games of the sectional tournament by defeating Alexander 23 to 24 and Meservey, 34 to 24. Three of the first-string players have been sick and were not able to play in the first game. Two of them returned to play in the second game against Meservey

There already has been talk of the inter-class tournaments

JUNIOR CLASS NEWS

A demonstration was given to the junior sociology class on how to apply artifical respiration. The victim was Bob Schulz and we will have to admit he is ticklish However, we all will agree with Mr. Kingery in that the victim would have a slim chance of survival if Coobs and Arnold were applying the artifical respiration

Garland Brinkman was ill Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, this happened to be the week of the tournament. Thursday night when Klemme played Meservey, Garland was given permission from the doctor to play, and from the reports he played his best game of the season.

The juniors under the direction of Miss Ott, the home economics instructor, have decided the theme of their banquet and have started working on the various committees.

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

We began reading "Dawn" by Eleanor H Porter. It's a story about a boy who is blind

Jimmy Thomas, Ruth Bell, Robert Tiggerman, Edward Barz, Ewald Grosshuesch, Marvin Wade, Junior Buntenbach, Wesley Suckow and Patricia Kudje were neither absent nor tardy this six weeks.

We had experiments in science this week which proved that water seeks its own level and that all living things contain water.

Patricia got a star score in self-testing drill No. 12. The seventh grade had an average score of seven. This is the highest score they have earned this year.

Mavis Meyer brought some of her books to school for our library. We also have a new history reference book.

Ruth, Herbert Mueller, Ewald, Edward Barz, and Junior Buntenbach received perfect scores in spelling.

GRADES 5 & 6

The following people earned perfect scores in spelling this week Helen, Delores, Ruth Smith, Esther, Velma, Carol, Clarence, Roger R., Roger B, Mary Lou Peggy and Phyllis.

The sixth graders got a rating of eight on their tenth arithmetic self-testing drill That is a good rating Dean got a star rating.

We have two new pupils in our room They are Laverne Lewis and Rose Schaefer.

Last Monday was Miss Irvine's birthday We had a fruit shower for her

We started a new unit in science called "Our Respiratory and Circulatory Systems."

Friday morning we had a spell down to choose five of each grade to spell in the contest. Those spelling in the contest will be Irene, Delores, Darwin, Harold, Willis, Dean, Roger R., Phyllis, Roger B., and Elizabeth.

GRADES 3 & 4

We are glad to welcome Norma Early, a new pupil to our 4th grade.

The last six weeks the following had perfect attendance: Larry, Luella, Delores, Merlin, Edward, Ardel, Iris, Phyllis Kirkwood, Dorance, Marjory and Willis.

Lucille and Delores, from the first grade room, read stories to us. They read very well.

In Number Drill 10, fourth grade had a score of good.

We helped celebrate Larry Ramsay's birthday Friday. He treated us to candy bars. We wish him many happy birthdays.

In spelling the following had percent. Norma, Iris, Phyllis Maye Hennagir, Dorance, Phyllis Stokesbary and Luella.

KINDERGARTEN
GRADES 1 & 2

We have a new pupil in the first grade. She is Iris Mae Schaefer.

For the last six weeks the following people were neither absent nor tardy Sharon, LuVerne, Elaine Garry, Delores, Larry, Maralee, Maxine, Harley, Richard and Sondra

The first grade are reading new books called "Our New Friends".

Lucille and Delores each read a story to the third and fourth grade boys and girls.

Sharon brought some clover growing in a potato vase. We thought it was very pretty.

THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22 14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—As often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.—I Corinthians 11 26.

Old things pass away, and new things take their place—such seems to be the law of life. That which is useful and greatly desired fulfills its time of service and is set aside for that which takes its place. The change which occurred in our lesson shared this aspect, but was in reality so vital and fundamental that it merits our closest attention.

The Passover feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood. But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in death, and He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance—the Lord's table, showing forth His death till He come.

I. The Last Passover (vv. 14-18).

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last feast of that kind recognized by God. All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the head of the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose and desire to the day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished, and He was to become our Passover (I Cor. 5:7).

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not in any sense minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden he faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12: 27), He said, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19, 20).

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover, which had just been observed by Him for the last time, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

As we have already suggested, it is a feast of remembrance. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (I Cor. 11:26). At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in remembering His death for them, and they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. In doing so they testify to the world that they believe in and cherish these truths.

This feast is also rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion, first of all with Him, and then with one another.

We also note that our Lord spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means "covenant." The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service. The Christian Church therefore speaks of the communion service as a sacrament, a word taken from the Latin "sacramentum," meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance

III. Betrayal and Strife (vv. 21-30).

Someone will say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the feast of the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing—we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord It is a sad and soul-searching fact which is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ

What about the strife regarding position? Shame on us, for it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatest

May the spirit of Christ get hold of some self-seeking Christian as he today sees Christ as the One whose body was broken and whose blood was shed for him

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

THERE'S something guileless and appealing about a yoke dress like this that will make you look as fresh and bright as a little girl all dressed up in a new starched frock! It's very becoming and youthifying to misses and women alike. Yet design No. 8876 offers you the makings of a very comfortable home style, with waistline that you can comfortably draw in to just the slimness you want, by means of the sash belt in the back.

The high-cut skirt is very slenderizing to the hips and waist. The gathered bodice gives you a nice round bosom-line. Make this of percale, calico or gingham and trim with bright ricrac and buttons. Untrimmed, it's a good style for runabout, if you make it up in flat crepe or spun rayon. Send for the pattern today, and be among the first to wear it!

Pattern No 8876 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 3¾ yards of 36-inch material without nap, 1⅝ yards trimming. Detailed sew chart included. Send order to:

Beginner Didn't Want Possibility to Be Wasted

The instructor was teaching the awkward fellow to drive a car.

"Put out your left hand to signal that you are about to move off. Then with your left foot step in the clutch. With your right hand put the gearshift into first. Gradually ease up on the clutch, accelerating with your right foot.

"When the car has gathered speed, again step in the clutch, shifting with the right hand to second. Then with the left foot slowly let out the clutch, acccelerating with the right foot. Then repeat to shift to high speed. Keep your eyes on the road ahead."

"There's nothing useful I could do with my nose, is there?" inquired the beginner.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Comfort Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin to save your touchy stomach from further distress For years, many Doctors have used pepsin compounds as vehicles, or carriers to make other medicines agreeable to your stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative that comforts your stomach, too.

NAGGING BACKACHE

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Mrs. Greiesmer Funeral Held

AGED RESIDENT OF GARNER DIES

Services Were Held On Friday For Mrs. Justina Griesmer, 82

GARNER—Mrs. Justina Griesmer, 82, died here Wednesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Griesmer, where she had lived since the death of her husband, Henry Griesmer, in 1933.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Zion Reformed church. The Rev. William Huenemann officiated.

Mrs. Griesmer was one of Hancock county's pioneer citizens, coming to Iowa in 1870. On Nov. 11, 1880, she was married to Henry Griesmer here at Garner and had lived in the couny since.

She was preceeded in death by her husband, a daughter, Katherine, and a son, Alex.

Surviving are her son, Paul, and a niece, Mrs. Tom Hamilton, both Garner, and many other relatives and friends.

Interment was in the Concord cemetery.

MR. AND MRS. BLANK CAME TO SETTLE IN KLEMME IN 1895

Mr. Blank Has Spent Most of His Life In Railroad Work

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Taalkeus Blank observed their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary at their home here in Klemme when several of their children and their families came to spend the afternoon and to enjoy a lunch of ice cream and cake.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil and son, Taalkeus, of Goodell; Mr. and Mrs. Worthy Usher and sons, Worthy and Carrol of Rowan; Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Quandt; Miss Marie Blank; and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gerardi and daughter, Gracka Maria. A supper was also served at 5:30 o'clock.

Were Born In Germany

Taalkeus Blank was born May 26th, 1864 at Boen, Ostfreisland; and his wife, Geeske Ruiter, was born December 8th, 1861, at Bunde, Osfreisland, Germany. They were married March 16th, 1885 at Bunde.

Mr. Blank left his native country for America on April 2, 1886 and arrived at Belmond, Iowa, on April 23rd the same year.

Mrs. Blank left Germany a few months later and joined her husband in America on October 16th, 1886.

Began Work On Railroad

Mr. Blank secured work on the construction of what is now the Great Western railroad between Mason City and Fort Dodge. On August 19, 1886 he began working for the Rock Island at Belmond as a laborer and in 1891 he was promoted to Section foreman and was transferred to Hayfield.

1892 was an important date in Mr. Blank's life as in March of that year he became a full-fledged citizen of the United States.

Mr. Blank and his family came to Klemme on Ocober 1st, 1895 and he was section foreman here until he retired several years ago. Mr. Blank said, "We got into Klemme alright, and found that whoever does get in Klemme will find it not easy to leave. It got a good hold on us and we are proud that we are still here living in a good town among good people."

Mr. and Mrs. Blank were the parents of ten children, six of whom are living. They are Ralph of Iowa Falls; Fred of West Bend; Mrs. Ahrenkeil of Goodell; Mrs. Quandt and Marie of Klemme, and Mrs. Usher of Rowan. They have sixteen grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ANSWERS CALL TO SALLING HOME

The Klemme fire department answered a call Friday when they were called to the Einar Salling residence where a small fire had broken out in the garage.

Mr. Salling was able to put the fire out before the company arrived. The fire started when Mr. Salling was soldering some cream cans in the garage and in some manner, gunny sacks nearby had caught afire. Little damage was caused.

Long Distance.

By means of long-distance telephone, Gladys June Vannausdle of near Red Oak, and Orval P. Briggs, at Bremeron, Washington, were married, although they were 1,500 miles apart. Briggs is stationed on a ship in the Pacific fleet. so it was necessary to try two or three times before the connections were finally made.

Mad Horse.

Ode Paul, Newberg, was severly bitten by a horse last week. It is believed that the horse was a victim of rabies. Other animals on the farm were bitten and may have to be vaccinated.

Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Klimmek Carroll were married at 3 p. m. and at 8 p. m. the same day, were in an automobile accident, and on their way to the hospital.

Doctors Store Blood Plasma For Emergency

Program Prepares to Aid Victims of Disasters On Short Notice.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Large scale collection of blood plasma by the American Red Cross for the United States navy and army will be the proving ground for the development of a nation-wide network of hospital blood banks, Dr. Charles R. Drew, medical supervisor of the plasma division of the Blood Transfusion association, predicts. He says this program was instituted to acquire stores of dried and liquid plasma both for the armed forces and for use in disasters involving civilians. Plasma can be substituted for whole blood in transfusions for treatment of many cases of injury, shock and illness.

"In case of need, the program could be expanded rapidly to reach thousands of donors in major cities," Dr. Drew explains. "As the technique and facilities for blood and plasma collection improve, the use of plasma, or serum, undoubtedly will increase. Plasma banks and blood banks are being more and more widely used in hospitals throughout the country."

Stored in Philadelphia.

"At the present time, blood for the national defense plasma program is being collected only in New York City," Dr. Drew continued. "The blood is being sent to laboratories in Philadelphia for processing into dried plasma." Dried plasma is easier to store and transport than the liquid form. It is less susceptible to infection because the moisture necessary to most bacteria life has been withdrawn. Dried plasma is restored to liquid form before it is administered in transfusions. Both liquid and dried plasma may be stored for long periods of time, even several years. Neither form requires "typing" to an individual patient's requirements when drawn from a supply made up of plasma from many individuals.

The Presbyterian hospital blood bank is representative of modern blood plasma banks. The "vault" is a special Westinghouse refrigerator, developed by the Times Appliance company, to meet the association's requirements. "A constant evenly distributed temperature and absence of vibration is essential in the plasma technique," Dr. Drew said.

Maintain Even Temperature.

Special controls of the Presbyterian blood bank refrigerator maintain the temperature within one-tenth of one degree of 39.7 degrees Fahrenheit, the ideal cold point for blood and plasma storage.

The heart of the blood bank is the pooling room, a glassed-in cubicle in which the plasma is drawn off after the corpuscles have settled. The Presbyterian hospital pooling room is bathed in the bacteria-destroying rays of three Sterilamps. One Sterilamp casts a curtain of ultraviolet rays between technicians and containers and tubes with which they draw off and bottle the plasma.

Specifications of this refrigeration, Sterilamp and air conditioning equipment for blood banks, have been recommended to the National Research Council which is acting at the request of the navy, army and public health administration.

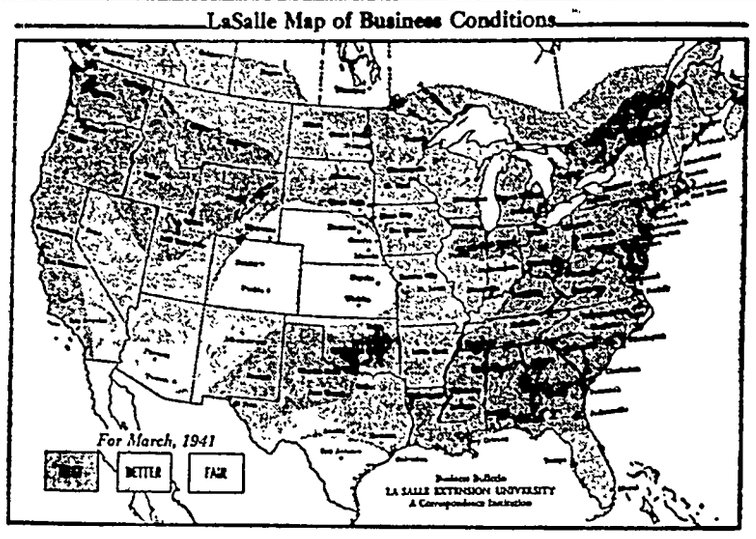
A trained technician is shown drawing plasma from a bottle of blood. Ultraviolet rays from three Sterilamps protect the blood plasma from bacteria in the air during the process.

Electrically Cleaned Air Helps Machine 'Breathe'

AKRON, OHIO —Enough electrically cleaned air to meet the normal breathing requirements of 50,000 persons is being supplied continuously to ventilate a new 75-ton electrical machine for the Ohio Edison company.

The air is cleaned to keep dust and dirt out of the windings of a new synchronous condenser which regulates voltage and current on power lines.

Consumer Income Continues Rise



By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

More people are at work in factories and are earning more money than at any time in this country's history. Incomes of consumers are steadily rising, and the larger amounts of money in circulation keep the products of industry and agriculture moving at a more rapid rate.

Retail trade in all parts of the country is from 12 to 14 per cent higher than it was last year at this time. Volume of sales is increasing in rural districts and small towns, as well as in the larger cities.

Prices of many farm products have continued to rise. Even those prices that have declined recently are, for the most part, higher than they were a year ago. Prospects are that the increased purchasing power of consumers will keep prices and cash farm income above the average of last year.

Many farm products are being used in increasing volume.

Production of milk and dairy products has made a new record and indications point toward a continued high level as long as consumer demand remains steady or increases. Farm prices of dairy products have been the highest in four years, and income from dairying is expected to be the largest in a decade. Prices for poultry and eggs are also higher this year than they were last year.

Exports of industrial products, especially war materials, are large, while those of agricultural products continue to be small. Unless conditions abroad change considerably these trends are likely to continue for some time. Larger domestic demand and the government farm program will do much, to keep up farm prices even though surpluses in many products are large.

Prospects for 1941 crops are good because precipitation in most parts of the country was above average during the winter. Exact estimates of the probable harvest cannot be made this early in the season, but the outlook now appears favorable. Farmers are planning to have about the same total acreage in cash and feed crops as they planted a year ago. Government payments are expected to be about the same in 1941 as they were last year. Good crops and rising prices will probably push farm income to the highest level in many years.

Parents, Educators Strive to Combat Comic Magazines

NEW YORK.—Color comic magazines which don't even try to be funny are becoming increasingly popular among children throughout the country. Conscientious parents and educators denounce them as an undesirable influence upon impressionable young minds.

In an effort to offset their popularity, a new publication has been started which supplants grotesque excitement with true adventure and exploits of superbeings with human bravery and daring.

The mushroom growth of color comics began about two years ago. Since that time more than 75 publications have entered the market to sell 10,000,000 copies every month.

Dime adventure stories condemned by many parents at the turn of the century were mild compared to the "thrillers" sold to children today. They offer fantastic excitement, lurid adventure and grotesque characters of tremendous strength.

Fear Influence of Comics.

Parents and educators are becoming increasingly concerned about the influence of these color magazines upon youngsters. They fear that these magazines—that is, the objectionable 70 per cent—will give the children a false and undesirable sense of values.

Theoretically the solution to the problem is to provide children with a substitute which will command their interest, yet possesses none of the qualities which make the picture magazines undesirable. Efforts of Parents' Magazine to provide such a substitute have reached fruition in TRUE COMICS.

Looks the Same.

Externally it looks just like any other comic magazine. It is of the same size, the same general appearance as the other magazines, with its 64 pages of brightly colored pictures. The subject matter, however, differs diametrically from its competitors, because it deals with current and past history.

Colorful pictures illustrate thrilling adventures and conquests of Simon Bolivar, South American Liberator, and the exploits of George Rogers Clark. More exciting and timely than all is the life of "World Hero Number One," Winston Churchill. Other pages illustrate important and interesting episodes in history.

To assure the magazine's appeal, a group of well-known boys and girls have been asked to serve as Junior Advisory Editors. Among those who have accepted the invitation are movie stars Mickey Rooney and Shirley Temple.

While many adults helplessly bemoan the fact that children read and are influenced by the comic books, Parents' Magazine makes a bold attempt to offer a partial solution to the problem. Interested persons from coast to coast are watching this new magazine, True Comics, to see if it will prove successful.

Woman 'Railroader' Marks Fifty Years Of Active Service

". . . I must make good . . . I must keep this job."

Fifty years have passed since a young girl, Katherine Loretta Connell, repeated these words to herself on the way to her first day of service in the employ of the Union Pacific railroad at Omaha, Neb. She has kept that pledge made to herself and now is believed to be the oldest woman employee in point of service on the railway's entire service.

Early this month she passed that fiftieth milestone and recalled some of her early impressions of railroad work in those days.

"It seems as though it was only yesterday when I went to work," she says.

Katherine L. Connell (left) as she appeared when she started work for the railroad 50 years ago, and (right) as she looks today.

In those days the company's headquarters in Omaha employed about 500 persons and in her tenure of service she has watched this number grow to nearly 2,000.

Especially does she remember her first salary of $35 a month as freight car mileage clerk, which was a "very comfortable" salary in those days, Miss Connell recalls. She has worked under seven immediate superior officers, her present position being in the company's auditor of equipment service accounts office.

Supervisory Positions.

She has held supervisory positions with the company since February 1, 1900, when she was appointed head clerk in the statistical bureau. For 24 years she was a head clerk, and since 1932 has been assistant bureau head.

Her life belongs to the romance that is railroading, for her father too, was an employee of the Union Pacific. He died shortly after her birth, of a cold, contracted on the job.

It was after this that a company official promised her widowed mother that as her children grew up they would be given work, if they desired, with the railroad. Years later the official kept his promise and Katherine went to work.

Her mother dying 16 years ago, and a brother Pat more recently, Miss Connell has been left without kin except for two nephews. But she finds comfort and great companionship both in her work and in a wide acquaintanceship of friends. She is active in several Omaha business and social organizations.

Bloodstone's 'Powers' Considered Miraculous

NEW YORK. — Ancient legends gave the wearer of the birth gem for March, the bloodstone or jasper, a wide choice of miraculous powers, ranging from calming the wrath of dictators to stopping a nosebleed, according to Natural History magazine.

Among alleged qualities of the bloodstone is that its owner will be believed, whatever he may say.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma—

Everything is about the same here in camp, especially the weather which has been of two kinds all winter bad and worser and anybody who gets drafted this spring instead of in midwinter like I did is getting a great brake. My feet have taken so much abuse they are unconscious, and don't beleve that stuff about this being a machine war as I have never seen so much walking done in peace or war. From my experience I think I have been drafted in a bunions derby.

* * *

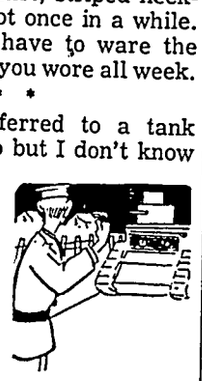
Nothing makes the boys so sore up hear as when they get a paper and read about all them strikes and walkouts around the country. Every time I here about those guys with nice warm jobs who go home every night to home-cooked chow and yet squawk about the hours and the pay it gives me a pain you know where. Beleve me if I was out of the army and had a job where I could quit every night and not saloot nobody I would mow down anybody who tried to sell me the idea I was not getting a square dele.

* * *

Well, I am getting used to spending all my time in a uniform now but it is no cinch after being used to having three soots in different colors, one with patched pockets and one with cuffs on the pants all my life. Gee, ma, it would feel swell to get into a white shirt, striped necktie and Sunday soot once in a while. In the army you have to ware the same soot Sunday you wore all week.

* * *

I can be transferred to a tank corpse if I want to but I don't know whether I would like it much. The work looks too confining and while I would like to get into a serviss that would be easier on my feet a tank aint my idea of no pleasure kar. A friend of mine was in the tanks and he says it is like going to war in a safe. A tank is like a taxi with no springs and with all the upholstering done by a scrap iron man. I guess I would be safer from stray bullets in a tank but I do not think I will sign up unless I thumb a ride and see for myself how it is. Before a soldier joins a tank corpse the least the government should do is give him a demonstrayshun.



* * *

How is the defense program coming on back home? I see where some Washington witnesses say the country is short of planes, guns, tanks and everything. As the old gag goes, this is a fine time to tell me, heh, ma?

* * *

I wish the gevernment wood turn the whole thing over to Henry Ford. He is the father of quantity produckshun and the mother too, I guess. All you have to give him is a monkey rench a few nuts and a general idea what the war needs and he will turn it out so fast that Uncle Sam will not only have enough planes, tanks and guns for 1941 and 1942 but will be giving previews of the 1943 moddells.

* * *

Do not worry about me as my flew is a little better and I am getting used to chilblains. After all I was lucky not to get send with them boys to New Fundlind.

Love,
Oscar.

DOLLAR-YEAR-TROUBLE

WASHINGTON. — Defense chiefs aren't advertising it, but they are quietly trying to ward off a blow-up over the host of dollar-a-year men now working for the government.

Some of the One Dollar men are conscientious and sincere public servants. Others are less scrupulous. While representing the government they have sold goods to the government, exerted inside pressure in favor of their industries, represented clients before government agencies.

All this has been no secret on Capitol Hill, where the steadily growing corps of One Dollar moguls has been eyed with increasing resentment. Recently this undercover indignation took form in a bill by Sen. Kenneth McKellar, veteran Tennessean, to ban such business men from government service and to probe their operations.

McKellar's plan is to await enactment of the lend-lease bill before pushing his measure, but meanwhile defense chiefs, seeing the handwriting on the wall, have quietly started cleaning up the situation themselves.

This has been done in a series of apparently unrelated moves. Under cover of transferring the original defense organization to the new office of production management, several One Dollar men have been eased home with the high-sounding, face-saving title of "Advisory Consultant" pinned to their coat-tails. Others have been shifted to jobs not directly connected with their own industries.

Also, several non-commercial experts have been brought in to replace One Dollar men in important sections of the OPM. And more house-cleaning is still to come.

Note—Among non-commercial experts who have been brought into the OPM are Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college; Dexter S. Kimball, former dean of Cornell university engineering school; William E. Wickenden, president of Case School of Applied Science; Dr. W. S. A. Pott, president of Elmira college; and Dr. S. S. Stratton, Harvard professor of economics.

MR. SMITH GOES TO LATIN-AMERICA

It looks as if Senator Barkley was right when he denounced the box office smash movie, "Mr. Smith Comes to Washington." That film is now causing all kinds of headaches for the U. S. A. in South America, where it is used by the Nazis as one of their deadliest propaganda weapons.

John Hay ("Jock") Whitney has just made this report to the Rockefeller branch of the national defense commission. The story of a grafting senate ganging up on a young reformer, Whitney says, is being circulated through Latin America as an illustration of U. S. government graft.

Whitney has been pressuring Hollywood mogules to halt further foreign distribution of the film.

Another big problem for Whitney is newsreels. Just how damaging a newsreel can be to the "Good Neighbor" policy if even a slight detail of sequence is overlooked, was illustrated in a recent report to the state department by Norman Armour, ambassador to Argentina.

In a Buenos Aires theater one night, Armour was witnessing American newsreel shots of an air raid on Great Britain. Immediately following the raid pictures a bathing beauty contest in California was flashed on the screen.

"The letdown of the audience was terrific," Armour reported, pointing out that the newsreel made it appear that United States had its mind on bathing beaut[illegible]stead of defense.

THE TA[illegible] BROTHERS

William Howard Taft's boys, Bob and Charley, are at odds again, Charley having been in Washington more than a week in his new job before he got together with Bob.

Reason is the job Charley has taken from the hands of Roosevelt. It sounds harmless enough—"Assistant Co-ordinator of Recreational Activities for Defense"—but it's a sufficient tie-up with the administration foreign policy to leave anti-interventionist Bob a bit chilly.

What hurt more, perhaps, was that Charley, who has long quarreled with his brother over domestic policies, accepted the job just the week before the historic lease-lend debate opened in the senate. Bob knew where brother Charley stood long before, namely with the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. But this brought the split into the public gaze.

"You don't have to agree with your brother all the time, do you?" is Bob's shrugging comment.

ankee Captures Derna

N General Wavell of the itish army marched along st of northern Africa in his gn against Il Duce's Italians, following in the footsteps of a nnecticut Yankee who was the same march 136 years illiam Eaton was his name though his heroic exploit has ll-but-forgotten by his fellow-ans, Wavell's capture of the f Derna has brought Eaton's into prominence again.

04 Eaton went to Tripoli as merican naval agent to the y states. For years the Bar-irates had been preying upon mmerce of Europe and when can shipping became world-the United States as well as seagoing nations were forced tribute to the pirates. Finally

t the Tripolitan ruler did not the agreement and was soon nding tribute again. When his nd was refused, he declared and American warships block-the harbor of Tripoli. The a, Jussuf Caramilli, had gained hrone by deposing his brother, et. When Eaton learned that et had taken refuge in Egypt, ought him out there and, with sanction of the American gov-nent, offered to help him re-his throne.

the early part of 1805 Eaton mbled a force of about 400 men lexandria, Egypt. It included six rican marines and a sergeant the warship Argus; Lieut. P. O'Bannon, Midshipman P. P. , a troop of Arab horsemen by two sheiks, Pasha Hamet's onal escort of 90 men; 38 Greek cenaries with their two officers; Ethiopian cannoneers with one s cannon and an Englishman ed Farquhard who apparently t along just for the fun of being n a good scrap.

aton arranged for the co-opera-of the American naval squad-in the Mediterranean and on rch 8, 1805, with his motley y set out on the 600-mile march oss the Libyan desert towards me (as the name was then led). Almost from the start Ea-had trouble with Hamet and n the pasha wasn't threatening quit the expedition, the Arab ks were threatening to mutiny. ng both threats and bribery, Ea-managed to keep his force to-her and after a weary journey of weeks he arrived on April 15 he Bay of Bomba, into which the American warships, Argus and rnet, commanded by Isaac Hull, ed the next day.

fter a week's rest there, the ex-ition set out for Derne and on il 26 arrived before that forti-d town which was garrisoned with men. Eaton sent an ultimatum the governor of Derne to sur-der and received the reply of y head or yours!" The next day Argus, the Hornet and the Nauti-arrived in the harbor of Derne d under cover of a heavy bom-rdment landed a force of marines. en Eaton organized a charge of forces and to the credit of the rcenaries it must be said that y fought bravely beside the ericans and swept through the eaches made in the walls of the rn by the warships. Eaton was ghtly wounded in the battle but by e in the afternoon the Stars and ripes floated over Derne—the first me they had ever been raised over fortress on that side of the At-ntic.

A Foe of Appeasement.

Eaton was born in Connecticut in 64. At the age of 16 he enlisted the Continental army and served til it was disbanded in 1783. After aduating from Dartmouth, he was ade clerk of the house of dele-tes and served there until 1797 hen he was appointed consul at Tu-s. His experience with the bey of unis soon convinced him that ly armed force could make the rbary pirates respect American ht. This belief was responsible the expedition against Derne.

Plaids Bold, Colorful, Striking In Spring Coats, Capes, Jackets

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL signs point to a riot of handsome plaids in the spring style parade. When you choose your plaid for a new coat, cape, jacket, dress or separate skirt, fashion asks you to throw all caution to the wind. New plaids are big and bold, brazen and color-mad, for fashion is in a mood for drama in plaids this spring.

However, there is another side to the plaid story which has to do with conservative plaids that are in pastel colors so subtle, so winsome, that you will find yourself yielding to their enchantment at very first glance. Which all goes to show in the new spring collections that there's a plaid for every time, place and occasion and for every individuality.

Notwithstanding the color furore that is going on, there is much enthusiasm for black and white wool plaids. They are very new and very good-looking and have a unique style all their own.

The plaid costumes pictured typify the new trends. These stunning models were selected from among hundreds at a recent preview dramatically presented in a pageantry of fashion by the Style Creators of Chicago, an event that illustrated new achievement, new triumphs for American designers. Conveying the message that plaids are stylish this season, we illustrate three distinct types herewith—the long coat, the dramatic cape of which you will see an endless procession this spring, and the ever-favorite softly tailored long jacket.

The cape vogue is taking the world of fashion by storm. The wearing of a plaid cape over a smartly tailored jacket suit is very practical to wear during the fickle weather of early spring days. As an ideal ensemble for later on, you will be topping your crepe and print frocks with a cape in one of the pretty springtime colors. Note the smartly caped lady of fashion in the picture, who wears over a frock of gold hued crepe a full length wool plaid cape, straight lined according to latest silhouette trends.

One of the new and very smart gestures of fashion is to top your tailored suit with a coat of wool plaid. Provided with such a chic outfit as the sailor-hatted young modern in the picture is wearing, you will be ready to greet spring in fitting regalia. Furthermore, if you own a sleek tailored plaid surcoat, smartly straightlined and pocketed as the one worn by the model illustrated, it will prove a perfect treasure later on as a wrap to wear over various prints or plain frocks.

Note the good-looking plaid-jacket costume centered in the group. Here you see a very advance model in the new longer length. The bias cut of the plaid adds to its charm. You will love the hazy green gold and gray tones in this plaid. Worn with a sheer dress that features an all-around pleated skirt, this jacket will take you places in high style.

More plaid! Here's the latest—hat and enormous underarm bag of vivid plaid to add color glory to your new ensemble.

All-In-One Sleeves

There are important changes going on in sleeve styling. The new movement toward an all-in-one sleeve and bodice or sleeve and yoke is very obvious this season. You see it in the Chinese influence this season and in smart dolman sleeves. In this picture, the sleeve extends seamless at shoulders from the yoke section. The Russian-styled blouse underneath is of white linen, and the skirt repeats the slight flare of its own peplum.

Fashions Reveal Hawaii Influence

New fashion trends used to come 3,000 miles east from Paris. This season important fashion influence comes to us 6,000 miles out of the west. At the moment it is Hawaii that is interesting front-page fashion and social news.

Just as the Rhumba and the Conga have swept America, so will the Hula, the native sacred Hawaiian dance, one of the most beautiful dances in the world when it is danced and interpreted correctly, so declares Dr. Gladys, just returned from a year's research in Hawaii.

In their current resort collections the best stores throughout the country are making a feature of Hawaiian-inspired fashions. Dresses of Hawaiian prints by Tina Leser, well-known designer versed in Hawaii lore, are especially a forerunner of costumes that will take lead in the spring style parade. The collection includes such interesting themes as a day dress of a flowery new lei print, also a charming Lauai fern print is shown. Unique and very attractive are undersea fish patterns, a novel pineapple print, also fluted clam-shell motifs and the sensational Sarongs are greatly admired.

Tiny Bows Decorate M'Lady's Spring Shoes

There is no type shoe so universally flattering to the foot than a neat-fitting shapely pump. This year pumps are decorated with bows of every description. You can tune your pump to almost any occasion via its bow.

For the tailored street look, the bow is of patent or the leather that fashions the shoe. Ribbon grosgrain bows are on the dressier types of shoes. Bows of perforated leather are very decorative. For dressiest wear are bows which are made of sequin or rhinestones.

Poultry House Construction

Specific rules for poultry house construction, which will be applicable to all parts of the country, are of course impossible to lay down, but there are, nevertheless, certain important facts which must be kept in mind by all poultrymen, wherever they may be located. One of these facts is that the house must be built for the comfort of chicks and laying hens; a second fact is that the house must be built for soundness and durability, yet with due regard to economy; and a third fact to be kept in mind is that the poultry house must be conveniently located and easy to take care of. Unless the houses are comfortable, chicks will not grow well nor will the hens lay well.

SIZE OF BUILDING

The size of the building will of course depend upon the size of the flock. If, for example, yours is just a back-yard flock, a house 12 to 16 feet deep will serve; it should be high enough so that a worker can stand up in it with comfort. A floor space of 2½ to 4½ square feet of space should be allowed for each fowl; with a small flock it is good practice to allow 3½ square feet of space for leghorns and 4 square feet for the general purpose breeds; if flocks are large, this space may be somewhat less.

FFNCING THE FLOCK

Since many a neighborhood feud has had its beginning in the nuisance of straying poultry, it is important to fence the flock effectively. The light breeds fly easily and to confine them it is necessary to put up a fence from six to seven feet high. For the general purpose and meat breeds, a fence five to six feet high is sufficient. For building the fence, use wooden posts, set from 8 to 10 feet apart. Corner posts should be about eight inches in diameter and set four feet in the ground; line posts should be four or five inches in diameter and set three feet deep. The posts will last longer if the ends that go below the ground are creosoted. For wire, chicken netting of the hexagonal type is satisfactory.

FLOORS

Concrete floors are best for all permanent or stationary houses. Such floors are rodent-proof, sanitary, and easy to clean, but they will be cold if they are laid directly on the ground. They should be made by putting down a firmly packed foundation of cinders or gravel about six inches deep and then laying on it three to four inches of concrete. It is advisable to lay tarred building paper—lapped and cemented at the seams—between the foundation and the concrete. This precaution will prevent moisture coming in from the earth and making the floors damp.

If lumber is used for the floors, they should be from 1½ to 2 feet above the ground. If they are too close to the ground, they become rat harbors and are, moreover, liable to rot. In mild climates, one thickness of matched flooring is sufficient; in colder climates, two floors should be laid, the lower one laid diagonally and a thickness of building paper placed between the two floor layers. The space below the floors should be boarded up to prevent draughts.

WALL AND ROOFING MATERIAL

Matched lumber, seven-eighths of an inch thick, placed vertically, makes a satisfactory wall. In very cold climates it is customary to make a wall of two thicknesses of boards, with building paper between; these two thicknesses will consist of siding laid over sheathing. An essential point is to have a rear wall which is tight near the roosts to prevent draughts. Prepared roofing, laid on wide matched sheathing is the material generally favored for roosts.

PAINTING AND WHITEWASHING

For the sake of durability and appearance, poultry buildings should be painted or whitewashed. Before painting, see that all surfaces are clean and dry. Use a priming coat—about equal parts of paint and linseed oil—and cover with one or more coats of paint. Whitewash is cheap and may be applied inside and out. It is made by slaking lime in water and thinning to the consistency of paint. Powdered whitewash, ready for mixing with water, may be purchased on the market.

For complete information on poultry houses and fixtures, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for a copy of Farmers' Bulletin No. 1554.

BURYING BEETLES

There is a certain beetle known to science which is called the burying beetle. This curious insect, when he finds a dead mouse or a dead bird, will dig beneath it until it settles down into the ground. He then covers it. He does not do this, however, for any purposes of sanitation. When he has buried the body, the female beetle digs down, deposits her eggs in it, and, when the larvae hatch they feed upon the food thus provided. The young are thus assured an ample food supply.

Ink Spots And Spatters

By Jergie

The indirect effects of the great war in Europe and Africa are being felt in every nook and corner of our own country. With the building of a vast army and navy for own defense, thousands of young men are answering the call to the colors. Right here in our own community a dozen or more young men are now in the service . . . another half-dozen will leave for army camps this week, more will leave in the near future to enlist in some branch of the defense program. We are beginning to realize the seriousness of the situation as it is brought to our own community with the going away of our finest young men.

Spring definitely is not yet here . . . though the calendar says that Saturday is the first day of spring. March has certainly been liberal in giving us a variety of weather. Warm, balmy weather one day, sub-zero weather and blizzards the next day. Those who like a variety should spend a month in Iowa during March.

The anuual town election will be held here Monday, March 31st. That in itself may not seem very important to the average citizen. However, they should stop and realize that this is a right that is denied nearly everyone in Europe today. We have the right to speak by the use of the ballot in this country and it is the duty of every citizen to use that right. Every voter in Klemme should go to the polls and cast a vote for the candidate of their choice.

Our bouquet this week goes to Mr. and Mrs. Taalkeus Blank, who celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary Sunday. Very few people are granted that great honor of treading down the street of time together for that vast number of years. The Blanks have contributed much to the world They raised a fine family of boys and girls who have found places of usefullness in the world, and Mr. and Mrs. Blank have contributed much to the building of this community which they chose many years ago as their home. Congratulations.

This writer has been bothered with hot and cold flashes, dizziness, floating spots before the eyes, laziness and other symptons which analized all point to a bad case of spring fever! Chances are we will remain in that state of affairs until the ice goes out and the authorities that be allow us to once again slip into boots or waders and head for the lake and stream, there to whip a nibble rod and cast an alluring feathered hook near a weed bed, a rock or immersed log with the expectation of coaxing a bass out from his sheltered home. Yeah, we mean we want to go fishing again!

And the worst story of the week has to do with the green girl who started to work in a city office. She resigned because the boss wanted to see her pink slips!

There seems to be a lot of hullabaloo about a German submarine supposed to be lurking in Atlantic waters off the coast of the United States. Well just so the thing stays out in the ocean. It would sure ruin a lot of good fishing if it started up the Mississippi river!

Spring fever is when you get so lazy that you won't even glance up when a pretty blonde crosses the street on a windy day!

BATTLESHIPS

The United States battle fleet will be strengthened very shortly by the addition of the new 35,000-ton battleships Washington and North Carolina.

The North Carolina will be commisioned in April and the Washington in May. Both carry nine 16-inch guns, mounted three to a turret and have heavy batteries of anti-aircraft and secondary broadside guns.

It is interesting that these ships will be in service within less than three years from the day their keels were laid. Usually, it requires four years to construct a battleship.

In addition to these ships the Navy will be strengthened by the addition of four other 35,000-ton battleships in 1942. Afterwards will come the 45,000-ton ships and then those that are to be even larger.

Al Pfander, Page county district court clerk accepted 150 pennies as payment of a marriage license, and when he found a number of "Indian head" coppers among them, he exchanged them for Lincoln pennies and kept the older coins for himself.

"TIRED OF GOING TO SCHOOL"

A fifteen-year-old Mississippi school boy confesses that he set fire to a high school building because he was "tired of going to school."

Most students, we suspect, get tired of going to school but a few them express their aversion by trying to burn down the building although many of them enjoy a secret hope that a sudden blaze will cause a general holiday.

The incident might correct the idea that some parents have that modern schooling is "tame" and that about all the boys and girls learn is how to date, ride in automobiles, play and join societies.

The schoolboy who staged a one-man crime wave The San Francisco police thought they were up against a gang of hard boiled and experienced thugs--until they had caught up 16-year-old Robert Richards His room was filled with the loot he had stolen. Read about the tricks of this youthful criminal in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Chicago Herald-American Parts have been given out for two of the senior class plays, "Skidding" and "The Neighbors". "The Neighbors ' will be given with another play on Class Day. Practice will start next week.

SPORTS

The first two games of the high school inter-class tournament were played Monday afternoon.

The seniors were defeated by juniors 48 to 28. Allen Barz was not able play for the seniors.

The sophomores triumphed over the freshmen 35 to 17

There are two remaining games left. The juniors will play the sophomores for the championship.

The seniors will play the freshman for the consolidation title.

SPORT'S NONSENSE

BETTY ETCHEN is sorry that basketball season is over because she can't admire Allen Barz when he plays.

We have a modern Tyrone Power on the basketball team. A boy overheard some girls say that when we played in the sectional tournament I wonder if it could B. G ? Could be!

The sophomores have been studying the construction of poems. We tried writing some.

In world history we had a test over the chapter we have just completed We all seemed to get a headache suddenly.

Some time ago we thought a certain sophomore boy (E. J.) would be flashing a junior class pin. Since we have not seen it, we have been wondering where he keeps it.

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Friday we took self-testing drill No. 11 and 12. The eighth grade had a score of 9. This is the best average score they have earned this year The seventh grade had a score of 7.

Many have been absent this week because of illness.

We are planning a party for Tuesday night.

"Junior Clipper" is the name we chose for our paper.

Ewald, Edward Barz, Robert Tiggerman and Ruth received 100 percent in spelling.

GRADES 5 & 6

Each grade had an arithmetic self-testing drill this week. The fifth graders had a class rating of seven. The sixth graders had a rating of nine which is the highest rating they have had. Roger Ridder got a star rating.

A representative for the World Book Encyclopedia came into our room Thursday. He organized a "Look It Up" Club. He gave us each a pin to wear and a booklet to fill out.

Several people have been absent with the flu this week.

In art classes we made designs using St. Patrick Day motifs.

Perfect spelling scores were earned by Edward, Irene, Rose, Darwin, Ruth Smith, Helen, Velma, Donald, Harold, Willis, Dean, Peggy, Roger R., Phyllis, Elizabeth, Roger B., Carol and Mary Lou.

GRADES 3 & 4

In third grade arithmetic we learned to measure with the ruler and yardstick. Fourth grade arithmetic studied about dry and liquid measures.

Our health classes are studying about diseases. We wrote a letter to our mothers telling her what we had learned about the common cold. Then we got a sample box of cough drops.

We are members of the "Look It Up" cub. We have a pin to wear. We look up the things we do not know in our reference books.

The five best spellers in grade four were: Isabelle, Iris, Marjory, Larry and Maurice. In third grade the best spellers were: Luella, Phyllis S., Merlin, Willis and Richard.

In our weekly spelling test the following had 100 percent: Luella, Dorance, Willis, Isabelle, Marjory and Norma.

KINDERGARTEN, GRADES 1 & 2

LuVern's brother, Lyle, visited school Thursday afternoon.

The following second graders were entered in the spelling contest Friday afternoon: Peter Johnson, Harley Barz, JoAnn Carpenter, Sondra Bridges, and Jacqalea Steffen.

We have had several absent this week because of "flu".

We have been making puppet heads. We shall paint them and make clothes for them.

The second graders have completed their "Elson-Gray Basic Reader." They are now reading "Friendly Village." They have also started their "Health Stories" book.

CONFIDENCE INCREASING

Confidence begins to show itself in responsible places in Washington, we are advised by some writers in a position to know.

The production of airplanes in this country is greatly encouraging. Last week Secretary of War Stimson predicted that the nation will soon see an enormous increase in airplane output. Secretary of the Navy Knox revealed that plane deliveries to the Navy are ahead of schedule.

The impression begins to grow that American aircraft are about equal to any planes that are to be found in the world. The new plants will soon begin to turn them out in record numbers. Many of them will wing across the Atlantic to England, where they will help overcome the Nazi aerial superiority.

We are also advised that, while recognizing the serious threats that still surround the British, there is an undercover optimism that believes the Nazis will certainly lose the war. Various factors tend to strengthen this feeling based essentially upon the confidence that Hitler cannot successfully invade England and that, unless he can, he is beaten.

Adventures in Cooking

Everyone likes to adventure in cooking and that's just the opportunity that comes to each homemaker when she tries out a new recipe. The best part of the adventure, however, comes about when the recipe makes the man of the family look up and with both pride and appreciation in his voice pronounces the whole meal a tremendous success.

The 10c recipe book, "Feeding Father," contains a large number of brand new recipes, each so different that making them up is an adventure—so good that eating them entirely merits and begets the gratification of the man of the family. Send today—this offer may be eliminated at any time. To get your copy, send 10 cents in coin to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. Ask for the cook book, "Feeding Father."

Make ½ pound of pork sausage up into flat sausage cakes. Place one sausage cake on each sweet potato slice and top with a second sweet potato slice. Fasten with a toothpick. Brush with melted butter and salt lightly. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately ½ hour.

Porcupine Sausage Balls.

2 tablespoons butter
1 small onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
2½ cups canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon sugar
1 pound bulk pork sausage
¾ cup uncooked rice

Melt butter in frying pan and brown onion in it. Add chopped green pepper, tomatoes, sugar, and salt. Cook until green pepper is tender. Make the sausage into small balls and roll in the uncooked rice. Place in greased baking casserole and pour the tomato mixture over the sausage balls. Cover baking dish and bake 1½ hours in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Sausages in Pastry Blankets.
(8 sausage rolls)

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking powder
⅓ cup shortening
3 tablespoons cold water (approximately)
8 pork link sausages

Sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder. Blend in the shortening. Then add just enough water to form a dough, mixing lightly. Roll out and cut into 8 oblong pieces, each sufficiently large to wrap around one link sausage. Place individual sausages (well pricked) on individual pieces of pastry; fold ends over and roll up. Place, folded side down, on a baking sheet. Prick crust with a fork. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for about 30 minutes. Serve very hot.

Sausage Stuffed Tomatoes.
(Serves 8)

8 large firm tomatoes (uncooked)
1 pound country style pork sausage
½ cup soft bread crumbs (buttered)

Remove stem end of tomatoes. Scoop out the center and sprinkle lightly with salt. Form sausage into eight balls and place one ball in each tomato. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Place tomatoes in a shallow baking pan, bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes (approximately).

Ham Stuffed Baked Apples.
(Serves 6)

6 large tart apples
1½ cups baked ham (cut in small pieces)
1 teaspoon whole cloves
2 tablespoons butter

Cut a ¼ inch slice from stem end of each apple and remove core carefully. Scoop out, reserve apple pulp, and leave apple shell about ⅓ inch thick. Combine ham and apple pulp (cut fine) and fill the apple shells. Top each shell with a clove and dot with butter. Place in a baking pan, add ¼ inch water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about one hour.

Notes of a New Yorker:

Newspapermen know how United Press feels about the following fact . . . It reminds its staffers that news may break any place—and it warns them not to be indifferent to any locale for scoops . . . It stems from 1917, when the late Bob Bender (who became UP's vice president) was in the White House washroom, and in came Joe Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson . . . Tumulty was so upset he couldn't steady himself, which made Bender nervous . . "What the devil's the matter with you, anyway?" shouted the newspaperman.

"Y-y-y-you'd b-b-b-be n-n-n-nervous, too," chattered Tumulty, "if you h-h-h-had j-j-j-just seen a Declaration of War!"

Bender, still disarranged, sped out of the place and down to the UP offices with the notable scoop.

There is danger that Hitler can take America, but there is more danger in those so-called Americans who would give it to him.

The newspapers, as you probably have heard, always write the obituaries of well-known citizens long before they die and then file them away until they are summoned to the Pearly Gates. One New York newspaper has this opening line on Father Divine, the colored question mark, to wit: "Father Divine, the man who claimed he would live forever, didn't."

One of Broadway's ham actors was recently booked into one of those intimate night clubs . . . On his opening night he warned the manager that he needed absolute quiet while he performed . . . The manager complied by instructing his staff to obey this request . . . After the first performance the manager went backstage to inquire if everything was okay.

"No," shouted the ham, "all through my act there was a terrific disturbance. It went puck brrrrrrr thwacckk! Have that stopped!"

"Look," squelched the manager, "when that puck brrrrrrr thwacckk stops—you will be fired. That's the cash register!"

Cholly Adler, the Tavern-keeper, relays the one about the day Goering stormed into an aircraft factory, ordered a dozen planes, and demanded they be ready in three days . . . "That is impossible!" shrieked the foreman . . . "It must be so," barked Goering, and strode away . . . Nazi efficiency came crashing through, and three days later, when a crew arrived at the factory, the planes were ready as ordered . . . The pilots got in and soared over the channel to bomb the British . . . Reaching London, the first pilot pulled his bomb release—and out dropped four of the factory's night shift!

Joseph Clark Baldwin, who has been mentioned for the vacancy caused by the passing of Kenneth Simpson, has a four-year-old unmarried son who attends private school. The other day he was asked to recite the Pledge of Allegiance . . . All the political talk he heard at home apparently confused him. He convulsed his teacher by starting: "I pledge allegiance to the flag and to the Republicans for which it stands!"

Jimmy Dorsey tells about the Hollywood producer who was trying to theft a big box-office personality from a rival studio. He dangled a contract in front of the actor and asked: "Well, is it Yes?" The actor shook his head . . . "Then," persisted the producer, "is it No?" . . . The actor still shook his head. "Well," plaintively continued the producer, "at least won't you reconsider and give me a definite maybe?"

A delegation of Japanese recently visited the Curtiss-Wright aviation plant in Paterson, N. J. . . . An inspection tour, it was called . . . They were loaded with cameras, of course . . . Guided and supervised by courteous personnel, they were allowed to snap pictures of certain parts and motors to their hearts' content . . . Now don't get excited—it was all right . . . This was the catch . . . Before leaving the plant all had to pass through a tiny room in single file . . . In that room, unknown to them, was a battery of X-ray machines, bombarding away . . . Those rays, in case you didden know, rendered useless the films the Japanazis had exposed . . . None of the pictures "turned out," and no relations or niceties were strained.

Broadway Alien: When he shakes your hand he wants to know what's in your heart, not up your sleeve . . . He continues tipping his hat to ladies long after he's lost his curly strands . . . When he borrows a dollar, he has the headache, not the lender . . . If he trips at your house, he consults his doctor, not his lawyer . . . He always has a reason for what he does—not an alibi . . . The only thing he ever got on the cuff was a spot of gravy . . . He thinks his father was a lucky guy in meeting his mother.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

JESUS CONDEMNED AND CRUCIFIED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:13-25, 32-34a.
GOLDEN TEXT—What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?—Matthew 27:22.

Two nights stand out in the story of the life of Christ, and therefore in the history of the world. The first was His first night on earth—that "silent night, holy night" of which we sing at Christmas, when He was born as the babe of Bethlehem. The other was His last night on earth. Except for the precious hour of fellowship in the upper room and His communion with the Father in the agony of Gethsemane, it was a night of darkness, denial, and betrayal.

There were six trials—or mock trials—of Jesus, three religious ones before Annas, then Caiaphas, and then again before the Sanhedrin; three political trials, before Pilate, then Herod, and Pilate again. At the close of this last trial before Pilate Jesus stands

I. Cleared by the Evidence (vv. 13-17).

At the first trial before him Pilate had declared on the basis of his examination that Jesus was "Not guilty" (v. 4). Herod, to whom He had been sent, had only played with Him (vv. 8-11). What a travesty! Now Pilate again presents Him to the people as having "no fault." It is a striking truth that no man of any age has ever been able honestly to point to any fault in the life or character of Jesus Christ. Think that over—unbeliever!

Now came Pilate's first step in the wrong direction. An accused man without guilt should be declared innocent and released. But Pilate feared the Jews who had already made trouble for him with Caesar. So he compromised and said he would chastise Jesus before releasing Him. John Morely was right when he said, "Under some circumstances compromise is the most immoral word in the English language." It gained Pilate nothing; in fact, it led to his next step downward.

II. Condemned Through Cowardice (vv. 18-25).

To avoid a disturbance and to keep the leaders from complaining to Caesar, Pilate gave Jesus into their hands with the "sentence that it should be as they required" (v. 24) when they cried "Crucify Him!"

Pilate was in a difficult place, but that does not excuse him. It is in the hard and trying place that a man should stand for the right, come what may. Too many of those who profess to follow Christ are afraid to stand up for Him in the hour when men deny Him. Some unbelievers are fearful about declaring their allegiance to Him, because they fear the opposition of men.

Where is our courage, our manliness? Have we lost the moral stamina of our pioneer forefathers, the religious conviction of our Christian fathers and mothers? Pilate was a coward, and we are ashamed of him. Let us not be cowardly and make Christ ashamed of us (read Matt. 10:32, 33).

III. Crucified with Malefactors (vv. 32-34a).

The details of and circumstances surrounding the crucifixion are of deep interest to every Christian. We stand with Luther and weep as we see Christ's unspeakable agony, not only of body but of spirit, and we cry as did Luther, "For me, for me!" How can any believer contemplate the cross and withhold self, substance, or service from Christ?

Equally earnest and heart-searching is the message of the cross to the unbeliever. He knows he is a sinner (Rom. 3:23), he knows that "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23), and he knows that "neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). Here at the cross he meets that one "who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed" (I Pet. 2:24).

There were two malefactors who were crucified with Him (v. 32), and one railed at Him. The other said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom"; and Jesus said to him, "Today thou shalt be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:39-43). Unbeliever, will you not just now take the eternal life which Jesus died to make possible for you?

Loving His enemies to the last, our Lord prayed for the forgiveness of those who thus despitefully used Him. What matchless grace! One wonders how many of them by repentance for their deeds made it possible for that prayer to be answered. That door of redemption stands open today for every one who up to now has crucified the Son of God afresh (Heb. 6:6) by sin and unbelief.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

RIGHT now's the time to get into a gay new print, or a suave black frock in flat crepe or thin wool, or a bright-colored spun rayon. Something slick and young and decidedly new-looking, that will be as smart this spring, for coatless days, as it is right now under your coat. Here's a perfect love of an afternoon frock—not too dressy for general wear—that will accent the curves and belittle the waistline of practically any figure.

This design (8867) is one of those gracefully simple basics that you'll want to make up in more than one version. The deep V of the neckline is a perfect background for jewels or a cluster of flowers, so that you can vary it endlessly with different accessories. Detailed sew chart included.

Pattern No 8867 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material without nap. Mail your order today to:

Maryland Short-Landed

If the early settlers of Maryland had possessed better geographic knowledge and claimed all the land granted to Lord Baltimore by the king of England in 1632, the state would be nearly 17,000 square miles in area, according to Collier's. Instead it has only 10,000 square miles, having lost the 7,000 miles, which are now worth about $12,000,000,000, to Delaware, Pennsylvania and what is now northern West Virginia.

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

Dramatic Rug Test Being Conducted By Wellemeyer Store

FAMOUS MASLAND ARGONNE RUG TO REMAIN ON SIDEWALK IN FRONT OF THIS STORE 15 DAYS

An Estimated 7,500 People Will Walk On It

If you passd our store today you doubtless walked over a beautiful rug on the sidewalk in front of the store and probably wondered what it was doing there. Not to keep you in suspense, we'll tell you. The rug is being tested for wearing quality and will remain on the sidewalk for another 10 days.

The rug we are testing in this drastic manner is the famous Argonne manufactured by the well-known firm of C. H. Masland & Sons. We have been carrying this particular make of rug for years and have long endorsed it as an unusually long-wearing rug. The fact is that the Argonne Rug is guaranteed for three years, whereas many rugs costing much more are not guaranteed at all. So outstanding are the Argonne's wearing qualities that we have been recommending it to mothers of young children, especially as "The Rug Children Won't Wear Out."

You know how it is with selling, however. We could tell a woman a dozen times that her children won't wear out an Argonne Rug but still she might not be convinced. So we have simply put into practice the familiar adage, 'Seeing is Believing'.

We are leaving the rug on the sidewalk in front of our store for 15 days. We figure that the rug will be walked over at least seven thousand times during that period. If the Weather Man is true to form he will do his worst to try to dull the colors and injure the fabrics. The sun will beat down on the rug, the wind will blow dirt over it, rain will probably fall on it and we hope that it will be pelted with hail and buried in snow for we want this test to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Masland Argonne really is what we claim it to be-- "The Rug Children Won't Wear Out."

"To make the demonstration as convincing as possible, we will take the rug up at the end of the test period, have one-half dry-cleaned by the Marshall & Swift Cleaners, and exhibit it in our window and later in our rug department to show how little it has been affected by the elements and by people walking over it."

"We feel sure that everyone who sees the Argonne Rug on the sidewalk during the test and afterwards cannot but be convinced that it is a rug that 'children won't wear out.'"

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs are now located at Tucson, Arizona, where they will vacation for a few weeks and will make drives from there to interesting places. The Times received a letter from Ed which was written Friday. The temperature at Tucson was 74 and Ed was running around in his shirt sleeves. He said they are enjoying it out there and have an apartment and are doing their own cooking.

"Step on it, Folks!"

When you pass our store today, you will see a rug on the sidewalk. Don't step around it—step on it. Walk heavily over it, wiping your feet. This is the Masland Argonne sidewalk test. The rug will be out there two weeks in rain, hail, dust—come what may. Thousands of feet will tramp over it. At the end of two weeks, it will be taken up and one-half of it cleaned—to show what punishment this rug can take. Masland Argonnes look expensive, but are modestly priced. American Legion Auxiliary Notes

At a special meeting of the Auxiliary Saturday night, approximately twelve members registered for service in case of a National emergency.

The purpose of this registration is to gather complete information as to the capabilities and the availability of our members for emergency services to the community and the nation in order that we may be able to respond quickly and effectively to any call for service. The service of Auxiliary members will be made available to civil authorities, the Red Cross and The American Legion Post.

Members who were unable to attend this meeting will be given an opportunity later. It is entirely voluntary.

The local unit paid the National Registration of the Girl Scouts as they have each year since the troop was organized.

An additional sum of money was voted to be spent for local child welfare work. This is to be used at the discretion of the welfare chairman, Mrs. J. C. Thomas.

Liberty Twp. Ladies Meet

Latex is a wonderfully resilient new material which is being used for upholstered furniture and mattresses. It immediately springs back into original shape when not in use. It is sanitary, waterproof and dustproof, being especially suited for crib mattresses.

Other new trends in home furnishings were discussed by ladies of districts No. 7 and 8 at their last follow-up meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Paul Stromer The effect of the European War on prices and the obtainability of material for rugs and furniture was another feature of the lesson. Mrs. Spitler and Mrs. Emery Schaefer led the discussion.

The business meetmg consisted of election of leaders and cooperators and voting on the course for next year.

APPRECIATION

The young people of the Epworth League, who gave the program at the hall last Sunday evening, wish to express their appreciation for the fine audience present. They also wish to thank the governing board of the hall in permitting us the use of the hall, and Mr. Wellemeyer for the use of the furniture, and others who helped in any way to make the program a success.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED MOCK TRIAL HELD AT COMMUNITY HALL

"Sporey" Found Not Guilty Of Stealing The Railroad Train

The Community Hall was packed last Friday evening for the Town of Klemme vs. Sporey trial, in which Sporey was alleged to have stolen a train off the Rock Island tracks at Porter's Siding and sold it to a junk dealer in the Twin Cities.

The trial opened in Mayor Grange's court, and many in the audience did not detect the hoax until the "trial" had progressed to a point where it became just a comedy.

Principle actors in the mock trial were Mr. Henry Sporey, of Garner, who took the part of H. Sporey; Ira Overhohlt was his defending attorney, while John Lamont and Bing Reece handled the crime situation for the "state." Mayor Grange opened court and a jury was impaneled and later fired and another jury was called to serve. Mayor Grange was then ousted and Art Wellemeyer became the judge. "Ole" Ramsay was the main witness for the state assisted by Mr. Kischer "railroad" detective from Garner. Walt Lemke was the serious looking clerk and court reporter. Marshall Buseman was the bailiff. Happy Johnson, Mart Barz, Fred Henschen, Paul Mueller, R. A. Jorgenson and Lester Stille were the jury who demanded their pay in advance. Dick Bamman took the part of Kenowsky, the jewish junk dealer from the city, who was alleged to have purchased the train and the tracks from Sporey.

The jury decided it was impossible for Sporey to steal a locomotive, box cars, caboose, and the tracks on November 11th during the blizzard and set them up at Pryor, Minn. and have the tram running for Kenowsky on November 13th, so Sporey was found not guilty.

The Garner Motor Sales "Oldsmobile" quartette sang a couple of numbers while the jury was out getting a lunch and deliberating. The boys did a find job of singing and can come back anytime.

ANOTHER 'HARDY FAMILY' PICTURE COMES TO THE THEATRE, STARTING SUN.

Passing one of the most important milestones in his life, the young Andrew Hardy graduates from high school in "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," the latest of Hardy Family series, which opens Sunday at the Avery Theatre for an engagement of three days.

Considered as one of the outstanding of the series, this new film deals with the many amusing problems facing high school seniors, problems as true to life today as they were a decade ago. The story, in brief, centers about Andy, who as chairman of numerous senior committees, loses sight of his studies in his effort to make the class graduation a success. In addition he makes the acquaintance of two youngsters from the wrong side of Carvel's tracks, Kathryn and Harry Land. The Judge becomes interested in the family and attempts to help them but Andy in an over-enhusiastic moment spoils the deal. How the two youngsters help him out of his difficulties when he flunks his English examination proves a highlight of the film.

The Hardy Family is again assembled for the story. Mickey Rooney gives one of his sincerest interpretations of Andy. Lewis Stone appears once again as the Judge with Fay Holden as Ma Hardy. Sara Haden resumes her role as Aunt Milly and Ann Rutherford portrays Polly Benedict.

SELLS HOGS!

The consignment of 133 prime butcher hogs averaging 325 lbs that brought $7.60 on the Chicago market Monday came from the feedlots of H. Barz of Hancock county, Iowa. Michael Berkery, head buyer for Agar, bid in this attractive consignment.

From Sharecropper to Packing Magnate, Americans Work Hard for Their Living

By HOPE CHAMBERLIN
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO.—In most American homes, the "Mrs." holds the purse strings . . . less than 50 per cent of American houses have bath tubs . . .

The least amount of money that can sustain life is the three cents a day per person that the colored sharecroppers in Mississippi live on by eating flour and molasses in winter . . .

As much money is spent in ice cream and soft drinks as in building houses . . .

These and other down-to-earth facts are the findings revealed in "How America Lives," just off the presses of the Henry Holt publishing house. The full report on how Americans make their money—and spend it; what they eat, drink, wear and talk about; what gives them a kick; where the shoe pinches the most, and the least; what they dream of and what they believe in; and even what they do on Sunday afternoons was compiled by specialists who, after traveling to all parts of the nation during 1940, wrote the "How - America - Lives" series for The Ladies' Home Journal.

The 16 families range from that of Henry Bracey, Negro Mississippi sharecropper, whose cash income last year totaled $26, to the family of Thomas Wilson, millionaire head of the Wilson Packing company of Chicago.

Summary of Study.

And here's a summary of the study which was conducted in the homes of real, warm, typical Americans:

As against the 1940 U. S. census statement that $22 a week is the salary of the average man in America, the survey disclosed that a man with a family of two children needs to earn at least $35 a week before he can own his own home, carry insurance, and give his children welcome advantages. And he can do this only

How America Lives . . . "What shall I wear?" It's the daily question of a whole nation of women who have made up their minds that they want to look pretty and stay young. And so America is giving them what they want . . . at the price they want to pay. They can buy a unique value in a simple felt hat, for example, for about $5, or even $3.95, and know they are getting quality!

if there is no sickness and if he has saved up an initial lump sum for the down payment on his house.

Dream of all American families is to own a home. Chief hurdle is saving up down payment.

Low points in American living are American houses—expensive and inexpensive. Although $3,000,000,000 annually goes into new homes, less than 40 per cent of the houses in America are in good condition. More than 80 per cent were built without help from architects. Functionally they are inadequate. Aesthetically, they are unfortunate. They lack enough closet space; they are hard to heat; the roof leaks; and they are so poorly planned that the homemaker walks an extra hundred miles a year between the front door and the kitchen.

How America Lives . . . They spend as much on ice cream and soft drinks as on building houses. As a nation, they like to "eat well," and, particularly in these times, do eat better than any other nation in the world. The average city family spends one-third of its annual income, or $508, a year for food. It thrives on good plain cooking—three square meals a day. Few families keep accurate food budgets. They don't need to—the women are thrifty shoppers.

Kitchens Best Equipped.

High points in American living are American kitchens—best equipped, most modern and most used room in the house. Living room is shabbiest, dining room barest and least used.

Ninety-five per cent of the women in America employ no household help. Average American homemaker's week (in home where there are growing children) runs 50 to 60 hours—and 24 hours a day, seven days a week she is "on call" when the children are little. (Grandmother's hours were nearly a hundred!)

American boys and girls still help with the chores, even if they live in city apartments.

The typical American family's credit is good. Majority of families "pay as they go," after saving with a particular goal in view. Installment buying records show 98½ per cent fulfill their payments. Foreclosures in FHA mortgages over five years have amounted to less than half of 1 per cent.

Largest single item of American families' yearly spending is food—14 billions, or 28 per cent of the national income. Conclusive proof that America as a whole sets a good table is the fact that the average city family spends one-third of its annual income for food. Ten dollars a week feeds a family of four adequately, but without many frills. It can be done for less . . . a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, woman's food budget was $7 a week for four people.

Food Budget 'Touchy.'

Touchiest subject among American homemakers is the food budget, about which they become more defensive and passionate than about a national presidential election.

American homemakers have been made acutely vitamin conscious. Per capita consumption of vegetables, other than potatoes, has increased from 26.36 pounds in 1919-20 to 1923-24 to 31.36 pounds in 1934-35. Production and shipment of oranges jumped from 10 million boxes in 1900 to 55 million in 1935.

The big Sunday dinner is passing. More and more families go on automobile outings instead. Saturday night dinner has replaced Sunday noon as the big dinner of the week.

Gingerbread and baked beans are still America's number one choice; beef, number one meat; apple pie and chocolate cake, number one desserts.

When the pinch comes, American families economize on clothes first. But American women love clothes and have a vast choice in inexpensive styles (48 million felt hats in the $3.95 to $5 quality were sold last year.) There is no more Main Street of fashion.

Fashion a Fault?

American women's chief fashion fault—doing a good thing to death. If veiling is the fashion, they lose themselves in the mists. If open toes are in style, they go for the most extreme and open styles—and wear them every hour of the day and night. They pile on too much junk jewelry . . . lack co-ordinating powers when shopping for clothes.

Two permanents a year, averaging from $3 to $5 are fixed charges in the budget, although weekly trips to the beauty shop are usually supplanted by the home shampoo and bobby pin method.

America is reappraising itself . . . taken as a whole—some 30 million

How America Lives . . . What does Mr. America do on an average day? She has no help with her housework. (95 per cent of American women don't.) Then it's likely she's up at 7 a. m., and the light in her kitchen window will be shining long after sundown. She gets the meals, washes the dishes, cleans the house, markets, irons and mends, to mention but a few of the deeds which require 60 or more of her weekly hours.

families—America lives pretty well. There's room for improvement, yes. That, like the new vacuum cleaner, another pair of shoes for sis or an addition to the house, will come.

Real 'Boom Town' Rises in Wasteland

HOLLY RIDGE, N. C. — Four months ago you could have bought all the land you wanted around here for three or four dollars an acre—unless you happened to be dealing with a native whose conscience would not allow him to accept such an exhorbitant price. Today this same land is being sold in 20 foot lots and for serious money, too.

No, nobody has discovered oil in these parts. This just happens to be the place the federal government picked for the army's new anti-aircraft training camp, now under construction.

There is good farm land both to the north and south of Holly Ridge but the real estate in this immediate vicinity is little more than a scrub-timbered waste. But the U. S. army had other ideas. The section is not only easily accessible by highway and railroad, but offers an ideal spot over which to shoot anti-aircraft guns without danger of hitting anyone on land or sea. The shape of the coast and the lay of the land is well suited to the army's purpose. Guns will fire out into Onslow bay, wide coastal indenture many miles from the lanes of coastwise shipping.

Naturally the government didn't suffer from Holly Ridge's new land boom. In the first place, the price didn't rise until the army had acted and, in the second, the government has the right of condemnation So its two-mile frontage on U. S. highway No. 17 and all the territory between here and the ocean came cheap enough. It's the land adjacent to the reservation that's suddenly become so valuable.

In November the entire population of the cross roads of Holly Ridge and for a mile in every direction totaled 28. This summer, according to government plans, there will be 20,000 troops stationed here. Already there are several thousand men building the camp and the trailer camps in which many of them live stretch up and down the highway for miles. Pine plank stores and bunk houses spring up over night and business is booming on every hand.

How long it all will last nobody knows.

Government Defines Proper Use of Flag in Commerce

WASHINGTON. — The American flag can't be displayed promiscuously without violating the law even though it represents the "land of the free." To explain and clarify legal restrictions in connection with the use of the flag for advertising or other commercial purposes, the department of commerce has published a new handbook entitled, "The Flag of the United States—Its Use in Commerce."

Numerous instances have been reported to the department of commerce of the questionable employment of the national emblem for commercial purposes. In most cases the violation of the law was done unwittingly.

While there is no federal legislation covering the use of the flag, every state in the Union has passed laws prohibiting its use for advertising purposes. Similar laws appear on the statute books of Alaska, Puerto Rico and Samoa.

Man About Town:
NEW YORKERS ARE TALKING ABOUT:

Look's current issue, in which Dorothy Thompson directs an open letter to Anne Lindbergh . . . The fat dividend checks Goering gets from an American munitions firm, which are deposited to his account at the Bank of Rio de Janeiro . . . The way those exiled Cuban army and navy officials are whooping it up in the Miami spots, oblivious to trouble . . . FDR's alleged flippancy to A. Woollcott: "My family likes actors—and why not? Doesn't Eleanor play one-night stands?" . . . The tiara the Duchess of Windsor wears in the Bahamas—made of beach shells.

The Philly newspaperwoman, who went to work in Goebbels' garbage factory two years ago. They say she was the one who dreamed up that free-cable-to-Hitler trick . . . The plan by Londoners to confer a title on Quentin Reynolds when he returns there . . . The Trotsky book on Stalin which will be published posthumously.

The strange stories from London about Andre Maurois, the writer, who is currently warning Americans to remember the fate of France . . . The new resident agent of the Commys, a perfect Milquetoast in his teaching job. His own Red colleagues in the same college aren't even hep to him.

Pearson and Allen's table-turning on Congressman Sweeney of Ohio, who is suing them in every state. He has lost 3 out of 3 already, including the case of his home state. P. & A. have filed against him, charging "abuse of judicial process" and ask $500,000 . . . The legend that Virginio Gayda was beaten up near Rome by two heroes who escaped.

Mood:

'Ooray for the H'English: Cliff Edwards told it over on the "Knockout" set at Warners. Two Britishers met after a long separation and compared notes about their adventures. "I've been drivin' ambulances, puttin' out fires, h'all sorts of things," said the first. "What 'ave you been doin'?"

"I was at Dunkirk," said the other.

"Gawd," gasped the first, "Dunkirk? It musta been turrible!"

"It was 'orrible," was the retort, "rained every day!"

Our Ho-Hum Dep't: All the Oscars for the best film acting went to players who impersonated characters from best selling novels and hit plays. Meaning that they had some life before they were screened. But those statues they give the actors are big ones—and they cast shadows that black out the authors who merely wrote the prize-winning roles.

Observations: The N. Y. Times points out the difference between the Germans of 1914-18 and the Nazis of today. Von Papen, "runner of Hitler's dirty errands" in Turkey, showed a movie depicting the Nazis' cruelties to the conquered peoples. In the last war, the Times recalls, the Germans tried to lie out of their atrocities. Now they glory in them.

Imagine! Paramount recently paid Moss Hart and associates almost $300,000 for the film rights to "Lady in the Dark," the hit show Hart penned while under the care of a psychoanalyst.

It is assumed that he will now take out a big policy insuring himself against getting well.

Served Him Right: One of those bores who begins his anesthetic with: "You don't remember, do you?" was properly stifled by a fed-up victim with: "No, ain't I lucky?"

Form of Criticism: At the play premiere the other intermission time one of the critics' wives was telling Richard Watts, who hated it, that she and her husband were having fun. "Whatcha doing," intoned Watts, "holding hands?"

New Yorchids: "Meet John Doe," which the previewers insist will be another feather in his Capra . . . Hugo Storm's book, "Seven Lean Hounds" . . . The editorial cartoons of H H. Bergman in the Springfield (Mass.) Union—big-city stuff . . . Quentin Reynolds' exciting book, "The Wounded Don't Cry," which father'd the "Dunkirk" quip that led a recent colyum.

In Fewer Words: Bumito has double-crossed his henchmen over here again. Many Americans came back from Spain to deny the Fascists and Nazis were helping Franco. Now Old Baldy sends Spain a bill, itemizing the cost of every Fascist retreat!

Of All Things: Cussing has been outlawed among the soldiers at Fort Devens, Mass. "Watch your language," the men were told. "You're in the Army, not 'What Price Glory?'."

PRIVATE PURKEY WRITES AGAIN

Dear Ma—

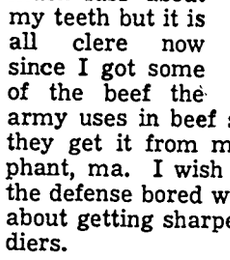
Well when I first got called in the draft I was told no soldiers wud be sent to Europe and that I was just going to get a year's training just in case but everything I here on the radio sounds like I am not up here just for fizzical kulshur. I see the lease-lend bill is all but past and all I am still wondering is if I go with the lease.

* * *

Nobody in my divishun seems to no what the lease-lend bill is all about except that it is for all aid to England short of war and the boys say you can be a midget in this army and not be too short for war, so I gess if war comes there is no way out for me, mom.

* * *

I am still getting a lot of instruckshuns in how to saloot and from all the emphassiss put on salooting I gess there are some people who are so old-fashened they think this war is going to be as polite as the last one. I am gradually getting used to going around with a gun. At first this felt very funny as all my life I was brung up to avoid weapons.



* * *

The life here is pretty confining as I sed before and how I wud like a week end auto trip to no place special! It wud also be a big kick to be abel to talk back to people whenever I wanted to like in sivilian life. Up here if you talk back to anybuddy you wind up in the gard house.

* * *

I got reprimmandid for smoking cigarettes while marching. The captin was very sore and sed it wuz against the rules and he sed it was bad for my lungs also. What made him sore was when I asked him not to worry about my lungs but start worrying about my feet.

* * *

Well, mom, now I know why they went over my teeth so carefuly in the draft test. I could not understand why the doctors made so much fuss about my teeth but it is all clere now since I got some of the beef the army uses in beef stew. The cows they get it from must be half elephant, ma. I wish Mr. Nuddson of the defense bored wud do something about getting sharper knifes for soldiers.

* * *

If this army life dont do nothing else for me, mom, it will make me appreshiate good coffee. I gess they use tobacco leaves for coffee in the army. The boys say the cook dont know how to make coffee which I gess has ben true all through the history of armies and navies and I dont see why the U. S. dont have a secretary of coffee just like a secretary of war so a cup of java will taste like a cup of java and not like a hot brake smells.

* * *

I still got that chance to join a tank corpse like I wrote you but dont worry as they are still using ice wagons for tanks and I wud look pretty going to war in an ice wagon, wudn't I, ma?

Well this is all for now so I close with love.

Oscar.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

Between the dark and the daylight,
When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupation
That is known as the Children's Hour.

I see there beside the loudspeaker
The innocent, sweet little dears
While stories of gangsters and bump-offs
Are brought to their infantile ears.

From four until seven they sit there—
Enslaved by the programs' appeal,
And hear of the gats and the gun molls
And terrible mobsters who squeal.

Cowboys and horses and rustlers,
Love and the wages of sin,
Kidnapers, death and destruction,
Maniacs, arson and gin.

The serial, ah, how it grips 'em!
Enveloping all in its power;
If the kids ain't in jail when they're fifteen
Then no thanks to the air "Children's Hour."

DEFENSE LABOR PROBLEM

Both Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hill- n, the Janus-headed duality ich is managing industrial mobili- ion, have testified that all is sweet- s and light on the labor front. ey may think so, but hardly any- e else in even remote touch with situation does. Unquestionably, portant sabotage is being used in anizational efforts and attempts increase wages.

This is notably true in some key el plants in dispute where the per- ntage of spoiled work is rising rap- y and unusually. This is going . It is very costly and destruc- e. It creates delays throughout e whole production process. It is in- nceivable that the government and blic can stand for that. The whole al industry and much of the steel dustry is threatened with strikes.

Management in some cases is far om co-operative. The only meth- d to deal with this yet made legal- available to the President, or his o-headed boy in OPM, is to com- andeer the plant. That means that overnment takes it over and runs as an arsenal is run, which in rn means that labor in that plant working for government directly.

All this is being shushed. It has een badly managed from the be- inning. It was generally under- tood between President Wilson, A. , of L. President Samuel Gompers nd industry, that the "status quo nte" as between labor and man- gement should remain in defense in- ustries. Thus, except as rising osts of living justified higher wages nd the government's two labor oards decided, neither manage- ent nor labor was to use the de- ense crisis to take advantage of the thers.

At the first defiance of this policy, which happened to occur at the same time on the part of one labor union at one place and one group of manufacturers at another, the government moved decisively and promptly. It decreed the discharge of the recalcitrant workers. It com- mandeered the recalcitrant plant.

All the subsurface boiling and rumbling is being shushed by those whose responsibility it is. That seems wrong from every angle. To a casual observer on the sidelines, it seems time to get not only frank but also vigorous and tough.

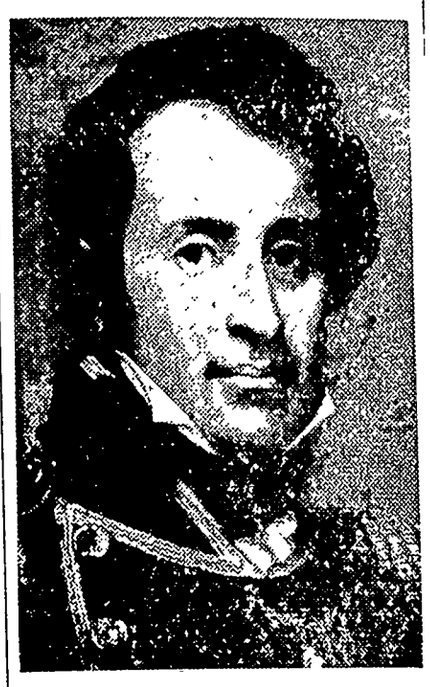
Victims of the Code Duello

ON THE morning of March 20, 1820, two American naval officers stood facing each other in a grassy field near the town of Bladensburg, Md., not far from Washington, D. C. They had been shipmates and friends once but now there was something akin to hatred in their eyes as they looked at each other across the space of eight yards that separated them.

Both men were well above six feet in height. One was about 40 years old, slender and graceful. He was Commodore Stephen Decatur, one of the nation's greatest heroes because of his brilliant exploit in burning the captured frigate Philadelphia as she lay at anchor in the harbor of Tripoli during the war with the Barbary pirates. The other was about 50 years old, broad-shouldered, his hair a little gray at the temples. He was Commodore



STEPHEN DECATUR

James Barron, who had been court-martialed and suspended from the service for five years because he had surrendered the frigate Chesapeake to the British man-of-war Leopard just before the outbreak of the War of 1812.

A trifling incident had caused the first rift in their friendship. Later Decatur was caustic in his criticism of Barron's conduct in the Chesapeake-Leopard affair and in an exchange of letters which followed made so many insulting statements that Barron eventually challenged him to a duel.

So here they were on this March morning meeting "on the field of honor." Their friend, Commodore Richard Bainbridge, was to give the words of command—"Fire—one—two—three." Neither man was to fire before the word "one" or after "three."

"Gentlemen, to your places."

"Take aim!" Decatur leveled his pistol at Barron's waistline and his adversary pointed his weapon at Decatur's hip.

"Fire—one . . ."

The reports of the two pistols sounded as one and both men dropped to the ground.

They brought a carriage to bear Decatur back to Washington. There was no such vehicle ready for Barron and Decatur insisted that his opponent be taken with him. But there wasn't room for both. As they lifted the young officer into the carriage, Barron called to him, "God bless you, Decatur."

"Farewell, farewell, Barron!" he replied as the carriage rolled away. That was the last time he ever heard Decatur's voice for the gallant young officer, after suffering intense agony all day, died that night. Barron recovered from his wound and lived to be 83 years old, the last of his generation in the navy.

A Cloud on His Name

"James Barron, who had for years been 'Barron of the Cheapeake' now bore the odium of having killed the nation's most popular hero," writes William Oliver Stevens in the chapter, "The Two Commodores" in his book "Pistols at Ten Paces" (published recently by the Houghton Mifflin company) upon which this account of the famous duel is based. "To this day the cloud still hangs over his name. He is still 'The Man Who Killed Decatur.'"

Military Influence Predominant In Juvenile Clothes for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT'S new in children's fashions? To tell the story would require endless recital, for designers of juvenile modes have found at command so many contributing sources of ideas that they have been inspired to do and to dare this season.

Perhaps most exciting of all is the rush of patriotic themes prevalent in all the apparel for the younger generation. Emblazoned stars, eagles with wide-spread wings, flags unfurled, ships, anchors and other nautical insignia, braidings, epaulets, sailor collars, officers' capes and brass-buttoned coats, colors red, white and blue in the true American way hold endless fascination for youngsters, especially when they adorn their very own coats and dresses and stylish cape outfits as they do this season.

What could be more attractive, we ask, in the way of new spring ensembles for school-faring sisters than the cunning two-sister cape models shown in the illustration herewith? To fully sense the charm of these clever cape outfits, one must visualize them in their own original bright colorings (matching red wool capes, hats, and skirts with navy jackets) as displayed at a preview of American-designed fashions presented in connection with a series of breakfast style clinics held in the great Merchandise Mart of Chicago. Pace-making fashion events are these clinics which thousands of merchants and buyers attend each season in search of dependable authoritative forecasts which these style shows present.

The two coats in the picture shared applause with the cape suits. Their message is buttons. Rows and rows of 'em! Bright metal ones a la militaire are favorites.

Children adore buttons, and three rows of them as used on the new aqua Shetland wool coat pictured to the right is enough to triple any little girl's joy. The pretty eyelet embroidered collar helps make this coat an important spring fashion, for white collared coats are featured for both adults and little folks.

The nautical influence can be seen in the coat pictured in the inset. Navy Shetland with a red and white trimmed sailor collar and two rows of glittering silver buttons is the formula adopted by the designer of this smart and attractive model.

The pendulum has swung back to sailor dresses. Both children and grown-ups will wear huge white lingerie sailor collars with their new spring frocks. The top color for spring is navy in coats, dresses and capes.

Amusing it is to see the way children's fashions this year copy those of their elders. An adult fashion that repeats in miniature for little daughters of the household is the print-with-plain costume. Cunning versions for tots are pleated-skirt print dresses tipped with capes (navy or pastel wools) lined throughout with the print of the dress.

Influences other than the navy or the army that make for versatility in styling are South American trends that bring vivid color into play. Dude ranch fashions also delight tots. There are lariat ties, cowboy fringe trims and studded leather belts.

Smart Hats

If you are fashion-alert and have a yen for exploiting "the latest," you will choose to wear with your spring suit or ensemble a coolie hat as pictured above, for Chinese influence is noted throughout costume design this season. This baku coolie is in bachelor blue, a color slated for spring success. In this instance there is a side cluster of tiny grosgrain bows and an attractive underchin loop.

Colors as varied as a kaleidoscope give to the other hat a definite this-season aspect, for current fashion fairly shouts color, color, color! This dashing beret is made of black, pale and deep rose, purple, green and yellow grosgrain ribbon stitched together in a pinwheel treatment.

Footwear Features Colors, Low Heels

Glamorized by style designers, low heeled shoes will lead the fashion parade this spring. Newest models have been given flippant touches to make them more attractive.

The great emphasis on color is perhaps their most outstanding feature: the more color the merrier. Sandals or step-in oxfords in a glowing tan, pale blond or smart wine red shade will enliven even the soberest black or navy blue suit.

Tan tones are slightly favored over other colors. They range from the grayed twig tans, soft cocoa and tortoise, to khaki. This last color is especially smart in combination with black patent leather, with khaki gabardine used through the center of the shoe.

Wedges are renamed "lifts" and are recommended for country and sports wear.

Soft cocoa-colored suede is used for one of the dressier shoe styles known as a Capri sandal.

Something a little different is even done to the navy blue oxford. Here the navy influence is definitely making itself felt. One oxford of navy blue calf and gabardine has three narrow folds of white calf across the toe. Similar bands of white cross the back of the heel. For the final touch, the shoelaces have flat leather ends with a small white star design in the center.

Hand-Crocheted Hats Inexpensive to Make

Sailors, turbans, brimmed hats all done in hand crochet—here's news that is news. Ask your milliner to show you some of the new crochets. If hats are not all-crochet, then the crochet idea is interpreted through trimming, such as crochet applique, yarn pompons, and huge twists of bright wool yarn.

Why Not Use Adobe?

All over our great Southwest, the use of adobe for building purposes is widespread. It has been in general use ever since the days of the early Spanish settlers and, as a matter of fact, 80 per cent of all structures in Las Cruces, New Mexico are, at the present time, of 'dobe, or sun-dried brick.

Some facts in favor of adobe construction are, (1) it is inexpensive, requiring very small cash outlay; (2) it can be used without hiring any skilled labor; (3) it lends itself well to certain attractive styles of architecture; (4) it affords effective insulation against both cold and heat—buildings of adobe brick are noticeably warmer in winter and cooler in summer than are those frame or stucco; and, (5) it is fire-resistant.

The word "adobe," pronounced a-do-be, is a Spanish word meaning sun-dried brick, and is applied both to the bricks themselves and to the sticky clay loam from which they are commonly made. A general impression prevails that only this particular loam, peculiar to the Southwest, can be used for building, but this is not the fact: Most clayey loams are suitable for the manufacture of sun-dried brick. Very often the clay excavated from cellars is well suited to this purpose. A very heavy clay can not be used, since it cracks and warps when dried, and a very sandy soil will not hold together, but a good building material can be made by mixing the two. Perhaps the only way to tell in what proportion to mix the sand and clay is to form a brick and let it dry. If it cracks, you have too much clay; if it disintegrates, you have too much sand. Experimentation will result in the proper mixture.

Although adobe bricks are frequently made without straw, it is advisable to add straw at the rate of about 1½ bales to 1,000 bricks. Since long straw is difficult to handle, some builders use chaff, horse manure or grass as a binder.

PREPARING THE MATERIAL

Mix only enough each day for that day's work. Pile the required amount in a layer, three inches or four inches deep, wet it well and "puddle" thoroughly, by the use of a mortar hoe. In many places the puddling is done by men, barefoot, trampling the mud. When the soil is wet to a uniform consistency, throw on straw or other binder, in a layer 1½ to 2 inches thick. Mix, adding enough water to make the mud thoroughly plastic, yet leaving it stiff enough to stand up when removed from the form.

FORMS FOR MOLDING

The molding forms are made of lightweight, dressed lumber, the inside dimensions being those of the desired bricks. Small bricks (4 by 8 by 16 inches, weighing 28 pounds; 4 by 10 by 16 inches, weighing 35 pounds) are suitable for poultry houses and other small structures. Larger sizes (5 by 12 by 16 inches, weighing 53 pounds; 5 by 10 by 20 inches, weighing 55 pounds) are used for dwellings.

MOLDING AND CURING

If a smooth sod is not available for use in molding, level a suitable site and cover with straw to lay the bricks on as they are removed from the molds. This is done to keep them from sticking to the ground. Press the mud into the form, taking care to fill all corners; smooth the top; then lift the form away, refill, and repeat. If the form does not clear from the mud easily, tap the sides of the mold to loosen it. In a few days, if the weather has been favorable, stand the bricks on edge to give equal exposure of the sides to the sun and allow them to dry for a week. When they are dry enough to handle, scrape off loose dirt and straw from the bottoms and pile them where they will be protected from rain. In about three weeks they will be ready for use.

METHOD OF LAYING THE BRICK

Adobe brick are laid in a manner similar to that used in laying ordinary brick. Mud without straw is used for mortar, or, for permanent structures, a mortar is used made of one part lime to three parts sand. About a cubic foot of mortar is used in laying 25 to 30 bricks in the size 4 by 10 by 16, and a crew of three men should place from 600 to 700 bricks in eight hours.

For more specific information in this field, send five cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Farmers' Bulletin 1720.

PRESERVING EGGS

Eggs may be preserved either in water glass or lime water. Water glass is obtainable from drug stores and is mixed with nine parts of boiled water and poured in an earthenware receptacle or galvanized can. Fresh clean eggs, free from cracks, should be chosen for preserving. At least one inch of liquid should be kept above the top layer of eggs and the container should be kept tightly covered. A limewater solution is made by slaking three pounds of lime in five gallons of water.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have made a pair of spool shelves like those you give directions for in your Sewing Book No. 3. They are painted watermelon pink to match the flowers in my bedroom curtains, and they are very pretty hung at each side of the windows. I would like to make some end tables of spools for the living room, but I can't think of a way to make them rigid. Have you any suggestions as to how this may be done? B. P."

Curtain rods are used through the spools to make the legs. Better take along a spool to try when you shop for the rods; and get the type that has one piece fitting inside the other. If the spools are a little loose on the rod, it won't make any difference for they must be glued between each spool, and also between the spools and the table shelves. I have shown in the sketch everything else you need to know to make this table. Good luck to you!

There's the Rub—Pete Had Lived Within That Distance.

A traveler was wandering across the Rockies in search of a man to whom he had been given a letter of introduction.

After a long and tedious journey he hailed a wild-looking fellow who was smoking outside a shack.

"Does Hard Pete live near here?" asked the traveler.

"No," said the man.

"Then can you tell me where I can find his friend and neighbor, Rough-House Joe?"

"I'm Rough-House Joe!"

"Well, they told me Hard Pete lived within gunshot of you."

"He did."

Life can begin at forty, IF—we take sensible care of our health. Remember digestion and elimination are not as vigorous as in youth. We don't get the exercise we need. Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

FAMOUS MASALAND ARGONNE RUG TO REMAIN ON SIDEWALK IN FRONT OF THIS STORE 15 DAYS

An Estimated 7,500 People Will Walk On The Rug

If you passed our store today you doubtless walked over a beautiful rug on the sidewalk in front of the store and probably wondered what it was doing there. Not to keep you in suspense, we'll tell you. The rug is being tested for wearing quality and will remain on the sidewalk for 15 days.

The rug we are testing in this drastic manner is the famous Argonne, manufactured by the well-known firm of C. H. Masland & Sons. We have been carrying this particular make of rug for years and have long endorsed it as an unusually long-wearing rug. The fact is that the Argonne Rug is guaranteed for three years, whereas many rugs costing much more are not guaranteed at all and with this rug you get a written guarantee. So outstanding are the Argonne's wearing qualities, that we have been recommending it to mothers of young children, especially as "The Rug Children Won't Wear Out."

You know how it is with selling, however We could tell a woman a dozen times that her children won't wear out an Argonne Rug but still she might not be convinced. So we have simply put into practice the familiar adage, "Seeing is Believing."

We are leaving the rug on the sidewalk in front of our store for 15 days. We figure that the rug will be walked over at least seven thousands times during that period If the Weather Man is true to form he will do his worst to try to dull the colors and injure the fabrics. The sun will beat down on the rug, the wind will blow dirt over it. rain will probably fall on it, and we hope that it will be pelted with hail and buried in snow for we want this test to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Masland Argonne really is what we claim it to be-- "The Rug Children Won't Wear Out."

"To make the demonstration as convincing as possible, we will take the rug up at the end of this week, have one-half of it dry-cleaned by the Marshall & Swift Cleaners, and exhibit it in our window and later in our rug department to show how little it has been affected by the elements and by people walking over it."

This test rug will later be sold at auction to the highest bidder, watch the Klemme Times for the announcement.

"We feel sure that everyone who sees the Argonne Rug on the sidewalk during the test and afterwards cannot but be convinced that it is a rug that 'children won't wear out.'"

Township Committee Meeting

Liberty Township leaders, cooperators and interested ladies met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Erwin Moll, township chairman. Plans were made for the Township's special feature on Achievement Day. Some posters were made. All leaders reports were due at this meeting. The Achievement Day will be held at Britt on April 2nd.

Money Received.

Although John Oliva, Marengo, cannot recall ever delivering a load of wood to Charles W. Boegel, now of Cedar Rapids, he received payment for it this week. The check for $1.75 was to pay for a load of wood which Boegel claims to have overlooked when paying his bills some 35 years ago.

Doctor's Orders.

Ed Frank, secretary of the Maquoketa Chamber of Commerce, is having a hard time now as people have the impression he is high-hatting them. He isn't though, he is under orders not to speak for two or three weeks, and he hasn't spoken a word for six weeks now.

To Election.

Although the school election recently in many places did not create much of an excitement, it was different in Liberty township, Plymouth county. Farmers went in wagons, on foot, in cars and horseback through the mud to get there. Roy Yeager, received 100 votes, and Roy Richardson, 90, the two highest -- a lot of votes for a rural community.

STUFF!

Maybe the senior boys can't win the inter-class tournament but the seniors girls can and they did. The girls held their tournament Tuesday. The sophomores were the runners-up.

Sure and it was a lucky day for the students when Mr. Galbreth announced no school Friday.

The seniors picked out their class flower, colors and motto on Thursday. They picked for their colors, green and white; and for the flower, the white rose.

We have a celebrity in school! She is none other than Lorraine Buntenbach, whose name is chalked up for the highest score for women bowlers.

The spring fever certainly has caught some of us. One senior girl even wanted to go fishing the other day and we know that she never fishes --- for fish!

You may win in Wahoo, but you don't always take home the prize. Or did you?

There are two new members in the sophomore class. One is Edward Peck and the other is John Heitland.

In history we are studying the Industrial Revolution.

Wednesday the sophomores had three tests which were far from being easy.

Tuesday the sophomore girls defeated the freshmen girls four to nothing in a basketball game. We probably would have defeated the seniors, but we played only the first half of the game.

FRESHMAN CLASS NEWS

Lorin Fjetland Richard Legge and Clarence Heitland have joined our forces. Our class now numbers 32. We'll be taking away the sophomore's record soon.

We've gone through our science book, 789 pages. We are now reviewing When we are through reviewing, we're going to start on projects.

After finishing the chapter "Investments' in business training the freshmen contemplated investing $1000 in stocks. We gave it up, tho, after deciding we were too young to become millionaires.

The latest rumor: Larry Van Syoc becomes scarlet when anyone mentions those letters he wrote to LaVonne Christie.

Grade News

GRADES 7 & 8

Tuesday night we had a party at the school house. Everyone was able to attend. Patricia and LaVonne served on the refreshment committee.

Patricia Kudje and Edward Barz had perfect spelling scores. Edward has been practicing oral spelling.

Mr. Wellemeyer gave one of the party groups a bust of Abraham Lincoln for our room. We have put it on one of the bookcases in our reading corner.

The eighth grade is working on newspaper booklets. We plan to publish the "Junior Clipper" next week.

The eighth grade earned another good score in Self-Testing Drill No. 13. Patricia had a star or perfect score.

GRADES 5 & 6

The sixth graders had their history unit test on the "Medieval World."

Two people got star ratings on their arithmetic self-testing drill this week. They were Roger Ridder and Roger Bock. The class got a rating of eight.

Tuesday was Elizabeth's eleventh birthday. She gave us each a candy bar.

The people who earned perfect spelling scores were Ruth Smith, Edward, Irene, Darwin, Rose, William, Helen, Delores, Elizabeth, Ruth Stokesbary, Roger R., Roger B., Phyllis, Clarence and Peggy.

Roger Ridder sixth grader, and Delores Kaduce, fifth grader, got their certificates for being the best spellers in their grades.

GRADES 3 & 4

In arithmetic we have been drilling on the 100 addition and subtracion facts. Larry and Iris tied for first place in our arithmetic race this week.

We are studying about "Spanish Explorers of the New World" in history. We learned about Cortez, Magellan and Balboa this week.

In art we made spring pictures with tempera paints.

We read the story of "Robinson Crusoe" in our literature period.

In spelling the following had perfect scores Norma, Marjory, Luella, Merlin and Dorance.

KINDERGARTEN GRADES 1 & 2

Daisy Schaefer visited school Friday afternoon.

JoAnn Carpenter was the winner of the spelling contest last Friday.

Maralee brought some pictures to school that her mother had taken of us.

We made posters of spring flowers for art.

We had the best spelling record this week in the second grade that we have had this year. Seven out of the eight pupils had perfect scores.

Fantastic follies of the 400-pound Maharajah. India's really colossal prince, who gobbled three meals at a sitting, five when really hungry, then wrestled with his subjects to aid digestion, but finally "dug his grave with his teeth." Read what H. George Franks, famous British journalist, has to say of this bizarre personality in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

Pennies.

Pennies which had been saved by Orville Walters, newly-wed of Calhcun county, helped him start in the chicken-raising business. Mr. Walters produced 4,997 pennies to pay for the chickens he had ordered. One hundred were "Indian heads."

More About Deserving Desserts.

Speaking of Deserving Desserts —I want to tell you about my small 10c cook book entitled "Easy Entertaining." From cover to cover, it is packed not only with new and unusual recipes, but also with menu suggestions and ideas for entertaining easily and happily—for making guests feel they are truly welcome while the hostess has ample time left to enjoy these same guests when they arrive.

To secure your copy just send 10 cents in coin to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Cream the butter. Add sugar and beat well. Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt together. Add alternately with the milk and then fold in the beaten egg whites. Steam in small buttered molds for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve with red raspberry sauce.

Red Raspberry Sauce.

½ cup butter
1 cup Confectioner's sugar
1 cup crushed raspberries

Cream the butter and add sugar slowly while beating thoroughly. Add raspberries. To serve, pour over hot steamed snow balls and serve at once.

Orange Dessert Squares.
(Makes 15 servings)

½ cup shortening
⅔ cup sugar
2 eggs (separated)
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons orange rind (grated)

Cream the shortening and add sugar gradually. Blend in the egg yolks. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and add to the creamed mixture, alternately with the milk. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry, and fold into the batter with the orange rind. Bake in a greased 9-inch by 16-inch pan in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for about 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot with orange sauce.

Orange Sauce.

⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon butter
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons orange rind (grated)

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook, stirring frequently, until the mixture is clear and thick (about 15 minutes). Add butter, and the orange juice and rind.

Surprise Dessert.
(Serves 10)

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1¾ cups graham cracker crumbs
1 cup milk
½ cup walnut meats
2 teaspoons baking powder

Topping

1 cup crushed pineapple (with juice)
1 cup sugar

Cream the butter, add the sugar and blend well. Add the well-beaten egg yolks. Combine the ground graham cracker crumbs with baking powder and add alternately with the milk. Add the walnut meats and then carefully fold in the egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Pour into a greased 8-inch by 8-inch pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 35 minutes. To make the topping, boil pineapple and sugar together about 8 minutes or until syrup-like in appearance. Chill and pour over top of cool cake. Let stand in refrigerator until ready to serve. Cut in squares and garnish with whipping cream.

CHRIST'S COMMISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:36-53.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you.—Luke 24:49.

Calvary and the darkness of the tomb gave way to the glory of the resurrection morning. Jesus had appeared to the two on the Emmaus road, and when they hurried back to Jerusalem to tell the eleven disciples, who were gathered behind barred doors, they found that He had already appeared, not only to the women, whose story they did not believe (see v. 11), but also to Peter (v. 34). While they were excitedly discussing this great wonder, apparently torn between belief and unbelief, joy and sorrow, suddenly Jesus appeared, coming through the barred door and greeting them with a blessed message of peace.

I. A Risen Christ for Fellowship (vv. 36-43).

The disciples were bewildered and slow to believe. Perhaps we would have done no better.

Note how patient and gracious He was in dealing with these frightened —and, in a sense, stupid—disciples. He might have been so discouraged at their unbelief as to be short and sharp with them, but He was not. We need to learn of Him. There are weak brethren even in the church of Christ who need our tender and patient consideration (see Rom. 15:1; I Thess. 5:14). Christ died for the weak brother too (I Cor. 8:11).

What a blessed time of fellowship the disciples and the Lord had together. Such times are greatly needed for our mutual encouragement. Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together (Heb. 10:25). In a day of need and trial those that fear the Lord should speak often with one another and with the Lord (Mal. 3:16; I John 1:7).

II. A Dependable Book for Guidance and Instruction (vv. 44-46).

Jesus gave His own endorsement to the Old Testament as a dependable record of the prophecies concerning His person and His work of redemption. The critics of God's Word must face the fact that their man-made theories are in conflict with the testimony of the Son of God. Of the two, we know whom we will believe!

Notice that an important part of the Lord's fellowship with His disciples was devoted to opening their minds so they could understand the Scripture. The word "opened" might be translated "disentangled." He took out the prejudices, the wrong ideas, and set them free to understand and appreciate the Scriptures.

III. A Great Message for Proclamation (vv. 47-49).

Fellowship with Christ and a knowledge of God's Word which does not result in an aggressive witness for Him is quite useless. We meet Him and learn His truth that we may carry it out to all nations, not forgetting (note it!) to begin at the wicked Jerusalem which is right at our doorstep.

The business, and the only business, of the Church is that witness. We need to renew our commission, get it clearly in mind, and then proceed to carry it out. "But," someone may say, "we are not able for this great task." Of course not; but He is able, and will enable us.

"Power from on high" is the portion of God's witnesses. This world worships power—mechanical, political or military power. The greatest power of all is spiritual power, and God is ready to give it to His faithful witnesses.

Note that the message is one of repentance and remission of sins "in His name." The gospel of Christ is the primary need of men and women, boys and girls, in your community and mine; yes, and to the very ends of the earth.

IV. An Ascended Lord to Worship (vv. 50-53).

The ascension of Christ is not often made the subject of a sermon or message in the church, but it is an important doctrine of Scripture. It marks the completion of the work of Christ, and His return to the place of honor at the right hand of the Father. There, before the Father's throne, He is the advocate of every believer, the pledge and assurance of a perfect and eternal fellowship between God and believing man.

The worship which the disciples gave to Christ as He ascended went on as they returned to their appointed place of witness, for they continually praised Him. Such should be the attitude of every true believer. In the temple of his own heart there should always be the joy of the Lord as He is there worshiped and adored.

Now we have completed our study of Luke, but we cannot stop here, for the Gospel, according to Luke's own statement in Acts 1:1, was only the story of what Jesus "began both to do and to teach." The continuation of that account is found in the book of Acts, which we begin to study next Sunday.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

THIS is the kind of dress in which large women look best because it is skillfully designed to accentuate height, place emphasis at the top, and make curves look attractive, not heavy. It's very simple—just the type you like best and wear most—a basic style appropriate for general wear and afternoon. The skirt is slim and paneled. The bodice is made with smooth shoulder yokes and just enough gathers to ensure correct bust fit. And the neckline of this dress (design No. 8877) is unusually good, at the same time adding a definite note of interest and narrowing your face.

When you see how beautifully it fits and how good it feels, you'll repeat this pattern time after time, in flat crepe, spun rayon, silk print and sheers.

Pattern No. 8877 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 40, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with three-quarter sleeves, 4⅞ yards of 39-inch material; short sleeves, 4⅝ yards; 2½ yards trimming. Send order to:

TIPS to Gardeners

NEW SWEET PEAS

A NEW, more vigorous, longer-blooming, heat-resistant sweet pea family has been introduced to the gardening world. It is the spring flowering sweet pea.

Because of their newness, spring flowering sweet peas are as yet available in only seven colors. Three All-American prize-winners were introduced last year: Rose pink, blue, and lavender. The new ones this year are white, clear pink, light lavender, and mauve.

The new sweet peas are grown just like other types now in general use. They may be planted outdoors as soon as the soil can be worked. For best results the soil should be spaded to a depth of 18 inches, and the lower 12 inches mixed with fertilizer, preferably well-rotted manure. The trench should then be filled with the soil-fertilizer mixture to within six inches of the top, and the seed planted one inch deep in this shallow trench.

After vines are well established they should be watered thoroughly once every five to seven days, and the flowers picked regularly.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative combined with Syrup Pepsin for ease to your stomach, too.

Stagnation Is Corruption

Better that we should err in action than wholly refuse to perform. The storm is so much better than the calm, as it declares the presence of a living principle. Stagnation is something worse than death. It is corruption also.—Simms.

SCANDAL MONGER! WHO?

Seemingly from a "squawker" living on east main street, the Town Mayor, or maybe the Marshall or the Council, connived against the donors when in 1939 the east end of Main Street was calcium chlorided to the extent that possibly one-third of the amount purchased was used.

For the benefit of this "Squawker" there was $91.60 collected and turned into the Clerk, if necessary, those who paid or donated, can no doubt be ascertained from the Clerk. The total amount paid to the Klemme Creamery for the 4-ton used was $136.68, no doubt this information can be secured from the secretary of the Klemme Creamery.

The Town paid the difference between $91 60 and $136.68 and spread it on.

Its too bad that a bright and supposedly intelligent citizen would or will "squawk" so late in the game, that he is not well enough informed to see the Clerk's reports or not interested enough in the Clerk's reports to read them. We really feel sorry for such a person Possibly a term on the council would do this kind good.

So far as I am concerned I feel very sorry that this man did not or maybe does not have enough "guts" to go to the proper source for the information desired. So "Squawk you Sucker" little farming is done in rt of Mexico. We passed a xican huts. Most of them y small and are made of and covered with doby. Many of the peons are dressed in white clothes; it was very cool that day and most of them wore serapes, this is a shawl or blanket they wear around their shoulders, some are large enough to cover their entire bodies and also their faces. They carry heavy loads of wood on their backs and baskets on their heads. They als use burros for carrying the heavier loads. I do not understand how they make their living but they seem to live. Very small pieces of corn had been planted, a few chickens and cows were grazing along the roadside.

We left Victoria about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning The weather was still cool. We were dressed in heavy dresses and topcoats. We again drove through rain and fog all day. The altitude is very high through some of these parts, but from Victoria to Valles its more tropical and the vegetation is very dense with cocoanut palm and jungle vines. On one occasion we saw a flock of about 50 green and red parrots some wild turkeys and large black vultures. The guide told us that mountain lions and small tigers and rattlesnakes live in these forests.

We stopped at Tamazunchale for lunch and from there on we climbed to an altitude of nearly 8,000 feet. The road is very winding but it is a double lane, paved highway all the way from San Antonio, Texas to Mexico City, a distance of 915 miles. We made this in two days of hard and almost continuous driving, stopping only for meals.

We reached Mexico City late Tuesday night and stopped at the Regis Hotel. Its an older hotel, but large and is a first class hotel. I have a private room with bath. The room is nicely furnished and has French doors and windows. These doors lead out to a balcony over the patio I'm on the fourth floor and each floor has its iron railed balcony

On Wednesday we took a sightseeing trip around Mexico City Our first stop was Chapultepec Park and Castle. This park covers an area of 50 square acres, many of the trees were planted by Cortez and are hundreds of years old The castle is very large and is built on a hill overlooking the city This has served as the capitol of the Aztec Emperors. Also the home of Maximillian and Carlotta. This castle has been re-built many times Much of the furniture used by Carlotta is still there The canopy bed is inlaid in gold leaf and the wall coverings are made of silk cloth, embroidered in gold and silver thread The National Palace of Mexico City covers an area of two city blocks. The Cathedral, the oldest in North America, covers one city block. It was started in 1563. The walls are cracked in many places from the numerous earthquakes that Mexico has.

Thursday morning we left Mexico City for a drive to Acapulco, an ancient resort on the Pacific Ocean. This is a drive of nearly 300 miles It was a beautiful day and just out of Mexico City we had a splen-

Funeral Services Held Tuesday For Prominent Garner Man

GARNER CO-OPERATIVE PIONEER DIED SUNDAY

Funeral Services for A. E. Katter, 78, Held Tuesday

A. E. Katter, 78, pioneer farmer and businessman, died at his home early Sunday morning in Garner

Mr Katter came to this vicinity in 1873 settling on a farm northwest of Klemme where his son, Ben H. now lives He has lived in this community since.

Children surviving are Ben H Katter, Deputy Sheriff Elmer Katter and Edith Elling of Garner and Mrs. P D. Lease of Aredale Katter helped pioneer the cooperative movement in Garner and for many years was the secretary of the Farmers' Co-Op Elevator and served for some years as manager of its lumber yard.

He was a director in the former State Savings Bank of Klemme and Farmers National of Garner. He served for 12 years on the Garner school board and served as president of the board for the larger part of the time.

Funeral services were conduct- from the home at 1:30 and the Zion Reformed church at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. William Huenemann was in charge of the service and interment was in Concord township cemetery.

HAYFIELD GIRL WINNER IN COUNTY SPELLING CONTEST

Margaret Haan, Hayfield, won $5 and first place in the Hancock County Spelling contest held at Garner Saturday. She will represent our county in the State Spelling contest at Des Moines.

There were fifty-six entries in the contest and Klemme's representative, Edward Barz stayed in and won eleventh place.

Other winners in their order from the top were: Kathryn Dueland, Crystal Lake; Richard Faber, Madison No. 6; Leon Swanson, Orthel No. 4; Ruth Johnson, Britt, Hildreth Tlack, Liberty No.2; Barbara Kischer, Garner; Doris Cline, Twin Lake No. 8; Frank Wellik, Britt No. 6.

Supt. Galbreth, Klemme pronounced the words and the judges were Mrs. Johnansen, Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Kurtz, all of Garner.

Fingertip Crushed.

Ted Drape, Waverly, injured his hand when an autojack slipped, crushing his fingertip.

Lot Of Smoke But No Fire!

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED TO JACOBS STORE FRIDAY MORNING

The Klemme Fire Department was called to Jacobs Hardware Store Friday morning at about 10 o'clock.

The large store began to fill with smoke but no fire broke out and no fire could be found. The fire department inspected the building from basement to attic but could not find the least trace of a flame. The smoke cleared away after a couple of hours and the blaze had evidently died out.

Melvin Neuberger, who manages the store during the absence of Mr. Jacobs, had the men continue the search for the cause of the blaze. All of the electric wiring and equiment was carefully checked for a possible short. Next the heating system was checked and the cause of the blaze was located only after a tireless search when a very slight charred appearance of a girder carrying a cold air duct was observed. Part of the tin was bent away from the girder and it was found where a fire had burned out a section about the size of a baseball inside the cold air duct.

The only solution for the cause would be that someone had carelessly dropped a cigarette into the cold air duct and the forced air system carried the cigarette back about eight feet where it lodged against a section of the girder and started a small blaze which filled the store with smoke.

No damage was caused as the fire evidently burned but a few minutes and died down when the heating fan was shut off.

REFORMED CHURCH WAS SCENE OF WEDDING CEREMONY THURSDAY EVE.

Young Couple Will Reside On A Farm In Liberty Township

A quiet wedding was solemnized Thursday evening March 27th at 6 o'clock at the Immanuel Reformed church, Klemme, at which time Miss Carrie Albers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Albers, Sr., was united in marriage to Mr. Fred Pringnitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Pringnitz. by the pastor Rev. C. Grosshuesch.

The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Buss, twin sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of beige crepe and beige accessories and wore a blue hat. She carried a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty Roses, and mixed Sweetpeas, tied with a huge white satin bow and streamers.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Buss, was attired in pale pink crepe with beige accessories and hat, and wore a corsage of Johanna Hill Roses and Sweetpeas tied with silver ribbon.

The groom and his best man Edgar Buss, wore blue suits with white carnations as boutinniers.

Immediately after the ceremony, the couple left on a short trip to various points in Minnesota.

The bride was born and reared in this community and attended the local schools and since has been at home with her parents.

The groom also attended and graduated from the local schools and since has been farming with his father in Liberty township.

Mr. and Mrs. Pringnitz will be at home to their friends on the groom's father's farm, west of Klemme.

War Front Moves to North Atlantic Sea As Nazis Unleash Bombers, Submarines

By ROGER SHAW
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK.—This is a funny war, but no longer a phoney war. The phoney phase, if any, passed with the Norwegian campaign of a year ago. Since then, things have been grimmer and grimier. Various fronts have evolved. There are the Balkans. There is Gibraltar. There is North Africa, and East Africa, and Albania. There are the fifth columns all over Europe that favor German rule, and the opposition fifth columns that detest German rule—the treadmill of the Nazi military boot.

Then, there is the hammer and the anvil phase. England is the sturdy anvil. Germany is the vengeful hammer. The Spitfires and Hurricanes and Heinkels and Messerschmidts fight it out in the third dimension, on an aerial front such as mortal man never saw before. There are Coventries and Hamburgs and all manner of hapless atrocities. But are these aviatory antics decisive? Apparently not, to date. London may be gutted, but it still laughs and goes to the movies and sings "There'll Always Be an England." In Berlin, only 500 houses have been damaged, according to recent reports. British factory power has been slowed up, but the "arsenal of democracy," so-called, is gaining momentum and hastening replacements to the scenes of insular carnage. The life-line of empire no longer runs up the Mediterranean and on to India. Instead, it runs across the North Atlantic, from Roosevelt to Churchill, and back again.

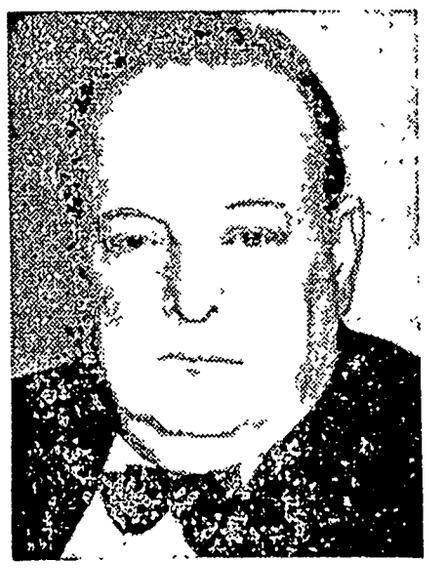
Most Important Front.

This is where the most important front comes in, as this is written. It is the watery U-boat front. The purpose of the U-boat is to cut the new life-line of empire, nullify the American "arsenal," and leave the damaged British factories to shift for themselves as they face the hideous hammer of Thor. It is also intended to cut down on foodstuffs, and thereby loose still another of the terrible horsemen of the vaunted apocalypse. In the minds of many critics, the U-boat threat outweighs the Balkans, North Africa, the late lamented battle of France, and even the airplanes. It is, as they say, of the essence. All this remains to be seen, but the weather is getting better—which means that things may be getting worse.

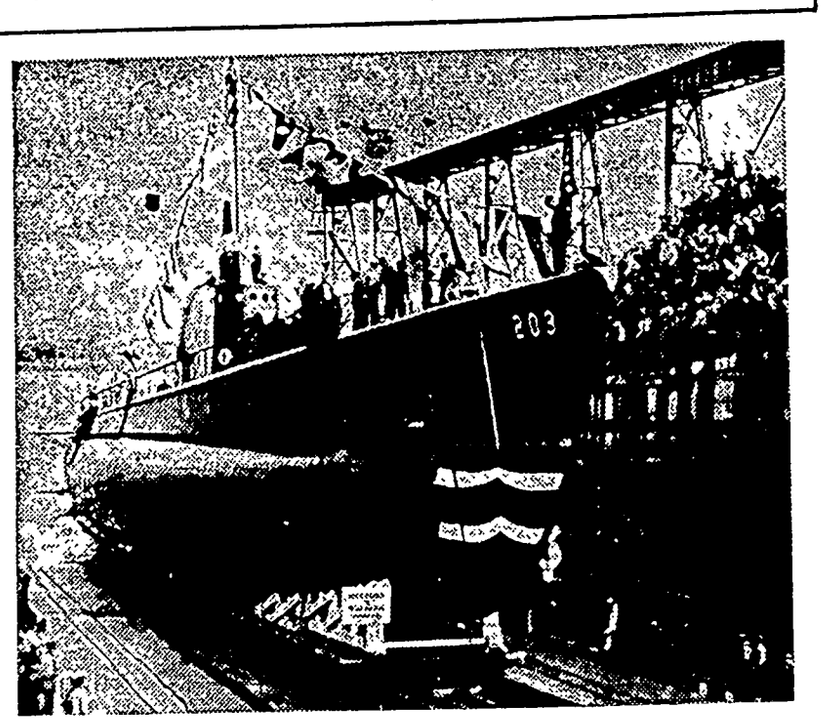
The high point of the U-boat threat in the first World war was April, 1917. It was the same month in which America entered the conflict. There was a connection between these events. But in those days, the active U-boats were not too numerous. Seldom were there more than 30 at sea, at any given time. They operated only from such limited spots as Cuxhaven and Kiel in Germany, Ostend in Belgium, and Austria's old Adriatic ports, for the Mediterranean trade. In 1914, Germany started the war with less than 30 submarines, and perhaps 10 more in the process of building. In the course of the war, there was something like 700 laid down

Long Training Needed.

It takes a long time to produce and train a good U-boat commander—some critics say all of five years. Despite the hundreds of German submarines between 1914 and 1918, half a dozen experts accounted for no less than 70 per cent of the Allied ship losses. Naval statistics verify this astonishing fact.



Winston Churchill recognizes the true state of affairs. His cry is ever for sub-fighters, destroyers, for convoys.



Germany isn't the only nation conscious of the submarine's power. Another new addition to America's large submarine fleet is shown being christened by Mrs. Wilhelm Friedell at Vallejo, Calif.

In this war, the Germans have an air fleet schooled to co-operate 100 per cent with the subs. Of these, in 1939, there were about 60 to 70. What the figure now is, nobody accurately knows. It's on the up and up, for fast streamline production has been introduced in the German shipyards, and in interior-located factories. U-boats can easily be shipped about on railroad flatcars—even up over the Alps, like Hannibal's elephants. Further, most of the British navy is now busy in the Mediterranean. In the last war it was based on Scotland, and therefore in a far handier position than is now the case. The French coast is a great basic convenience to Hitler's Admiral Raeder, and so are the north-reaching Norwegian fjords. The Kaiser didn't have such an advantageous frontage.

Germany's outstanding submarine hero is Captain Guenther Prien who steered his craft into Scapa Flow in 1939 to sink Britain's Royal Oak. In the first World war 70 per cent of Allied ship losses were attributed to only six such experts.

The royal air force is constantly bombing German U-nests along the vast coastal stretch, when they might better be hammering German factories in the interior. This costs men, planes, explosives, time and money. Meanwhile, the Germans have been concentrating on small submarines. These can be built more quickly, they cost less, and they are just as effective for short trips around the British Isles and west of Ireland. Another very important factor is this: They require much smaller crews, and submarine crews are singularly hard to train. When it comes to U-tactics, Germany may be more pressed now for U-men than for U-boats. As for sub commanders, to date there are no outstanding individuals except the well-known Gunther Prien—the Perriere of the second world war. Even Churchill admires Prien, and has said so.

Small Craft Needed.

What the British need is small craft to hunt the subs. They have produced a sort of "corvette"—a type modeled on the fast little "chasers" that professional whalers use today.

The British have lost heavily in shipping, in the past year and a half. They had never made up their losses from the last war, and the fresh inroads cut seriously into the sum total of his majesty's tonnage.

The British shipyards, at Newcastle and Glasgow and elsewhere, are trying to speed up production as best they can. But it's far easier to sink ships than to build them, and in some cases the shipyards are under aerial bombardment, to boot. At night there are blackouts, and these delay loadings and unloadings in the ports. The ports, too, have taken a terrific hammering from Herr Goering, and in some cases their dock facilities are badly damaged, or even closed up. No longer may floodlights be used to hasten a 24-hour schedule. In short, the German planes dovetail "nicely" with the U-boats and the French and Scandinavian ports, to produce an all-round picture of ill omen.

Churchill has a clear naval head. He recognizes the true state of affairs. He relegates subs, Balkanics, and Africandering to second or third place. His cry is ever the same: For the new "corvettes," for destroyers, for convoys, for submarine detection devices to catch the U-boats "sitting." Meanwhile, in the German naval ranks, two or three small submarines are taking the place of any single big one of the "1918" type. The mutinous mermaids will soon be learning of mass production at its deadliest, and in its most sinister form.

The no-man's land of 1941 is the billowy north Atlantic, and its doughboys are old salts. Watch it. It's the presentday "Hindenburg Line."

Aluminum Utensils May Be Restricted By Defense Needs

KINGSTON, N. J.—If homemakers have their hearts set on buying aluminum pots and pans in all the shapes and sizes they want, they're going to find it a little difficult, especially in the next few months to come. And if papa decides the family needs a new radio about two months hence, he's liable to discover he's out of luck.

It appears that civilian consumers in this country will have to stand back for a little while and watch the shiny, strong, light metal shaped around airplanes, put into military motors of all kinds, fixed into place in innumerable parts of ships. As for pots and pans—the army and navy will need plenty of those, and will come first.

A spokesman for the Aluminum Company of America, at the moment the only producer of virgin aluminum, estimated that the bottleneck made by the defense demands will probably be opened within 120 days. Retail distributors have a much gloomier outlook. Radio manufacturers seem plainly scared, and one manufacturer says openly that he thinks a shortage of the useful metal will utterly disrupt radio production.

Defense needs can stop the production of radios, for you see, aluminum is a requirement for condensers, and other parts in a radio.

Manufacturers of ordinary aluminum household utensils have been informed that all future orders will require at least eight weeks for delivery. Heretofore, the metal could be picked up almost immediately.

A houseware buyer in New York reports that, although the stocks of pots and pans appears to be adequate for a few weeks, there is already a shortage on delivery of certain items—mainly the 7-inch frying pan.

The spokesman for the Aluminum Company of America estimates that nearly 600,000,000 pounds of aluminum will be produced by that organization in 1941. Defense needs are expected to total some 350,000,000 pounds, which is about what the entire output was in 1939, leaving 250,000,000 pounds for civilian use.

Sometime in March the new Lister, Ala., plant of the Reynolds Metals company—the expansion and development of which has been aided by government money—undertook to manufacture some 40,000,000 pounds additionally. By the spring of 1942, the output will be upped to 60,000,000 pounds. Eighty per cent of this will go to the government at all times.

The Reynolds company also is preparing to construct a second manufacturing plant in the Pacific Northwest, whioh, by the end of this year, will manufacture another 40,000,000 pounds of the metal.

Coast Guard to Convoy Migrating Pacific Seal Herds

SEATTLE, WASH. — Ten Coast Guard cutters will soon convoy Pacific seal herds as they migrate from warmer waters off the coast of the United States toward their summer homes near Alaska

When the seals congregate in numbers off the coast of Oregon and Washington, the patrol will get under way. They will accompany the herd as far north as the Aleutian islands to protect them against poachers.

A few of the boats will remain to guard the herds during their mating season and the summer until the last seals depart from the rookeries in late autumn.

Coast Guard protection is the result of an international agreement that became effective in 1911. At this time the United States, Great Britain, Russia and Japan reached an agreement to protect the rapidly dwindling seal herds from extinction.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Front Pages: Some of the generals of Lindy's war college took hope that Moscow's note to Bulgaria promised Bolo opposition to the Ratzis in the Balkans. But Arthur Krock chilled the hope in his Washington column. Every time Stalin pouts at his best girl in Berlin, warned Krock, they make up the tiff with a deal at the expense of a weak neighbor . . . Rob't Minor, who replaced Browder as Comrade Big, used to city edit the Daily Worker. Once, when a Rolls and flivver came together, Minor flipped the item to a rewrite man. "Here," he said, "write that from the Class Angle" . . . There is a class angle to the hoss tracks, too. Take George F. T. Ryall's account of the opening day at Tropical Park, following the closing of blue-blooded Hialeah. Biggies from Hialeah, reported Ryall, visited Tropical "to see how the other half bets" . . . Irving Hoffman's report to the Hollywood Reporter: "Honeychile Wilder went out with Rags Ragland Saturday night, and on Sunday was seen at the Stork with Bob Ritchie. In other words, Honeychile's gone from Rags to Ritchie."

The Story Tellers: William L. Shirer's adventures in Naziating Germany are running in the Atlantic Monthly, and make very enlightening reading . . . Jan Valtin's "Out of the Night" has set an all-time record at The Book-of-the-Month Club, beating Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" by 3,000 copies . . . Phyllis Brooks of Hollywood and "Panama Hattie" is in Screen Guide . . . She avers: "A man is a chump to marry an actress, and who wants a chump?" . . . When Scribner's Commentator reprinted an interview given by Benny Goodman on the radio, it failed to include the maestro's statement that Democracy is necessary if America's type of free improvised music is to live. Goodman made quite a point connecting Democracy and Swing. But Scribner's took pains to blot it out . . . Fortune has a timely article entitled: "Eddie Rickenbacker Looks Ahead" . . . Margaret Case Harriman has been commissioned to write a book on New York wits . . . The only objection to that is Margaret can't include herself. Hers is the kind you can mow lawns with.

AIR TRAVEL ON CREDIT

Seventeen air lines have announced an installment plan for air travel. No down payment is required. You get a ticket to go up if your credit rating proves you are the sort of person who will come down and make good.

* * *

The idea should bring many more customers. Lots of people would fly if they knew it wouldn't cost them a cent until after they had landed.

* * *

This is the first time in flying history that it has been possible to risk your neck on a credit basis.

* * *

It is almost like hoping, collect-on-delivery.

* * *

And it is going to seem strange but highly satisfying to get out of a clipper and just say, "Put it on my bill."

* * *

This credit idea has already been introduced by some railroads. You can take a transcontinental choo-choo ride now on the so-much-down-and-so-much-a-month basis, and the idea is proving popular. Americans like to travel on the cuff, and there is something highly satisfying in being able to owe a railroad money.

* * *

When you have to plank down your money before you even get by the iron gates at a railroad terminal it takes something out of the trip. No matter how good the scenery is you discount it on the ground that it ought to be better for that much money.

* * *

If you are jerked out of an upper berth by a green engineer or bad brakes it is all the more exasperating when you know the discomforts have been paid for in advance.

* * *

But if you owe the railroad for the trip it's not so annoying.

* * *

The same will be true of airplane travel. Your hair may stand on end at the thought of a cross-country flight, but it becomes much easier to handle with a brush and comb when you know the company can't take a dime of your dough in advance.

* * *

And if you are dropping down by parachute, think of the satisfaction of knowing that it's all being done on the deferred payment plan!

* * *

There will be the kick, too, of getting a bill from the air lane company with a "please remit" notation and dashing off a little note:

"Gentlemen:

"Your bill for flight to Chicago received and in reply I beg to state that I did not enjoy the trip. It was very bumpy, the plane was two hours late and it was so cloudy that I did not see half the scenery I was entitled to. I was not satisfied and hope there can be an adjustment.

"P. S.—The hostess wasn't good-looking, either. I should say she wasn't within $10 of the good looks of the hostess on my previous trip so you can take something off my bill for this, too."

CAN YOU REMEMBER

Away back when an invitation to get off the earth was practically an isolated instance?

* * *

Defense workers are being housed in trailers in some parts of the country. After a night in a trailer a man must be pretty glad of a chance to go to the shop where he can get a good rest.

The horse seems to be finished in the army, but it requires a lot of imagination to picture anybody shouting: "A tank, a tank, my kingdom for a tank!"

Two hundred thousand workers in the printing trades want radio advertising curbed. In this they have the hearty support of at least 90 per cent of the radio audience.

In this department's opinion radio advertising is, most of the time, offensive, annoying and a darned nuisance. Elmer Twitchell, for instance, is so bothered by it that he lists all the products ballyhooed on the air waves so he will remember what NOT to buy.

"Hellzapoppin" was performed for the draftees recently. This gave the boys a chance to laugh at the jokes that cheered their fathers up 25 years ago.

We can't be very close to war yet. George Cohan hasn't written a song for it.

WALLACE FINDS NAZI PROPAGANDA IN MEXICO

Behind the scenes, Henry Wallace played quite a part in the Mexican U. S. agreement to work out plans for national defense.

It was Henry's job, during his trip to Mexico, as vice president, to put across some quiet diplomacy with new President Avila Camacho aimed to smooth out all Mexican problems. This he did and became completely "sold" with high Mexican officials.

However, Henry also brought back a very worrisome picture of Nazi activity in Mexico.

Being a farm boy from Iowa, skeptical about the Zimmerman fair during World War I when German foreign office invited Mexico into an alliance against the United States, Henry went down to Mexico as an unbeliever as to Nazi propaganda was concerned. But he came back, his skepticism gone.

The great mass of the Mexican people and the Mexican government are sincere believers in friendship with the United States, Henry found. But a small minority, plentifully supplied with Nazi-Fascist cash, has been doing its best to poison friendly relations.

In fact, there were some indications that the Nazis might even go to such lengths as outright sabotage or damage to the United States in such a way that Mexico would get the blame, thereby stirring up animosity between the countries.

Note—Last year $2,000,000 in greenbacks was taken to Mexico from New Orleans by Count Rossi of the Italian legation, presumably for propaganda purposes. Count Roberti is the son-in-law of John Hammond, ex-ambassador to Mexico and a leader of the move to operate with Spanish Dictator Franco.

GUARDING THE CAPITOL

If you visit the United States Capitol in the near future don't wear an isolationist banner or anything more explosive than a cigarette lighter, or you may wind up in the brig. Tightest police restrictions since World war days are being put into effect at the Capitol building.

Under a plan devised by Speaker Sam Rayburn, Sen. Harry Byrd, chairman of the senate rules committee, and Arthur E. Cook, chief of Capitol police board, all visitors will be required to check packages before entering the building.

BRITISH DACHSHUND

Most unusual household pet in Washington is owned by the British ambassador, Lord Halifax. Whether it or not, he has a German dachshund.

The envoy bought the dog from a kennel in Virginia shortly after his arrival in the United States.

BOTTLE BOSSIES

The department of agriculture is completing plans to breed better cattle this spring by artificial insemination.

The cattle are the property of Indians, on reservations in Arizona and New Mexico. Able Indian Commissioner John Collier asked Congress to help build up the quality of the stock, and the problem was how to service the cows with a limited number of bulls. Through artificial insemination, one bull can be bred with any number of cows.

Most spectacular experiment of this kind was conducted recently by experts in the experimental farm at Beltsville, Md. They sent a bull for insemination by air express one morning for a mare in Miles City, Mont. In vacuum bottles, it was delivered the same day, and the business was completed that evening.

Result was a healthy colt from a mare in Montana, sired by a Belgian stallion in Maryland.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Swankiest newsman at the White House press conference is Stephen Horton, press officer for the defense commission, who, while most of the others are hoofing to their offices after the conference, drives away in a limousine with a chauffeur.

Some of the electric lights now used in the White House are marked "Save," and can be redeemed for two cents after they burn out. Even the White House, which buys reduced government price, must pay the old bulbs regardless, with no redemption.

The immigration bureau of the justice department soon will have its own intelligence unit to track fifth columnists in the U. S.

Allied Chemical is buying up the swanky apartment house on Sixteenth street, not far from the Soviet embassy. It should be all set to lobby in a big way.

'Aguinaldo Is Captured!'

FORTY years ago this month America had a new national hero. He was Frederick Funston, a native of Ohio and a soldier of fortune who had aided the Cubans in their struggle to throw off the yoke of Spain, then organized the Twentieth Kansas Volunteers at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war and arrived in the Philippines with his regiment in time to help Gen. Wesley Merritt capture Manila in November, 1898.

Meanwhile Emilio Aguinaldo had declared himself president of the revolutionary government of the

GEN. FRED FUNSTON

Philippines and started an insurrection against the new rulers of the islands.

There was constant fighting throughout 1899 and 1900 but always Aguinaldo, the leader of the insurrectos, eluded capture. During 1900 he apparently gave up the struggle, but in January, 1901, he ordered the insurgent forces in southern Luzon to join him at his rendezvous in the province of Isabela.

However, the messenger to whom he entrusted this order, surrendered to the Americans in February and, upon securing the information as to Aguinaldo's whereabouts, Funston determined upon a daring plan to capture the Filipino leader.

Taking with him Captains H. W. Newton and Russell T. Hazzard, Lieutenants Oliver P. M. Hazzard and Burton J. Mitchell and a company of 80 Macabebes, who spoke the Tagalog languages, he was landed on a beach south of Casiguran in the province of Principe on March 13, 1901. Aguinaldo's messenger also went with the expedition and he and the Macabebe scouts were to pass themselves off as a detachment of insurgent Tagalogs who had captured the five Americans and were taking them as prisoners to Aguinaldo. After marching seven days and nights, the party reached a point eight miles from Palanan, Aguinaldo's hiding place.

EMILIO AGUINALDO

A message, stamped with the seal of General Lacuna, was sent forward to Aguinaldo and a prompt response was received, welcoming the party. The Americans and their fake Tagalogs hastened forward.

Funston entrusted the actual capture to a Spaniard, Iazaro Segovia, and a detachment of the scouts. The story, as Funston told it later, follows:

"Running up the bank toward the house, we were met by Segovia, who came running out, his face aglow with exultation and his clothes spattered with the blood of the men he had wounded. He called out in Spanish: 'It is all right; we have him.'

"We hastened into the house and I introduced myself to Aguinaldo, telling him that we were officers of the American army, that the men with us were our troops, and not his, and that he was a prisoner of war. He was given assurance that he need fear no bad treatment.

"He said, in a dazed sort of way: 'Is this not some joke?' I assured him that it was not, though, as a matter of fact, it was a pretty bad one on him."

In after years Aguinaldo was loud in his praise of Funston for the audacity and skill of his plan, saying that only by the stratagem used could he have been captured. The former leader of the Filipino insurrectos later took the oath of allegiance to the United States and became reconciled to American rule. He even sent his daughter, Carmen, to this country to be educated and she became a student at the University of Illinois. Aguinaldo is still living at the age of 72.

This Year's Easter Fashions To Be Dainty, Very Feminine

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL signs point to a lovely and colorful array of sweetly feminine fashions for Easter. This is definitely a year when emphasis is on "pretty lady" trends.

There is big news, in color, especially in the pastels for suits, coats and ensembles. The whole fashion world is expressing enthusiasm for the new monotone wools in light beiges, misted greens, the very new violet and mauve tones, muted pinks and pale grayish blues. Seen in fashion-first Easter costumes, they are ideal, especially for the long-coat costumes as shown in the illustration.

Fresh flowers add chic to these attractive Easter outfits. Beaux please take notice! The lady of your heart will be queen of the Easter parade if you send a corsage of fresh white freesias to match the bouquet on her hat (note the model in the center of the picture).

If she is sophisticated, any beau may win her heart with a modernistic corsage of fresh gardenias. If you're away she will appreciate your wiring her local florist to include an extra gardenia or two to tie on her wrist bracelet fashion as illustrated to the right.

The newest idea of American designers is that fragrant flowers should match the motif of gay print dresses with which they are worn. This Easter, romantic arrangements of roses, violets and lilies-of-the-valley will vie with orchids, gardenias, flaming hibiscus and camellias. Silvered and gilded leaves are a new and distinctive Easter fashion with appeal to those seeking the out-of-the-ordinary.

Speaking of flowers, milliners everywhere declare that myriads of flattering little flower hats are selling in unprecedented numbers. The significant message about these adorable little flowery confections is that you may wear them as correctly with your prim little tailor suit as you can with your dressiest dress-up costumes. (Quite a departure from the old idea which exacted a tailored hat with a tailored suit!)

The thought that is prevalent throughout this season's style program is that one should wear alluringly feminine and flattering accessories. This applies not only to flowery hats and colorful whimsical veils but also to "hankies," which are of the pretty-pretty type.

It is just such flower-bedecked hats as the one shown above (to the left in the illustration) that are lending "endearing young charms" to the Easter fashion picture this spring. Note the dainty handkerchief, designed by Burmel, which so artfully plays up a dainty petit-point garland encircling an embroidered full blown rose. You can get these "hankies" with violets or daisies or whatever flower you may choose. The other flower chapeau is typically an Easter bonnet. It is a shiny straw in bon bon pink, trimmed with cherry blossoms, full-blown roses and wide green ribbons. The veil matches the straw.

Fruit Buttons

Look to fashions for a new yield of vitamins Fruit has become an outstanding inspiration for design in the apparel field. Many of the smartest new prints are patterned with colorful fruit motifs: hats are trimmed with realistic looking fruit; lapel gadgets are replicas of fruit, and buttons that fasten our dresses and blouses, coats and jackets, are copies of fruits. The beige wool sport jacket here pictured is "vitamized" with fruit buttons, new this spring! A miniature dish of polished wood gives the button form. There's good news for tired clothes at your nearest button counter!

These novelty buttons are durable, as well as attractive. Vieing for honors with the fruits are vegetables—carrots, onions, lettuce, etc.

Fads and Fancies

Young moderns are all enthusiastic over fringed play shoes that take their cue from Western cowboy fashions.

The inverted pompadour is a "last word" hair-do that is exciting much interest. The hair is brought down over the forehead, the ends turned under, which, when deftly done, gives every appearance of bangs. Not only is this ever so flattering, but it is very practical, for it stays neatly "put," with minimum care.

Something new for the bridal gown—white Nylon velvet, said to be very charming to the eye, and highly satisfactory in that it drapes beautifully and yields pleasingly to fabric manipulation.

Very new for spring are navy coats or capes that have small shapely collars of white caracul, broadtail or similar fabriclike fur. Other models in navy have simply a cluster of white ermine tails at the throat. White hat and accessories worn with these coats and capes key to the white of the fur.

To wear with your spring and summer print dresses, look up bead or flower necklaces, bracelets and clips that pick up one or more colors of the print.

1941 Jeweled Gadgets

Romantic, Whimsical

You must wear a jeweled "gadget" of some sort on your lapel. It may be as romantic and sentimental as your mood dictates, or it may be humorous and delightfully whimsical. In every event, however, it will be a masterpiece of good workmanship, for even the novelty types are exquisitely wrought. One of the amusing sort that is extremely provocative is a huge question mark all set in brilliants, with a dazzling solitaire rhinestone suspended from the base.

You might wear a glittering gold fish, a spray of colorful flowers worked out in elaborately set stones or a bright patriotic emblem.

CHRIST PROMISES POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 1:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

Important things bear repetition. Luke, who wrote both the Gospel and the Acts, presents the ascension of Christ, His promise of power, and His command to witness, at the conclusion of the Gospel and at the beginning of the Acts. "The one is all suffused with evening light; the other is radiant with the promise of a new day. The one is the record of a tender farewell; in the other, the sense of parting has almost been absorbed in the forward look to the new phase of relationship which is to begin."—(Alexander Maclaren).

I. The Proof of Christ's Resurrection (vv. 1-3).

Before telling of "the day in which he was taken up," Luke makes it clear that the ascended Christ, who had made the promise of power to His disciples, was the very one who died for our sins, but who could not be holden of death or the grave. He arose, of which there are indeed "many infallible proofs" (v. 3). At Easter time we recall the fact that leading historians and experts in the field of evidence have declared that the resurrection is the best established fact in all history.

The fact that for forty days after His resurrection Christ was among His disciples, speaking to them of the things of the kingdom of God, is significant and conclusive proof in itself.

As the indispensable dynamic of their service as His witnesses, He now assures them that they will receive power.

II. The Promise of Christ's Power (vv. 4-8).

They were to tarry in Jerusalem until the power of the Holy Ghost came upon them. This took place on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2) when the Holy Spirit came to abide. We no longer are called on to tarry for the Holy Spirit to fall on us, for the moment we believe. He comes into our lives in blessed abiding presence. But we do need to tarry, to wait for His fullness of power, before we attempt to minister for Christ. We need to yield to Him for His fullness, bringing out emptiness that He may fill us and then use us.

The disciples had an important question to ask (v. 6) regarding the restoration of the kingdom. The reply of Jesus turned their attention from that future matter to their present obligation to witness for Him and their need of power for that witness. This does not mean that His followers are to lack interest in the Kingdom which Christ will one day establish, nor that they should fail to be interested in prophecy and its fulfillment. It does clearly mean that we must leave times, seasons and dates to the Lord and be diligently about the business of witnessing for Him.

How greatly the little band of disciples needed power in that day to face a hostile, unbelieving world, sunken in bondage to Satan, and bring to it the convicting and converting message of the gospel. They received that power, and in spite of every hindrance the gospel through the centuries has made its way to the hearts of men, and won its victories for God.

We need that power today. The Holy Spirit is here to give it to us, as we yield our lives to God. There are many Spirit-empowered men and women in the Church today, but relatively their number is small. Who is ready to yield to His control now, and thus swell the host of faithful and effective witnesses?

III. The Pledge of Christ's Return (vv. 9-12).

We mentioned last week that sermons are seldom preached on the ascension of Christ, although it has an important place in the Bible. Even more glaring and disturbing is the failure of preachers and teachers to declare the truth of the second coming of Christ. The promise of it is written large on the pages of the Bible, but some men seem to ignore it.

How plain and understandable is the promise in this passage. "This Jesus"—not some other—"shall so come"; that is, personally, literally, and visibly. There is no ground here for spiritualizing, to say, for example that He comes in death, or that this was but a metaphorical expression.

The text is very plain and emphatic. In agreement, we find, among others, such texts as Luke 21:7; John 14:3; Philippians 3:20, 21; I Thessalonians 1:7-10; I Thessalonians 4:16; II Timothy 4:8; Hebrews 9:28; Revelation 1:7. Unless we reject God's Word, we must receive this truth, and should receive it with joy, for it is the blessed hope of the Church (Titus 2:13). He is coming again!

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HOUSES of glass are realities today and, if you want to give any house a modern air, try to make the windows seem important. One way is to frame them in a group by covering the wall and leaving the glass exposed. A comparison of these two sketches shows that this may be done even though the windows are unevenly spaced. The cream colored walls, glass curtains and window shades are the same in both and the same two-toned green rug and the same lamp and pictures are used. The couch and cushions are also the same but the covers are new.

An inexpensive chintz with gray-green ground and a flower pattern is used for draperies and to trim the couch cover of heavier gray-green cotton material which is also used for the cushions. The glass curtains are hung on rods suspended from the picture moulding with picture wire and hooks. The side drapes are unlined but the valance is made over buckram. Both are tacked to pine strips and are hung with picture hooks.

NOTE: All types of curtains and draperies are clearly explained with cutting and making directions in Mrs. Spears' SEWING Book 1—draw curtains, lined draperies, pinch pleated curtains, cornice boards, valance boards, as well as standard and period type curtains. Directions for modernizing a couch, various types of chairs, and a fascinating assortment of other useful homemaking projects are contained in Book 5. Copies are 10 cents each. Send order to:

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Horses Are Not Gone.

The Albia city council still recognizes the fact that the horses are still not a thing of the past. They rent a parking lot at a rate of $100 per year, for the purpose of having a place for rural residents in which to tie their horses.

No Joke This Time.

If anyone sends you on an errand to find a "left-handed" monkey wrench, let them know that the "joke is on them". There really is one, Jack Steel, Grundy Center, has one in his possession in which the screw threads are reversed and the wrench is intended to be used by a left-handed person.

Want to Learn Some New Household Tricks?

Of course you do—and it's the simple easy way of doing things —as ferreted out by millions of homemakers that have been compiled in this book, "Household Hints"—a book that literally every homemaker should own.

To get your copy, to learn the household tricks that for some reason or other you just haven't thought of before—send 10 cents in coin to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois — ask for the booklet "Household Hints."

ered, until onions are almost tender (approximately 20 minutes). Take care to preserve shape of onions while cooking. Drain, and arrange cut side up in a buttered baking dish. Remove the center of each onion and chop fine. Mix with the soft bread crumbs, salt and pepper, and bacon. Fill onion halves and top with the buttered bread crumbs. Cover bottom of the baking dish with water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until onions are tender and bread crumbs have browned, approximately ½ hour.

Cauliflower a la Parmesan.

1 head cauliflower, cooked
3 tablespoons grated cheese
1 cup white sauce
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Place cauliflower in greased casserole. Pour white sauce over cauliflower, and sprinkle with cheese and bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until crumbs are delicately browned. Serves 6.

Spinach Nut Ring.

(Serves 6)
3 cups cooked spinach
3 eggs (beaten)
½ cup bread crumbs
¾ cup nut meats (cut fine)
¼ cup bacon fat
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Chop the spinach and add the beaten eggs and other ingredients in the order given. Turn into a greased ring mold and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 30 minutes, or until it is firm. Turn out on a hot, round platter.

Savory Glazed Carrots.

Cook until onions are tender:
2 tablespoons onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter

Flour carrots and saute with onions and butter for 10 minutes:
9 or 10 whole carrots, scraped (5 to 6 inches long)
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt

Then pour on:
1 can consomme, diluted with
½ cup water

Cover tightly and cook until carrots are tender. Sprinkle with chopped parsley just before serving.

Corn Souffle.

4 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 cups canned corn
1 tablespoon chopped pimientos
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped celery
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites, beaten

Melt butter and add flour, salt and milk. Cook until very thick sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add corn, seasonings and egg yolks and beat three minutes. Fold in egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish, set in pan of hot water and bake 40 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F.).

Brussels Sprouts

Select light green, compact heads. One quart will serve six. Remove wilted leaves and soak for 15 minutes in cold water. Drain and cook uncovered for 20 minutes in boiling water. Add salt the last 10 minutes. Drain and serve with Hollandaise sauce.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

ONE little, two little, three little fashions—all in one easy pattern (No. 1313-B) that even inexperienced-at-sewing mothers can make with more fun than effort. This design includes a sleeveless pinafore, a brief trifle of bolero and a sunbonnet, all as cute as a baby in a bathtub! In the flaring pinafore alone, your tot can be as carefree and hoydenish as she could wish, playing on the sands or the greensward or her own backyard. When she adds the bolero, she's as demurely dressed for a visit to grandma as you could wish. The eye-protecting bonnet, of course, goes beautifully with either or both. Thus, by repeating this one pattern time and again, you can outfit your small daughter for spring and summer fun.

This little outfit looks adorable in red-checked gingham, flowered percale, plain or striped seersucker and buttercup yellow chambray, outlined with bright ricrac braid to match or contrast.

Pattern No. 1313-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 2⅞ yards of 35-inch material without nap and 8 yards of ricrac. Send order to:

Real Necessities

Necessity hath no law. Feigned necessities, imaginary necessities, are the greatest cozenage men can put upon the Providence of God, and make pretences to break known rules by.—Cromwell.

TIPS to Gardeners

GARDENING AS HOBBY

GARDENING as a hobby can be made to pay excellent dividends. As an example, a Missouri woman reports she made a net profit of $300 from her two-thirds-acre garden in a single season. Figured at market prices, food used fresh was $230; food canned, $80; and food stored, $71. Seed and sets cost her only $20.

There are two major requisites to obtaining garden profits of this kind. They are, willingness to work and the use of quality seed. It is important also to devote considerable space to multiple purpose crops like beets, onions, and tomatoes—crops that can be used in a variety of ways.

Here, briefly, are the uses of principal multi-purpose crops; Onions — green, as relish; mature bulbs fried, stewed, or as seasoning; bulbs for pickle, and relish making; tops for seasoning; bulbs for storage. Tomatoes — fresh fruits for slicing or stewing, for immediate table use; for canning, or for making tomato juice, or tomato catsup; green tomatoes for frying, or for use in pickle relishes, or in pie filler (like mince meat); yellow fruits for preserves, juice, or immediate table use.

Cabbage—fresh in slaw, or salad; cooked for table use; canned as kraut, or stored. Beets—tops for greens; roots cooked fresh, canned, pickled, or stored.

Had Hen but Been Long on Legs and Short on Neck!

The landlady glanced round the table at her twelve hungry boarders before starting to carve the rather sad-looking chicken.

In rapid succession she asked each which part of the fowl he preferred. Ten of them decided on legs.

The carver dropped her knife with a clatter on the dish.

"What do you imagine this is?" she said, sarcastically, pointing to the chicken. "A centipede, or what?"

"Oh, no," replied the boarder who had been served. "Judging by the piece of neck I've got, I should imagine it was a giraffe."

AROUND the HOUSE
Items of Interest to the Housewife

Put small cooked hamburger cakes between two hot biscuit halves and top them with a brown savory gravy or well seasoned white sauce. You'll like these.

* * *

Wire and iron bed-springs that become rusty should be given a coat of paint.

A strong railing to prevent falls and plenty of headroom are two important necessities for any safe cellar steps. When the steps are in a dark place, several coats of white paint applied to the steps will make for greater safety.

To glaze doughnuts while they are still warm dip in bowl in which 3 tablespoons butter have been mixed with 4 tablespoons boiling water and 1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar. Let doughnuts "dry" on waxed paper.

Mirrors should never be hung where the sun shines directly on them for any length of time.

Put your white wash on the sunny side of the line and keep the colored clothing in the shade.

Meat should not be seasoned until it is partially cooked.

Our first stop was at Cuelnavaca where we visited Cortez's palace, here and also in the National Palace, we saw the Murals by Diego Rivera, which tell the history of Mexico. We visited the Borda Gardens, the summer home of Maximillan and Carlotta. The trees and walks and swimming pool are still the same This garden was planted by La Borda, a Frenchman. From here we drove to Taxco, an old city built one the side of a mountain. The streets are very narrow and winding, and are made of coble stone. It is hard for an automobile to pass through these streets and still harder to keep out of the way of people and burros, carrying heavy loads on their heads and backs. The houses are built of plaster with red tile roofs.

From Taxco to Acapulco the road is very winding, the country is very mountainous. This is the dry season and the grasses and trees are all brown. Down in the valleys we saw nice fields of cane and corn Some of these were being planted and some were being harvested. About three plantings a year are made.

Bananas, oranges and coconuts grow through this part of Mexico. The bananas are small, but have a very fine flavor because they are tree-ripened. At Acapulco we bought coconuts for 20 centanos each or about 5 cents in American money. They opened them for us by slicing the ends open with their machete or long knife. We drank the milk then cut the coconut into small pieces, the meat is very firm but has a fine flavor. The houses at this place were made of posts or sticks and covered with coconut palm leaves. They cook in one house and sleep in another. The kitchen in one of these places was finished with a cement floor, a stove made of cement. On this stove, the Mexican woman was making tortillas (tor-tee-yah). The corn is soaked and cooked, then ground on a stone or at a commercial grinding place I watched her mix this cornmeal, which was very white, and mold it into cakes and bake it on a plate over wood fire. Chickens come into the house and pick up the cornmeal that fell on the floor. In another house I saw three beds made out of wooden frames and covered with heavy cloth into a hammock-like cot. The floor was made of sand. One hen was tied to a bed post, another one was sitting on a nest in the other corner of the room. Most every house has a few chickens, which are about the size of a bantam hen.

In the larger towns the houses are built of stone and plaster and in Mexico City, the homes in the new residential section are very beautiful. They are of Spanish architecture in colors of white and pink plaster. One of the most beautiful one was built at a cost of 250,000 pecos, or about 50 thousand dollars in American money. Mexico has some wealthy people and many very, very poor ones.

It was very warm through the mountain canyons and in the valleys from Mexico City to Acapulco. Also on the beach in the morning but a very strong wind blew up across the ocean and a light rain fell in the afternoon and evening. The rainy season begins about the first of May.

We left Acapulco Saturday on morning and drove back over the same winding road to Taxco here we spent the afternoon and evening. We visited the Borda church which was built by La Borda, a Frenchman, and given to Taxco. The golden altars and statutes are valued at 3 million pecos. This is Holy Week and services were being held. It was also Fiesta Day (carnival and market). People walk many miles carrying their wares on their back or on the backs of burros, perhaps several hours or several days over the mountain roads to come to these markets. The narrow streets were so filled with hats, baskets, pottery, foods and many other things besides the people, that is was almost impossible to worm our way through. Their merry-go-round and ferris wheels were very much like the ones in the States.

Taxco is a silver mining town, as it has very rich silver mines and has many silversmiths and shops where silver is sold. Broaches, necklaces, rings and so on. Some of these pieces are very beautiful especially the filigre work. Everything is hand-made. I watched them work with their little saws and touches and hammers. They sell at various prices from a few pecos up.

Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, the bells in the big church tolled a beautiful hymn. We stopped at the Harrison Hotel, these people formerly lived in Des Moines, Iowa but have lived in Mexico for a number of years. After a good night's rest and a hearty breakfast, we were again on our way to Mexico City.

We drove through Cuernavaca and passed the summer home of Dwight Morran. It is very close to a narrow street and is well enclosed, but our guide told us it was very beautiful inside.

We stopped at Kochimilci and the Floating Gardens. The earth covered rafts on which these gardens have been planted have become stationary, but the canals are still there. We rode through them in a covered canoe, while banjo players, in native costumes, serenaded us. Girls and women in small canoes were selling flowers to the tourists. I bought a bunch of pink carnations (about 75) for half a peso or 10 cents in American money. A large bunch of blue violets, beautifully arranged with green leaves for the same price. If the stems weren't tied I would not be able to hold them in one hand. I have them here in my room and they are fresh and beautiful. We arrived in Mexico City shortly after noon in time for lunch and to see the Bull Fight Sunday afternoon.

Most of our group wanted to go the price of a seat was 15 pesos, or about $3. I wasn't interested in the fight so I spent the afternoon visiting the Plaza and the Art Palace. This is a very beautiful new building, made entirely of Mexican marble. The upper rooms were closed and I did not see the paintings. Tomorrow I intend to visit the National Museum, next week I shall write and tell you about the Pyramids of the Sun and Moon.

Sincerely,
Frieda Schuldt

Times Want Ads Work Fast!

Last week Roy Schaefer advertised a bath tub for sale in the classified section of the Klemme Times. The paper was in the mail at 5:00 p. m. and at 6 p. m. Roy called the Times office that the tub was sold.

The adv. cost Roy 13 cents. If you have something to sell or to trade, why not use the Times one-cent-a-word ads?

Experts and amateurs alike acclaim LOWE BROTHERS PLAX, the universal beauty gloss for all enameling. And no wonder! PLAX makes it easy to obtain expert results. Adaptable to any surface, PLAX hides effectively, covers solidly and flows freely: What's more, PLAX resists wear and weather and many stains and acids—as dramatic "abuse tests" prove. And PLAX, the universal beauty finish, is economical, too, because ordinarily only one coat is needed for refinishing.

and Mrs. Jorgenson:- ht I will try and tell you y things I saw at the Na- luseum today. nd this to be one of the teresting museums I have sited. This building has at e served as the Mint and rs are very heavy. The is built of stone as most e old buildings are. In the om near the entrance, is ge calendar stone that was y the Aztecs as a calendar o a clock. This stone meas- out 4 or 5 feet in diameter carved in many designs present the days of the he seasons, the rising and sun and other things which ide explained to us.

room was filled with golden s and images which had ken out of the Convent and at St. Theresa. In another were many beautiful gowns, had been worn by Carlotta, r pearl necklaces and emer- welery.

imillian's carraige was ela- y decorated m gold leaf. side was lined in white . This had been drawn by te horses. The blankets for horses were made of red vel- eavily embroidered in gold , and golden fringe around utside.

also saw Montezuma's shield reproducion of his feather dress. Several rooms are fill- ith reproductions of the Az- nd Toltec Temples and many, stones that are carved in and various designs and s, some very small and some large. I spent nearly three in this museum but it is sary to spend several days a guide in order to see it all. out a block from the museum e heart of Mexico City, an building has been torn down underneath this some old were found. Through the fence that surrounds it. I see the ruins of some old ings, the stone steps and the d tile floor.

exico City is rapidly becoming odern city Many of the older dings are being torn down and sky scrapers are going up, of them are very beautifully hed in Mexican Marble. The buildings are built of very stone walls and are very cold the only way of heating them ith electric stoves.

omeof the streets are very wide the traffic rules are somewhat erent and oftentimes its very icult to cross the streets. lexico has many American tour- Today while I was walking n the streets, I stopped in the to rest and I met some erican tourists who said their e was in Chicago, and when I them I was from Iowa, they , they had formerly lived in falo Center and were cousins Mrs. Walter Jahnke.

To-morrow we are going to ebla and to-morrow night I will try and tell you what we saw.

A Typical Mexican Farm Home Described By Miss Schuldt

Tuesday· The drive to Cholula and Puebla was very interesting. We drove a distance of about 160 miles for the round trip. The road is paved with asphalt and the greater part of it is a beautiful tree-lined drive, winding through the mountains and valleys. The highest pass has an altitude of 9,000 feet. It was a clear morning and we had a fine view of the two volcanoes, Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl. They have an altitude of over 17,000 feet and are both snow-capped. The valleys through this part of Mexico are more fertile. We saw several haciendias (large ranches). Some of these fields were planted with corn, wheat, alfalfa, maguay, also vegetables and fruit trees, which were m bloom. This soil seemed very sandy and on our way home we passed through a dust storm. Our guide told us it was the first one he had seen for some time. The men and women were out in the fields working by hand, others were plowing with a single plow drawn by oxen, horses or burros. I haven't seen a tractor since I came to Mexico, although I've seen many automobiles, trucks and buses, especially in the larger cities.

We passed through Cholula, the Rome of Mexico. This valley has 365 churches, one of these churches has 49 domes. Only a few of these churches are now in use In 1857 Juarez, who was president at that time, separated the church from the government and many of them were closed, also the convents. We stopped at the Cathedral in Puebla which is not the largest, but the most beautiful one on the North American continent. This was built in the 16th century, with money brought from Spain, it has three altars and 12 shrines. The large pillars are made of marble and onyx. The statutes and other decorations are 18 carat gold leaf. The choir chairs are made of many pieces of inland wood in beautiful designs. The floors are of inlaid marble and onyx. The cost of this cathedral is unknown At the Santa Domingo church we saw the most elaborate and costly altar, known as the Chapel of the Rosary. This also is made of pure gold leaf. We visited the Secret Convent at Santa Monica, which had been secretly operated for 78 years but in 1934 it was discovered and closed. In this convent are many paintings which have been brought from the other convents and churches and among these are some which are about 12 feet square and are painted on velvet in beautiful colors which are still very bright and the velvet is soft as new velvet. These were painted by an Indian painter, about 125 years ago and it is unknown what kind of paints he used, they have not stiffened the velvet.

MISS EULA VEENSTRA WEDS MR. HARMEN G. TRAMPEL

Marriage Perfomed At Klemme Reformed Church By Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch

Miss Eula Veenstra and Harmen G. Trampel were united in marriage at 7 30 o'clock Saturday evening, April 5th, 1941, at the Klemme Reformed Church, with Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch officiating.

The couple were attended at the altar by Miss Margaret Veenstra, a sister of the Bride, as bridesmaid, and Mr. Clarence Trampel, brother of the groom, as best man.

The single ring ceremony was used.

The Bride wore a gown of beige crepe with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of bride's roses and white snapdragons.

The Bridesmaid wore a rose colored dress with black accessories. She also wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The groom wore a teal blue suit and white carnation boutonnier. The Best Man wore a blue suit and a pink carnation boutonnier.

The Bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Busse and for the past few years has been a teacher in the rural schools of this county.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and has been a successful farmer in the vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs Trampel will make their home near Klemme.

Klemme "Goes To Town" In District Music Contest

EDITOR'S SON RETURNS FROM EXTENSIVE TRIP THRU SOUTH

Ray Jorgenson, Jr. returned to Indianola Saturday evening after completing an extensive tour of the southern states during the Simpson College spring vacadtion.

In company with Dr. Fillman, biology instructor, and Bryon Kern, a Classmate the party left Indianola on March 26th and took a route through Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Their main objective was a visit to the U.S. Naval Flying School at Pensacola, Flordia, where Ray and Byron expect to enter the service in June. The boys were greatly impressed with the course of aviation at Pensacola.

Their return trip home took them through Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri. Enroute to and from Pensacola they took in many places of scenic beauty and interest.

On this trip Dr. Fillman completed a tour of forty-eight states, while Ray Jr. now has forty one states visited to his credit.

KLEMME SCHOOL WINS MANY PLACES IN MUSIC CONTEST

Local Musicians Set Record In Number Of Places won In Contest

Klemme High School musicians, under the direction of Bernard O. Onerheim, made the best record in the history of the school in their participation in the district music contest held at Hampton last week end. Out of fifteen events entered, the local students won four Division 1 ratings, nine Division 11 ratings, and two Division 111 ratings.

First places were won by Billy Zabilka's clarinet solo, Irene Becker's marimba-xylophone solo, the saxophone quartet, and the boy's glee club. Competiton was keen in all of these events, and the students have been complimented highly on their work. The band and mixed chorus both made very strong bids in their division, but were edged out of first place by close decisions.

The winning of a first place by the saxophone quartet was a rather unusual performance, as three of the four members of his group are in the eighth grade. Director Onerheim is lookng forward to big things from his group in the next few years of competition, Members of the quartet are Edna Spitler, Edward Buntenbach, Edward Barz, and Patricia Kudje.

Members of the winning boys' glee club are: Allen Barz, Bill Grosshuesch, Frederick Bell, Walter Greiman, Robert Schulz, Aaron Wille, Eugene Haberkamp, Merlyn Ulrich, Carrol Etchen and Harold Swalve.

Klemme's delegation of sixteen winners will compete in the state contest at Waverly May 1, 2, and 3. They will be accompanied by Mr. Onerheim, director, and Mrs. Gerardi, accompainst for the marmbe solo:

Double Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kisor, Union Mills, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. On the same day, their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Duffus, celebrated their 25th anniversary.

Designers.

The members of the Friendly Society at Nashua had a chance to show their ability as hat resigners recently. Everyone was to bring a hat of antique model, or a modern one of original design, for which any kind of material could be used.

-oOo-

Tomatoes.

Mrs. Art Kluckhohn, of Garner, will soon be eating ripe tomatoes from her own "garden." She had potted the tomato plants in the fall and is now "reaping the rewards" of her winter's work.

-oOo-

Helped.

When Mrs. R. E. Tennant, Clarion, suffered a heart attack one night, she fell, knocking the telephone off the stand which flashed on the switchboard. Miss Michels, night operator, could get no answer but heard someone moan, and immediately called a local doctor.

-oOo-

Large Wolf.

J. J. Clark, Guthrie Center, last week shot a large timber wolf. The animal measured 71 inches long.

Circle Meeting

Circle 2 of the W. S. C. S will meet in the League Room of the Klemme Methodist Church this week Thursday afternoon, April 10 at 2: o'clock

Circle Number 3 will meet at the home of Mrs. P. W. Wilson April 17 at two o,clock.

American Legion Auxiliary Notes

The Auxiliary has plans for a rummage sale to be held on Wednesday April 30. A food sale will be held on that date also.

Next County Meeting will be at Crystal Lake Tuseday April 22.

CHECK LOST

A Greenfield retail store owner, while "cleaning house" last week, came across a letter addressed to the local community sale barn. After delivering the letter, which had been lost since January 10 to its rightful owner, it was found to contain a check for $850.

Men in U. S. Army Best Fed in Nation With Meals Carefully Planned by Experts

By HOPE CHAMBERLIN
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

FT. SLOCUM, N. Y.—America's rapidly growing army will be on display April 7 as Army Day is observed throughout the nation. Whether visiting civilians know it or not, they will be watching the best fed army in the world. They will see men whose diet is watched so carefully that even the number of calories and vitamins they eat are planned far in advance.

"Uncle Sam feeds its soldiers better'n 72 per cent of American families are fed." . . . these are the words of Sergt. Thomas L. Delvecchio, boss of the U. S. Army School for Bakers and Cooks at Ft. Slocum, N. Y. And he should know!

Proof of Sergeant Delvecchio's statement comes from Maj. Paul Logan, food expert of the army's quartermaster corps, who states emphatically that the army is and will continue to be the best fed group of our population!

In averaging the analyses made of army messes throughout the country, it was found that the American soldier consumes 5,138 calories a day, as compared to the 3,000 of the average American. In vitamins, the soldier averages 5,760 units of vitamin A, 1,173 of vitamin B, 46 milligrams of vitamin C, and 2.3 milligrams of vitamin B2—all in greater quantities than the average American!

Served Nutritious Food.

"Come and get it" to the soldier of 1941 means a plateful of good, palatable, nutritious food. To food wholesalers and government men it means hard work behind the scenes.

Before conscription, when the army had no more than 50,000 men, split into given units, the food-buying problem was simple. The 130-odd camp quartermasters went personally to local markets.

But the problem changed overnight. Not only will the army shortly have a million and a half men to feed, but the number of men in each camp will be tremendous.

Camps of 25,000 men require more food than cities of equal size. The army will be about the biggest food buyer and distributor in the country, exceeded in size only by A & P and perhaps one or two other chains.

On certain staple items, such as canned goods, army purchases may well amount to from 10 to 15 per cent of total production. Food orders that used to require less-than-carload shipments will call for the shipment of many solid carloads. So, independent local buying is out of the question, and centralized purchasing is the only logical answer.

Regional Markets.

New York offices will buy all sugar, coffee, tea, spices and other manufactured items. Chicago will buy all canned vegetables, canned meats, cereal, flour and similar foodstuffs produced on a nation-wide basis San Francisco will buy canned and dried fruits, salmon and other West coast produce.

By May 1, the date when the army will start issuing rations to local quartermasters in actual food, rather than cash, these new super offices will be ready to take over all contract letting, according to Douglas MacKeachie, food purchase co-ordinator.

When it comes to buying food, the army is far more finicky than the average housewife. Old army rules read that a packer could deliver on an army contract no lamb weighing more than 45 pounds, and the soldiers' mess tables used to be guarded against all but steer beef. But that's all changed now.

Because the army can't be guided by what the book says, but by what the market offers, lambs up to 60 pounds will be acceptable until April 30, when the new group is well along. Heifer meat will be acceptable for boned, frozen field supplies.

Even though meals are now scientifically planned by experts, army cooks look the same as they did back in '17. This field kitchen staff is hard at work preparing for "mess," because the soldiers will probably be very hungry.

Smaller Cans Used.

The army has also stepped down its ideas on can sizes and will hereafter buy some of its spiced pork produces (such as Spam and Prem) in the 12-ounce cans of retail trade, instead of holding doggedly to only those cans large enough to feed a battalion. Also, six-ounce cans of emergency rations will be bought in large quantities.

Soldiers generally get meat for five dinners, five suppers and four breakfasts a week. Allowances for the noon meal alone average around one-half pound per man—more meat than the civilian ordinarily engulfs, no matter how prosperous.

The foregoing facts are probably adequate to convince the reader that military experts recognize the importance of good food in maintaining a high esprit de corps, morale and efficiency of an army. Without good food and nutrition, all other preparation, no matter how carefully planned, will not be brilliantly or efficiently executed.

The collapse of Germany in 1918 was partially due to malnutrition of the German soldier; the rout of the Italians in Caporetto in October, 1917, has been traced to the drastic reduction in the Italian army ration put into effect the preceeding February; similarly, the defeat of the British at Gallipoli in the Dardanelles campaign of 1915-1916 has been attributed to the failure of mind, nerve and muscle, caused by rations so unbalanced as to permit a high percentage of both beri beri and scurvy.

Aware of the importance of food, the quartermaster corps, directly responsible for providing food, and plenty of it, has efficient personnel, highly trained in the science of nutrition, inspection, and preparation of food.

Maintain Cooking School.

Because there has been difficulty in the past in obtaining enough good cooks, the army even maintains cooking schools (one of which is located in every army corps area) whose facilities may be severely tested by the rapid growth of our citizen army. The best cooks, it is said, are Negroes, Frenchmen and Italians.

The ration (food provided for one man for one day) being used by our citizen army for its one-year of training is called the Garrison ration. It consists of 39 items, such as 10 ounces of beef and 8 ounces of other meats; 10 ounces of potatoes and 11 ounces of other fresh vegetables; 12 ounces of flour; 1½ ounces of rolled oats and a little more than 10 ounces of rice and dried beans; 20 ounces of butter; 1 egg; 1⅓ ounces of lard; 8 ounces of fresh milk and 10 of evaporated; 5 ounces of sugar; 5 ounces of fruit, 20 of coffee and smaller amounts of various others, such as jams, jellies, peanut butter and condiments. The shipping weight of this food is 5½ pounds every day for each man. The cost? $750,000 a day for a million and a half soldiers.

This Garrison ration, however, is not limited to these 39 items, which might become monotonous. This is prevented by a system of substitution, which permits the mess officer to substitute other items in the same general class of foods of about equal nutritive value. That is, in place of the 10 ounces of beef each day, he may substitute an equal amount of lamb, mutton, veal, liver, or pork.

Latest news for army diets is the plan for feeding soldiers bread fortified by the morale-building B vitamins, which, authorities claim, will make them better fighters.

Strain on body and nerves which modern warfare brings about with its lightning speed, whirl-wind devastation and nerve-shattering machines causes army nutritionists to feel that soldiers must be fed not only enough food of the right kind, but enriched foods.

Dehydrated foods are also undergoing tests. These foods occupy little space, and therefore help the quartermaster corps in its continual battle to ship as much food in as little space as possible. Soldiers recently ate a test dinner prepared entirely from dehydrated foods, except for the meat and gravy. The menu included cream of tomato soup, roast beef with brown gravy, mashed potatoes, creamed carrots, cole slaw, cranberry jelly, apple and pumpkin pie.

A pound of cranberry flakes, "gross weight," expands to serve 109 soldiers, whereas a pound of canned cranberry jelly represents only 6½ servings.

Food value of the dehydrated preparations is apparently equal to that of canned foods, but tests are now being conducted to obtain accurate information as to the vitamin and mineral values that the dried foods contain.

All this planning is a far cry from the meager unbalanced meals fed the Colonial Army. And it proves that those in command are leaving no stone unturned in their effort to serve, in American Army camps everywhere, the finest mess on earth!

Government Buys Auto Trailers for Defense Workers

WASHINGTON.—More than 2,000 automobile trailers are being purchased by the government to furnish "stopgap" housing in crowded defense areas

These orders are expected to absorb virtually the entire output of the largest manufacturers in the trailer business for some time, according to C. B. Baldwin, Farm Security administrator.

The trailer camps will be established as part of the emergency defense housing program to provide shelter for families of industrial workers in areas where the period of defense employment is expected to be relatively short. In addition to the trailers, Farm Security will build dormitories for approximately 2,900 single men working in such industries.

When they are no longer needed in the original locations, the trailers can be moved to other areas with emergency housing problems.

Tuberculosis Death Rate Found Highest Among Young Girls

MINNEAPOLIS. — Girls between 15 and 25 years of age have lagged far behind young men of the same ages, in the improvement of the tuberculosis death rate.

Each year 65 per cent more girls die from the disease than their brothers, boy friends and husbands in the 15-25 age bracket, according to a study by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

In the United States tuberculosis does its deadliest work nowadays among women of child-bearing ages, the population segment most vital to America's present and future, the study points out.

Biological differences—the greater changes in the female organism at adolescence—make girls and young women naturally more susceptible to tuberculosis.

The male death rate from tuberculosis overtakes that of women at about age 30, and thereafter runs steadily higher, but in the child-bearing ages from 20 to 35, 22 per cent more women die of tuberculosis than do men of corresponding ages. The greatest number of deaths from this cause among any five-year age-sex group occurs among young women aged 20-24, and the second largest group of fatalities occurs among young women aged 25 to 29.

Since girls first reach maximum susceptibility to tuberculosis in their early teens, the report suggests that all high schools should conduct health classes in which effects of "fad" diets, tobacco, alcohol, insufficient sleep, and scanty clothing are graphically taught.

It also recommends that parents of teen-age and older girls should act promptly upon observing any symptoms of lassitude, even slight elevation of temperature, or loss of appetite.

A tuberculin test should be made, supplemented by X-ray chest examinations wherever indicated. If there has been any exposure through association with a case of tuberculosis in class or elsewhere, tests should always be made.

A case of pleurisy without pneumonia, the report warns, should in the case of a girl or young woman be considered tuberculosis until definitely proved otherwise. If tuberculosis is detected in its early stages and modern treatment is promptly begun and carried through, a cure is usually assured.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma—

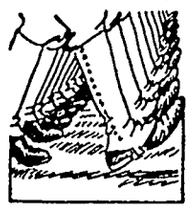
The bundle containing pajammers arrived okay and I am now one of the few men in camp who don't sleep in his underclothes. You wud think the army wud issue pajammers to soldiers on account they have been a part of men's night clothing for years but I gess General Grant didn't wear them so the army don't recognize 'em yet. I wish you wud pick plainer colors as the boys are all kidding me and asking who I think I am Looshush Beebe.

* * *

It is okay to send me some bath towels and some good soap as the army issues none that I can locate and gee mom wud it be a treat if the army had bathrooms right off the main room like at home! Going to the bathroom here is like being a member by Admiral Bird's expedishun. Some of the boys that started for the bathroom early in the winter are out in the ice floes yet and I gess polar bears got one or two of 'em.

* * *

I wish you wud send me a flashlight as the army is way behind on street lighting and this camp in the middle of the night is no Broadway. You asked me about sending a radio. Well, only one radio is allowed to a tent of five men and we have one but the hardest fighting so far is between me and the four others over what programs we should tune in on. Believe me ma them four other fellows have lousy taste in what is good radio entertainment.



* * *

The drilling is still being pushed witch seams pretty silly as I knew how to walk long before I came up here and anything I did not know I learned before I was here a week.

* * *

I am still getting lots of gun practice and while I am no Buffalo Bill I gess I could hit an enemy if he was well bunched and did not come at me zigg-zagg. We do not get much zigg-zagg practice. I get a lot of open field practice and have to keep dropping flat on my stummick and I know why Napoleon said a army traveled on its stummick as my stummick has corns on it now. I can't tell half the time weather I am fighting a enemy or looking for moths in a rug.

* * *

One of the boys is going to be transferred to the parashoot corpse because he has an uncle who knows a congressman and he is welkum to it. I don't know what I am doing in the army, but I know I certainly ain't in it because of no yen for parashoots.

* * *

The idea is to fly in a plain into the enemy's country and then jump out trusting that everything will work according to the set of direckshun that comes with the parashoot but I have never have no wish to go up in a airplain let along to jump out of one. Life in the infantry is tough but you always know you are a soldier and not a circus performer.

* * *

Have you heard any more news about what this is all about, I mean have we leased the war from England yet and what part of Europe am I going to be loaned to? The papers are as confusing as ever, one editor saying we will be kept short of war and the other saying we ain't more than a half inch short of it right now. Well, anyhow, ma, all I am doing is trusting that Roosevelt wasn't fooling in his eleckshun speeches when he said I wud get in no war and that anyway I wud not wind up in Europe or Asia loaned, leased or owned outright. But I will close now as it is time to drill again.

Your son,
Oscar.

FRANK CAPRA is not only an ace director, he's a doctor for ailing careers as well. A brief appearance in one of his pictures has revitalized the professional life of many a deserving actor whom other directors have overlooked in their scramble for new faces.

May Robson was saved from inactivity in her later years when Capra gave her the lead in "Lady for a Day." Alan Hale had had a lot of blah parts, couldn't escape them—then he landed again in the front ranks in "It Happened One Night," the film which transformed Clark Gable from a straight romantic lead into a light comedian. Capra's latest, "Meet John Doe," promises to do wonders for James Gleason and Regis Toomey, who won a Warner Bros. contract as a result of his work. Barbara Stanwyck became a star 10 years ago in a Capra film, "Ladies of Leisure."

Neckwear Gives Fresh, Sparkling Charm to Spring Suits, Coats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR a fashion-right approach to chic and charm for your Easter costume, try the lacy, crisp-white neckwear way. It will work like magic. The new jabots and animated cascades of sheer white, the smart detachable lace-trimmed and befrilled yokes, likewise the huge immaculately white sailor collars that stress the new low-cut, deep-throated lines are performing miracles in adding "the touch that tells."

You will find the neckwear quest one of high adventure this spring, for fashion is dramatizing the theme. Versatile lingerie touches will carry your costume to dizzy heights of allure.

There's big news in the revival of frilly jabots this season, and history is also repeating itself in the animated white fluttery cascades, the kind that will help "lift" any blouse, frock or jacketed tailleur right into spring. The sheer organdie and Val lace jabot which cascades from a tiny turnover organdie collar (pictured above to the left in the group illustrated) is warranted to give springlike froth and freshness to any Easter costume. The jabot is attached to an organdie vestee, so it stays anchored and serves as a blouse.

A magic panel in embroidered organdie and lace (shown above to the right) may be depended upon to perform magic on any dress, be it print or plain, smart navy, unerring black or a delectable pastel shade. A clip attachment under the bow adjusts to any neckline. Clip it on to your newest frock and presto! it will sparkle with lacy loveliness.

Colored embroidery, especially cross stitch and petit point, is an important spring 1941 message for neckwear. The collar and cuff set below to the right in the group is one of the charming new versions. Rambler roses are embroidered on linen in red and black cross stitch.

You will be seeing quantities of this type of embroidery as the season advances, for petit point, especially, is being featured on handkerchiefs, handbags, and in fact, quite generally throughout the mode.

All dressed up and ready to go stepping in the Easter parade is the smartly clad maiden in the panel portrait to the left. For that fresh-out-of-a-band-box look, Evelyn Alden, American designer, has created a youthful redingote (redingotes are "tops" this spring) with a crisp lingerie bib attached to the neckline of the dress beneath. Be sure to wear a fruit-laden hat with this ensemble, for fruit trimmings are tremendously important.

A new trend, and one that is rich with possibilities, is the wide use of pleated white lingerie frillings in unique and dramatic ways. You can buy these pleatings by the yard at neckwear counters. Newly arrived navy or black suits and dresses are finished off at throat and wrist with generous rufflings done in the dandified Regency period manner.

You can give your bolero frock or suit a fresh spring uplift by sewing in a white ruff that extends down the front edges of your bolero or even all the way round if you prefer. As most fashion-alert women are aware, the newest dresses are styled with yokes this spring. For a final swank accent, follow the outline of the yoke of your frock or your blouse with crisp white lingerie pleating. Many best shops are featuring this very new idea.

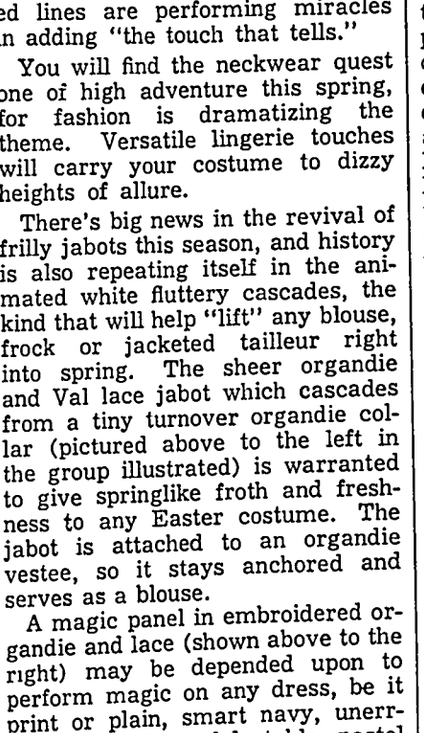
Patriotic Emblems



Patriotic emblems are proving an endless source of inspiration for decorative motifs in costume design. Flags, stars, eagles, nautical insignia seen in bright embroidery or in glittering colorful jewels. They lend enchantment to new fashions in endless ways. Here you see a stunning white rayon hi-hat turban and matching scarf. This twosome is inexpensive, and at the same time is good looking and decidedly practical.

Thoroughly American in color and design, these decorative pieces give wardrobes that pro-America look!

Low-Cut Necklines Tell New Fashion Story

There is a new movement in necklines that will be a dominating influence in blouses and dresses from now on. The collar opening continues down to form a low deep slender point. Some dresses have an extra little camisole device to wear on less formal occasions. The deep-throated effect is extremely flattering. To wear at the low point, stunning jewelry clips are being especially designed. These will tell a fascinating new fashion story.

Deep Pleated Flounces Popular on Navy Coats

There is a very smart new-type coat being shown which is particularly striking in navy. The body line is fashioned after the fitted princess lines, to which a knee depth pleated flounce of the self fabric is seamed. You can get stunning costume suits that have these long coats, worn over a matching one-piece dress.

Enchanting Blouses

The new blouses are simply enchanting. They are frilled, tucked and lace-trimmed in fascinating profusion. Their feminine frou frou is distractingly pretty. On the Easter parade they will appear in endless procession, adding winsomeness to the legions of navy suits and caped costume ensembles.

Pale Coats, Pale Furs

Beige coats are taking unto themselves fur trimmings in delicate tones to match. Reefer fronts of furs are chic

CHRIST SHOWS HIMSELF ALIVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:13-17, 25-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore.—Revelation 1:18.

Certainty and assurance — these are at the heart of our observance of Easter. We declare with Paul, "Now is Christ risen from the dead" (I Cor. 15:20), and that He is "declared to be the Son of God with power . . . by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1:4). We would join the apostles who "with great power gave . . . witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 4:33).

Someone may say, "That's well enough for you who have faith in God, but I'm bewildered, uncertain, fearful, in a disordered world. What shall I do?" Come with us as, in our lesson, we join two men who had become bewildered, who felt that all their hopes had been crushed, that the future was only to be feared.

We join them as they walk wearily along the road from Jerusalem to Emmaus. Suddenly there is Another with the little group. Let us listen to their conversation. First we find

I. Holden Eyes and Slow Hearts (vv. 13-17, 25, 26).

The two sad men who had left Jerusalem to go to Emmaus were disciples of our Lord who had just been through the crushing experience of seeing Him crucified. Now, as the jeering mob held triumphant sway in the city, they left the dead Christ (as they supposed) in the tomb and went their way. True, there had been some reports on the morning of the third day that the women had seen Jesus alive (vv. 23, 24), but their hope and faith was at such low ebb that they could not —or did not—believe. Even when Jesus appeared to walk with them and question them, they did not know Him.

Eyes closed by unbelief; faith hindered by doubt and fear; a despondent heart slow to believe God—how very effectively these shut out the blessing of God and of His Word, even to the believer. Even deeper is the darkness in which the unbeliever finds himself. But all is not lost; there is One here who can open unseeing eyes and warm cold hearts —even Jesus.

II. Burning Hearts and Opened Eyes (vv. 26-32).

Although they did not realize it (how slow we are to appreciate our blessings!) until after He was gone (v. 32), their hearts began to burn within them as soon as He began to expound the Scriptures to them.

What a Bible exposition that was, as Christ Himself opened all that the Scriptures taught concerning Him! Bible teachers have talked about, and it makes one's heart burn just to read their suggestions (see for example Morgan on Luke, page 278). Little wonder that these men were "strangely warmed" as they listened.

The way to have a burning heart is to read God's Word or to have it expounded by a Spirit-filled teacher or preacher. Especially is there blessing in reading and studying what the sacred Book teaches about our blessed Lord.

With the heart "strangely warmed," as John Wesley described his Aldersgate experience, comes the opened eye. "They knew him" (v. 31) in the breaking of the bread. Perhaps they saw the scar in His hand, or possibly they identified a familiar gesture or something in His voice; but until their hearts were warmed they did not see. Paul knew that truth when he declared: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (I Cor. 2:14).

Some reader who has trouble believing in the resurrection will find the problem solved when he meets Christ and has his heart changed in regeneration. What follows?

III. Quickened Feet and Glad Testimony (vv. 33-35).

The seven miles (sixty furlongs, v. 13) which had passed so slowly were now quickly retraced. They had glorious good news to bring to the disciples at Jerusalem. How swift are the feet of the one who has good tidings to bear (see Rom. 10:15). One wonders why so many professed Christians are so slow about carrying His message. Can it be that they do not yet know the risen Christ? For if we know Him, surely "we do not well" to keep silent in a day of good tidings (II Kings 7:9).

Note in verse 34 that before they could speak, the others gave them the good news of the resurrection. It is proper and delightful that believers share spiritual blessings (Rom. 1:11, 12). That's why we come together in God's house.

Brother in the Lord, Christian sister, how long is it since you had a new and stirring experience of the presence of Christ? Not necessarily spectacular or exciting, but a real spiritual experience. Let's ask Him for it!

Tarpon Evoluting?

Scientists believe the tarpon may be undergoing a strange evolution. An examination of their air bladders has shown a large amount of lung tissue, proving that the fish are not entirely dependent upon their gills for oxygen. This may be the reason why they can change from salt to fresh water and vice versa. The tarpon is the only fish that is known to have passed through the canal, 40 miles or so of which is fresh water.

Oldest European Dye

The oldest known European dye was made from the herbaceous plant, reseda luteola, commonly called "weld." The name weld probably came from the old German word walda from which the French word gaude was derived—the source of our own word "gaudy" To produce the propular gaude green of that day, the material to be dved was first dipped in indigo and then in weld.

The Average Man

The average man is 5 feet, 10 inches tall; weighs 150 pounds; has enough fat to make seven bars of soap; enough iron to make one nail; enough sugar to fill a shaker; enough lime to whitewash a chicken coop; enough phosphorus to make 2,200 match tips; enough magnesium for a dose of magnesia; total value 98 cents.

The Connecticut Compromise

The Connecticut compromise was the first great compromise of the Constitutional convention, whereby it was agreed that in the senate each state should have two members and that in the house the number of representatives was to be based upon population. Thus the rights of the small states were safeguarded and the majority of the population was to be fairly represented.

SPORTS NEWS

Baseball season has arrived again. All Baseball boys are- throwing the cowhide through the gymnasium for practice.

The first game to be played is with Hayfield. It is the first game of the County Tournament.

Klemme has eight games scheduled this year.

Sports Nonsense

Bruce Arnold is glad basketball is over. He certainly is due for a vacation The boys really kept him busy

All the boys returned from the State Basketball Tournament in fine condition except Garland!

JUNIOR NEWS

Did you know Garland got his black eye from a head-on collision with Allen Barz? I wonder how that could be because Garland is a giant and Allen a milget! We suppose this is the reason why the girls looked much prettier in Des Moines than here in Klemme.

The Junior girls wish to express their gratitude and appreciation to the boys for their services rendered on the banquet these past weeks

SOPHOMORE NEWS

Lately, for some "unknown" reasons the sophomore class, as well as everyone else, has noticed that colds tranfer easily. No matter how careful you seem to be you can't always avoid them. If you don't believe this just ask a certain sophomore girl.

In English we are studying the chapter on verbs.

In biology we are studying about plants.

FRESHMAN NEWS

The losing side, Allan Lau's, of the English contest gave La Vohn Scallawin's side (the winners) a party Friday night. Candy Easter Eggs were awarded the winners of the scavenger hunt. We played spin the bottle, drop the handkerchief, and winkum. Huge dishes of ice cream with lots of chocolate sauce on them were served. All the Freshmen present had heaps of fun

Corrine, Barbara, Lorn, and Mervin entertained the English Club with "Truth and Consequences" Friday.

GRADES 7-8

Ruth Bell, Mavis Meyer, Jimmy Thomas, Junior Buntenbach, Elwald Grosshuesch, Patricia Kudje, Edward Barz, and Herbert Mueller went to Hampton Friday to play in the band.

Ewald, Lavonne. Ruth, and Harlan had perfect scores in spelling.

We are studying the heavenly bodies in science and we had several experiments to show eclipse of sun and moon and how the sun marks time.

Miss Merritt read to us "My Sister and I" It was written by Dirk van der Heile, a boy who survived the bombing of Rotterdam. We all liked it.

GRADES 5-6

Phyllis. Peggy and William went to the music contest at Hampton on Friday.

We have been working on our "First Aid" health unit. We have been having demonstrations in connection with this unit.

In art we are drawing pictures of flowers. This week we drew Easter lillies.

Perfect spelling scores were won by Edward, William, Shirley, Esther, Ruth Smith, Darlvin, Irene, Delores, Helen, Velma. Phyllis, Peggy, Roger R., Roger B., Ruth Stokesbary, Carol, Clarence, Elizabeth, Arlene Dean and Mary Lou

GRADES 3-4

We were sorry to have Phyllis Maye Hennagir move away. Now we have only sixteen in our room.

We did spring housecleaning for our fish, turtle and nails by cleaning the aquarium. We changed the sand at the bottom for colored stones and shells.

Larry has been busy with band practice. He left Friday morning for the music festival.

We made Easter design in finger-paints for Art.

In Spelling the following had 100 per cent· Dorance, Phyllis S, Edward, Norma, Isabella, and Larry.

KINDERGARTEN, GRADES 1-2

Janice Swanson and Dickie Dulmes visited school one afternoon this week.

We have been reading Easter stories. We made posters of Easter eggs in baskets.

Billy brought us some pussy-willows

Maralee and Maxine read a story to the boys and girls in the 5th and 6th grade room.

ODDS AND ENDS

By this weeks paper you can see how the assistant editor fulfills a position which she undertakes. The editor has been busy with contest, and we hope she comes through with a high rating.

We are all wondering where the Senior and Music News items are this week? Could it be a loss of memory?

We wish to thank Betty Lass and Eva Velau for their help in typing the news.

DRAMATICS

You have seen the Hardy family on the screen and now you have a chance to see them in person on the stage. The Hardy family will appear in the Senior class play "Skidding" to be presented the third week in April.

The cast of characters are:
Andy Hardy . . You guess?
Judge Hardy .. Keith Stille
Mrs. Hardy. Shirley Johnson
Aunt Milly . .. Ruth Stille
Wayne Trenton, W. Greiman
Myra Wilcox Dorothy Baack
Estelle Gertrude Grosshuesch
Mr Stubbins Harold Swalve

Who else but the Mickey Rooney of our class Allen Barz?

Light colors are preferred for the painting of the submerged portions of the hulls of ships The reason for this is that barnacles accumulate faster on wood that is painted a dark color than on white and light tints.

Chinese as Fishermen

The Chinese use 120 different methods of fishing, the most ingenious being accomplished by the use of a boat with a white board hanging over one side and a net propped up on the other. For some unknown reason, says Collier's Weekly, the fish leap at this board, gleaming in the moonlight, and land in the boat. Powerful leapers that would clear it are stopped by the net.

Folger Shakespeare Library

The Folger Shakespeare library in Washington houses the finest collection of Shakespeare material outside of England. Eighty-five thousand volumes, ranging from first folios to the most modern product of Shakespearean research, are on its shelves. Of a world supply of 200 first folios, the Folger library possesses 79. The next largest collection is in the British museum, which contains but five first folios. The oldest document on display is one written at Rouen, France, in 1435 and signed by the king's treasurer, John, Bastard of Orleans, which mentions Sir John Fastolf, who, in name though not in character, became Shakespeare's Falstaff. The library building includes a theater which seats 262.

the unbeaten eggs and sugar; mix well. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients; mix until smooth. Place mixture on a floured board; roll until ½ inch thick, cut into rounds with a floured doughnut cutter. Cook in deep, hot fat (370 degrees F.) until golden brown. Drain on soft paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Idaho Suzettes.

6 medium-sized Idaho potatoes
½ cup hot milk
2 tablespoons melted fat
6 tablespoons buttered crumbs
1 tablespoon grated cheese
6 eggs
Salt and pepper

Select medium-sized or large potatoes; scrub and bake at 450 degrees F. until each is soft when you pick it up and squeeze with a cloth. When done, remove a piece of skin from the side of each potato to make it boat-shaped, or cut large potatoes in two, lengthwise. Scoop out the inside, being careful not to break the shell. Mash the pulp thoroughly, or put it through a ricer. Add butter, salt and milk and beat well. Pile the mixture lightly back into the shells. Refill the shell to the top and make a depression in the center of each potato. Break an egg into each depression, season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with buttered crumbs that have been combined with grated cheese. Bake in a slow oven (250-350 degrees F.) long enough to set the egg and brown lightly—for 6 to 10 minutes.

Belgian Baked Potatoes.

Wash and peel potatoes and cut into eighths lengthwise. Dry between towels. Dip cut pieces in melted shortening and lay in a shallow pan, being sure that they do not overlap. Bake in a quick oven (400 degrees F.) until brown on top. Turn carefully and continue baking until they resemble french-fried potatoes. Baste them with more shortening during baking, if necessary. When done, sprinkle with salt and serve piping hot.

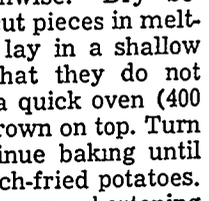
Franconia Potatoes.

Use uniform medium potatoes. Pare and parboil 10 minutes. Drain, place around roast, and bake 40 minutes, or until soft, turning often and basting with fat in pan so that they will brown.

Old-Fashioned Scalloped Potatoes.

4 large potatoes, pared
1 small onion, thinly sliced
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1½ tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon butter
1¾ cups milk

Cut potatoes in ⅛-inch slices. Place potatoes and onions in buttered baking dish sprinkling each layer with salt, pepper and flour, and dotting with butter. Add milk and cover. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 2 hours, or until potatoes are tender, uncovering them during the last 30 minutes of baking. Serves 4.



Lyonnaise Potatoes.

4 teaspoons butter or bacon fat
2 onions, sliced
3 cups cooked potatoes
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

Heat the fat in a frying pan and cook the onions in it a few minutes. Add the potatoes and cook slowly, stirring occasionally until all sides of the potatoes are golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Press flat with knife and shake over low fire until brown on bottom. Turn like an omelet. Serve on a hot platter with finely chopped parsley sprinkled over the top.

LIQUIDS REPLACE DRY FERTILIZER

Helps to Prevent Big Loss Caused by Drouth.

By DR. V. A. TIEDJENS
(Associate Olericulturist, N. J. Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Farmers need no longer fear the bugaboo of drouthy years that heretofore have robbed them of returns they should have had on their fertilizer dollars. They are licking the problem by applying fertilizer in solution instead of in the dry form to vegetables, farm crops, pastures.

By thus applying chemical fertilizer dissolved in water, the burning of fertilizers applied dry is eliminated and phosphates are made more available.

Liquid fertilizers are used as starter solutions applied to the roots of plants when they are set, or applied in the drill with beans, corn, and other seeds. They may also be applied as a side-dressing as the crops are growing.

Regular fertilizer mixtures may be used for liquid applications, but they usually have so much residue that the solution must be prepared a day or two in advance and the liquid separated from the residue. These mixtures are too acid for starter solutions, but may be used for side-dressing purposes.

Higher analysis mixtures have been used to better advantage when the phosphorus was derived from mono-ammonium phosphate. A 13-26-13 mixture, made with urea, mono-ammonium phosphate, muriate of potash and nitrate of soda and used at the rate of 2 to 4 pounds in 50 gallons of water, has given very good results as a starter or side dressing solution. This mixture is almost wholly soluble and can be made up as it is used. It becomes sticky when exposed to the air.

Liquid fertilizers have given more economical results than dry mixtures due to the greater availability of the phosphates.

Liquid fertilizers have been used successfully to grow large acreages of tomatoes, beans, cauliflower, broccoli, cabbage, sweet corn and celery. In every case yields were better because, as growers stated, the crops grew in spite of dry weather.

Spring Pasture Feeding Changes Flavor of Milk

Slight defects in flavor may prevent full enjoyment of milk and thus curtail its use, says H. A. Herman of the Missouri college. It is to the interest of every producer or handler of milk then to protect the flavor of milk and its products.

Flavors in milk may originate at various stages in its production and handling. Bad flavors are not necessarily associated with the safety of milk for food purposes.

In early spring, and in particular on short and weed-infested pastures, weed flavors are quite common since cows are forced to eat herbage they might otherwise refuse. Cows in milk should not be forced to depend too heavily on pastures infested with wild onions or similar weeds. If the dairyman has no other choice, however, he can hold the flavors imparted by these various weeds to a minimum by removing the cows 3 to 6 hours before milking time.

A change from dry feeding to grass always results in a different flavor appearing in the milk, and customers sometimes complain. These flavors can be prevented by following a well planned routine of feeding.

An Ohio survey made in 1924 in nine counties revealed that 47 per cent of the farm homes were more than 50 years old and the average distance from the well to the kitchen was 74 feet.

Forest land in the United States so heavily cut over that it is practically idle represents an area equal in size to Italy, says U. S. forest service.

A recommended remedy for ridding hogs of worms is a full feed of whole oats which have been soaked in buttermilk given after the hogs have been kept off feed for 24 to 30 hours. The oats should be soaked for 10 or 12 hours. Buttermilk can be prepared by mixing one gallon of semi-solid buttermilk with 12 gallons of water.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

SAME BED WITH FOOT CUT DOWN-THE DOTTED SWISS VALANCE IS STITCHED TO MUSLIN BETWEEN THE SPRINGS AND MATTRESS
HAND-MADE QUILT IS NOT WELL DISPLAYED ON A BED WITH HIGH FOOT BOARD AND NO VALANCE

QUILTS do not belong to any one period and there doesn't seem to be the slightest indication that the old art of making them is dying out. Most quilts today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps are used in the piecing, one dominant plain color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity. Again, one color is combined with white throughout the entire quilt. Some quilts have elaborate pieced borders; others are finished with a band of white with the dominant color used as an edge binding. A bias striped material makes the binding of the quilt in the Whirl Wind pattern shown here.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. They knew that in the days of the four-poster and the rule applies still. The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt spread to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt that is worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

FRIEDA SCHULDT TELLS OF TRIP THROUGH OLD MEXICO

Puebla is a very old city and has a population of 200,000 and has 100 churches and is 100 per cent Catholic.

It has a tile factory and a pottery factory which we visited. We saw them mould clay and make the pottery and decorate it. This is all hand work. We visited the onyx shops where beautiful pieces of onyx are sold We stopped at the serape market where the serapes (shawls) and blankets were sold in various colors, designs, sizes and prices. Most of the passengers bought some, but I had already loaded myself down with vases and baskets which are almost impossible to resist.

We left Puebla at 4 p. m. and reached Mexico City at 6 p. m. We had another grand view of the two great mountains that guard the city. It seemed that new snow had fallen on them as the peaks seemed whiter. Far in the distance we saw a forest fire. At this point we passed through a fine forest. The soil is not quite so rocky through these parts. I can very well understand why these people build everything of stone. They certainly have enough of them and they believe in using their own products. The Toltecs were great builders.

To-morrow we leave Mexico City and on our way home we will see the great pyramids.

Thursday evening and we're in Monterey. We left Mexico City Wednesday at about 8:30 a. m. after about an hour's drive we reached the great pyramids of the Sun and Moon. It is impossible to imagine the immensity of the Pyramid of the Sun. tI is made of small stones and morter or plaster like stone wall. The great ampitheather and the sacrifical altars are also made up of small stones in many and various designs, and have at one time been painted in colorful designs. Most of the coloring has been washed or worn away. But the Great Stone Wall and steps and altars still stand. There is no record of its age or how or by whom they were built. They stand alone in a desert country surrounded by cactus and shrubs and have just in recent years been uncovered.

We passed through large maguey fields. This is a cactus plant which is cultivated and after six years growth the heart of the plant is cut out and the juice drawn out, after this has fermented, it is used for a drink.

About noon we were in the high mountains. climbing upto an altitude of about 7,000 feet. The clouds in the distance were far beneath us. It was a very beautiful sight. The day had been very warm but the air was cool in the mountains although there is no snow on them. At sunset we were again going down into the valley to the little town of Tamazunchale (Tom and Charlie) where we spent the night. The air was close and warm like a summer night in Iowa. A light rain began to fall in the night and all through the day we drove through the rain. Some of the fields were soaked with rain. We were told it had rained continuously for 15 days. The fields and trees are much greener here than around Mexico City. It is interesting to see how these steep mountain sides are cultivated and divided into small patches. This work is all done by hand and the people live in the tiniest houses made of sticks and with thatched roofs.

One more day and will be back in San Antonio. It may depend upon how long we will be delayed at the border. It will be some task to go through the customs with all the baskets and blankets and other things that some of the passengers have bought. Each one is allowed $100.00 in American money, duty free.

Everyone is tired and anxious to get home. that is the best part of a vacation trip. To get back home to our work and our friends and the people we know.

Sincerely,
Frieda Schuldt

ouse Traps Made In Klemme ach Nationwide Distribution

eone once made the statement that "If you made a better mouse han your neighbor, the world would beat a well-troden path to your door." That statement gave Walt Thada and idea several years a- he set about to make a better mouse trap than any on the mar- that time.

mme has an industry s now known throughout entire forty-eight states e Union, as well as a few n countries, as the pro- of the Runway Mouse Company last year were in every state.

e Runway Trap, made in me, is expected his year ach a distribution of a- a half million traps.

vented by Walt Thada

e late Walt Thada was inventor of the mouse which has proved so suc- ul in catching mice e all other traps have d. Mr Thada worked on idea of a radically differ- of mouse trap for sever- ears before the present of mouse trap was fin- perfected and placed on market.

e first traps were quite e, but changes and new s were applied and the gradually worked out to ction and manufacturing ready to start.

e late Walter Thada, who was inventor of the now famous nway Mouse Trap," made a y of the habits of mice.

r. Thada would set traps in his e and in the evenings would h the results. He found that usually traveled along near a . He also found that mice d to go through small openings. found that by leaning a board the mouse trap and against wall that more mice were cap- d.

hese observations gave Mr. Tha- he key to the design of a more ctive trap it must be made to against the wall, or runway, it t be designed so the mouse ld go through the trap, instead over it. And, in brief, that is story behind the Runway trap.

Factory Built In 1938

or a time traps were made in basement of the Thada Store where improvements were le but the original design was ely followed. Soon more room s needed for the growing busi- s and Mr Thada buildt a fact- y north of the Lewis Produce tion where the traps were as- bled, packed and shipped. The ts were made at Webster City d the traps assembled in Klem- . This system was used until re- tly when a new Marshalltown

MOUSE GETS CAUGHT!

The Runway Muse Trap

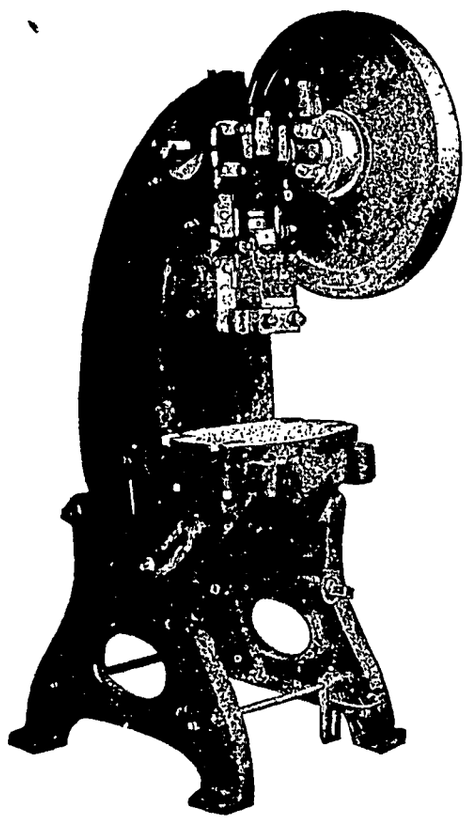
ress was installed a couple of eeks ago, and the entire trap is ow manufactured in Klemme.

The new press is powered with a horse-power electric motor and s a capacity of 22 tons pressure. is of ample size to die-cut all rts of the trap.

Traps In Fiesta Colors

Up until the present time the raps were manufactured of the ommon lead coated metal, but r. Ed. Thompson, manager of the actory, conceived the idea of mak- ng the traps in a variety of colors nd they are now being made in rilliant . Iustrious enameled met- k in red, yellow, blue, green and ay.

The bright colors attract attent- n in shop windows and display ers, but have no effect on the ility to catch mice as research orts say that mice are color



NEW MARSHALLTOWN PRESS Recently Installed

Traps Are Easy Setting

One of the best features of the Runway Trap is the ease with which it is set. Women do not mind setting this trap, or emptying out a dead mouse, as the trap is merely picked up and the top pressed slightly to set and empty the mouse The trap is durable as it is entirely made of metal and is so constructed that it kills the mouse immediately and will also catch very small mice that would get past an ordinary trap. The trap also seems to be just as effective when no bait is used.

Half Million Traps This Year

When Mr. Thada was manufactured the traps, his son-in- law, Ed Thompson was associated with him in business, and on the death of Mr. Thada the business has since been managed by Mr. Thompson

During 1939 the factory turned out 65.000 traps in 1940 over 300,000 traps were manufactured and sold in every state in the Union and Canada. Arrangements were made for the sale of traps in Egypt and a small number had been shipped to that far country, but no shipments have been made since the war broke out.

There are at present sixteen salesman on the road selling Runway Traps, and seven people are employed at the local factory. Mr. Thompson says he expects to turn out over a half million traps this year.

Many Satisfied Users

Nearly every day brings a letter from some customer praising the trap. Here is a paragraph from a letter received from the Boyt Harness Company of Des Moines which is typical: "The first two days we used your traps we caught 400 mice (actual count) and have since caught over a thousand of them."

Another letter tells of a customer who was bothered with snakes getting into his bird houses. Runway traps were set and the snakes were caught. Another customer baited the traps with a kernel of corn and caught sparrows that were pestering him. So it seems that the trap is useful in more ways than one.

New Dies Being Used

Besides purchasing the new Marshalltown press for stamping out the several metal parts used in the trap, Mr. Thompson has also purcased a complete new set of dies.

The dies used must be very accurate as the trap works with a sensitive trigger action that can be tripped by the weight of a dollar bill. The value of the dies used in making the traps represents an outlay of some over $3,000.00 The old dies are kept on hand to replace any die which might become damagd during manufacture.

Will Build Rap Trap

Mr. Thompson has had many inquiries for a rat trap and for some time has been working on plans which may be put into production later. War conditions, however, are making it more difficult to secure metal for the manufacture of traps and plans for a larger trap may have to be postponed.

ECKARD ZEIDLER FIRST TO BRING IN FISH THIS SPRING

Echard Zeidler is the first Klemme nimrod to bring in a fish this spring For the past few years Echard has ben Klemme's No. 1 early fisherman

Friday Echard succeeded in hooking a bullhead in the Iowa River, after a couple of other trips had proven no good. Zeidler has his weather eye wide open and one of these days he expects to bring in a sizable string of delicious bullheads.

Milo Patet and Walt Lemke are also showing signs of uneasiness and no doubt they will give Echard some competition before long.

CARL WILLE IMPROVES HIS FARM BY REMOVING TREE STUMPS

Carl Wille did a lot or improving around his farm yard last week when he had a lot of old trees and tree stumps blasted out. Carl says he used $25 worth of dynamite to get the job done, but he is quite pleased with the results.

The Wille family have made a lot of changes at the farm since they purchased it. They are living on what is known as the old white farm just south o Klemme about a half mile.

Hog Prices Have Been Stimulated

Government $9 Peg Probably Will "Up" Prices Faster Than Without It

Hog prices, soon to pegged at $9 by the government, probably would have averaged that high during the next 2 years even without L. K. Soth, Iowa State College exension agricltural economist. Both supply and demand indicate a hog price level at least that high and probably considerably higher.

More Fall Pigs

During the next few months. However, hog prices probably average higher than they would have without the price pegging program, Soth says. In other words, the government's buying program will put hog prices up faster than they would have gone. But, on the other hand, hog prices may average lower later in the year as a result of the early rise.

As a result of the government's action, hog producers undoubtedly will expand their plans for farrowing of fall pigs. Forecasts of higher pieces made last December did not have much effect on spring farrowing plans, partly because it was too late and partly because farmers were skeptical.

Fewer Than In 1940

The nation's spring pig crop probably will run around 42 millions. according to estimates of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. This will be 14 percent under the spring farrowings of a year ago. In spite of an anticipated increase in the fall pig crop, the total hog crop for the year probably will be smaller than in 1940 when a total of 77 million hogs were farrowed, and much smaller than 1939—when farmers saved 68 million head.

Plan Disposal Plant In Garner

Garner Councilmen Approve Building; Financed by Bonds

Garner—At a special meeting Tuseday evening, the town council approved a new disposal plant to be built on the site of the present plant.

The new building will be financed by issuance of general obligation bonds by the town of Garner, according to Mayor J. S. Wesson. Bonds will be sold and contactors will be paid in cash on monthly estimates as the work progresses.

Plans for the new plant have been considered for the past two years and Tuseday evening's action of the council assures early construction.

Definite plans of construction and lettings will be announced in the near furture.

HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS HERE FOR PAST TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS

Swea City Manager Comes To Klemme To Take Over Grange's Former Position

Due to the retirement of Ira Shoemaker, manager of the Northern Lumber Company yard and office at Mason City, the Company is making some changes in managers, and the change effects the Klemme yard

Paul Grange, who has been with the Northern Lumber Company in Klemme for the past twenty-seven years, will be promoted to the managership of the yard at Mason City.

Mr. Grange came here in 1914 from Gruver, where he was employed with the Northern. His position here at that time was book keeper and assistant to Nels Palmer, then manager here.

Except for the time Mr. Grange was in the army during the last World War, and for a short time at Webster City, he has been with the Northern continuosly for 27 years In 1921, after the death of Nels Palmer he was appointed manager of the yard here.

During the time Mr. Grange was manager he built up the business here until the yard is one of the best in the Northern's holdings.

Mr. Grange has always been a public spirited man and through his efforts and influence many civic improvements have been made in Klemme. During the years he and his family have resided in Klemme, he has served as secretary of the school board, has served as Mayor for eight years, which position he now holds, has been Commander of the local Legion Post, has served on various Civic Club committees, and was always ready to do more than his part in promoting anything for the betterment of Klemme.

Mr. Keith Albertson, who has been manager of the Northern Lumber Company at Swea City, comes to Klemme to manage the yard here.

Mr. and Mrs. Grange will move to Mason City as soon as they can find a house. Their son, Dorance is a student in the Junior College at Mason City. The family will be greatly missed by their many Klemme friends.

And now a word about the cleverly decorated Easter eggs that appear in the basket above.

You'll agree that even the most aristocratic rabbit should be proud to claim these original eggs. Decorating them is both easy and inexpensive. You'll need large white eggs, a package of dyes from the Five and Ten, a spoon - shaped wire hook with an end to use as a handle (for dipping eggs into the dye), rubber cement and stickers.

Buy gold and silver stars, dots in various colors, small red hearts, linen reinforcements that are really meant for loose-leaf notebooks, flower seals such as tulips, and red and blue legal seals. Most of these come in several sizes, but the small ones are the easiest to glue on a curved surface.

After the well-known hard boiling process you use your imagination about covering the eggs with stars and dots. Then try arranging hearts in four-leaf clover patterns, or turn the points outward and stick them around a center dot, as flower petals, All-over designs of blue legal seals and stripes of the red ones, pasted so closely that they overlap a bit, are quite effective. There are endless arrangements, and you have the advantage of being able to soak off and replace designs until you are pleased, without wasting an egg.

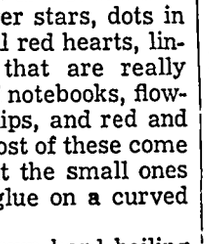
What to do with the Easter supply of hard-cooked eggs? I'm coming to that . . . Coarsely chopped or sliced hard-cooked eggs in superbly seasoned cream or white sauce become CREAMED EGGS. They will give luncheon and dinner menus a lift when served on crisply fried cornmeal slices, potato cakes, or waffles.



With eggs and cheese such boon companions, and cheese a prime favorite, too, ESCALLOPED EGGS and CHEESE is another use for Easter eggs—after Easter.

Creamed Eggs.
6 eggs, hard cooked
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne or nutmeg

Melt butter, add flour and stir until smooth. Add cold milk. Cook and stir constantly until thick. Remove from fire and place over hot water. Add seasonings and sliced eggs, cut lengthwise. Stir carefully. Serves 4.

Escalloped Eggs and Cheese.
1½ tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup soft bread crumbs
3 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup grated cheese
6 to 8 hard cooked eggs

Prepare a sauce of butter, flour, milk and seasonings. Arrange in greased casserole in layers using three-quarters of the crumbs, the sliced eggs, cheese and sauce. Top with remaining one-fourth cup of crumbs, mixed with the melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven, (350 degrees F.) until sauce is bubbly and top nicely browned, about 40 minutes. Serve plain or with tomato sauce. Serves 4 or 5.

LYNN SAYS:

Eggs join with other foods to fill your needs and produce your health. They are among our best sources of the muscle building proteins. They are high in iron which is needed to build good red blood. They supply phosphorus which forms a part of every active cell of the body.

When "peeling" hard-cooked eggs, crackle the shells, then start the peeling at the rounded end of the egg. Holding the eggs under running cold water or dipping in a bowl of cold water helps to ease the shell off, leaving a smooth, unbroken surface of white.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma:

I wish you wud stop worrying about me as I am all right accept for fallen arches, flu, chilblains, a limp in both legs and indigestion. But I feel a lot less like squawking since I talked to an old timer up here who was in the last war and from what he says I gess we have all modern improvements up here now. He says in the last war the draft army just had tents like they wuz camping out with no wooden floors and no electric lights and he says every time you was not in bed you was standing in wet grass or in a mud puddle.

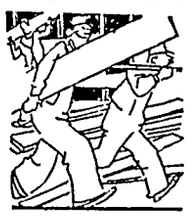
He says tents did not have windows and screen doors like we have today and that in rainy weather a soldier had to live like a mud turtle. He says he didn't see no wooden floors from the time he left home until the army got back from France. It is hard for me to beleeve this as this camp is a regular building project and there is almost as many carpenters here as soldiers. They shood have all the buildings finished by the time the war is over, if they get good weather and don't walk so far for nails.



* * *

Army life is a big disserpointment to me ma on account I always had an idea from the story books and pictures that most soldiers had saddle horses to ride. I ain't seen no horse since I got here. It is strictly a bunion derby army as I sed befour. I wish army uniforms fitted better. What the army needs is more tailors. I got a hat that is big enough for a coat and a coat so tight I cud use it for a hat.

* * *

There is no glammer here like in the movies of army life. Almost everybody here needs a shave and haircut and this goes for the generals who are homely old pelicans and don't look nothing like the generals in pictures accept Wally Berry.

The boys here tell me the training I am getting is good for me but I do not feel no better than when I started training even if I am in better shape like the doctors say. I wud rather be out of condishun in private life than a perfect spessermen in the army. I sleep good but not for long on account of the rule that makes a soldier get up at daybreak. (I never seen so many sunrises in my life.) Gee ma I am half through a day's training before you and the folks are out of bed back home. I wud be in better shape for a war if I cud sleep an hour longer.

If I wuz in a war I wud not squawk but what is the sense getting an army up so early when there is nothing to do but just what you done the day befour witch cud be done better in brighter sunlite anyhow.

* * *

I am glad the winter is over. The first robin was seen in a army chicken pie here yesterday and four baby chicks hatched out of a half dozen eggs in the mess room last week. Spring can't cum to soon as I have had enuff outdoor life in cold weather and do not care for it even if it does make Eskimoes healthier.

* * *

Well, I must close now ma as I have got to go walking again in defense of my country. Cud you send me some more socks as my feet wear right through them the first 100 miles?

Love,

Oscar.

CUT OFF ENDS OF ROCKERS
SCREW TO A BOARD

DO YOU remember how old-fashioned comforters used to be tufted? They were made of two layers of fabric with cotton between and every four inches or so in rows the three layers of material were caught together with a stitch of wool yarn double which was then tied twice and clipped to make a fluffy tuft. Well, that is exactly the way many of today's smartest chair covers are made. A cover of this sort redeemed this old rocker and revealed its hidden charms.

The cover is plain, medium green glazed chintz tufted with dark green yarn and three inch dark green fringe is used around the bottom. A long zipper makes a center back closing. Each section of the cover was fitted on the chair in the muslin lining first and these pieces were used as patterns for cutting the chintz, also the cotton which was trimmed to be ¾-inch smaller all around. After the pieces were tufted, as shown at the upper right, the seams were stitched up. Long stitches were then made on the inside to catch the edges of the cotton in place.

NOTE: Are you planning to make slip covers this Spring? Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 3 tell you exactly how. Book 1 gives directions for fitting and finishing slip covers for chairs and davenports. Book 3 shows you how to make a pattern first; also how to arrange openings in covers for chairs of unusual types, and how to anchor slip covers so they will stay neatly in place. TIPS to Gardeners

CHOOSE BEANS WISELY

THE gardener should be well acquainted with the many available varieties of stringless beans, if he is to get the most from his bean crop.

If earliness is the principal interest, the gardener should select either Bountiful (green-podded) or Golden Wax (yellow). Bountiful is excellent for use when small, in shoe-string size. It is also a good choice for home canning, for it produces abundantly.

The gardener interested in yield over a long season should select both a bush bean, and a pole bean. The pole beans begin producing when the yield from the bush beans tapers off.

Kentucky Wonder is one of the best all-purpose pole beans. It provides good quality snap beans. When past the snap stage, the pods may be cut up, and cooked southern style. Later, this bean may be used in the green shell stage. In the more mature stage the beans may be used in baking or in soup.

Prophetic Author

Copenhagen's first bombproof shelter, built a short time ago, is on the site where Ludvig Holberg, the celebrated Scandinavian author, wrote his Epistolae in 1727. In it, says Collier's, Holbert predicted that if men should ever learn to fly they would swoop down upon and attempt to destroy great numbers of innocent people who, to save themselves, would have to take refuge in holes in the ground.

At Least Stern Parent Had Son's Rapt Attention

Father had decided that he must administer a strict lecture to his six-year-old son. The boy had been naughty, but did not seem to appreciate the fact, and it was with some reluctance that the parent undertook a scolding.

He spoke judiciously but severely; he recounted the lad's misdeeds, and explained the whys and wherefores of his solemn rebuke. His wife sat by, duly impressed.

Finally, when the father paused for breath, and, incidentally to hear the culprit's acknowledgment of error, the lad, his face beaming with admiration, turned to his mother and said: "Mother isn't father interesting?"

MUSIC NOTES

Band started marching practice Wednesday afternoon. We are using the Mark H. Hindsley System.

Group pictures of the band, mixed chorus, girls glee club, boys glee club, and saxophone quartet were taken Monday morning.

We wish to extend the thanks and congratulations of the music department to our winners at Hampton. These people will take part in the State music contest at Waverly May 1, 2. and 3. The winning events are: Clarinet solo, Billy Zabilka playing "Dreamland Serenade" by Cox, Marimba solo, Irene Becker playing "Caprice Vienoisse" by Fritz Kriesler; Saxophone quartet, 1st Eflat alto-Patricia Kudje, 2nd Eflat alto-Edward Barz, Tenor-Edward Buntenbach, Eflat Baritone-Edna Spitler This group played "A Perfect Day" by Carrie Jacobs-Bond and "Der Freischultz" by Karl Maria VonWebner. Boys' glee club: 1st tenor-Harold Swalve. Merlyn Ulrich, Carroll Etchen 2nd tenor-Eugene Haberkamp, Aaron Wille; 1st bass-Calvin Grosshusech, Walter Greiman 2nd bass-Allen Barz, Fred Bell, Robert Schultz. This group sang "The Bull Dog." We hope that the hard work of the above groups will be contagious.

It is an impossibility to get any place unless hard work comes first; so congratulations fellow students

DRAMATICS

After going through all the ordeals Judge Hardy did in the play "Skidding", Keith definitely will not be a judge.

Allen is getting so used to calling Shirley "Mother" in the play, that it just comes natural in real life.

Walter will have to worry about more than just his play parts April 25 That "diamond" is not a small matter.

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

The senior home economics students went to cooking school at Garner Wednesday.

It's the funniest thing that the teachers never ask the questions you expect in six weeks tests.

The seniors had to postpone their class play a week. It's not that we're so dumb; we just want to put on a superperfect play.

One of the Junior boys asked us to publish this notice:

The boys wish to thank the girls for the work which they didn't do the boys.

Junior Boys

If you can figure out the above, you're a genius. We always thought the Juniors were queer and after reading this we're sure of it.

FRESHMAN NEWS

Wednesday afternoon Mr. Onerheim submitted to our pleas and gave us a final (and how) test.

The business training class has been having a lot of fun cutting paper money. Not forgeting Corrine Merkel is a banker. (Printed on request)

Wava and Freda are simply whizzing along on their pajams. The same cannot be said for Barbara.

The latest rumor: Elwyn Ridder remarked when Allyss Rapp visited school Wednesday, "What a freshman class they are going to have next year."

JUNIOR NEWS

The Juniors are proud of Billy Zablika for rating a superior in his clarinet solo. We all feel that he has the ability and will do his best at the State contset.

Grade News

KINDERGARTEN, GRADES 1-2

Wednesday afternoon we colored Easter eggs which we brought to school. We thought they were pretty.

We had an Easter egg hunt in our room Thursday We found little baskets of Easter eggs.

Jacqalea brought two guinea pigs to school on afternoon.

Janice Waddingham visited school Wednesday afternoon. Jimmy Karsjens and Tommy Waddingham visited school Thursday afternoon.

GRADES 3-4

We had a unit on letter writing in language this week.

Fourth grade had a score of good in Number Drill No. 13.

In geography we are studying about cotton. We wrote stories about the uses of cotton. Here is Isabelle's story: "I have learned that cotton has many uses. Many new uses for cotton have found in the last years. We wear cotton clothes; we sleep on cotton sheets and mattresses; we eat salad dressing margarine in which cottonseed oil has been used. We eat meat from cattle fattened with cottonseed feed. Cotton is used in making phonograph records, movie films. automobile tires, and safety glass for windows. It is even used in making roads and houses. I am beginning to wonder if there is anyway in which cotton cannot be used."

We had an Easter egg hunt Thursday. It was fun.

GRADES 5-6

On Thursday we had our science unit test over the unit "First Aid."

We had vacation on Good Friday.

Donna Heivilin visited in our room on Tuesday and Wednesday. She is going to Ventura to school. They have a spring vacation.

Perfect spelling scores in the test this week were earned by Elizabeth, Phyllis, Roger R.. Helen, Deores, Ruth Smith, Rose, Irene, and Edward.

GRADES 7-8

Robert Tiggerman Patricia Kudje, Herbert Schwartz. and Wesley Suckow have been neither absent nor tardy this past six weeks.

Ruth Bell and Patricia earned perfect scores in their six weeks spelling test.

We have been patiently waiting for thee sun to shine on a school day so that we can perform some experiments in general science.

There was no school on Friday.

All Over Again

Wallace Louden, Blanchard, had recovered sufficienty to be on crutches, after having both legs broken, only to have one of them broken again when he fell last week.

Burned

Frank Parcher, Nodaway ,filled a glass with what he thought was water, from a jug. He was soon taken to a hospital suffering from burns in his mouth and throat. The "water" was acid used for testing cream. , ,

Bad Luck

Last week was a bad one for Billy Campbell of Batavia. He fell and knocked a tooth loose, cutting his lip, he fell again and cut his head—again, he fell, this time burning his hands on a hot air register.

Back again

"This watch was purchased from L. S. Robinson, Glenwood, in 1886", was writen on a piece of paper inside the watch which Jim Sowers of Henderson brought to be repaired last week. The man who did the repairing, was Lewis Robinson, son of the merchant who sold the watch 55 years ago.

Crawlers

Monson Shaver and Dell Means, Corning, were going back to childhood days, when they crawled a number of blocks on their hands and knees—just for a wager. Before the excurison was over, a large crowd was following the procedure.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and daughters Anna, and Mrs. Paul Cavitt and son Robert; Arthur Conners and Mr. and Mrs. John Trampel and sons were Easter Sunday dinner guests at the Henry Busse home.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the Peter Trampel home Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Harmen Trampel. The afternoon was spent in different games and contests. After which the bride opened her numerous presents which were found very nice as well as useful. Lunch was also served.

No Grudge

Merrill Dougherty, Indianola, was recently fined for overloading a truck, by Justice J. K. Green, Corydon. Dougherty held no resentment against the Justice, for last week he was back again—this time on a more serious case—his own marriage.

Friendly

A "friendly" thief, calmly got into the car belonging to Walter Larson, LeMars, and waved to persons along the street, as he drove off. The car was found shortly after the incident, in a ditch, where the car had hit a soft shoulder in the road, and turned over. The man could not be found.

Miracle

Billy Cole of Hopkington may call himself very lucky. When the car driven by Supt. Mecklenburg of the Hopkinton school accidentally ran over him, he was hardly injured. Both wheels of one side of the car passed over his head, but he was soon home, with only a few cuts to show for the experience.

U. S. Develops Great Generals In Every War

Gen. Marshall Heads Army As Nation Watches World Conflict.

By ROGER SHAW
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON. — Every American war, or war in which America was interested, has turned out a general, or two, or three. In the Revolution there were George Washington and Nathaniel Greene, of first rank. Strangely enough, the general who won that war's primary victory, Saratoga, was not of first rank by any manner of means. His name, still unpopular in army circles, was Horatio Gates. Gates disliked Washington, and the "Gates" triumph over Burgoyne was really won by such subordinates as Benedict Arnold and Dan Morgan.

The War of 1812 was perhaps the American army's most dismal episode. It turned out traitors, poltroons and phonies. But it also produced bucolic Gen. Andrew Jackson, of the same tough Scotch Irish stock as Dan Morgan's riflemen. Jackson won the concluding battle of New Orleans, after his countrymen had met defeat at Detroit, Queenstown, and up and down the long Canadian border.

In the Mexican war there were two of them: Zach Taylor and Winnie Scott. Scott was "old fuss and feathers" to the boys in blue. Taylor was a political general from the slave-South, while Scott was a regular. Both men were amiable and efficient, especially Scott, who had learned his tricks as a youngster back in 1812. The exploits of this twain, with tiny forces far from home, were almost epic.

In the Civil war we have a double set-up: North and South. The northern all-stars were the usual big three of Grant-Sherman-Sheridan, the latter originally a cavalry chief. Sherman was the best of the three, and the best in the whole war, according to the world's leading military critic, B. H. Liddell Hart of England. The southern team was Lee - Jackson - Forrest. Stonewall Jackson was killed in mid-war.

Five Generals Became President.

In the Spanish war there were generals and admirals and whatnots, but a lieutenant-colonel named Teddy Roosevelt ran away with the show. He commanded the rough riders at San Juan Hill, and rode himself into the White House, in good company. The company was as follows: Washington, Jackson, Taylor and Grant—a general from each war, who became President.

That brings us down to the so-called second World war. In this war there have been very few generals of note. England's Gort and Ironside were kicked upstairs after Dunkirk. France's Gamelin, a nice fellow like Gort, is more than in the doghouse. Generals Petain and Weygand, in this man's war, are political generals rather than front-fighters. Finland's Mannerheim and Greece's dead Metaxas were dictator-generals who combined business with pleasure, when it came to their particular Russian and Italian phases of Armageddon II. Germany's air chief, Hermann Goering, is a purely political general, while Keitel is a desk general who does a job like our own Henry Stimson. Manfred von Brauchitsch is the top German field general, but not well known, while Guderian is the tank expert who overran the west. When it comes to Italian generals—are there any, and if so, where? Badoglio, the Caesar of Ethiopia, went the way of Gort and Gamelin. And Marshal Graziani, Libyan defender, "resigned" because of his many reverses.

That leaves America. At this moment, America's Washington-Jackson-Grant of the second World war is George Catlett Marshall, chief of staff and commanding general. He is a remarkably nice fellow. He has light blue eyes, and did not go to West Point. In army politics there is a good deal of feeling against the Pointers, so this is in Marshall's favor. Instead, he went to the little Point of the Southland—Virginia Military institute at Lexington in the Shenandoah valley. V. M. I. also turned out Stonewall Jackson, the "right arm" of Robert E. Lee. Staff-chief Marshall, however, hails from that hotbed of Quakers and generals and Quaker generals: Pennsylvania.

GEN. GEORGE MARSHALL

Extremely Hard Worker.

Marshall has a likeable personality. He is not technical in his phrasing, but human and understandable. He has never been a publicity hound, but he does like to talk. He likes to expound his ideas, and he has plenty of these without a doubt. He is an extremely hard worker, and of a restless turn of mind and body. Since he got the high command, he has flown nearly 30,000 miles about the countryside, on trips of inspection. He has another aspect—one that every great general through history has husbanded. He sticks by his old soldiers through thick and thin, and they have direct access to him at any time. Caius Julius was that way, and so were Wellington and Napoleon, and so was Ludendorff, who unfortunately stuck by an ex-corporal named A. Hitler.

General Marshall lives at one of Washington's show places — Fort Myer, just outside the District of Columbia. This is the fortress that is attached to the Arlington national soldier's cemetery.

The likeable Marshal Marshall gets up in the morning at 5:30, which is more than the privates have to do. He likes to ride his horse for an hour or so before breakfast. He gets to his office in the war department around 7 o'clock, though the department does not open, officially, till 8:45. He reads all his own morning mail—close to half a hundred letters per diem. Most of the long morning he bickers with congressmen, reporters, aides, or White-Housers. He has lunch, betimes, on the desk in his office—a luncheon of pie and milk, or perhaps a chocolate bar. All afternoon he labors and does all that he has to do: bickerings anew, confabs, hasty decisions, long-term plans. It's all in good hands. He takes home-work home with him and studies till far into the night hours, brushing up for the morrow. It's not an easy routine.

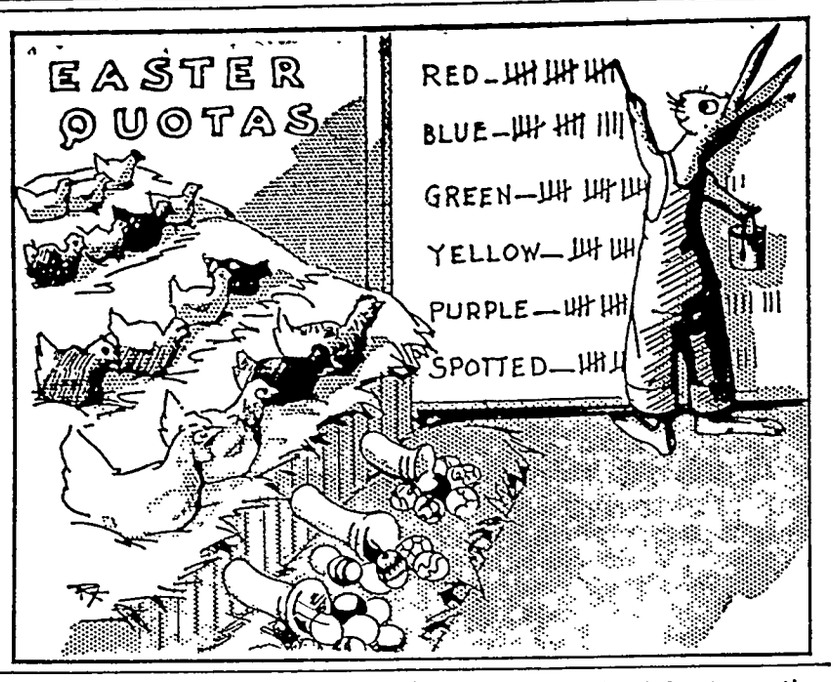
Marshall is a "Pershing" man, in the army lingo. He was a Pershing aide up to 1924, has Pershing ideas, and a Pershing background. In the same way, in France, Weygand is a Foch man, while Gamelin was a Joffre man, and Napoleon a Carnot man. This, in army circles, is for Marshall, and also against him. Pershing has always been something, perhaps, of a controversial figure. Marshall, however, is not. There is very little controversy about Marshall. This is very fortunate in the year of grace, 1941.

Knows How to Compromise.

Marshall is patient, likes order, dislikes chaos, and knows how to compromise if-or-when he has to.

Marshall's original purpose was a comparatively small, highly trained, perfectly equipped force of regulars, capable of attempting anything. After the fall of France, last June, came conscription and untrained masses of raw material. Marshall had to change his plans to conform to an emotional public opinion. A good many of the regulars have not cared for this. Their slogan has been "business as usual." Marshall himself is basically an infantry general, not a warped faddist on tanks or air. Every army unit, today, is half to three-quarters composed of mere recruits, but Marshall cannot help that. He has had to accept the draft, whether he liked it or not. Presumably, he does, but some of his officers, presumably, do not. They put little faith in mere numbers, and prefer quality to quantity. All this is debatable, and remains to be seen. Our military future appears to be in good hands, though, of course, the Anglo-French thought the same of Gort and Gamelin.

Marshall's first wound came at V. M. I.—a bayonet wound in a hazing accident. Let's hope he suffers no more knifing—no more wounds—from the political hazing of that sometimes strident bedlam, the fleshpots of Washington intrigue.



Odds Are Against Rain on Easter Day

NEW YORK.—In the Fourth century of the Christian era, when the workers of the Easter celebration was Central service tled for future generations by the John Council at Nicea, nothing was said Wayne Mike Ro cerning Easter weather. That Geo. Aucary, therefore, has been left free Bud Hulbe anything it liked, and on about Leo Mele Walter F Easters of the last 50, United Anton Lites weather bureau records Morris Low, it has either snowed, hailed, Duane Carl Horned, or been cold and blustery. Carl Len Back in 1875, records show the Oliver Bl Virgil Bu-out-of-three chance that the Jake Lav Clay Mic ther might be inclement was Geno Swesibly a disaster for the fashion-Julius Ba scious. Rain-garb hadn't reached Geo. Klos Stanley L well-styled stage, and the shape-WPA w coat of the day was no attrac-Robert G. Paul Halt addition to milady's costume of Delegard ek hair arrangement, Elizabethan ruff; Louis Quatorze jacket, the fan representing the Trianon, and the Moorish jewelry which she wore. Today, however, the raincoats of such fabrics as transparent koroseal, made in the military fashion now being highlighted in the smart women's suits, make protective apparel a definite part of the Easter parade.

It's a bit difficult to imagine how the observance of Easter, purely religious in origin, became so indissolubly associated with spring millinery. Perhaps the well-known author of a book on etiquette, who said: "A superstition all over the world is that one should wear at least one new article of clothing on Easter, or bad luck will follow," may have had something to do with the sprouting of new finery. At any rate, back in the early 1890s, New York began observing the day by the famous parade along Fifth avenue, a now universal tradition.

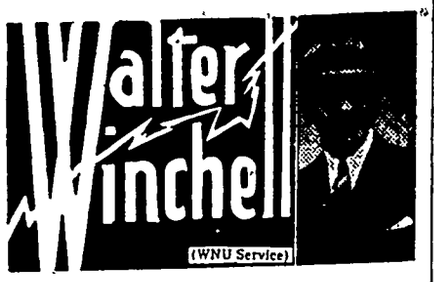
Business and agricultural conditions in the U. S. during April are indicated bn the above map. The outlook is favorable, with national income expected to reach a new high. Rising income will probably be somewhat offset by higher costs.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
President, LaSalle Extension University

PHILADELPHIA. — The general outlook for both agriculture and industry is favorable. There may be some offset to rising income by higher costs despite government pressure to keep prices from rising. But these will not be enough to keep farm income from rising to the highest level in 11 years. And the total national income is expected to reach a new peak.

Farm prospects for this year are favorable. The total acreage which farmers are planning to plant is about the same as last year. Some shifts are being made among the different crops because supplies of export farm commodities, such as cotton, tobacco, and wheat, are large, while the foreign demand has been much below normal. Farmers are trying, insofar as possible, to concentrate their efforts on producing those products that are used mostly in domestic consumption The market outlook for these is most favorable.



Private Papers of a Cub Reporter:

Irvin S. Cobb, in this year's version of his autobiography, gets pretty persnickitty about today's reporters. The columnists, however, are his great big aversion . . . Irvin insists the columnists are not accurate and so forth . . . So what happens? . . . So Harry Hansen, the book critic, decided to give Cobb a little lesson in accuracy . . . Cobb, it appears, relates how, in Belgium in 1914, his life was threatened . . . He goes on, for several Dick Tracy pages, to tell how a ferocious German major pulled a gun on him, menacing him worse than Karloff could . . . Here is Hansen's cold water: "The actual incident was trivial. The officer was a sergeant, and Cobb's life was never in danger. I saw it, and often marveled at the international episode Cobb made of it."

Oswald Marshall heard it in London . . . About the two Germans who met in Paree, and Carl said to Fritz: "Have you a gute job here?"

"Yah," Fritz fritz'd, "I have a vorry gute job. I zit on top of da Eiffel Towah undt I vatch for da English to vave da vhite flag!"

"Iss it gute pay?" queried Carl.

"Not much," said Fritz, "but idds for life!"

The colyum's I. Elinson recently planed in from Hollywood making his initial flight . . . He tried, however, to impress his friends who were taking him to the airport by telling them that flying was old stuff to him . . . When they got to the airport Elinson said to an attendant: "I'm taking the American Mercury. What TRACK does that leave on?"

Columbia's short-wave listening post heard this from England . . . It is the best illustration of Russia's position in the war . . . It was memo'd to Churchill by a returned diplomat from Moscow, to wit: "A report came in to the Kremlin which read: 'Nme British planes destroyed. Nine German planes shot down' . . . Stalin looked at it, rubbed his hands and smiled.

" 'Good,' he drooled. 'That's 18 planes for us.' "

Alexander Markey observes: "Mebbe the Ill Duce will know better than to Mussolin — the next time."

We hear his chin has retreated six inches!

Joe Reichman, the orchestra man, offers the one about Herr Goebbels, who was interviewing a German journalist who applied for an editorial job on one of the Nazi-controlled newspapers in Berlin . . . "What," asked Goebbels, "are your views on our government and its policies?"

"Well," started the reporter, "I think—"

"Then," interrupted Beagle Puss, "I can't use you."

Ozzie Nelson has one about them, too . . . It deals with the two Nazis in Berlin who were reading their newspapers and gloating over "how terrible" things were in the United States . . . "Why," said one, "tings iss so bad idd says here in da paypas dot Roosevelt is hiring men for a dollah a year!"

"Iss dot zo?" gasped the other. "Dot's even less dan ve get!"

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

Labor and management are reminded that strikes can never build national defense . . . If the British, in the name of Liberty, can stick by their guns—the least Americans can do is stick by their jobs.

Now that it is old-hat, let's not forget that the Lend-Lease battle—one of the fiercest in the senate's history was waged in the interest of unity! . . . America would be a lot safer if all its aviators got into the air force—and out of politics.

Films favor titles suggesting thoroughfares. There were "Back Street" and "Dead End" and now "Side Street" . . . They're steering clear of "alley," as it might remind too many box offices where business has been lately . . . The British have a delightful sense of timing. The London Palladium featured a revival of "No Time for Comedy" . . . NBC has two former foreign correspondents, who just finished a corking radio serial named "Special Correspondent." A half-hour show about an American reporter with the world as his beat.

"Hearses Don't Hurry," the title of a new crime novel, would be a good wall motto for some of the madder motorists.

Betty Compton, the former Mrs. Jimmy Walker, is taking a dance teacher's training course. When she graduates she will get a franchise to conduct an Arthur Murray branch in White Plains . . . John Hubbard's description of a perfect gold-digging doll: "She's a woman who has no heart—making a fool of a man without a head."

Washington, D. C.

HOW BRITISH MEET RAIDS

FDR got a first-hand account of how British morale is maintained during the blitz when Surgeon General Thomas Parran, head of the Civil Defense mission, reported at the White House.

Dr. Parran's mission spent a month in England studying the people living under constant aerial bombardment, and reported that one secret of Britain's splendid morale is immediate government relief for bombed victims.

As soon as "all clear" sounds over a beleaguered city, rescue workers are on the scene with hot food, medical care, arrangements for shelter and ready cash.

Repairs on damaged dwellings are begun immediately. Furniture is salvaged and stored. Families whose homes were destroyed are billeted at government expense. Compensation is paid for injuries. Pensions are given dependents of killed civilians and rescue workers.

The mere fact that ready cash is paid promptly has tremendous psychological effect. Upon application and without red tape, bomb victims can get a cash grant to buy clothing, new furniture, and workmen's tools. Small shopkeepers can obtain up to 50 pounds to buy new stocks.

Disguised Plants.

Dr. Parran's mission was particularly impressed by the ingenuity of British civil defenses.

One scheme for protecting vital industries is an elaborate system of dummy factories to mislead Nazi bombers. These plants are duplicated even to position, color and markings. Old cars are towed to the yards of the fake plants to simulate workers' autos.

Some industrial centers even use great smudge pots, emitting huge billows of black smoke completely blanketing an area.

Industry has been completely dispersed into hundreds of small plants in Britain, each making separate parts for the war machine. Duplicate plants are ready to take over production of vital products.

The American observers declared that the famed balloon barrage has been highly developed and forces raiders to fly at great heights. Long steel cables dangling from the balloons are death traps for planes.

British confidence in their defense is reflected in the big drop in the number who go to bomb shelters. Fifty per cent of Londoners stayed in the shelters during the blitz attacks last fall, but only 5 per cent went to public shelters in January and about 20 per cent to private and communal shelters.

GREEKS ARE AIDED

Anything can happen in the tempestuous Balkans, but it seems certain that Roosevelt diplomacy and the lease-lend bill were responsible for delaying the Nazi attack on Greece for at least 10 days.

The big thing which the lend-lease bill did for the British was to permit tanks, anti-tank guns, and anti-aircraft guns to be landed at Salonika immediately. The British had only limited supplies of these, and had to keep some in reserve for use around Suez and other vital Mediterranean areas.

However, with passage of the lend-lease bill, they knew they could get reserves later from the United States, therefore threw all their present reserves onto the Greek front.

This type of munitions is what the Jugoslav army and the Turks have especially needed. They have plenty of rifles, machine guns and a reasonable amount of artillery; but few anti-tank or anti-aircraft guns to stop the advance of modern mechanized forces.

Note—The Balkans has been getting its American news chiefly from the official German DNB news agency, which had played up all the Wheeler-Nye speeches, gave the impression that the United States was against Roosevelt and that the bill could not pass. Final passage, however, could not be suppressed in the news dispatches and had a tremendous effect upon Balkan public opinion, which recalled how American entrance into the last war had turned the tables.

NO LABOR PEACE

It was expected that John L. Lewis' retirement from the C.I.O. would bring peace to the war-torn ranks of labor. But this has not been the case.

A. F. of L. and C.I.O. leaders are working effectively together in the defense administration, but otherwise they are still poles apart.

CAPITAL CHAFF

At the left on his desk, Vice President Henry Wallace has a telephone which communicates directly with the White House.

No less than three secretaries—a light blonde, a medium blonde, and a brunette—take stenographic notes of every word said at Steve Early's daily press conference.

Many a government clerk knows the Supreme court chiefly as an eating place. Its cafeteria, below the court room, serves 7,500 persons a month.

Spring Places

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.

'Around the World'

HELLO America!

Here I am sitting on the very edge of Lake Placid in the Adirondack mountains of New York. Mirror Lake inn is perched on a hillock above me. I've just finished a stack of flap-jacks with some of the best maple-sugar syrup I've ever tasted. The sun is shining on the frozen lake; mountain peaks are clothed in the deepest snow I've seen anywhere in America this year. The woods and trails are dotted with skiers. Roadways banked in ice, with three-passenger and ten-passenger sleighs skimming along behind jingle-belled sturdy, mountain horses.

For months now I've been bobbing about the country. I have been trying to find out how the country is getting on, what people are thinking about, and what's happened since I was last there. Since early September I've been lecturing too, in nearly every state in the Union.

But this is not new to me, for all my life it seems, I've been going places. Even as a boy I made dozens of trips across the Atlantic, and visited nearly every country in Europe, as well as a major portion of our own country. For the past 23 years I've been a Roving Correspondent in all parts of the world. I was in Italy when Fascism walked into Rome; in Germany when Naziism began; in Russia just after Communism was born; in China as the Japanese stalked into Shanghai; in Spain two hours after the revolution broke out; at Hyde Park, N. Y., the night the New Deal swept into power; in Europe the summer of 1939 on the eve of the Armagedon; and in Central and South America last summer as democracy lay at the cross-roads.

Being on the spot at the crucial moment has been partly luck, partly experience, and partly the good judgment of the editors who employ me. Don't know how far I've traveled, but would say well over 2,000,000 miles.

Early in life I made up my mind to find out for myself how people lived in all walks of life. With a Fifth Avenue background this was impossible if I stayed there. So when just 17 I ran away from home and enlisted in the United States army. I added a year to my age. Spent 22 months as a buck-private with the American Expeditionary forces in France. After the war I went to work on the editorial staff of a New York newspaper. Since 1919 I have been employed by I don't know how many newspapers and magazines, and for the past 11 years almost continuously for one big string of publications.

The more I've traveled abroad, the more I realize how fortunate we are to be Americans. Every time I step on a gangplank of a ship that has "U. S. A." written on the other end, I breathe a sigh of relief for the freedom from petty nuisances and regimentation found elsewhere. I always feel like embracing the Statue of Liberty and shaking hands with the first cop, when I reach home.

I think I would be satisfied if, during the rest of my life, I could be of some aid in helping Americans better to appreciate their native land. The more one travels in this great country of ours, the prouder is he to be an American. We must iron out our internal difficulties and forget our sectional jealousies. We must pull together, all of us, for the time is fast approaching when we may have to stand together, alone, against the rest of the world. Only through a strong feeling of fellowship and close co-operation will we be able to protect our priceless heritage of liberty and our form of democracy.

Foreign vultures with their power diplomacy and jungle strategy approach more ominously each day. Few Americans realize what a privilege it is to make the 3,000-mile run from San Francisco to New York on a wide, well-kept, well-marked highway, bordered with excellent service stations, fine restaurants and stores and modern hotels and tourist camps. To encounter everywhere expert, courteous service and fair prices. Or to make the 2,200-mile run from Los Angeles to Chicago in less than 40 hours in luxurious streamlined trains; or the overnight skyway hop from coast-to-coast.

Compare this with what you used to find in Europe—in the Orient there is nothing actually to compare with. But enough about me and my own travels. From hereon I promise to talk chiefly of places, people and things along the way.

So let's get going—going places. Next week we'll be on our way.

SEEING THINGS: Driving up to Placid from Plattsburgh Barracks where the U. S. is training ski-troops for service in Newfoundland and Alaska, could scarcely keep my eye on the road for watching the fantastically beautiful mist formations rising from Lake Champlain. Expected to be equally moved by Ausable Chasm. It is reputed to be one of the marvels of this part of the country. Perhaps this is an awe-inspiring sight to easterners, but to one familiar with the West, this chasm was but a spasm to me.

Up-to-the-Minute Easter Costume Calls for Gay, Tiny Flower Hat

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MYRIADS of provocative little flower hats will "top" spring suits and ensembles this season. Why not climax your Easter costume with a gay flower chapeau? You'll not only be "right in fashion," but you will be joyously "in tune" with spring.

This is a season which calls for "prettiness." No matter how simple the frock, the suit or the ensemble, you should give it lovely-lady airs by enchanting accessory details—flowers, perfumes, veils, decorative handkerchiefs, frothy fragile neckwear, an intriguing handbag or colorful gloves.

Flower hats this spring are as bewildering in type, color and design as a garden of flowers. Some of the floral headpieces seem not much more than a cluster of posies anchored to the head by a labyrinth of ribbons and bandeau devices. They finish off with a cloud of misty, colorful veiling arranged smartly.

While flowers of every variety are in fashion, there is particular emphasis on roses. You will see roses on hats, on bodices, on handbags, on sheer party dresses, and even under the wide brim of felt hats. The la Her may match the rose worn at the wrist as a bracelet. Even handkerchiefs are apt to yield to the sway of flowers this season, in that they have posies embroidered or painted on them to match those on one's "Easter bonnet."

Above to the right in the picture is a lovely black satin hat, trimmed with two waxen white roses. A veil of black fishnet subscribes to the slogan "with every hat a veil this spring."

Centered in the picture, a young lady of high fashion wears one of the tiny pompadour hats so smart this season. Note the glorified rose splashed on her handkerchief. These handkerchiefs come in a series of flowers, so you are sure of getting a "hankie" to match your flower hat.

You will be wanting a red hat this season to keep pace with fashion, or at least one trimmed with bright red flowers. The little hat shown in the upper left corner is gaily flowered with bright red poppies. Wear it to set off a navy blue costume. Add a smart red under-arm bag.

Pastels are popular for headgear. A beguiling soft rose colored felt beret is shown below to the left in the group. The shoulder length veil emphasizes romance and coquetry.

A swatch of pastel silk on a tall black felt turban is pictured below to the right. A hat of this type calls for a shimmering lavender veil.

Smart Gob Dress

A smart gob dress, perfect for the junior high or high school girl, is here shown. It adheres to a traditional pattern of simplicity in accordance with the present fashion trend toward classics. That this dress reflects the patriotic note so characteristic of current fashions is readily seen in its every detail—the dress is of red, white and blue rayon cotton, with an all-pleated navy blue skirt and long-torso lines for the blouse. The white nautical blouse is trimmed with red braid and red anchors.

It's a two-piecer and makes the best of all school dresses. With it you'll no doubt want to wear a saucy sailor hat, and perhaps shoes with turned-back middy designs. It is an easy dress to make.

Silk, Rayon Printed Suits Taking Fashion by Storm

New and exciting in the spring style parade are suits that are tailored of silk or rayon-mixture prints with exactly the fine nicety and simplicity one expects of wool suits. The long-jacket suit with an all-round pleated skirt is a favorite. The jacket has revers and a one-button or two-button fastening.

You will find in the stores stunning redingote styles as well, tailored like cloth, fitted meticulously as your long topcoat, the dress underneath styled in a fetching one-piece manner. These new print tailleurs are starting a vogue that is taking the fashion world by storm.

Tiers, Ruffles, Peplums Add to New Silhouettes

The newest silhouettes call for tiers, ruffles and peplums. And the real news about these styling details is that designers are handling them so adroitly that they in no way destroy the straight slim lines that fashion demands this season.

Very good looking are the new dressmaker coats, cut on princess lines to above the knee, at which point a wide pleated flounce carries on to the hemline.

Prints and Plain

A new and very helpful aid in selecting prints and plains to "go together" is the manner in which materials are being displayed this season in the stores. It is the custom this season to show a print and the plain material all side by side in colors that correlate perfectly.

Flower Bracelets

The newest fashion wrinkle is to wear a flower or boutonniere attached to a ribbon bracelet, the cuff of your glove, or the edge of the sleeve at the wrist. Of course the flower should match the flower trimming on your hat.

Designers Defy Raids

In London, dressmakers keep on dishing out their normal supply of work, in spite of air raids. Clothes are made on a sort of ambulating schedule, workers shifting from the basement shelters to the upstairs workrooms and back again

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

USING WITNESSING POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:1-4; 4:8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God with boldness.—Acts 4:31.

In the right place at the right time and in the right attitude—these are unfailing conditions of divine blessing.

Note also how fitting it was that on that Sunday morning—evidently in the upper room—the disciples were "with one accord in one place," ready for the great gift of power and grace for life and ministry which God had for them, and through them for the world. One wonders what might happen today if Christian people would be in God's house on the Lord's day, in complete accord and unity, expectant, looking for His blessing.

I. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (2:1-4).

"We are not to imagine that at this Pentecost He first came into the world. In all ages He had been imparting life and guidance and strength and holiness to the people of God; but He was now to work with a new instrument, namely, the truth concerning a crucified, risen, ascended, divine Saviour. For the proclamation of this truth the Church was the appointed agent. The story of Pentecost, therefore, is the first chapter in the history of the Church as it witnesses for Christ, and it embodies the impressive lesson that in all successful witnessing the power is that of the Spirit and the instrument is the message of the gospel."

The outpouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost was accompanied by signs of great power, and a special enduement which enabled all the strangers in Jerusalem to hear the gospel in their own tongue. "This ability to speak in foreign languages not previously learned was merely a temporary endowment granted for a special purpose. It was one of those miraculous spiritual gifts which marked the age of the apostles. In modern times the claim to possess this power has never been established on credible evidence, nor is the dominance of the Spirit in the life of a believer to be tested by the presence of any special gift" (Charles R. Erdman).

II. Mighty Works Performed (4:9).

Reference is made here to the healing of the lame man—a miracle which resulted in the imprisonment of Peter and John. It was a work of power, but only the first of many which the disciples were to perform.

An even greater work was that of the Spirit-filled preaching of the gospel which brought 3,000 souls into the church (2:41). As we marvel at that event, we need also to keep before us the recurring day-by-day miracle of the regeneration of individuals (2:47). This was, and is, accomplished through the teaching of the Word (2:42).

III. True Witness Presented (4:8-12).

The rulers and leaders (especially the skeptical aristocrats of that day—the Sadducees) were angered by the proclamation of the resurrection of the One they had crucified. They also feared that their rich revenues from the temple might be cut off if the people were to follow Christ (4:4), so they took the disciples into custody and brought them before the Sanhedrin.

Humanly speaking, one might have expected these men to stand in fear and awe before that august body, and either become dumb with terror or brazenly defiant. But such is not the operation of the Holy Spirit in a man. They spoke tactfully, but boldly, of the death and resurrection of the only One in whom there is any salvation.

IV. Faithful Though Persecuted (4:13-20).

Not being able to make any real charge against the disciples, the rulers let them go, but only after threatening them and forbidding them to speak any more of Christ. They, like so many religious leaders of today, were quite willing that the disciples should preach, if they would only leave out the name of Christ.

Note the answer in verse 19. There is only one message (v. 12). " 'Neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved'; thus Peter asserts not only that the miracle has been wrought in the name of Jesus Christ, but that he and his judges can have eternal salvation in no other name. His words are at once a rebuke, a challenge, and an invitation. They need to be reviewed and weighed today by certain benevolent but superficial talkers who are asserting that Christianity is only one among many religions, and that it is only necessary for one to be sincere in his own belief. Such teachers must reconcile their statements with those of Peter and John, who were 'filled with the Holy Spirit' when they declared that there is but one name wherein we must be saved."

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

To prevent dough sticking to the spoon when making dumplings dip the spoon into hot liquid each time before putting it into the dough.

* * *

Stewed prunes, stuffed with cheese, nuts or celery and arranged on lettuce leaves, make a suitable salad to serve with chops or roasts. French or mayonnaise salad dressing may be used with it.

* * *

Drain all boiled vegetables as soon as tender. They become soggy if they are allowed to stand unstrained after cooking. The water drained off may be saved for soup stock.

* * *

Lemon juice mixed with wood ashes will remove tarnish from brass.

Gilt picture frames can be restored to brightness by rubbing with a sponge moistened in turpentine.

* * *

If using icebags in a sickroom, instead of shaving ice each time you wish to fill a bag, to save time shave enough to fill a quart pitcher and keep it in the refrigerator.

* * *

Paint piazza and garden chairs now so that they may be thoroughly dried before you wish to use them.

* * *

If your floors are worn and will not hold wax, try touching up the worn places with white shellac and then wax. The floors will be much improved by this treatment.

Grease the inside of the container, near the top, to keep milk from boiling over.

J. Fuller Pep

By JERRY LINK

My wife says: "Fuller, if you don't quit eatin' Kellogg's Pep we're agoin' to hitch an anchor to you to keep you from flyin' over the neighbors' fences."

Which is a dern exaggeration because you have to get all your vitamins to feel as good as I do. And Pep has the two that are least plentiful in ordinary meals—vitamins B_1 and D.

PEP's a goshamighty fine cereal, though, that lots of people eat just for its taste. Why not try it?

"My Kingdom For A Horse"

There was a Blitzbrieg in England many years ago, and King Richard himself was leading his men in battle.

The fighting was fierce, they shot Richard's horse, most of his men fled, and he shouted "A Horse, A Horse, My Kingdom for a Horse"

There were plenty of horses in England, but to have a horse just when and where he wanted it made an awful lot of different to King Richard,

Now then, it may make a lot of difference to you having Rugs, Carpets or Linoleum just where and when you want them. Thats why we have them for you, right here in Klemme

We carry a big stock, in April because that is the biggest rug, carpet, linoleum month of the year, linoleum yard goods and rugs are about 5% cheaper than last year.

County Officials Preparing To Put Stamp Plan Into Action

SURPLUS FOOD STAMP PLAN SOON TO BE PUT INTO EFFECT

Hancock County Officials Have Received Authority To Go Ahead

The Federal Surplus Food Stamp Plan, as outlined in the Times a few weeks ago, has been authorized to be put into effect in Hancock County. However, it will take some time to put the plan into effect.

The plan is under the direction of the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation The local county setup will include the sale of stamps through the office of the county treasurer, Roy L. McMullin, and the certifying of eligible persons will come from H. H McMullin, of Britt, overseer of the poor for this county.

The board of Supervisors have set up a sinking fund of $3,000 which will be used for handling the stamps as soon as arrangements can be made to have a branch in each town where the stamps may be procured.

There will be two kinds of stamps given out, colored blue and orange With each dollars worth of orange stamps bought, 50 cents worth of blue stamps will be given to the purchaser. The orange stamps will be good for the purchase of all kinds of groceries and may be used at the discretion of the client, while the blue stamps will be good for the purchase of such commodities as are designated as "surplus commodities" by the federal corporation A list of these latter mentioned commodities will be posted in every grocery store in the county cooperating with the plan.

Before the stamp plan can became operative the local relief office will be required to certify both the names of those who are receiving any kind of public fund aid, whether county, state or federal, and for each purchase period of two weeks the amount of such aid will have to be certified so that all relief clients will receive their proper allotment of stamps. It is understood that stamp purchaser will be required to use their stamp for the purchase of food stuffs for the two weeks' period for which they are alloted. That is. they cannot be saved up from period to period.

"GONE WITH THE WIND" TO BE SHOWN AT THE AERY

COUPLES ABOUT TO MARRY MAY OBTAIN HEALTH CERTIFICATES FROM CLERKS

Iowa State Health Department Gives Ruling On New Iowa Marriage Laws

The state health department today answering the question which seems to be most puzzling to couples contemplating marriage under the new "premarital examination" law now in effect.

According to the department, marriage-bound couples are frequently asking by telephone or correspondence, "Where do we get the health certificates?" The answer given was, "From the clerk of the district court in any county.

Further explaining the law, the department said the certificates may be obtained from a clerk in any county, but they must be presented when completed to the clerk of the county in which the marriages is to be solemnized to receive the license.

Separate certificates are required for each party to the marriage, and the certificates should be given to the doctor at the time he makes the examination called for under the law. This is necessary for the reason that he must send the certificates with blood samples to the laboratory for completion.

After the doctor's section of the certificates has been filled out it was added, they are returned to the clerk and he in turn can issue the license.

The departmet also said that the law states the required physical examination must be made within 20 days prior to the time of application for the license and the license will become void if the marriages is not consummated within 20 days following issuance of the license.

Residents of other states which do not have similar laws may obtain non-reident certificate blanks from the clerks, it was brought out.

Increased Food Demands Face Nation As Lease-Lend Bill Spurs Consumption

By RAYMOND MITCHELL
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO. — What will the Lease-Lend bill and Uncle Sam's own fast moving defense program mean to American agriculture?

With $7,000,000,000 for all-out aid to Britain now added to the pyramiding total of $33,000,000,000 in congressional appropriations for defense and rearmament, this question is assuming growing importance.

Every farm family in America has a stake in the situation. Food is as much a weapon as planes, tanks and ships. The extent to which it is used is a matter of close concern to everyone on or near a farm.

Three fairly definite answers have already emerged. These are, however, dependent on a big "If"—If Britain is able to stand the battering of all-out Nazi air raids, if she can stave off invasion and survive the deadly attacks on her shipping life-line until American aid can become really effective:

1. America's farm export market—lost since Scandinavia, the Low-Countries and France fell—may be partially restored through the "Feed Britain" provisions of the Lease-Lend bill.

2. The demand for farm products at home will be considerably increased.

3. Price levels will move upward.

Food Increasingly Important.

Let's look abroad, first. Under the terms of the Lease-Lend bill, Britain does not need to consider either price or ability to pay in making food purchases here. Up to now her expenditures have been for munitions only. Food has been imported from the Dominions.

The job of feeding Britain is in the hands of the Surplus Marketing administration of the U. S. department of agriculture—the same agency that superintends distribution of food for emergency relief here at home. To provide supplies ordered by Britain it merely has to increase the food orders being constantly issued for domestic relief.

British authorities have placed pork, lard, evaporated and dried milk, cheese, dried fruits, fruit juices and vegetables on the top of their shopping list. The number of items will be expanded as opportunities arise.

The job of feeding Britain is in the hands of the Surplus Marketing administration. This organization has had considerable experience providing supplies for domestic relief. This carload of oranges is but a small part of the huge quantities of food constantly being moved under their supervision throughout the country.

Other Countries Ask Aid.

Britain will not be the only beneficiary. Finland needs food badly and has already negotiated a $5,000,000 credit with the Export-Import bank for food purchases if shipping is available. That is just a beginning if further credit can be provided. Spain and unoccupied France are on the list, too. How much they get will depend on British blockade policy. Indications are that it will be tempered by American opinion.

Now let's glance at the home market. Agriculture has already felt the defense program's stimulating impact. It will feel it even more in months to come. There is an increasing demand for farm products. Americans are buying more and eating more because they have money to spend. Still more cereals, meats, fats, dairy products, fruits and woolens will be needed.

Reports from the U. S. department of commerce show that a rise in emloyment is invariably accomanied by a rise in the consumption of meats, dairy and poultry products along with fruits and vegetables.

Defense Spending Rises.

How the defense program is influencing industrial activity, employment and consumer income is shown by the fact that defense expenditures rose from an average of $7,000,000 a day last September to more than $21,000,000 a day last month. These expenditures have not hit full stride yet, for many appropriations have been slow getting into circulation because contracts had to be let. When it is considered that payrolls represent from 45 to 70 per cent of defense expenditures, the future level of industrial activity may be gauged.

Thus the consumer buying power generated by the defense program is likely to be felt in the form of a bigger cash income on most American farms this year.

It is natural that the increased demand for food and raw materials should be reflected in a rising trend in wholesale prices. A recent bureau of labor statistical report shows that wholesale commodity prices are swinging upward and are now at the highest point since the outbreak of the war.

All of the foregoing factors will probably combine to boost the cash farm income of American farmers above the 1940 totals. Some of this income gain will, of course, be offset by the higher costs for farm labor and for the products the farmer buys. Fertilizer is about he only commodity that has not registered a sharp price rise since 1933.

Overexpansion Dangerous.

How long the defense program's stimulus to industry and agriculture will endure is problematical. This hinges to a good extent on how long the European war continues. But in months to come American farmers will have an opportunity to strengthen their position and fortify themselves for the future. To do this some straight thinking will be required. Of essential importance is that farmers avoid overexpansion and the pitfall of easy profits that may later turn into losses. The first World war taught us some bitter lessons about that. Surpluses that have burdened agriculture ever since can be traced to World war days.

What can farmers do to make agriculture one of the most effective weapons in Democracy's arsenal?

For one thing, they can develop ways and means of making their production more efficient. An important step in this direction is to take stock of their soil fertility. For the country-wide co-operation with the AAA program, fewer acres are being tilled. This means that farmers should employ soil management methods that will produce higher yields from fewer acres. Such a procedure will reduce production costs and improve the quality of the crop. Such a program means exercising far-seeing care in concerning the fertility of the soil by practices which not only prevent waste of fertility, but actually help restore it.

Soil Fertility Declines.

America has used up the original fertility of its soil much more rapidly than it has replaced it. Constant croppings, generation after generation, have removed vast quantities of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. We have lagged far behind Europe in soil conservation.

Nations abroad use from 2½ to 20 times as much commercial plant food per acre as does the United States for fertilizing crop land and plowable pasture.

Based on the average rate of depletion, American farms will lose 29,000,000 tons of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in 1941 due to the removal of plant foods by growing crops, through livestock grazing and by leaching, according to an estimate of the Middlewest Soil Improvement committee.

In the effort to defend and build up the productivity of their soil, farmers of the United States have one advantage they didn't possess 25 years ago during the first World war. Then we faced a fertilizer shortage because we were almost entirely dependent on Germany for potash and on Chile for natural nitrates. Today, thanks to the teamwork of science and American industry, we are producing our own plant foods and we can maintain our independence in this respect for an indefinite period.

If national emergencies grow more acute and American farmers hear the "Be prepared" signal to get their land ready for any eventuality, they will know it can be done if they have enlisted under the banner of soil improvement.

Lady Police Chief Preserves Order In Missouri Town

PARMA, MO.—The only police officer on duty here during the day and the chief of the police force at all times—that's Maggie Porter, attractive 32-year-old "gun toter" who not only preserves order in Parma, but who's an expert cook, as well!

Folks in Parma claim, so far as they know, that she is the only woman chief of police in the U. S. A.

But Chief Porter disclaims any credit for her unique role.

"I was appointed town marshal after the death of my father, John W. Porter, who was serving his second term in that office," she explains.

It all sounds simple, but what Miss Porter fails to say is that all through his administration she was her father's "right hand man," keeping his books and even helping him on the street when the town was crowded with visitors.

When Mr. Porter could no longer carry on his duties, his daughter pinned the badge of authority on her coat lapel, strapped his six-shooter around her waist, and proceeded to do everything from making arrests to handling the $10,000-a-year tax collections that "go with" the chief-of-police duties in Parma.

And after his death, the city council of this community of 1,200 persons voted to make her successor to Mr. Porter, and she'll hold the job at least until the next election.

Chief Porter, who works with W. B Morgan, business-man mayor of Parma, and four male council members, is the town's only daytime police officer. She has a night marshal and often appoints a deputy to work with him. And on Saturday nights, she remains on duty until nearly midnight, ready to direct the work of law enforcing.

Trouble? "Occasionally," Chief Porter says, "when some outsider comes to town, gets drunk and starts showing off."

Asked what her most exciting duty had been, Chief Porter said, without much hesitation, "Tracking down the criminal who shot my night marshal, W T Wormack, on December 22, 1940."

She hopes the time never comes when she has to use her gun, but admits that if that time comes, she'll be ready.

It's not at all unusual, say local citizens, to see her "collar" some law violator and march him off to the town's jail.

Chief Porter lives with her widowed mother. She was born in Missouri, but attended business college in Michigan.

Her straight, raven-black hair, cut man's style and combed in a pompadour, is Miss Porter's outstanding physical characteristic.

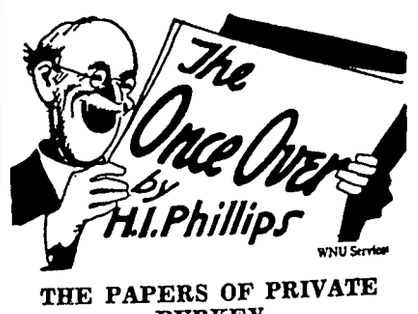
Chief of Police Maggie Porter, who not only handles a policeman's "run of the mill" jobs with ease and effectiveness, but who manages a boys' baseball team and likes to cook, too!

Tongue May Hold Proof of Child-Parent Relationship

NEW YORK.—Man's highly sensitive tongue may turn out to be the generation - to - generation "fingerprint" which jurists have long sought as a means of proving relationship between parents and children.

Following experiments several years ago by Dr. A. F. Blakeslee of Carnegie institute, scientists working with the "taste buds"—tiny nerves nestling underneath the surface of the tongue—are wondering whether a similarity of tastes might not be an excellent guide in establishing paternity.

The Blakeslee research determined that certain chemicals are tasteless to some people, while to others they have a bitter taste. If it can be shown that such characteristics are inherited, the presence or absence of certain taste factors in a child would be significant and might offer a reliable guide to the child's parentage.



THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma:

Well, ma, I now feel so tired and sore all over that I gess I am in the pink of condishun. All feeling is gone from my feet and my legs are numb from the knees down so the drilling and marching don't hurt me no more witch shows how well trained I am. But the officers keep drilling me just the same and pay no attention to me when I tell 'em I have had enuff.

We are sleeping five to a tent, but I am not getting any two much rest on account of the old saying that two is company and three more is overcrowding. There is always at least two buddies who want to tell stories or argue about ways and means to get promoted to be a kernel or sumthing. And we have a radio fannatick in our tent who thinks the best programs come after everybody else is asleep. This guy is such a nut that if he was out in No Man's land he would carry a portable so he could hear a broadcast of what he was doing.

Another fellow in my tent don't sleep at all. He just sits on the edge of the bed moaning. It seams he was on a trip to see his best girl who lives 50 miles from his home town when he got a call to report for draft induckshun at once and he is still squawking. I also got a tentmate who was a union man in Pittsburgh before he was drafted and he keeps making speeches trying to convinse us that we shud picket the general's tent and demand more money and less drilling.

We have movies every night in a big tent, but I do not like them mutch as it makes me soar to see all those fellers in citizen close lolling around on couches and sitting in the moonlight with beautiful girls when they should be in some camp lerning how to take a gun apart and guard a latrine. But they do not make me as soar as news pitchers of congressmen when they was still chewing the fat over that lease-lend bill. I don't even know yet weather I am going to be lent to Europe or just leased or what?

* * *

It sure has been a cold winter to be in a army, but the old sarge who was in the last war says we shud of been around then and we wud not be kicking now. We have wood-burning stoves in tents here and he says in the last war he never saw a stove from the time he got his draft summons until he got home three years later. They also have boilers so we can have hot water in this camp witch he says nobody had accept Pershing and Alexander Woollkott in the last one. When we got here we wuz given a saferty razzer five blades a cake of shaving sope and a a toothbrush and he laffed like everything and sed we must be going to the opera or sum place like that as in the last war soldiers shaved with there bayernets and only cleaned their teeth when they had a friend who was a Y. M. C. A. secretary and carried a spare.

He says we are all getting better considerashun in draft camps today than he got in the best hotels on furlow in 1917 and he showed me a pitcher of an outfit in the last war witch backs him up when he says we are dressed like dudes in comparison. He says that in those days they just chucked a bundle at you when you reported at camp and that whatever you found inside you had to put on as a uniform, even if it was just a slip cover off a piano. And he says he spent 18 months in France with a burlap bag over his head because the sergeant told him it was the regulashun army hat.

So when I feel like kicking I just listen to him talk. Well there is not much more to say now. One of those new Ford pigmee trucks arrived here yesterday. It is all made of armor steel and all I want when I get back home again is one of these to use in Main Street traffic and pay no attenshun to those taxicabs what try to shove me around.

Your loving son,
Oscar.

P. S. I need more bunion plasters.

New York Heartbeat:

The Big Parade: Quentin Reynolds telling chums the first thing he thought of when he saw the Hall of Mirrors (in the Palace of Versailles) was the opulent Broadway hamburger joints . . . Judy Garland surrounded by fellers. We can remember all the way back to 1940 when she thought a beau was something a girl wore in her hair . . . Noel Coward before Clippering to London—the Humoristocrat . . . Gertrude Lawrence putting aside her dignity and struggling with a plateful of spaghetti.

Sallies in Our Alley: William Saroyan, Artie Shaw and another One of Those Guys were doing the town the other bitter cold night without hats . . . "I wonder," wondered a wonderer, "why those birds never wear hats?" . . . "That's obvious," explained One Who Knows Them. "Hat-makers can't make them that size!" . . . Over at Ruby Foo's Den they were panning a certain swishy actor. "He speaks every line," someone meow'd, "as though it were carrying a wand" . . . Another was auditioning before Vick Knight at NBC and was cautioned not to enunciate so severely . . . "How dare you!" screamed the Ham. "Ahfter ahl—I didn't take diction lessons for nothing!" . . . To which Vick cooed: "Are you sure?"

New York Novelette: Her face, they said in Hollywood, was that of an angel—and her honey hair was her halo . . . A talent scout signed her up when she was elected Ski Queen of the Northwest . . . Her only stage experience was semi-pro stuff—and when Hollywood learned that—she got minor roles in B-minus flickers . . . She decided to chuck it and come to Broadway . . . After a long wait she met Marc Connelly. He introduced her to agent S. Lyons, who referred her to Max Gordon. Gordon was having trouble casting a leading role. "You're the type," he told her . . . "But I have very little experience," she said . . . "Well," he said, "you look good, and anyone who looks that good can act" . . . Her reading of the part clinched it . . . The detention by the Gestapo in Berlin of the young United Press reporter, Richard Hottelet, is only the newest in a long series of indignities to which American newspaper men have been subjected by the Axis powers within the past two years . . . John Whitaker of Chicago was booted out of Rome—not because he wrote anything the censors didn't approve—but because Mussolini's propaganda bureau wished to cripple his Chicago paper in any way it could . . . In Whitaker's case, booting him out of Rome not only hurt his paper's coverage, but it helped American papers that meet the requirements of the Nazi and Fascist party line . . . Eventually they will permit only those newspaper men they like and who "play ball."

Why don't the associations of American reporters act? Such groups as the White House Correspondents' Ass'n, the boys who cover the State Dep't, and the senate and house press groups could retaliate by easing out from membership some Nazi or Fascist representative in Washington — every time an American reporter is tossed out of Rome or Berlin . . . That would discourage Goebbels and Gayda—since it is a known fact that German and Italian news agencies need representation over here — more than we need it there . . . Most of them are wire-spy services, anyhow . . . Incidentally, Manfred Zapp, although indicted as a proven unregistered propagandist from a foreign government, is still a member of the senate and house press galleries, in good standing . . . The boys covering Washington some time ago considered kicking him out, but were discouraged by the State Dep't.

Points to the Northwest

Sun Valley is the only resort I ever visited that really looks like you expected it would. It's a movie set in real life, from the spacious, expensive Lodge, to the quaint Tyrolese village with its wide-eaved roofs and its statues of sculptured ice. The surrounding mountains, caked in hundreds of feet of snow, resemble the Alps. The thermometer hovers around 10 degrees above by day, drops 20 degrees at night; and the air is crisp and exhilarating.

There is a ski-shop run by a Swiss refugee, who works Indian patterns into twentieth-century practicalities. There is a night club called "The Ram," which looks like a Tyrolese drinking place. There are Austrian ski instructors, Bavarian skaters, Prussian waiters, Czechoslovakian hangers-on!

Noted several well-known persons —including young Studebaker—in wheel-chairs being pushed about by nurses. These invalids are the guests who've cracked up coming down! One of the importations from Europe pioneered in Sun Valley is the chair type of ski-lift. It is known as the Chairway to the Stars, and is a little over two miles long. It ascends a vertical height of 3,200 feet, on 9,200-foot Baldy mountain. This lift (160 chairs) cost a quarter million dollars to build.

Off at noon for Twin Falls, Idaho. Dined en route at a Japanese lunch counter in Shoshone, 33 miles south. The waitress was a dainty little Jap, not quite five feet tall, called Susie Nakata. She had been born 24 summers previously on a nearby ranch, and had lived all this time in and around Shoshone, a town of not over 1,500 inhabitants. Susie had never been to Sun Valley, or Twin Falls; once to Salt Lake City!

Left next noon and drove 200 miles to Idaho Falls, to address the Knife and Fork club there. Was followed by Maj. George Fielding Eliot. Afterwards on to Publisher J. F. McDermott's delightfully comfortable house, and his charming guests. Caught a midnight day-coach for Pocatello. Chatted en route with brilliant J. A. Nelson, traveling freight adjustment agent of a railroad in the West. Changed trains in Idaho's metropolis, where Idaho potatoes are now selling at 40 cents a hundred pounds, to the Portland Rose. Ten hours' sleep in a Pullman. Off next afternoon at Pendleton, Ore., the city made famous by the roundups. My car met me here and we left immediately. Three hours later pulled into Lewiston, for the night. Earlier in the afternoon the hotel basement had been afire. Interested in press report that Idaho tops U. S. in healthiest recruits at army camps. Only 3.2 per cent of its draftees have been rejected!

Then on to Moscow, and the Idaho State university. Twenty-four per cent of the students here are women. Men study chiefly forestry, mines, law. Learned Moscow is not named for the Russian city, but is an Indian derivative, such as Bosco, Wasco, Tako, etc.

Received the following letter from Bill Parker, written in Cannes, Alpes-Maritimes, Occupied France: "Having been a Reuter's correspondent in the Sino-Japanese war and a civilian observer in this war of Europe, I don't think much of wars or the people who conduct them . . . I came over here at the outbreak, on the first American freighter to go through the British contraband control, and with the determination of enlisting in an American volunteer regiment, believing that it represented a Great Cause. The American regiment did not materialize, and I was a volunteer with an American ambulance unit. Unquestionably I saw more of the war than many other American writers. And I debunk war as much as you debunked American society in your 'Farewell to Fifth Avenue.' I was brought before a summary court martial as a German spy-suspect in a French village where nobody spoke English, and was saved by German shells falling on the roof of the peasant's house where I was being tried. I was the only American eye-witness of an actual big battle between the French and the Germans, as far as I can determine. I was trapped by the Germans in another little village and was among them for six weeks. A great many humorous as well as tragic things happened. I was in the exodus from Paris, which I still think was the silliest and most inexcusable flight in all history.

Tailored Silk Suits, Dresses Reflect Beau Brummel Styles

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A FASHION that appeals to best-dressed women everywhere is the suit or costume tailored of either black or navy silk faille. There is a refinement and ladylikeness about these tailleurs that women love.

There is a patrician look about the suavely fitted, smartly detailed silk costumes in the illustration. You will be hearing much during the coming weeks about the Regency period fashions to which contemporary designers are turning for ideas or new inspiration. Our style creators are translating these costumes of the "dandies," who gloried in molded waistlines, peplum flared coatees, wide picturesque cuffs, fastidiously frilled waistcoats and wrist lingerie frills, into practical contemporary fashions, such as are here shown.

The black silk faille suit to the left in the picture reflects the Regency influences of the Beau Brummels of the past in its neat slender waistline, accented by a peplum silhouette, flared collar and cuffs and beruffled lingerie accents. The enormous felt hat is especially chic in that it typifies a smart, new millinery trend. These hats are particularly pretty in pastels, worn with either navy or black spring costumes.

The simplicity of the silk crepe dress to the right in the trio is a master stroke in costume design as interpreted this season by foremost designers. Note the new longer waistline. It is just this type of dress that invites lingerie accents. With a gown or coat dress of this sort, you can change it entirely with new accessories. Note the white frills in the sleeves.

Black wool and silk faille adapt well to the lines of the dressmaker suit centered in the group. The jacket features the new dropped shoulder yoke, with bracelet length sleeves and unpressed pleated peplum. Unpressed front pleats introduce new skirt interest. The blouse is of white mousseline de soie.

Another type of silk costume suit that is a leading fashion is the redingote ensemble. The great advantage is that the redingote can be worn either with its companion dress of faille or crepe or with print frocks. Many of the new redingotes are strictly tailored in straight slim lines. Others depart from the straight and narrow path by introducing front pleats and sometimes back yokes to give freedom across the shoulders.

Very smart, too, are black or navy silk coats, elaborately braided down the fronts. Also, a striking new note are glittering jeweled buttons, fastening the jacket of simple black or navy silks. Many flower buttons in realistic colorings are used on the new silk tailleurs.

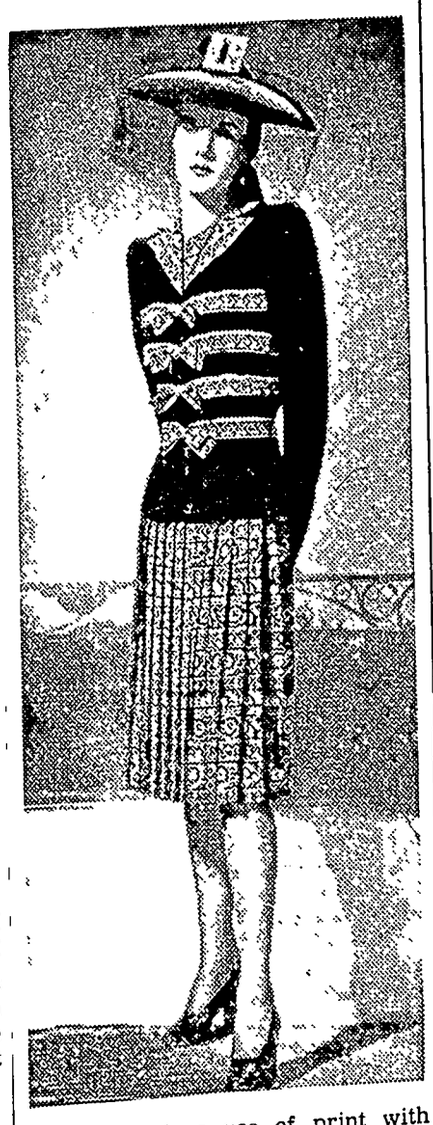
Print-Bow Trim



The ingenious use of print with plain is outstanding fashion news for spring. Especially attractive and chic is a new print silk bow technique used in jacket and bodice fastenings, as illustrated. The black, white and golden yellow silk print is striped horizontally for the dress, with the stripes applied in bands to the black wool jacket. Unpressed pleats give subtle fullness to the skirt. This model shows that the idea of print with plain is being used with refreshing originality.

Shades of Deep Purple Seen in Spring Fashions

Purple and violet and kindred shades are color features being highlighted this spring. Many suits and cape costumes are tailored of purple or violet-toned tweeds this spring. Topped with a fetching little straw chapeau, trimmed in violet, with violet boutonniere to match, this ensemble sings fashion's spring song.

The new lavenders and purples go charmingly with navy. Lots of white frills on a navy suit, navy or violet felt hat with violet flower trim and you're ready for the sun! Lavender veils or light green ones are accessory "musts" with purple ensembles.

Bright Red Colors

Red is registering one of the biggest color triumphs of the season. Young girls "dote" on the new red coats and jackets, some of which fasten with military brass buttons.

Prints with red backgrounds are creating a sensation. Some are patterned with navy or black or beige and green motifs. You really must have a red print frock.

It's the fashion to match hat and handbag this season. Try carrying out the idea in red straw or fabric, and don't forget to add a red veil. You will like red accents with your navy suit or redingote ensemble, and red accessories will add an exotic touch to your new beige outfit.

Chinese Hats

A custom among Chinese maidens is to wear clusters of flowers at each side of the head. It is this pretty headdress which has given inspiration for a new fashion that some predict will develop into an important vogue during the coming months. A noted American millinery designer has devised a band that curves to fit the head. This is covered with ribbon, and at each side flowers or ribbon bows are attached. You wear this fitted bandeau like little girls used to wear round combs. This is a real help to those who prefer to go hatless.

THE EARLY CHURCH MEETING HUMAN NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-7.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul.—Acts 4:32.

Machinery without power is useless—that is why in the lesson of last Sunday the power of the Holy Spirit was recognized as being indispensable in the church. One sometimes wonders whether we do not now have more machinery than power, and thus fail in our high calling.

Power, on the other hand, reaches its greatest usefulness through the organization of well-planned machinery. The church soon found that its activities, simple at the beginning, had become more complex, calling for suitable organization, if it was to best serve the needs of its own people and of those round about it. In so organizing they did not forget this fundamental purpose of the church, nor did they forsake the true source of power.

I. Sharing With the Brethren (4: 32-35).

Love for one another prompted the Christian brethren to meet each other's need by sharing, by holding all they owned for the common good. This was not (as some would have us believe) a type of communism. It was purely voluntary (see Acts 5:4), temporary, and local. It was practiced only in Jerusalem and only for a short time. It was an expression of Christian brotherhood and liberality which is worthy of our consideration.

The duty and privilege of sharing material as well as spiritual blessings is a part of Christian fellowship. Those in the church who have should willingly share with those who have not. Some churches have so effectively carried out this plan today that none of their members is on relief. Not every church can do that, but much more could be done if we had the considerate spirit of the early Christian church, which was indeed the spirit of Christ.

II. Caring for the Unfortunate (6:1, 3, 5, 6).

The church had come through its first real persecution (Acts 5:12-42) with real victory and assurance (5: 42), only to face an internal difficulty. Wherever the Lord blesses, the enemy comes to destroy. Whenever a door of service opens, there are many adversaries (I Cor. 16:9).

There were two groups in the church—the Hebrew Christians, and those with a Greek background. Among the poor to whom daily distribution of help must be made were many widows. Suddenly the Grecian group began to note (or think they noted, which was just as disturbing) that their widows were being neglected.

Notice that men of good character and spirituality were chosen to serve, and that all of them bore Greek names. The Greeks, who were doubtless in the minority in the Jerusalem church, had a complaint, so those who were appointed to serve were their own people. We might have been tempted to appoint a committee made up of half from each side (and thus to continue the dissension), but not so here where grace and wisdom from above controlled.

Do not fail to observe that there was here a well-ordered plan to care for the weak and unfortunate. No Christian church should fail in that important ministry.

III. Preaching the Word (vv. 2, 4, 7).

Social service is necessary—the church should make intelligent provision for its poor and its widows—but it makes a fatal mistake when such service becomes more important than the preaching and teaching of God's Word. Let those appointed to that blessed ministry find joy in sanctified social service, but never let it pre-empt the place of evangelism.

Certainly such service must not become the all-absorbing task of the one who has been set by God as the messenger to the church—the spiritual shepherd of the flock. Many a preacher has lost himself in such work, and failed to study and pray so that he might be prepared to preach the Word in power and with conviction. Too many preachers are attempting to shake a sermon out of their coat sleeves on Saturday night (as Joseph Parker put it) only to find that their ministry grows leaner and leaner until, reaching the years when there should be a matured richness and sweetness in their ministry of the Word, they find their message dead, dull and dry.

Such folly ill befits the Christian church of its ministers. Perhaps some minister who reads these lines should change his ways, and perchance many a church officer who reads them should realize that he has been driving his preacher into work which, while important, should be (for him, at least) secondary. First things first, in God's own order—that is the road of power and blessing

Cut the box lid straight across with a sharp knife three inches in from the front edge. Cut out the front of the box and hinge the pieces in place. Now, cut and paste the covering pieces, as directed in the sketch. Apply the paste on both the back of the fabric and the box and smooth the material in place with a dry, clean cloth. Cover sides first with fabric straight around and about ½ inch over edges; then cover top and bottom; then the inner sides with the plain fabric ¼ inch below the edges and ½ inch over the top and bottom; then cover the top and bottom inside.
